Storage Facilities Should Be Examined

Now that most spring grains have been planted, the next step for farmers is to examine storage facilities to make sure they will have a space to store the new crops after fall harvest.

A bumper grain crop is usually viewed as a blessing, but farmers could suffer losses if this grain has to be sold on a glutted market. And unless commercial space is available, on-farm storage will be needed.

In January, there were about 14,958 off-farm grain storage facilities in operation, 220 less than a year ago. States with the largest number of facilities this year include Iowa, 1110; Illinois, 1056; Kansas, 1018; Texas, 935; and Minnesota, 869. The capacity of off-farm commercial storage in the Nation totaled 7.18 billion bushels. This is an increase of 1 percent from a year earlier. Kansas retained its number one rank in total storage capacity followed by Illinois, Texas, Iowa, and Nebraska. These top five states accounted for 52 percent of the off-farm grain capacity.

Farmers who need help to buy, build, or remodel storage structures to supplement available commercial space can get Federal assistance through the farm facility loan program.

Ronnie Mittel, CED of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, says the program authorizes a maximum loan of 75 percent of the cost of structures and equipment not to exceed $50,000. A 25 percent down payment is required and the balance is due in monthly payments over a five year period. Security for the loan involves a lien on the structure and the equipment.

"The importance of ample storage space for grains cannot be over-emphasized," he said. "Farmers can exercise greater independence in their marketing operations, get better prices, and generally strengthen markets. They can also take advantage of commodity loan programs and realize higher total income from their farm operations."

Storage procedures include conventional bins, flat, multi-purpose units for storing dry grain, as well as silo-type facilities for storing high-moisture forage and silage. The drying equipment includes continuous flow dryers, batch or in-storage drying systems as well as systems that dry by aerating or circulating the crop.

To be eligible for the program, a farmer must grow one or more crops of barley, corn, dry edible beans, flaxseed, grain sorghum, oats, peanuts, rice, rye, soybeans, sunflower seed, wheat and high moisture forage.

"The program is considered a valuable marketing tool for farmers, as the ability to hold on to grain could prove the difference between profit and loss," Mittel said. In years of excess production, a farmer can store crops in good condition until prices strengthen and can also participate more easily in the grain reserve program.

This year, we have recorded approximately 3,570 acres planted in grain sorghum and 8,500 acres planted in wheat in Schleicher County.

Farm storage facilities help the nation's economy and the stability of food and feed supplies by making more effective marketing of farm crops possible.

ASCS Office Moves Home

The Schleicher County ASCS office has moved back to their previous location at 105 1/2 Calendar Avenue behind the Meador company.

At 8:00 a.m. last Thursday, an Abell Transfer and Storage Van drove up in front of the ASCS TEMPORARY LOCATION N Main Street across from the First National Bank.

It was quite a different atmosphere than the day they had had to move out when they were salvaging and cleaning what little that had not been burned or melted.

Since the fire, the employees have had to replace their maps, records, equipment, and furnishings. Yet, the ASCS office never closed its doors for business even one working day since the explosion and fire April 9.

After the fire, Ed Meador, owner of the building the ASCS is now occupying, immediately set out taking every safety precaution possible and continued on to clean up, rebuild and even remodel the ruined building causing the move-in date to be July 16 instead of the projected date in September.

"The building has been modernized since we were here before," said Ronnie Mittel, County Executive Director for the ASCS office.

"When you have worked in the same office building for 17 years, it feels like coming back home," stated Ruth O'Harrow, Administrative Assistant for the office.

Everyone is welcome to come by and see the newly remodeled office.

Schleicher County Museum Makes History Become Fun

For some of us, history was never a very interesting subject in school. But history becomes fun as you go through the Schleicher County Museum.

The museum, operated by members of the local historical society, has everything that brings back the "good old days."

When you first walk in, you automatically think you can smell homemade biscuits coming from the wood stove sitting in the corner beside the pie cooler and butter churn. In fact, you feel right at home and think you should sit down at the table with the red checkered tablecloth.

The display of china butter and cheese dishes brings back memories of grandmother's china hutch as does the old cookbook.

As you are walking back into history you can spot homemade quilts, antique furniture, old documents, kitchen utensils and sewing machines that some grandmothers in Schleicher used at some day in time.

There is also an old telephone, saddles, brands, cowbells and other items that bring back memories of farm life as it used to be.

The two world wars come back to mind while looking at the display of war momentos and service uniforms.

