

School Receives Energy Construction Grant

Soaring energy costs are prompting school districts to "retrofit" or make like new their school buildings and infuse energy-saving devices. With the assistance of Region XV's Energy Resources coordinator, Cullen Perry, plus grant money from Texas Energy and National Resources Advisory Council, superintendents are now reaping benefits for their schools. Their intensive research into building construction and application writing paid off. In Region XV, some six districts, Schleicher County included, are now receiving money for either energy conservation measures or technical assistance. Total funds allotted is over $63,333. Guy Whitaker, Superintendent for Schleicher County Independent School District said his district employed Myrl Sudduth April 1, as engineer and Gary Donaldson as architect (technical assistance phase) to determine if energy conservation measures to a section of the school constructed in the late 20s, will pay back in the required 15-year period. The district received $2,000 in technical assistance grant money. The building to be "retrofitted" houses fourth, fifth and sixth grades, a gym and special ed--some 50,000 square feet. "While this building is structurally sound, there are lots of windows and high ceilings resulting in heat loss," Whitaker noted. Sudduth completed his report May 27 and Schleicher County Independent School District sent their application, along with the report, for federal matching funds to Texas Energy and National Resources Advisory Council in Austin. According to Whitaker they plan to lower ceilings, insulate and use storm windows. Thurs far, they have already shifted from incandescent to "the more economical fluorescent in this building. The steam heating system has been reinsulated and the firebox has been reworked.

MEALS FOR FRIENDS PARTICIPANTS--Dorothy Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Hext, Douge Yates, Mildred Roach, Anita Brown, and Mr. and Mrs. George Gandy enjoyed a noon meal together in the Methodist Church.

Meals For Friends Begins Summer Program

The Meals for Friends program, initiated in February, has recently started the summer phase of the operation. The meals are being served in the educational building at the Methodist Church. The church agreed to provide cooking and eating facilities for the summer months, until school opens in the fall, at which time those registered in the program will eat in the new cafeteria facility.

Beverly Jarrett, executive secretary and coordinator of the program said last week there are approximately 30 meals being prepared and served for the three day period, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday.

The Meals for Friends program is similar to programs in neighboring communities known as Meals for Wheels. The local Meals for Friends is self-funding, however. Donations are accepted and those enrolled in the program can pay for their meals if they wish, but are not required to do so. This does not mean this is a charity program. The meals program accepts no federal funding and is supported solely by local funds.

Besides being a program that provides nutritious meals for elderly citizens, it is also designed to provide fellowship for those enrolled. Domino games and other recreational activities are planned after meals. It also give the participants a chance to get out and visit which they might not be able to do otherwise.

The Meals program was originated by several local citizens who saw the need for improved diets for several elderly people in Eldorado. The number of enrollees has grown from 16 in February to a current total of 30. Those registered in the program have been screened as to their age and need. The program is designed for people over 60 years of age who have difficulty preparing meals or do not have financial means to afford a well-rounded diet. Salt free diets are also included in the program.

Volunteer help is used to pick up those who want to get out and eat, or to deliver meals to shut-ins or those unable to get out.

The Meals for Friends program is directed by the Meals for Friends Committee made up of volunteers in the program and other citizens interested in helping the senior citizens. Several local organizations have given assistance to the program. Those receiving special recognition are the Schleicher County Commissioners Court, who through their financial support helped "Get off the ground;" the school district which provided preparation and serving facilities in the initial stages; the Methodist Church for providing the current facilities being used; and Jerroll Sanders, who has donated carry-out trays since the program began.

The cooks for the summer program are Ann Clinton and Mona Jasso. Volunteers helping cook, serve and carry out are Tricia Trimble, Ina Lambert, Lavonne Holsey, and Sabrina Norman. There may be others that have helped that are not mentioned, but all assistance and donations are appreciated.

For the summer all the menus and food purchases have been made EXCEPT for meat. Any meat (roast, ground meat, 1/2 beef, etc), fresh fruit or vegetables or other food item donations will be greatly appreciated. Financial support is also needed and appreciated.

