County Purchases Ballpark Lighting

The Little League Park will have a lighted field soon, thanks to the county commissioners. During the meeting Monday morning, the Jaycees presented the commissioners with a request to buy the lights for the field. The vote was unanimous with the stipulation the Jaycees install the lights. The lights were salvaged from Goodfellow Air Force Base in San Angelo and will cost the county $25 a piece.

Salary increases for Helen Carlman, the judge's secretary and Betty Wilson, tax assessor assistant, were approved.

Commissioners accepted the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department proclamation on deer, squirrel, quail and turkey seasons. The rules will remain the same as before. The state presented a closed season and bag limit on javelina, which the court did not accept. It remains a no closed season, no bag limit as before.

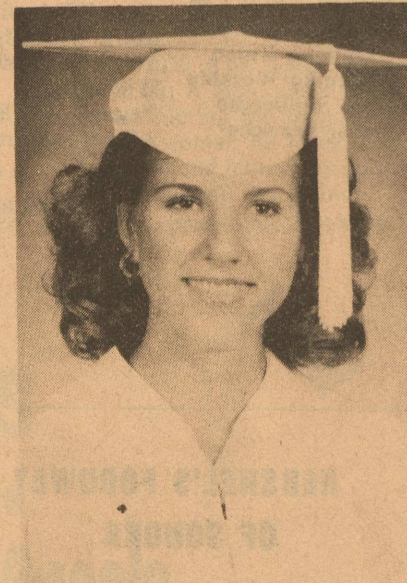

Mary Byrd

the swimming pool contract between the court and Gynna Jay Harlin was signed. This will be the second year Mrs. Harlin has operated the pool.

Billy Gene Edmiston, golf course custodian, presented the commissioners with a request for a new lawn mower, but no action was taken. He was authorized to hire Gene Edmiston at minimum wage for the summer.

The major portion of the meeting was discussing hiring a full time mechanic for a county shop. Delwood Blair met with the court to discuss responsibilities, duties and salaries for the position. No action was taken.

Organization Picks New Name, Plans Schleicher County Days

Schleicher County Progress Council was the name chosen during the meeting last Thursday by the county residents who have, since the first of the year, been in the process of organizing a group for the progress and betterment of Eldorado and Schleicher County. Because of the area and state dues, the group voted against reorganizing the chamber of commerce. All dues and money taken in by the council will be used locally.

A check from the Schleicher County Foundation was presented to the new organization by Elton McGinnis and president of the former club, Ted Short. It was the remaining funds of the club when it disbanded. It was added to the balance of the funds left by the former chamber of commerce.

The main project discussed was Schleicher County Days, which will be held in conjunction with the Jaycee Rodeo in August. The Council and Jaycees will be working together on this event. Chairmen for Schleicher County Days were chosen during the meeting. They are as follows: Group cooperation-contacting other organizations for participation, Ron Sutto and Rick Sterling; general arrangements-location of activities and times for events, Carolyn Mayo and Johnnie Griffin; publicity, Ross Whitten; Nell Edmiston and Donna Garvin; parade committee, including music, Bill Gentry; activities committee, Rusty Meador and Nancy Lester; prize committee, Tommy Hunley. There is a possibility of a cook-off in which Jerry Richards will be in charge.

Anyone wishing to help work on the project may contact one of the chairmen listed.

The next meeting of the Schleicher County Progress Council will be in May 22, noon, at the Eagle Dairy Mart.

The Council is for all residents of Schleicher County who are interested in the future of the community. Those interested are urged to attend the next meeting.

4-H Citation Award

The Southwest Texas Electric Cooperative has been selected to Receive the Texas 4-H Foundation's State 4-H Citation Award for outstanding service and contributions to 4-H youth.

The Coop was nominated by local county extension agents. Only five of these awards are presented annually by the Texas 4-H Foundation in cooperation with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

A representative from the Coop will accept the award June 3, during the State 4-H Roundup in College Station. The State 4-H Roundup is a gathering of some 1,900 boys and girls, ages 14 to 19, who are competing for top honors in 37 different contests and method demonstrations. To attend 4-H Roundup is a coveted 4-H honor and a highlight for these 4-Hers.