There is also a display of newspaper type and a type case showing how a page was made before the offset press was made available.

Many items that are unique to Schleicher County are special items, such as vestments worn by Catholic priest here, the world champion polo team from Eldorado, a swimsuit made by a local woman and worn by a friend's daughter, in 1916, and many other items found only here.

One of the most favorite items is a wreath made from 40 different kinds of seeds by Mrs. Otto Sauer, a long-time resident of the county.

The newest displays are the cream separator and a picture using barbed wire. The separator was used on the W. J. Seward farm and donated by his daughters, Neva Jo Haver, Billie Bob Corder and Winnie Jean Train. The new picture was painted by Corrine Whitten and the wire was donated by Happy Doss.

If history was not any fun for you, try taking a trip through the local museum. Located behind the Exxor station, it is open every afternoon from 1-6 p.m. It makes history a lot of fun.

Reading Program Extended

The reading program for the county library has been extended for one week. Deadline for filling the quota of books is now July 29.

At 7 p.m. that night, a program for students in the program and their parents will be held. A representative from the Big County Library in Abilene will present the certificates and show films on monsters, indians and cartoons.

Children are encouraged to participate in the program at the library which is open each afternoon from 1-5 p.m.

A reading hour is being held through the summer for youngsters three to five years old at 4-5 p.m. Mondays.

Treasurer Looks For Claimers

James Curry of Dallas, Texas, could you use $250,91? If so, State Treasurer Warren G. Harding needs to talk with you. And Paul Fairchild of Houston, you have $11.51 coming your way.

Harding, who recently sent $1,974.27 to Dominga A. Ortega of Brownsville, also has $10.12 for John Badum of Corpus Christi, and $11.99 for Grace Sweigart of El Paso.

The State Treasurer's

Office through its Escheat Division tries to match Texans with their unclaimed bank accounts, inheritances, or insurance benefits. Amounts due to hundreds of individuals across the State range from a few cents to thousands of dollars.

After a seven year dormancy with the entity holding the funds, the money is sent to Harding's office, where the State makes a last effort to locate the proper owner by letter and advertising. Bank advertising is done by the individual institution during the month of May, and corporate and insurance advertising is done by the Treasury in the latter part of August of each year.

"Often the owners we do find are very surprised to learn we are holding money in their name. More than likely, we're not going to find the owner, but we do make a good effort," stated Harding.

If the lost owner appears, the money is returned to the owner. The State has custody of the money, but never becomes owner of it. In other words, if a person can prove proper ownership, he can claim his money even 50 years later. In the interim, Treasurer Harding has the money invested benefitting all Texas taxpayers by the interest earned.

By contacting State Treasurer Harding's office in Austin, you can have his staff ascertain whether or not you may have missing funds. The more facts you have about the missing amounts, the more quickly your inquiry can be traced. The Escheat Division may be reached at (512) 475-3337 or by writing Box 12608, Capitol Station, Austin, TX 78711.

Oh, yes, Harding has $3.02 for Daniel Munoz of San Antonio, and $1,010.44 for Ronald Childs of Fort Worth.

Public Relations Good for Image

Just about every small business person must struggle for recognition and a good name, and that's what public relations is all about.

A sound public relations program can help a small firm become better known and recognized by persons who use its goods or service.

In developing a good public relations program, the first step is to pick your image. What's distinctive or special about your company? Is your inventory more complete? Is your staff better trained? Do you offer more dependable and more friendly service?

Your public relations efforts should center around your advantages and your distinctive and unique assets.

Not everyone may be interested in your products or service. So select the specific group you want to impress and influence. Ask yourself: Who are my customers? Who are the other people that should know about my business? Then choose the media through which you will communicate information about your firm and its image—trade publications, newspapers, radio, TV, special brochures, personal letters, and special events (such as grand openings). Each can give you certain advantages.

Next, organize a plan of action, including short and long-range goals, and methods of evaluating your public relations campaign.

Careful and realistic selection of a company image, choice of media and public targets could provide a competitive edge for you.

There's help in a Small Business Administration publication, SMA 163, "Public Relations for Small Business." It's available free of charge by writing S.A., PO Box 15424, Fort Worth, Texas 76119, or by calling toll-free 800/433-7212 (in Texas call 800/792-8901).

Summer means swimming and scuba-diving. Too often, it also involves accidental drownings.

