McGinnes has been with Southwest Texas Electric since 1942, manager since October, 1967. To Library Position At Baylor University

Kathy Robinson Hillman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Robinson Jr. of Eldorado, received a Master of Library Science degree from North Texas State University in commencement exercises Saturday evening in Denton. Mrs. Hillman was one of 602 graduate students and 666 undergraduates to receive degrees in the summer ceremonies.

On August 3, Mrs. Hillman became a member of Alpha Lambda Sigma, local library science honor fraternity. Initiation into the organization is based upon academic achievement and professional competence. A member must maintain a 3.75 grade point average on a 4.0 scale.

Mrs. Hillman has achieved a perfect 4.0 grade point average throughout her 36 hours of course work. She now becomes eligible for membership in Phi Beta Mu, national library science fraternity.

The North Texas, Texas Woman's University and University of Texas library science degrees are the only three accredited programs in the state of Texas. Admission to one of the selective programs is determined by undergraduate grades, graduate record examination scores and professional recommendations.

Mrs. Hillman, formerly librarian for the local schools, will join the faculty of Baylor University as Assistant Acquisitions Librarian on September 1. She received her B. A. degree in Oral Communications, summa cum laude, from Baylor in 1973.

Mrs. Hillman, married to John R. Hillman of San Angelo, is the granddaughter of Mrs. T. P. Robinson, Sr., of Eldorado and Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Barton of San Angelo.

Annual Barbecue Held At Nursing Home

Schleicher County Medical Center Nursing Home held its third annual Barbecue last Friday night at 7:00 on the patio of the nursing home.

Approximately 150 people were served Orland Harris's good barbecue and good food was plentiful. We must say a big thank you to Virginia Griffin, Ryeburn Crawford of Mertzon, Jimmy West and Sherrill Dannheim for furnishing the goats. A special thanks goes to Orland for doing the barbecue and also furnishing all the beef brisket.

As the sun went down we listened to music provided by Roy Adams and his group from San Angelo. This was a special treat and everyone enjoyed these five gentlemen.

Another thank you goes to Bill McCravy. He furnishes us with hay every year so everyone will have a place to sit.

Everyone enjoyed visiting with friends and family and we are all looking forward to next year. — Ruthie Dacy, Activity Director.

Jill Pitts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Pitts, has just returned home after spending the past two weeks at the Kerrville Lions Club camp.

On Monday, B. C. Coates and family moved into the parsonage on North Lee Street. The family are moving from New Mexico and he will be new minister of the Church of Christ on the Mertzon highway.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY

By JANNETTE WILKERSON

The Museum is still having a little trouble finding someone to stay Fridays, Saturdays, and Sundays. So if you find you have one of these afternoons free, just go by and put your name on the list.

Our financial status is more than satisfactory. We have in our account now over $5,000. This will insure the purchase of show cases, putting down the new flooring, and our security iron work for the doors and windows.

We are still looking for any old clipping pictures, letters, or documents to display or have copied. If you have any of these or know of someone who does, give us a call; we'd love to share them with you.

This has been such a successful and worthwhile undertaking, we've all learned something about where it all started and with a boost in our Pride, we can get to where we're going.

REMEMBER WHEN?

According to an early article there is a grave marker on the Albert Bailey farm southwest of town. I. K. Canfield, member of Co. A, 8th Infantry, is believed to have been the victim of Comanches. The Comanches, as well as their dreaded foe, the Lipan Apache, used a trail between the Concho and Devil's rivers and often passed near the present site of Eldorado. These were usually made up of hunting parties of 15 or 20 braves, and if they found stray cattle, horses, or sheep along they felt no qualms about adding them to their meat supply.

Mules held a special fascination to the Indians, not as a mount, but as a food source, as did dogs on occasion. In passing the Indians left vast evidence of artifacts indigenous to this part of the country. These grinding stones, and flint arrowheads, must have been made elsewhere and lost in battle or on these hunting trips.

The monument close by the Bailey home bears the inscription, "In Memory of L. K. Canfield, Co. A, 8th Inf., Died July 17, 1860." Nothing else is said of this lone casualty of a harsh and troubled time. But it's interesting to speculate as to what kind of man, with what kind of dreams for the future he had for himself and his family. Fighting in a foreign country holds a special feeling of protectiveness, but to be in your native land the urgency would surely increase with the possibility of a savage enemy with little or no moral guidance's threat to home and family.