The Coop recently sponsored the Government in Action Youth Tour which included trips to Washington D.C. for two 4-H club members. They have assisted in sending local 4-H club members to 4-H Round-Up at College Station and with local livestock show. They have also assisted in sending a local 4-H member to Chicago for National 4-H Congress and provided support for the local 4-H awards dinner.

Just Talkin'

Even in a small town, there are a few people who are well known to almost everyone--someone everyone knows on sight and loves to talk to. Eldorado lost a person like that this week, when Naomi McCoy passed away in her sleep early Monday morning. Naomi was one of those local saints who has a history of helping everyone she knew in times of trouble or sorrow. Besides that, she was always friendly and loving to everyone who she chanced to visit with while checking groceries in Parkers Foods.

She always had a smile and a kind word, especially to children, who automatically loved her. She seemed to take everything in stride, one thing at a time, coolly and calmly, sometimes with a catching chuckle that made everyone feel better no matter what.

The town and her family will miss her greatly--but she has her own special place made somewhere else now.

With all this pretty warm weather, it looks like a bunch of folks got over the spring fever just in time to catch something else--the baseball bug.

Eldorado has four teams, as far as I know, playing in the Sonora Softball league this year, two women and two mens teams. That involves a lot of people and a lot of playing time.

You have to admire good players and their special talents, those super stars of the baseball diamonds who hit homers every time they come up to bat and catch every ball they see coming their way. They can run like cder and can throw balls half a mile.

And then there are some players who fall into another category--like me. I'm always the one who hits a puny line drive to the pitcher who just flips the ball to the first baseman who politely puts me out. And because of my lack of excellence in the sport, I was always the last one picked to be on the team and put the farthest in outfield. I was the one who could not catch a ball if it walked to the outfield. And if by chance one happened to land in my glove, I'd manage to drop it anyway.

I always thought I was the only one in that category, but have recently discovered that there are many others in the same boat. That is really reassuring to a clutz like me. Maybe we "clutzes" should have our own league and see who could lose the best.

The rain we've received has really been a blessing, but the clouds that passed over the city Tuesday morning were really kind of scary. Maybe He who creates thunderstorms is trying to tell us something by sending us hail twice in one month and then scaring us to death with clouds that flew over our heads faster than a scared sparrow.

But anyway, that rain will be helpful to all who received it and will make the grass grow. It will also liven the spirits of the ranchers and farmers, some of whom believed we were on the verge of a drought not long ago.

Speck Hosts 84 Club

Hostess for the 84 Club last week was Annie Speck. Attending were Lois Eth- erture, Louise Logan, Lillian Mikeska, Bessie Doyle, Opal Parks and Mrs. Speck.

TABS Results To Be Circulated

The first annual TABS results will be distributed to area fifth and ninth grade parents next week.

The series of criterion-referenced tests known as TABS were given statewide February 25 and March 12 to fifth and ninth grade students.

Next year, third graders will be added to the lists of students who will be tested annually under TABS.

TABS measures the performance of fifth graders in 11 of 17 reading objectives, 12 of 18 mathematics objectives, and all of the writing objectives, all of them defined for sixth grade.

Ninth graders were tested on 11 of 18 reading objectives, 11 of 24 mathematics objectives and all the writing objectives, all of them expected of high school seniors.

Food, Family And 4-H

MAKE KNIT SEAMS THAT STRETCH

Make seams that stretch when sewing with knits. Since knit fabrics have built-in stretch, seams must also have stretch. This stretch will prevent threads from breaking when the seam is put under stress.

The type of seam used depends first on the capabilities of the sewing machine and then on the type of knit and garment. Here's how to make a knit seam with any kind of machine:

STRAIGHT-STITCH MACHINE

With a straight-stitch machine, straight stitch along the seamline, stretching the fabric as you sew. The amount of stretching will depend on the fabric. Don't stretch the seam out of shape.

Stretching may make the stitches look slightly loose. This slack helps the seam stretch without breaking the thread. The seam allowance width may become slightly less when the fabric is stretched. For example, a 1/2 inch (1.27 cm) wide stretched seam will end up closer to 5/8 inch (1.5 cm) when relaxed.