According to the American Lung Association of Texas, drowning is the second most common cause of accidental deaths among children under 15. Only motor vehicle accidents take a higher toll. Drowning victims include infants unattended in bathtubs as well as children who fall into ponds, plunge through thin ice, swim beyond their depth or endurance, or misuse scuba or snorkel equipment.

Most drowning victims, says the Lung Association, are boys in the 10-19-year old range.

While submerged in water, a natural protective response of the body takes over to keep the person alive longer. During submersion there is no breathing and therefore no oxygen entering the lungs or blood. However, a major re-distribution of blood may occur, flowing to the brain and heart, organs that are very sensitive to a lack of oxygen. Blood may flow away from skin, muscles, and stomach, where it is not so critical for instant survival.

For complicated chemical reasons, oxygen concentrations are more sharply reduced as a result of submersion in sea water than in fresh water.

Removing fluid and debris and getting oxygen into the lungs of the victim is essential; usually 100 percent oxygen is administered as soon as possible. If the victim survives the first 24 hours after the accident, chances are good that he or she will recover.

The best course is always prevention, says the Lung Association. And they caution everyone at all ages to be aware of water safety, especially this summer. To find out how to protect your lungs for all seasons, contact the American Lung Association of Texas, 7701 North Lamar Blvd., Suite 104, Austin, Texas 78752. It's a matter of life and breath.

Brown eggs are better than white, right?

Pork is full of calories, right?

A turkey roll is a game kids play at birthday parties, right? Wrong. Wrong. Wrong.

In fact, the only difference between brown eggs and white is in the hens that laid them. There is no nutritional difference between the two.

And pork, believe it or not, has been bred in recent years to be leaner. Now, a 3-oz serving of pork loin contains only 225 calories--about the same as 3-oz. of braised round steak. As for the turkey roll, it's a low-cost, high-protein alternative to buying the whole turkey.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has just published a new booklet called "How to Buy Economically: A Food Buyer's Guide." It's full of information, like the above, designed to help the food shopper through the shopping maze.

"For instance, many supermarkets are now carrying large cuts of meat wrapped in vacuum packaging," said Donald L. Houston, administrator of USDA's Food Safety and Quality Service. "If you know what to do with them, they're a great way to economize on meat purchases because they appear in the supermarket just the way they came from the packinghouse, with minimal handling in between."

"You'll learn how to shop for the large cuts and prepare them for cooking when you read the booklet," Houston said.

"Most people know that whole chickens are cheaper than already cut-up chickens, but do you know how to cut up chicken yourself? "How to Buy Economically" gives step-by-step, easy-to-follow instructions," he said. "And for special meals, when you want boneless chicken breasts, consult the section on how to bone them yourself."

The poultry section also has a chart detailing relative prices of whole chickens and chicken parts. If, for example, whole chickens are selling for 55 cents per pound, and bone-in chicken breasts are selling for 69 cents per pound, you'll get more cooked meat by buying the breasts.

"There are more tips for eggs than just answers to the brown vs. white question," Houston said. "For instance, eggs are graded according to the appearance of the yolk, the condition of the white and the condition and appearance of the shell. If you are going to poach the eggs, buy the highest grade you can get--Grade AA or A--they will look better. But if the eggs are to be used for baking, grade is less important. Grade B eggs are as wholesome as higher grade eggs.

Egg sizes are indicated on cartons of graded eggs, and indicate weight, not dimension. Larger eggs will cost more, but in some cases will be more economical. The chart in "How to Buy Economically" will tell you which size eggs are your best buy at different prices, Houston said.

"How to Buy Economically" also gives hints on buying nonfat dry milk, and fresh and processed fruits and vegetables. There is an extensive chart that indicates when many fresh fruits and vegetables are in plentiful supply and therefore cheaper.

To get a copy of "How to Buy Economically" write USDA, Office of Governmental and Public Affairs, Washington, D.C. and ask for Home and Garden Bulletin 235.

Conservation Program Celebrates Anniversary

The date will be the silver anniversary of the Great Plains Conservation Program. Fred Stumberg, district conservationist for the Soil Conservation Service in Eldorado, said this week.

Twenty-five years ago, on August 7, 1956, President Eisenhower signed into law the bill authorizing the program. Stumberg said, "It is now available to ranchers and farmers in ten Great Plains states -- from Texas through North Dakota."