Anyone wishing to contribute in any way or volunteer their service, please contact Beverly Jarrett at the Methodist Church or Billie Porter at Meador-Peters Agency.

A program of people helping their neighbor is what makes a small town such as Eldorado a great place to live.

Etc. By Donna Garvin

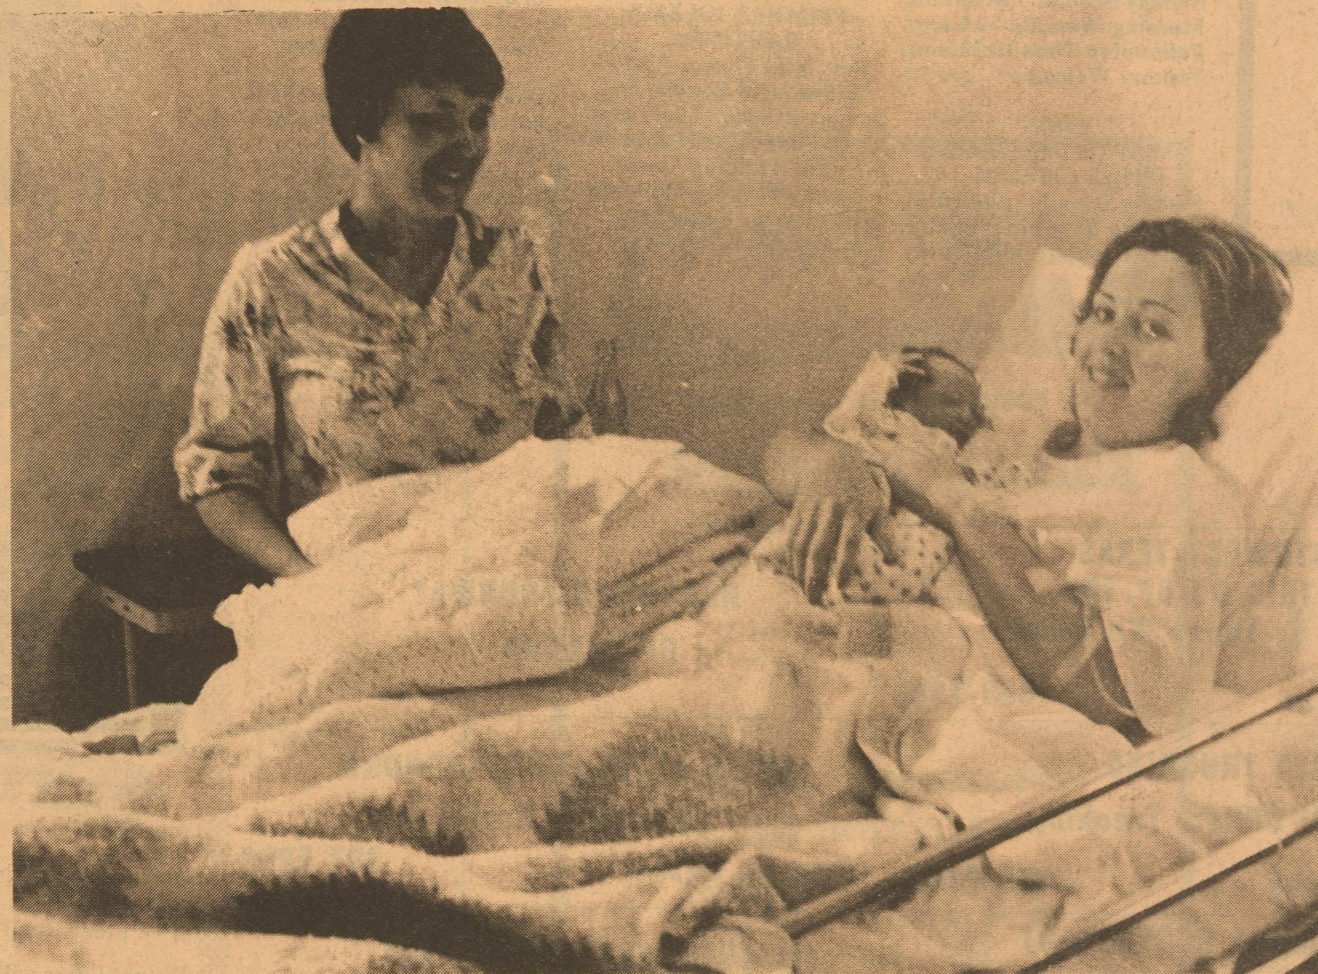

Two weeks ago a local home was burglarized in the middle of the afternoon and a television and stereo were taken. The owners were upset to say the least but felt sure their insurance would cover it. After all, they had "a piece of the rock". When they called the insurance company, they found out different. They did not have the coverage they thought they had and it didn't cover the theft.

This happens to so many people who do not fully understand just what their insurance policies cover. If you have any doubt about the policies you carry, call or go by your insurance agent's office and have him explain your coverage in full detail. Don't find out the hard way like your neighbor did. Even though it was an unfortunate and costly mistake for the couple, they would like others to learn from it. No one is immune from thefts and vandalism and it happens every day.

If you notice any strange activity in your neighbor's house while they are away, don't hesitate to check into it, or call the local sheriff's office. You may save your neighbor several hundred dollars and they may be able to return the favor someday.

Maybe we can discourage some of these burglars if they think the house is being watched by neighbors.

As this paper goes to press, I will be on a very short vacation, down the beautiful Pecos River doing a little fishing. Even editors need a little time off once in a while.

Grass Clippings Provide Nutrients For Your Lawn

Grass clippings do not need to be removed after each mowing. Clippings contain plant nutrients that can be recycled through the lawn when they are left to decompose. Removing these clippings may double the lawn's fertilizer requirement. Clippings will not significantly contribute to thatch build-up when lawns are mowed regularly.