Our earth holds many secrets of the people who gave their lives under the shadow of an uncertain tomorrow. Little could he have known of the thriving civilization that would follow his ill fated summer afternoon. The days of raiding Indians and Infantry soldiers are gone forever; the evidence of these hard times is recorded in our books and memories; we see them and think, "It's a nice place to visit, but I wouldn't want to live there."

Save Energy In
 Dishwasher Operation

Switching to "no-heat" drying in the automatic dishwasher can cut two-thirds off the amount of energy required to operate it.

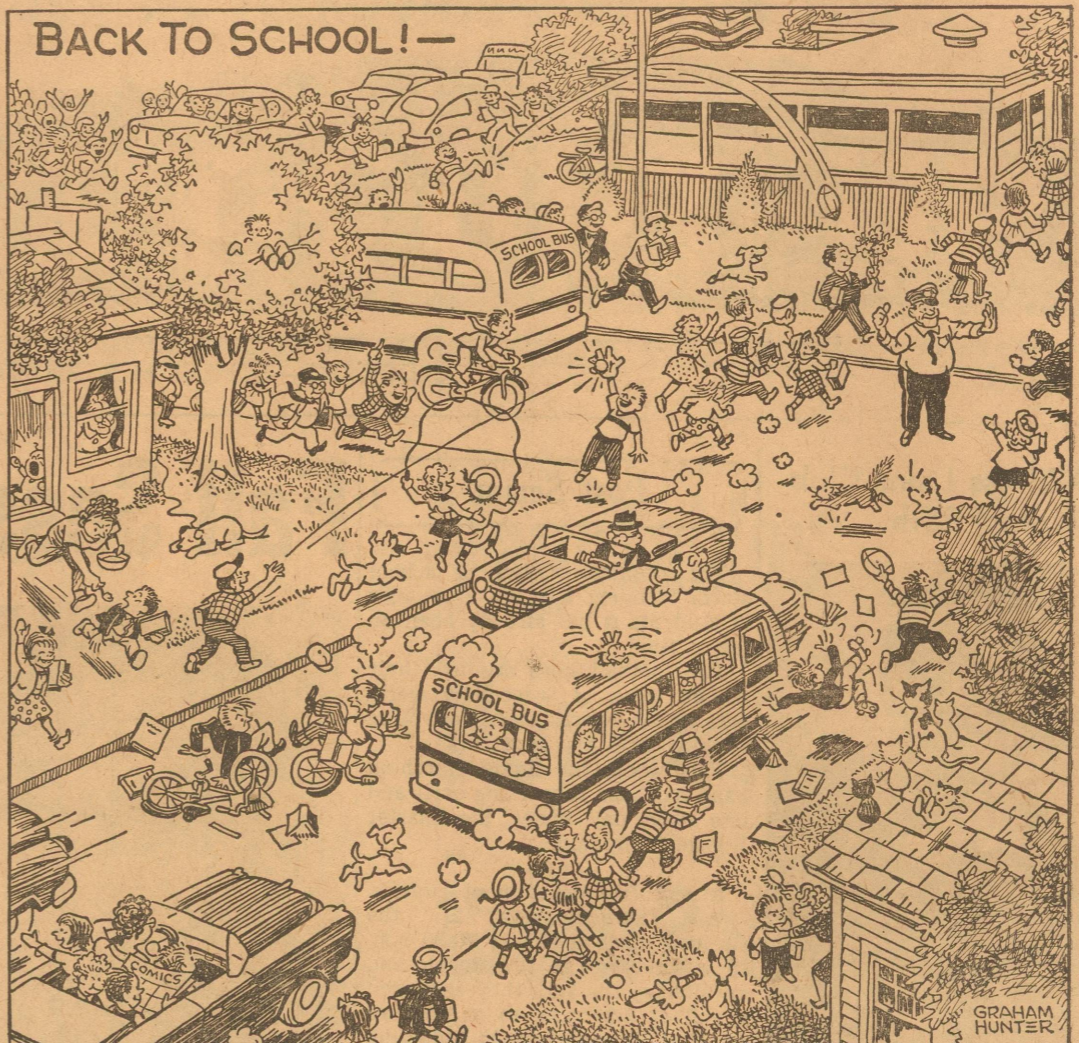

Even though a dishwasher uses a small amount of power, Consumers Union has found that using no-heat drying can save from one-half to four cents a load. The amount depends on local utility rates.