The Great Plains contract in the local Eldorado-Divide Soil Conservation District was signed by George Humphrey for his farm just east of town. Mr. Humphrey is still carrying out a conservation program today. 16 years after his GP contract expired. Fifty-nine contracts protecting 149,305 acres have been signed in Schleicher County since 1962.

"Livestock grazing programs, grass seeding, terraces, brush control, and cross-fences are among GP practices that a land manager can receive technical and cost-sharing assistance for installing," Stumberg said.

The office of the Comptroller of Public Accounts Friday celebrated a birthday of sorts.

At 9:03 a.m., the agency's toll-free taxpayer assistance number logged in its one-millionth call.

The toll-free number, 1-800-252-5555, was installed in June 1976 to eliminate red tape and provide quick, efficient answers to tax questions.

The one-millionth call came from Mrs. Ina Covington of 220 Pimlico in Saginaw, a community near Fort Worth.

Mrs. Covington, an official of a Fort Worth materials handling company, was requesting information about the taxability of freight charges.

The toll-free operation has grown from two incoming lines to 16 incoming lines in the past five years.

Last year, there were 241,052 calls received and it's expected that more than 250,000 calls will be answered this year.

"The fact that so many people use the toll free line is proof that they find it convenient and helpful," Bullock said.

Between 30 and 40 percent of all incoming calls are directed to the Sales Tax Division. Employees who answer questions about state's tax laws are experts and are able to answer questions clearly, concisely and politely.

It's not unusual, according to Bullock, for switchboard operators to handle more than 1,000 calls during an eight hour day.

Most divisions also have direct access to the agency's computer to provide callers with quick responses to questions about taxpayers' accounts.

IRS Reports Low Returns On WPT

The Internal Revenue Service said that very few Federal excise tax returns for crude oil windfall profit tax have been filed from persons who received income from producing oil wells in 1980.

District Director Richard Voskuil said that the IRS had expected to receive several thousand Forms 720 from the northern Texas district. "They were due June 1, and we receive less than a thousand," he said. "We suspect that many persons may not recognize the requirement for filing an annual excise tax return."

Essentially, taxpayers who did not have enough windfall tax withheld during 1980 should file Form 720, Quarterly Excise Tax Return. He suggests that all royalty owners and oil companies, as well as estates, trusts, and others receiving income from producing wells, should review the requirements for filing the return.

To determine the under-withheld amount, subtract the total of the amounts entered on line 4, Part IV, from the total of the amounts entered on line 3, Part IV, of all forms 6248. The amount should be reported on the line entitled Annual Return under Crude Oil Windfall Profit Tax.

CHURCH DIRECTORY

There are no laborers here, but we are all first-class workers in the work of the Lord, for each of us knows that our labor is not in vain for the Lord.

*Say it, "I love all in vain."
I've seen a man with a fine and the string,
I've seen a man with a fine and the string,
I've seen a man with a fine and the string.*

Did you ever hear of a man who he strives in all his life toward and single toward an object and in no moment of time it? If a man constantly aspires, is he not a man? Did ever a man in business, magnanimity, truth, sincerity, and find that there was no advantage in them -- that it was a vain endeavor?

Do not think of God's recompense to you will be the power of God, more right, Give, and God's reward to you will be the spirit of living more, a blessed spirit, for it is the Spirit of God himself, whose life is the blessing of giving. Love, and God will pay you with the capacity of more love; for love is Heaven -- love is God within you.

Social Security Manager Discusses Policy

The Social Security Administration's policy is to appoint representative payees only when there is a clear indication that a beneficiary is unable to manage his or her own funds. Frank Upp, Social Security District Manager in San Angelo, said recently.

The Social Security Administration considers a decision to make payments to someone other than the beneficiary a serious matter. Upp said, "and we try to avoid doing so if it is at all possible. If circumstances dictate that a representative payee be appointed, we give preference to a wife or husband or other concerned adult relative in the hope that family relationships will be enhanced."

While a representative payee enjoys a certain amount of discretion in determining how a beneficiary's payments are to be used, it is expected that the individual's current maintenance will receive priority. "However," Upp said, "the term 'current maintenance' may include expenditures for personal items which it is believed will aid in the beneficiary's recovery or improve his or her living conditions."

Social Security payments ordinarily are made directly to an adult beneficiary unless evidence of his or her inability to manage the payments is submitted to the Social Security Administration.

Even children under 18 years of age may receive benefit payments directly as long as there is no indication that the child is immature or unstable; it appears that making direct payments to the child would be in his or her best interests; or the child is self-supporting and living away from home.