Water lawns lightly after applying fertilizer to prevent run-off losses that may result from a heavy rain. Repeat light waterings for several days to dissolve soluble fertilizer granules and to more the insoluble granules into the turf where they can be dissolved slowly.

Water lawns at infrequent intervals and only when the grass shows moisture stress - wilted leaves and dark discolorations. Water at rates that the soil can effectively absorb and in sufficient amounts to wet the soil to a depth of four to six inches. These practices will encourage a deep-rooted turf that can use water and plant nutrients more effectively.

Department Of Agriculture Seeks Descendants Of Early Settlers

The Texas Department of Agriculture is looking for West Texas farmers and ranchers that are descendants of the earliest settlers. Their property may qualify in the Family Land Heritage Program.

Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown acknowledged that it will be some years before there are many applicants from the Plains and West Texas areas because they were settled late, but wants people to be aware of the program in case there were some whose families have been farming or ranching for a century.

The registration period for the 1980 program opened this month and will extend through August 15.

The Department is entering its seventh year in sponsoring the program to honor those who have maintained continuous agricultural production on the same land for 100 years or more.

So far there have been 1,294 families who have qualified. The county farthest west in the program is Howard. The Roberts Ranch qualified in 1977.

Those who qualify are honored in state ceremonies and receive a certificate and copy of the Family Land Heritage Registry, in which are printed old photographs of the family and homes as well as a brief history of the land.

There has been excellent cooperation from country historical commission chairpersons and from county judges who have helped to locate people in their areas who might qualify.