Use a 5/8 to one inch (1.5-2.5 cm) seam allowance with most double knits. This seam can be pressed open, and no finish is required. Use this for skirts and slacks when possible to give a smooth line and for ease in altering.

Some knits do not press well, and therefore, do not stay pressed open. The edges roll up, creating ridges along the seamline.

Solve this problem by stitching the seam and making a second row of straight stitches, 1/8 to 1/4 inch (3-6 cm) to the right of the seamline. Trim away the extra seam allowance.

A row of straight stitches along the seam allowance edge may prevent rolling if a wide seam allowance is preferred.

ZIGZAG MACHINE

With a zigzag machine, stitch along the seamline with a straight or narrow zigzag stitch. If a 1/4 inch (6mm) seam allowance is cut, close the seam with a wide zigzag stitch. If a 5/8 inch (1.5 cm) seam allowance is cut, zigzag close to the first line of stitching, then trim away the extra seam allowance. Depending on the knit, a narrow zigzag stitch at the seamline may reduce seam puckering.

It usually is not necessary to stretch knit fabric when using a zigzag stitch. However, some lightweight knits, such as tricot knits, need extra support while zigzagging. They are easier to stitch if the fabric is held taut as it goes under the presser foot. This prevents the fabric from being pulled down through the throat plate, and helps eliminate skipped stitches.

AUTOMATIC STRETCH-STITCH MACHINE

With an automatic stretch stitch machine, use the stretch-stitch along the seamline. Then finish the seam edges with a wide zigzag or multiple zigzag stitch if needed. Trim the seam allowance to 1/4 inch (6 mm) before finishing, or leave it wide with each allowance stitched individually.

If the machine has an over-edge stretch-stitch (a straight-stretch plus an overedge stitch), use it at the seamline. This type of stitch closes the seam and finished the edges in one operation. Stretch-stitches are hard to rip out so make sure the seam is in the proper place before stitching.

Reports from Washington

Sentiment Throughout the 21st Congressional District: Answers to Foreign and Domestic Problems Needed Now

I have just returned to Washington from a 10-day fact-finding trip crisscrossing the 21st District during the Easter holidays.

I value the opportunity to listen and talk to as many individuals and groups in the Hill Country, West Texas, and Bexar County as I can.

Such trips are critical. I learned what was on your mind. And I became more aware of what a cross-section of you believe are this country's most serious concerns.

Wherever I went throughout our District, I heard a constant theme — America seems to be losing its grip on events, both here and abroad.

And it's time something be done about it! Everyone I talked to believed the stalemate in Iran — and this Administration's inability to break that stalemate, and bring our Americans home — has gone on far too long.

The President has broken diplomatic relations with Iran. He will be tightening economic sanctions. Unconfirmed reports say the Administration will reassess our policies by the middle of next month if the current strategy does not work in bringing our American citizens home.

I support his decision to impose stiffer sanctions. But I must question why these actions were not taken months ago. Virtually everyone I talked to over the past ten days agreed.

If stronger actions had been taken, there is good reason to believe our Americans would have been home by now.

The President has mentioned a naval blockade in vague terms, a policy he might invoke only as a last resort. I suggest he weigh this option very seriously now.

His actions have been too little, too late, in my view. He has hinted at the use of sanctions before, but has not imposed them. And it is extremely frustrating to see the President make strong statements, then delay their implementation.

These delays only reinforce our paper tiger image around the world.

The President has taken stronger measures halting immigration into this country. Many Iranians will now be deported. No new visas will be allowed. But these actions also should have been taken months ago.

Most of you agree. The growing discontent I sensed in talking to people in our part of the country suggests that those of us in Congress who have been urging stronger measures against this outlaw country are certainly not alone.

The patience of the American public is wearing thin. Other problems were discussed. Chief among them, of course, was the state of our economy now. Inflation, tight credit, deficit spending, taxes, and most importantly, the growing uncertainty about when we can expect things to get better, have made people wary of the future.

Everyone is cutting corners to try to make ends meet. There is no better example of the hard economic times we're experiencing now than the housing and construction industries. Record interest rates and tight credit policies are restricting home building. Those same policies are severely limiting home buying.