More information about representative payees can be obtained at the San Angelo Social Security Administration Office located at 2214 Sherwood Way. The telephone number is 949-3718.

The widow of a West Texas rancher wrote recently expressing dismay and then anger at how the Internal Revenue Service came in after her husband's death and placed an unrealistically high valuation on working ranchland for which the productive value was $10 an acre.

To add insult to injury, her lawyer said the IRS was not bound by the initial estimate and could return within a nine-month period and increase the original valuation. And, if the land was sold during a three-year period for more than the estimated tax value, the IRS could come back yet a third time with its collecting hand out.

But what really troubled this woman — still facing adjustments wrought by her husband's death — was that surviving heirs were faced with the unpleasant prospect of having the land and other assets sold to settle the tax debt with the Federal government, thus disallowing a legacy to be passed on from one generation to another.

There is nothing unique about this story. It happens every day in Texas and across the country. It is a fact of life — and death — faced by every farmer, rancher and small businessman and it threatens the very concept of family enterprise in this country.

The President has proposed and I have introduced legislation to help change this punitive taxation and ensure that all of us have the capability of passing on the fruits of our labor to our heirs and beneficiaries.

The estate tax is one of the most blatant disincentives to work, save and invest in the tax code. It denies us the incentive to build up anything of value to pass along to our children.

As a result of my background — a ranching family going back four generations — my belief in and support for a continuation of family-owned farms and ranches, as well as small businesses, is based on a deep personal commitment.

Just as the President has proposed, my legislation would raise the unified credit that applies to untaxed gifts and property transfers at death. When fully effective in 1985, it would be $192,800. That, in effect, raises the death-tax exclusion to $600,000.

The proposals would also eliminate the estate and gift taxes that apply to property transferred from one spouse to another. Current law provides a marital deduction of half of the adjusted gross estate or $250,000, whichever is greater. The rest of the estate is taxed at regular rates. Under my proposal, as well as the President's, none of the estate passed on to a spouse would be taxed.

Under the plan, the gift-tax exclusion would rise from $3,000 to $10,000. Beginning next year, a husband and wife acting jointly could avoid taxes on gifts of up to $20,000 a year to any individual, or any number of individuals, as long as none of them received more than $20,000.

Current estimates indicate the estate and gift tax provision would be worth $3 billion a year to taxpayers when fully effective in 1985 — half of the $6 billion raised from estate and gift taxes last year. The government says this would eliminate taxes on more than 95 percent of all estates.

It is unfortunate that because of the IRS's policy initiatives to collect revenue, the estate and gift tax provisions have actually interfered with the transfer of small businesses and farms and ranches from one generation to the next. In my judgment, this must stop now.

It is the prerogative of Congress to enact laws. In this instance Congress must enact a law that is clear and not interpret capriciously and arbitrarily by the IRS to the detriment of those who have used their sweat and toil to build a future for themselves and their families.

Spotlight On Business

Carl Hardy spent 24 years in the United States Marines and then got bored, so he retired. The "retirement rocker" didn't seem to fit, so he went to Southwestern University and got a law degree and began selling insurance. After several years of that, he again retired, but the rocker still didn't fit. So, he and his wife Alice bought a travel trailer and began travelling. They saw 36 states, Canada and most of Mexico in one year. In 1975, they were on the road and saw a television was at Texas State Technical Institute in Amarillo. shoe repair, one of which wa at Texas State Technical Institute in Amarillo.

He enrolled in the school and then hit upon a wonderful idea--a travelling boot and shoe repair shop. He and his wife could not only travel, but also make money along the way.

With the help of students and teachers he built a mobile shop and travels five months out of the year through Texas repairing shoes and boots as he goes.

He has been in Junction, Robert Lee, Eden, Rock-springs, Van Horn and several Panhandle towns. He will be here parked on the Hext Grocery parking lot, for several days after bing in Sonora.

The idea behind the business is that small towns cannot support a full-time boot and shoe repair shop, so he goes from town to town. When business dwindles, he simply packs up and travels on.

Retire again? Carl Hardy is not planning on it again that is, unless he gets bored. "If you get bored with what you're doing, it is time to do something else," he believes.

The idea is going over well of the Hardys, several other students from TSTI are considering going into the business and believe rural Texas could support up to 200 mobile units.

After all, it is working for Carl and Alice Hardy.