This savings does not take into account the amount of energy used to supply hot water to the dishwasher. Supplying water 140-160 degrees F. does take a large portion of energy. But cooler water results in less effective cleaning and a higher germ count on clean dishes. Reducing the germ count on dishes is a major reason for using a dishwasher.

No-heat drying can be achieved in most dishwashers. Read the instruction manual carefully. For some models, the "crystal and plastic" cycle does not include a "heat" cycle. If the control knob can be advanced manually, and the operator is available when the last rinse is completed, the control can be advanced to "off." Opening the door a few inches will speed the drying time. Unless the weather is muggy, drying should be complete within an hour.

If the dishwasher does not have a manually advanceable control, the dishwasher will automatically begin the drying cycle. Unless the control is advanced to "off" before the door is opened, it is easy to forget that the machine is ready to enter the drying cycle. Starting the next load on "dry" will cook on food and make cleaning more difficult.

Do You Know What I Mean?

Have you ever told a young child to "cut that out," and then have him ask you where the scissors are?

Children often do not attach the same meaning to words as adults do. Their perception of an object may be a clever interpretation of its use or a literal translation of its name.

Many adults assume that children are informed on certain topics, when they actually know little about it.

A study done by C. A. Probst in Minneapolis, Minn., tested a child's information concerning concepts. The results were informative, amusing—and sensible. A few of the replies were:

—A carpenter fixes carpet sweepers or repairs cars.

—The Great Northern (railroad) is the North Star.

—Butter is made from buttermilk, or butterflies make it.

—Plants, seeds and flowers are manufactured in the Ford plant.

—A plumber plumbs, pulls out plums or sells plumbers.

—Beans grow in gardens, but bees make them.

Make Sauerkraut To Preserve
 Extra Cabbage

Making sauerkraut may be the answer for home gardeners with more cabbage than the family can eat fresh.

Sauerkraut is an economical source of Vitamin C and adds a zesty taste to family meals. Select firm, sound heads of cabbage.

About one pound of cabbage fills one pint of kraut.

Remove the outside green and dirty leaves. Wash well. If worms are present, soak in four tablespoons salt per gallon of water for 30 minutes. Quarter the head and shred the cabbage finely.

Put five pounds cabbage and two ounces (3½ tablespoons) of salt into a large pan and mix with the hands. Pack gently into the crock with a potato masher. Repeat until crock is nearly full. Cover with a cloth, plate and weight. During the curing process, kraut requires daily attention. Remove scum as it forms and wash and seal the cloth often to keep it free from scum and mold. Fermentation will be complete in 10-12 days.

As soon as kraut is thoroughly cured, pack into sterilized jars, adding enough of the kraut juice, or a weak brine made by dissolving two tablespoons salt to a quart of water, to fill jars to within one-half inch of top. Put on cap, screw band firmly tight. Process in boiling water bath 15 minutes.

Mohair Council To Meet August 19th

The Fall mohair market, future world mohair production, and the development of a European-based promotion organization will be some of the featured topics for discussion at the summer directors meeting of the Mohair Council of America to be held at 10:00 a.m. Thursday, August 19, at the Community Savings and Loan Association building in Fredericksburg.

James T. Hunt of Sonora, Council president, noted that this summer session should be one of the most interesting and informative meetings the board has held in recent years, and he urges all growers in the mohair producing area of Texas to make every effort to attend.

"We have seen record high prices paid for our fiber in the last two years," Hunt said. "We must take a look at the future to see what our prospects are for future mohair production, what to expect if the demand for our fiber softens, and what measures can be taken to increase our mohair production."

Hunt said the Spring, 1976, mohair clip was considerably less than predicted, due to extremely dry conditions during the winter. The Fall clip, however, is expected to show improvement in tonnage.