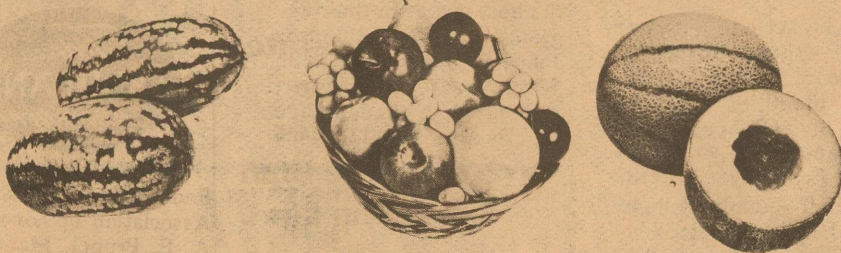

Basic requirements include the following: Continuous agricultural production on the same land for

From The Horses Mouth

By Jerry Swift

Pecan nut casebearers have started laying eggs on pecans in Schleicher County, reports Jerry Swift, County Extension Agent for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. This means that pecan producers and homeowners should check their trees closely for egg deposits and nutlet damage by newly emerged larvae and begin a spray program if necessary. Eggs are deposited on the tip of the developing nutlet.

Field inspections made in Schleicher County indicate the best time for spray application

Field inspections made in Schleicher County indicated the best time for spraying the application was May 23 through May 27. Producers with early maturing varieties needed to treat a few days earlier than areas with late maturing pecans.

Insecticide applications should begin soon after the first nutlet damage is observed. Many producers treat too early for this pest. It is best to have 1 percent to 2 percent entries before sprays are applied. A second application may be required where eggs are found and nutlet damage continue 7 to 10 days after the first application.

Effective pecan nut casebearer control depends on proper timing and application of insecticides. Often insecticides are applied too early for optimum control.

Effective insecticides include Guthion, Malathion,

Thiodan, Sevin or Zolone. Before using any of these materials, read the label directions; then follow them carefully.

Swift advises close, frequent inspections of pecan trees to keep abreast of the pecan nut casebearer situation. The County Extension Office will maintain a current status report on this insect during the next two weeks. The pecan nut casebearer has 3 generations per year. It is approximately 42 days between the occurrence of each subsequent generation. Some years the second and third generation of this pest cause considerable nut damage. Total nut loss is usually greater during the spring generation because an individual larvae may destroy a complete nut cluster. Later generations usually damage one or two nuts in the cluster.

What's the state of Texas agriculture for 1980?

That will be determined from information provided by many Texas farmers and ranchers in a questionnaire from the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service over the next few weeks. A select number of producers will also be interviewed.

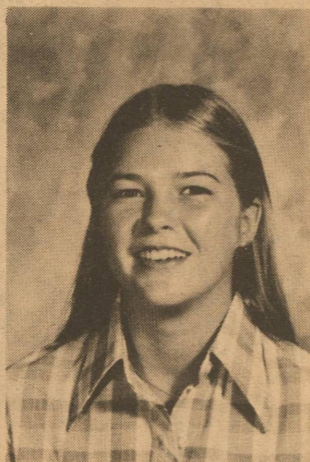

Information gathered through these questionnaires and interviews provides the basis for determining acreage devoted to various crops and midyear livestock numbers, points out Jerry Swift, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A & M University System.

Resulting crop and livestock reports developed from these surveys provide a dependable unbiased picture of Texas agriculture, says Swift. Estimates derived from these reports serve as tools for farmers and ranchers in working out their planting, breeding, feeding, storing, producing and marketing plans.

Farm organizations and legislatures use this data in planning agricultural programs, explains Swift. The estimates are also used in establishing various government program acreage and payment levels to farmers for the state and country.

Extension Service economists and private firms use this information as a basis for advising farmers and ranchers. Accurate statistics make the job of forecasting more reliable and useful.

As always, individual farm and ranch information will be kept strictly confidential, and only state and county summaries become part of the final published reports, adds Swift.

Mary Kay White, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. (Buddy) White, has signed a basketball letter of intent to play for the Howard College Hawk Queens in Big Spring next year, announced Hawk Queens head coach Don Stevens.

Mis White played on the varsity squad for three years at Eldorado High School. As a sophomore, she averaged 9.8 points per game. In her junior year, she scored 679 points while averaging 24.2 points a game and was named to the All-District team.