As a result, of course, the dream of many Americans of owning their own home is becoming a nightmare.

Businessmen are having to make tough decisions. Jobs are now in question.

The recession the Administration has proclaimed to be the only answer to inflation, unfortunately, may in fact be occurring now.

One good sign seems to be on the horizon though. Congress seems to be serious about balancing the budget. It has taken a lot of convincing. But the truth about big government and big spending can no longer be denied. A balanced budget must be the first step taken in any responsible anti-inflation program.

I learned from listening in the past ten days. And one message was very clear. Despite the frustration over our foreign policy, despite the economic uncertainty, people throughout the 21st Congressional District are willing to do their fair share. They don't mind doing what is required if it will help this country achieve its objectives — both here and abroad.

But they want to know that their government — making decisions in their behalf — knows what it is doing.

Many have serious doubts about that right now.

I will do everything in my power to make certain that our government makes the proper decisions.

Knowing more about your views from listening to you will help me in that effort.

From The Horse's Mouth

TREATING GRASSBURS

Where homeowners are fortunate enough to have late spring and summer rainfall, grassburs may replace the chinch bug as the number one lawn pest. Given a choice, most of us would prefer the chinch bug.

It's not too late to do something about them this year. However, the damage is done once the plant has produced the burs. Close mowing and catching the clippings will improve the appearance of the lawn and reduce the population of burs, but enough burs will remain to reinfest the lawn for several years.

Grassburs are commonly found in open fields and meadows where competition from other plants is not great. They are rarely found in a dense, vigorous turf area.

Lawns damaged or weakened by insects, disease, drought or wear are susceptible to invasion by grassburs. The seed for this pest may lie dormant in the soil for several years until environmental conditions favor germination. Or, the seed may be carried in by birds, small animals or people. And, where there were only a few plants one year, hundreds may be found the next year. All the grassbur needs to become a problem is a weak turf and favorable moisture conditions during the late spring and early summer. The plants may go unnoticed most of the summer, but become quite noticeable when the burs appear in late summer and fall.

Fertilize lawns in the spring and summer to promote desirable grasses. If the grassburs are already established in the lawn, fertilization will stimulate the grassburs as well as the desirable grasses. But, a more vigorous turf will reduce the grassbur population the following year. Late fall fertilization, after grassburs have matured, is particularly advantageous.

Water lawns as needed to maintain a complete turf cover. Thin turf is more susceptible to invasion by grassburs. Water lawns thoroughly and infrequently to promote deep-rooted grasses. Light, frequent watering keeps the soil surface moist which is ideal for weed seed germination.

Control insects and diseases that may weaken the lawn grasses. St. Augustine Decline (SAD) presents a serious problem since there is no control for the disease. Where grassburs are a problem in St. Augustine lawns, SAD should be inspected as a cause of the problem. Again, late fall fertilization, applications of iron sulfate or iron chelate and control other disease and insect problems provides the best method of eliminating the grassburs. Preemerge herbicides applied in spring for crabgrass control before emergence of the grassburs has been shown to reduce grassbur populations.

Herbicides or fertilizer herbicide (weed and seed) combinations containing benefin (Balan), DCPA (Dacthal) or simazine are effective against the grassbur if the timing and rate of application is correct. As for all pesticides, label instructions should be followed for a particular material. Also, remember that herbicides only provide a temporary solution to the grassbur problem. A healthy, vigorous turf is the ultimate solution.

If all else fails to eliminate the grassbur, a sharp hoe and a thick pair of gloves may help.

USE FERTILIZER WISELY
Due to the high cost of fertilizers and the resulting increase in mowing, watering, grass clippings and pest problems, homeowners are urged to use fertilizers wisely for lawn maintenance.

What can the homeowner do to reduce fertilizer use on lawns? First of all, a knowledge of fertilizer requirements for specific lawn grasses is important. St. Augustine grasses require less nitrogen fertilizer than does bermudagrass. Bermudagrass requires three of four applications of fertilizer per year to maintain a complete turf cover while St. Augustine requires only spring and fall applications. Centipede and buffalo grasses need only a single application of fertilizer each year.