In addition to discussing ways to improve mohair production and future market prospects, growers and directors also will hear a special report on the formation of the International Mohair Association, composed of organizations and commercial firms specializing in the processing and manufacturing of mohair goods, which just recently held its annual meeting in Port Elizabeth, South Africa. Several Council representatives attended the meeting. Also on tap will be a report on the activities of the newly organized Texas Mohair Producers Board which was created this last February to carry out a new method of financing future mohair promotion, market development, and educational programs.

Among special guests attending the meeting will be several officials of the state and federal departments of agriculture, research organization leaders, warehouse operators, buyers, and others in the mohair trade.

Austin, Texas.— Auto insurance rates are going up again—but not nearly as much as they would if the State Insurance Board hadn't installed automatic deductibles.
The average statewide increase for private passenger cars will be 7.1%, effective for policies renewed or taken out October 1. This follows a 15.5% hike, effective January 1.
Deductibles of $200 for collision and $50 for comprehensive coverage will be written into all policies unless the holder orders otherwise at an additional premium. Policyholders pay the deductibles themselves in event of claims. Companies pay the balance over $50 or $200.
Insurance companies put in for a 27.9% increase, and Insurance Board staff members recommended 19.3% using present optional deductibles.
Actually, car owners in 29 of the 40 rating territories over the state will have reduced premiums under automatic deductibles.
More than 90% of motorists are expected to accept the new system.
Deductibles of $100 are written into most collision policies but not into comprehensive coverage.
Actuaries estimate the deductibles will eliminate $55 million in administrative expenses for insurance companies and save the companies $76 million in pay-outs to drivers.
Premiums vary on the basis of driving record, age, location, uses, make and model of car. Bexar County (San Antonio) drivers would bear the largest increase—about $13—and those in Waller county would get the biggest reduction, $35.
Prisons Crowded
Texas' prison population will increase about 50% in the next five years, Department of Corrections Director W. J. Estelle told a House committee.
Estelle estimated the number of prisoners will increase from 20,847 to 30,153.
He is pushing for approval of a new prison facility. The prison system can build it for $72 million, he said, but the institution would cost $111 million if it is handled entirely by contract.
Estelle suggested the legislature consider giving counties authority to start work-release programs for their prisoners in local jails.
He backed a restitution program by which the inmates would use part of their earnings to pay victims of their crimes.
Education Offered
Education will be available next school year for more than 3,000 handicapped children not served by any agency.
Potential students three to 21 years old were located in a five-months statewide search.
Most of those located in the "Child Search" operation fall in the severely-handicapped range, and many suffer from more than one disability—physical, mental or emotional.
Texas Education Agency and regional education service center staff members will work with school districts to develop at least interim programs for the children immediately.
Special staff development programs designed to help administrators, teachers, diagnosticians and other personnel improve their skills are already under way on an emergency basis.
Some of the children, according to TEA, will need physical and occupational therapy as well as traditional education associated with public schools.
Short Snorts...
Tom Lowrance of Houston has launched a write-in campaign for the Texas Supreme Court against controversial Don Yarbrough.

The Swine Flu Legislation

(by Congressman Bob Krueger)