Her senior year, Mary Kay scored 402 total points to average 16.8 points per game and was selected to the All-District team.

Rabies Running Rampant

(EDITOR'S NOTE: With rabies in animals at epidemic level in Texas, the Leader is printing the following article to help inform our readers of the rabies danger.)
 Animal rabies continued to climb in Texas during April with a decided shift to the domestic pet population.
 Dr. Foy V. McCasland, chief of the Bureau of Veterinary Public Health of the Texas Department of Health reported 147 new animal rabies cases during April to raise this year's total to 436. The four-month pace for 1980 is ahead of this period last year, when the total was 397.
 A spokesman for the Sonora Animal Hospital reported having 22 positive cases of rabies in Sutton County this year. Fifteen cases have been in foxes, two in dogs, three in skunks, one in a cow and one in a goat. Two of the fox cases have been in the Sonora city limits.
 As to date, no cases have been reported in Schleicher County. One county resident sent in a dog to be checked for rabies, but it was reported to have been a negative case.
 The shift of more rabies in domestic animals naturally is a concern because domestic pets are in close contact with adults and children, thereby putting them at risk.
 Those exposed to a rabid animal must take the painful and costly post-exposure treatment, which runs into several hundred dollars. Often, several family members may be exposed at the same time, compounding the expense. Without the long series of shots a person runs the risk of developing rabies, a virtual death sentence in humans.
 The treatment is especially painful to children, who may not understand the significance of the shots and the pain that goes along with them. This is a traumatic experience for parents, child and physician.
 While skinning a fox caught during trapping season, one Eldorado resident suspected the animal of having rabies and took the shots for precautionary measures.
 Skunks continued to be the major source of rabies during April, accounting for more than 70 per cent of the total cases in Texas. The 147 skunk cases in April raised the total of 1980 skunk cases to 362.
 Since skunks live in close proximity to man, especially in rural areas, there is always the chance that rabies will spill over into the pet population or into farm animals and then to people. If a skunk show little fear of humans, watch out, because these animals usually run from people. Any unusual behavior by a skunk could mean it has rabies.
 Wild animals are a primary source of rabies in Texas and there are several suggestions for avoiding the possibility of contacting rabies. Never pet or attempt to pick up any wild animal which appears to be tame or friendly, it would be rabid. Domestic pets should be kept away from wild animals or strays. Keeping the pets penned or on a leash will help. Humans also should avoid all stray animals, they may be rabid or have been exposed to rabies. Children should be discouraged from picking up or petting ANY stray animal.

 Uncontrolled animals are a major problem in many Texas communities, such as Eldorado.
 A new law in Texas is aimed at controlling rabies in pet animals and, but this, removing the potential danger for human rabies.
 Major provisions of the law require: the designation of a health officer in each city or county; anti-rabies vaccinations by the age of four months for all dogs and cats and annual vaccinations thereafter; and the quarantining of biting animals. It authorizes local licensing programs and the adoption by Texas Department of Health (TDH) of rules governing the interstate movement of dogs into Texas.
 Any Eldorado resident noticing a stray animal acting strange or suspicious, or anyone needing an animal destroyed because it is suspected of having rabies, please contact the county sheriff's office. The health officer for Eldorado is Dr. J. B. Brame.
 Anyone finding a dead animal in the city limits, please call the city secretary at the Eldorado City Hall to have the animal picked up and burned at the city landfill.
 It is virtually a certainty that a human who contracts rabies will die, yet many pet owners are failing to get low cost insurance against rabies in their pets. This pet insurance, immunization against rabies, is available at the office of any veterinarian.
 Dr. William Edmiston will be available every Thursday in Eldorado at Steve Whitten's office to vaccinate domestic pets needing immunization against rabies.
 The Sonora Animal Hospital charges seven dollars per animal for rabies vaccination. It is a small price to pay for security.
 There is little chance of the rabies problem decreasing until early fall or winter when cooler weather lessens the activity of wild animals and kill the weaker ones.