Spring and fall fertilizer applications should be at the rate of one pound of nitrogen per 1,000 square feet of lawn area. For a fertilizer containing 10 percent nitrogen, 10 pounds of fertilizer per 1,000 square feet would be needed to meet this requirement. Slow-release fertilizers can be applied at slightly higher rates to extend the greening response of the lawn to the application.

For a rapid greening response during spring, a soluble fertilizer material should be used at a rate of one pound of nitrogen per 1,000 square feet.

St. Augustine lawns should be fertilized in the spring and fall to encourage root development of the grass without excessive leaf growth. Deep root systems make better use of available soil nutrients and moisture and help grasses survive summer and winter stress periods.

Increasing the mowing height of the lawn in early summer also helps promote deeper root development. St. Augustine grass lawns should be mowed at least one-half inch higher in the summer, or at a height of two to two-and-a-half inches. Higher mowing heights also reduce the frequency of mowing required to maintain a vigorous turf.

Vigorous, healthy lawns are a boon to the landscape and the environment. And they can be kept that way with proper care. This includes the wise use of fertilizer materials.

Bullock Cutting Down Paper Work

State Comptroller Bob Bullock said he plans to change his agency's tax rules to allow beneficiaries to use a simpler, shorter return to report inheritance taxes.
 The new rule, which is not expected to be formally adopted until mid-summer, will raise the dollar limit for taxpayers using the small estate return from $60,000 to $200,000.
 "There will be less paperwork and, therefore, it will be easier and quicker to settle estates," Bullock said.
 The two-page short form being suggested can be used instead of a longer and more complicated form that sometimes runs as much as 15 pages, he said.
 The rule will have no effect on tax exemptions that beneficiaries are entitled under state law.
 Bullock said that an additional 8,000 inheritance returns a year would be eligible to file the short form. The Comptroller's office processes about 40,000 inheritance tax returns annually and about half of those are already settled with the filing of a Census Still No. Complete Here simple declaration that no tax is due.

 A surviving spouse, children, grandchildren, great-grandchildren, sons-in-law and daughters-in-law may inherit up to $200,000 before state inheritance tax is due.
 Taxes are due and a tax return must be filed on all estates within nine months of the date of death.

Card of Thanks

Dear Friends,
Again I come to you to say Thank You. No words can ever say what I feel, but it makes my heart feel good to know that our precious Alan had so very many friends and was loved by so many.

We thank you for the food, lovely flowers, memorials and all the words of comfort. He was a joy to many and will be missed by all. And again I want to say I'm proud to be part of such a wonderful community.

May God richly bless each and every one of you--We love you. Thanks again

The family of Alan Storie Larry and Nadine Bell Dale and Sharon Storie Lori Bell and Pamela Whitten
Anyone having dishes left at the Larry Bells that haven't been returned, please come by and pick them up, as there are quite a few with no name on them.
Thanks,
Nadine Bell

I would like to thank everyone for their support in the recent sheriff election. Your votes were appreciated.

Adams Heads Bellringer Drive

Rev. Dan Adams of Eldorado will lead Bellringer workers in a house-to-house drive during May, Mental Health Month.

"Proceeds will benefit the Mental Health Association in Texas," said John Stevens, state President of the voluntary citizens' association.

As a non-governmental agency the association can and does speak for the consumer--the person who needs professional help for an emotional disturbance.

The number one goal of the association for 1980 is to improve the care for discharged long term mentally disabled persons. The association is promoting self-help groups for families of patients and for former mental health clients.

"The association is a moving force to get services established where there are none. It also serves as a monitoring agency to see that treatment services are doing what they were set up to do," said Stevens.

The Mental Health Association strongly promotes more community-based care as well as more research into the causes of mental illness.

Seeking to prevent mental health problems through education, the association, in cooperation with the Governor's Office of Volunteer Services, sends out the newsletter series "Pierre the Pelican" to first-time parents in the state.

Additionally, the association offers literature to the public on a variety of topics including depression, alcoholism, and positive mental health concepts. For free information write to the Mental Health Association in Texas, 103 Lantern Lane, Austin, Texas, 512-459-6584.