Last week the House passed some extraordinary measures, to deal with what is admittedly an extraordinary disease, swine flu. I voted to support the program originally on the basis of the medical evidence I had seen and heard. We in the Congress determined that federal action was necessary because of the possible severity of the disease. By the time the program came back to the House again for final approval, however, insurance companies were refusing to back it, resulting in the refusal of the vaccine manufacturers to distribute the vaccine for administration by health personnel. Consequently, the government was faced with the unpleasant task of taking more and more responsibility for the actions of individuals in the private sector. Setting the precedent of mass government involvement in individual actions in the manner implied in this legislation is dangerous. For example, under the final version of the bill, if someone were inoculated against the swine flu virus, but in the process was infected because the nurse used a dirty or rusty needle, the individual could sue the government for any amount of money he wanted in damages. As one of my colleagues said on the floor, "We may expect a jury to be very generous with the government's money."
Under the legislation passed by the House, anyone claiming injury from the program could sue the federal government under laws presently protecting federal employees in agencies such as the Public Health Service. HEW Secretary David Mathews suggested that baseless suits would be screened out, by the law, which allows protection for drug manufacturers and doctors who administered the vaccine without charge, and doctors charging for the vaccine would have to rely on their own malpractice insurance.
Precedent of providing these assumptions of liability to drug companies, insurance companies, health administrators, and medical personnel, not to mention the recipients of the vaccine suggests a pattern of future actions that I believe we would find intolerable. The government cannot forever continue intrusion into the private sector.
There are many unanswered questions about the implications of such a precedent, none of which has yet received a satisfactory answer.
First, Is the program envisioned as the first step toward a completely Federally managed insurance program? Will Federal malpractice coverage be next? I hope not, but it could be.
Second, How should we view the refusal of the private insurance industry to underwrite the program, which the Congress and the President have found to be in the best interests of the American people?
Third, What are the legal ramifications of this Federal insurance procedure? Are we setting a precedent whereby drug companies will relieve themselves of liability for other products?
Fourth, What federal procedures will screen out baseless suits? The one proposed by the Secretary seems open to question.
Fifth, What is the best estimate of the possible extent of the government's liability under this program? There is no good estimate.
The risks are apparently too great for private enterprise to be willing to accept them, and I hesitate, therefore, to think that this is in itself reason for the government to accept them.
We can approach our concern for public health in a more reasonable fashion. Over the next year or so, the Congress will be considering any number of proposals concerning health care, and I hope we will take the necessary care in examining such proposals. As the Congress addresses itself to those issues, I will continue to defend the rights and responsibilities of individuals to be responsible for their own actions. Precedents to the contrary must be avoided, and I will continue to work to see that they are.

HELPFUL TIPS ON FOOD

By Sara Eason
Consumer Services Manager
Wilson & Co., Inc.

Cold cuts, as part of the sausage family of meats, go back as far as 1000 B.C. Very popular in ancient Rome, they're just as popular today.
They're made from meats that are ground and mixed with spices for flavoring and sometimes with other ingredients like olives, pickles, pimento and cheese for variety.

Eason

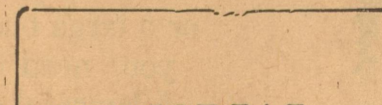

The recipe and the process must be approved by U.S. government inspectors. These inspectors and quality assurance people like Wilson's carefully check during the manufacturing process to make sure they're produced according to specifications under clean, sanitary conditions.
Cold cuts are convenient besides being tasty. They're almost a staple for lunch boxes, cold platters, hors d'oeuvres and salads. You store them in the original wrapper in the refrigerator up to a week, or unopened in the freezer for a month.
Here is a family-pleasing serving suggestion:

- QUICK BOLOGNA CUPS
- 8 slices Bologna
- 1 can (1-pound) Apple slices
- 1/3 cup firmly packed brown sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
- 8 slices processed American cheese

Pan-fry bologna just until bologna forms a cup. Mix apple slices in a small bowl with brown sugar, cinnamon and nutmeg. Fill cups with apple mixture. Top each cup with a slice of cheese and place on a cookie sheet. Place under broiler until cheese melts.
Other fillings for bologna cups may be pork and beans or German potato salad topped with cheese slice or cottage cheese with chives, topped with shredded lettuce.

also take steps to avoid charcoal rot damage to corn and sorghum. Planting at the proper rate to avoid excess plant populations will help. Also, anything that can be done to aid in the storage of soil moisture will help ward off this disease condition.

If charcoal rot has been identified in fields this year, we advise producers to plan ahead to prevent future damage.

Punishment Certainty For Criminals Sought

(by Lloyd Bentsen, U. S. Senator)

Bentsen Seeks Certainty of Punishment For Criminals; Introduces Legislation Tightening Sentencing Procedures.

Washington, D. C.—Sen. Lloyd Bentsen Tuesday introduced legislation which reduces the discretion of both judges and parole boards by setting a firm, middle range prison term for violent Federal crimes.

Under the Bentsen Presumptive Sentence bill a bank robber, for example, would be sentenced to four years in prison for a first offense. In virtually every case the robber would not be eligible for parole, although his sentence would be reduced, by an amount of time strictly established by law, for good behavior in prison.

"The current system, indiscriminate sentencing, is neither fair nor effective," Bentsen said in remarks prepared for the Senate.

"By whatever standard we use, our sentencing policies in criminal cases are failing. Judges are left adrift in a sea of discretion. There are few guidelines and little direction."

Current law, for example, allows the judge to set the prison sentences for bank robbery at anything from zero years to 20 years.

Under the Bentsen bill a 20 year maximum and a four year middle range or "presumptive" sentence is set. If the judge goes above or below the presumptive sentence he would have to present his reasons for doing so in writing, subject to appellate review.

The Bentsen bill increases the presumptive sentence by 50%—to six years in the case of bank robbery—for the second conviction, by 100% for the third conviction and by 200% for the fourth conviction. Senator Bentsen noted that the sentences established in his legislation are tentative and might well

Charcoal Rot In Grain Sorghum, Corn

Charcoal rot, a fungus disease, is appearing in corn and sorghum throughout Texas.

Plants affected by this condition die prematurely from damage to the lower stalk. Corn ears or sorghum heads will not develop properly, and lodging (stalks falling over) will be widespread if winds occur.

A producer can diagnose the disease by cutting a stalk lengthwise and looking at the plant tissue. If the fungus is present, the soft tissue will have been eaten away, leaving only the water-transporting bundles. It may look as though someone had taken a comb and actually combed out the softer tissues. Infection cuts off the flow of water and nutrients to the upper portions of the plant, causing the plant to die quickly and the grain fails to mature properly.

Charcoal rot fungus is in the soil throughout the year, and most fields are infected. However, the disease infects corn and sorghum only at heading time and when plants are under drought stress. Since the disease causes little problem where adequate moisture is available, producers who have the capability of irrigation can completely eliminate damage from charcoal rot.

However, dryland producers can

MARKET REPORT—

College Station—Egg prices in Texas grocery stores won't strain most budgets this week. Heavier supplies of small and medium size eggs are in evidence, while prices on the large sizes are moving up seasonally, Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt, a consumer marketing information specialist, reports. She is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"Smoked cuts head the list of pork values—smoked picnics, and frankfurters, some brands of bacon and roll sausage.

"Beef features are scarcer, but some specials can be found on chuck roasts and steaks, ground beef, round steaks and roasts and calf liver."

She reported that dairy counters have a wide variety of milk products to select from, with cottage cheese one good choice.

Turkeys and turkey rolls are being featured in some stores.

"Fresh vegetables in best supply at most economical prices include potatoes, corn, dry yellow onions, cucumbers, carrots, squash, bell peppers, cabbage, purplehull and blackeye peas.

"Good fruit choices include peaches, nectarines, plums, grapes, bananas, cantaloupes and water-be changed following testimony at congressional hearings on the measure.

"Certainty of punishment can provide a deterrent to many forms of violent criminal behavior. The sad state of events today leads many to believe that the probability of punishment is low, that the law need not be feared, that criminal conduct will be tolerated with little or no cost to the criminal," Bentsen said.

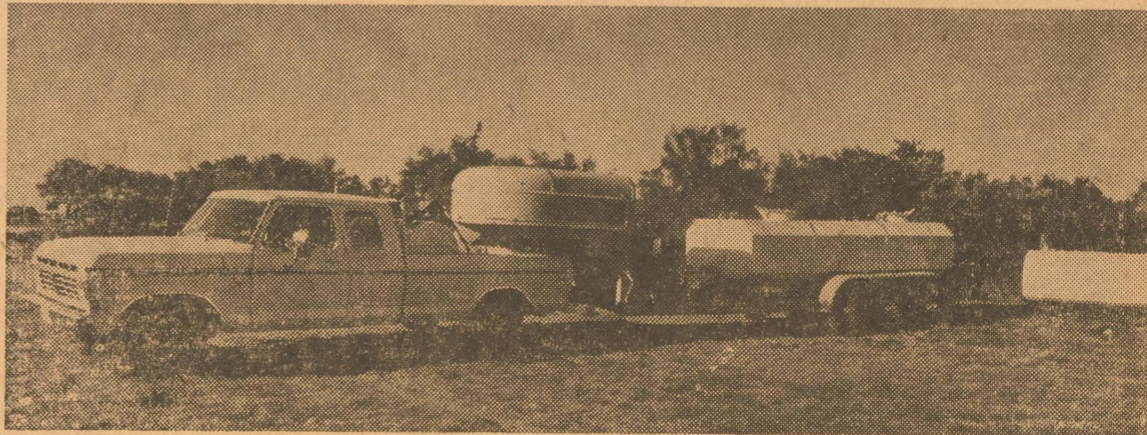

"The legislation I introduce today should increase the deterrent by increasing the certainty that some punishment will be imposed. "We should work toward a system of criminal sentencing that is, as John Greenleaf Whittier once described justice, 'The hope of all who suffer, the dread of all who wrong.' This legislation is one step forward," Senator Bentsen said.

TOWER TALKS

A Laugh from OSHA

WASHINGTON—I never cease to be amazed at the mindless and astonishing ways that federal bureaucrats devise to waste our tax dollars. One marvel follows another.

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) of the Department of Labor is perhaps the most controversial of the alphabet-soup regulatory agencies that have sprung up in Washington.

OSHA's foolish, arbitrary and capricious regulations like the one that requires each farmer to place toilet facilities and running water in his fields have reduced many a grown man to tears. I myself have often felt rage, frustration, anxiety or despair upon reading them and then battling to get them modified to conform, a least a little bit, with the circumstances of the real world.

Thus OSHA's latest effort, a pamphlet entitled: "Safety With Beef Cattle," came as a welcome relief. I nearly split my sides laughing as I read it.

This brochure, which OSHA produced at a cost to you and me of $10,000, would be grossly insulting to farmers if it weren't so hilariously funny. Anyone reading it would have a hard time deciding whether it was written for morons or by morons or both.

The "safety tips" that the bureaucrats of OSHA—many of whom, I suspect, would not be able to tell one end of a cow from the other—have to be read to be believed. Let me give you a few examples:

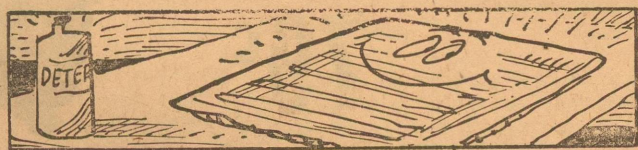

- "Hazards are among the main causes of accidents."
- "When floors are wet and slippery with manure, you can have a bad fall."
- "Ladders that are not strong or have broken steps can cause a bad fall. If yours is broken, do not climb it."
- "Tired or hungry or frightened cattle can bolt and trample you."
- "Bare feet or sneakers aren't safe around cattle. Wear heavy shoes."

Such rubbish insults the intelligence of everyone who has ever worked on a farm or ranch. I can't imagine a more frivolous waste of taxpayers' money.

OSHA apparently agrees with me. It is attempting to suppress distribution of the existing 100,000 copies of the brochure pending publication of a revised version. OSHA is refusing to hand out copies of it even to U.S. Senators.

The only reason for OSHA's suppression of this brochure is to protect its already poor reputation among farmers and ranchers by trying to prevent public knowledge of its abysmal stupidity.

I'm for handing out all 100,000 copies of "Safety With Beef Cattle." It provides the most graphic illustration possible of the positively astounding ways in which federal bureaucrats waste money. It should be read by every taxpayer.

Soak oven racks in detergent overnight to make them easier to clean.

Soon... the Explosion

According to pessimists it won't be long before the world blows itself up. Now that man has the capability to wipe out civilization, they say, his unrestrained instincts will drive him to do just that.

But are man's instincts unrestrained?

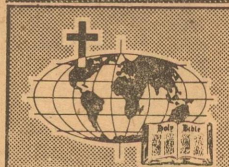

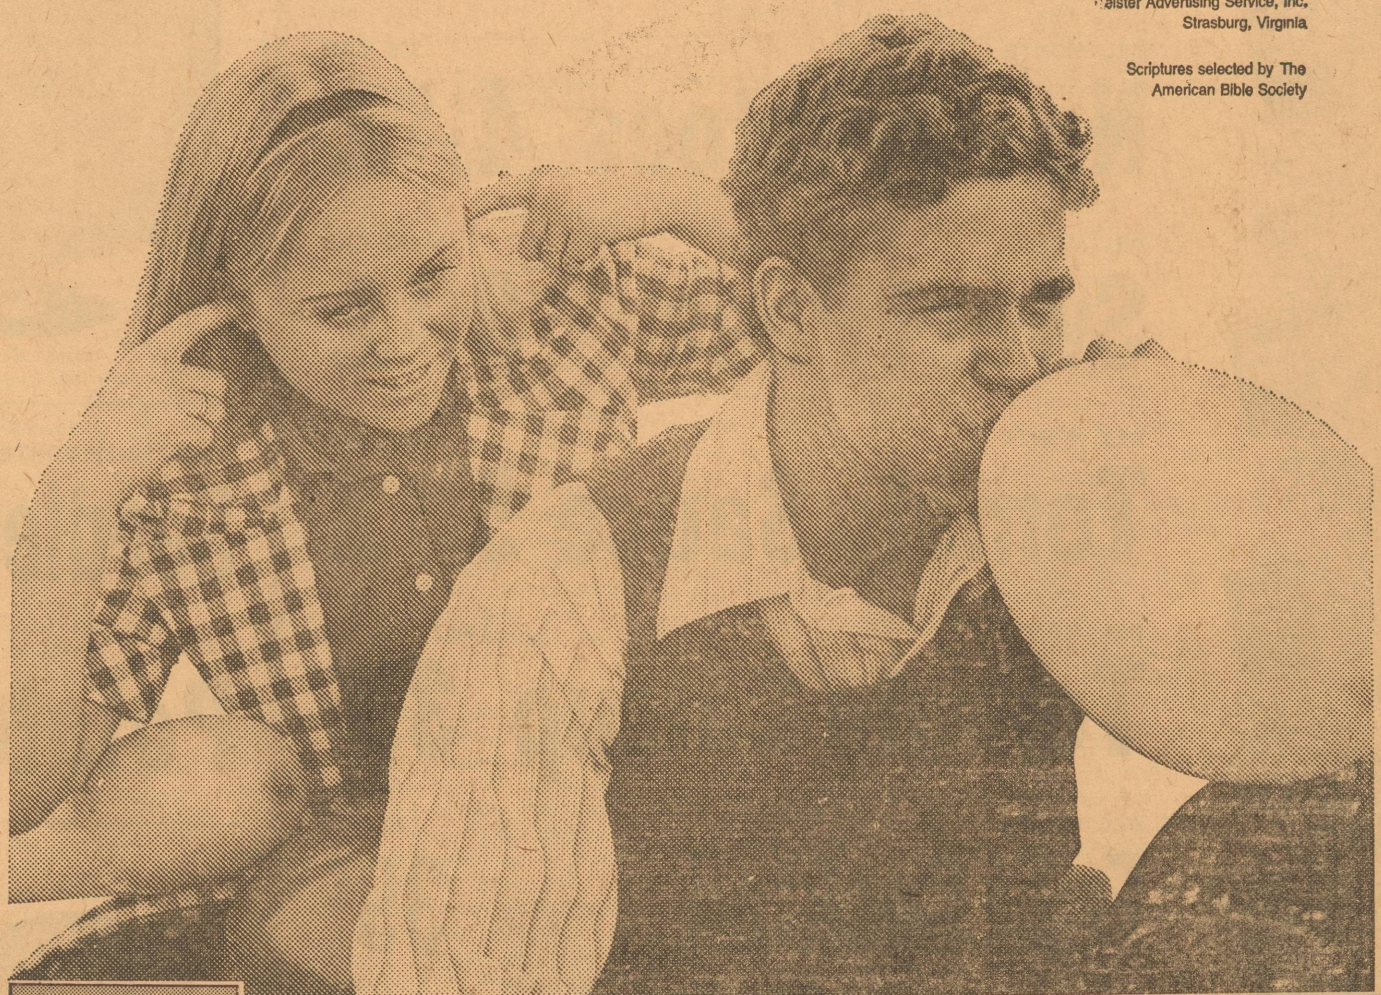

The principles of law, morality, responsibility are the foundations of an orderly society. They have their roots in religion.

In the Ten Commandments, the Sermon on the Mount, the life and message of Jesus Christ, the hopes and destiny of mankind are expressed. Earliest men have been channeling instincts and spiritual energies to positive purpose for generations.

Next time someone says "soon—the explosion" . . . invite that person to come to church with you and your family.
