Jeffs still a no show

The elusive FLDS prophet Warren Jeffs remains at large this week despite the increased attention from state, federal and local law enforcement agencies. Jeffs was named to the FBI's Top Ten Fugitive List two weeks ago.

Sheriff David Doran reports that there is still no reason to believe that Jeffs is at the YFZ Ranch, some four miles north-northeast of Eldorado.

However, lawmen seem to be focusing their attention here, just in case.

Doran said a representative from the Texas Attorney General's office met at his office last week with lawmen from the FBI, Texas Rangers, Texas DPS Special Crimes Unit, as well as Doran and Chief Deputy George Arispe.

The purpose of the meeting, Doran said, was to compare notes and share information.

On a lighter note, the increased publicity that accompanies Jeffs' Ten Most Wanted designation has prompted a number of people across the state to write and call with unique recommendations for apprehending Jeffs.

One woman wrote to say that she is a psychic and offered her services while an Odessa man, convinced that Jeffs is hiding at the YFZ Ranch, recommended building a levee around the ranch and then pumping it full of water.

"We've heard it all," Doran said. "Everything from camouflaged night assaults to satellite surveillance."

The sheriff, says he thanks everyone for their input, but explains that his office is cooperating with state and federal officials to bring the manhunt for Warren Jeffs to a successful and peaceful conclusion.

"The last thing we want is for someone to get hurt...or drowned," Doran said.

County eyes airport grants

The County Commissioners met Monday, May 22, 2006 in yet another brief meeting.

Present were County Clerk Peggy Williams, Commissioners Matt Brown, Kirk Griffin and Johnny Mayo. Judge Johnny Griffin and Commissioner Bill Clark were both absent.

Also present were Road Superintendent Clay Burleson and Treasurer Karen Henderson.

Commissioner Mayo served as Judge Pro Tem and moderated the meeting.

The court proclaimed May as Fair Housing Month for Schleicher County.

The court then approved a resolution to have Judge Johnny Griffin sign contracts with HOWCO Service for grant administration services.

County Clerk Peggy Williams presented the court a bid of $37,166.00 from Southwest Texas Coop for purchase and installation of outside lamps posts for the courthouse security.

Commissioner Mayo gave the court an update on a trip to Austin on May 11, 2006 to the Texas Department of Transportation Aviation meeting.

Mayo told the court the state offered Schleicher County two options on two 90/10 grants for updating the airport runway. One option was a grant in the amount of $235,000 for repaving the current runway with gravel.

The second option was in the amount of $836,000 which would put down hot mix on the runway and pads around the hangers and install updated night landing equipment on the southern portion of the runway.

Mayo said the county's 10 percent match could be paid out over a three-year period. He further advised that they discussed funds for installing a designated Ag containment area for crop dusters and the state suggested the county set up rules governing parking of Ag-use planes.

The meeting ended with approval of an indigent request in the amount of $239.56 to pay a over due electric bill. The men also approved budget transfers for County Treasurer Karen Henderson.

Governor Perry orders flags lowered in memory of Lloyd Bentsen

AUSTIN - Gov. Rick Perry Tuesday ordered flags at state buildings to be flown at half-staff for five days in memory of Lloyd Bentsen, who represented Texas in the U.S. House of Representatives for six years and in the U.S. Senate for 22 years.

"Today we mourn the loss of a war hero and true Texas leader who earned the respect of the nation with his dedication to public service," Perry said. "Anita and I extend prayers of comfort to his family in their time of grief, and urge all Texans to remember and honor his life of service."

Flags will also be flown at half-staff on the day of his burial services.

Lost About "Lost City"

Political columnists are not cinema critics. So I can only offer my strictly personal view of "The Lost City," Andy Garcia's new film about pre-Castro Havana, a movie that for Cubans in the United States became a sort of legendary, eagerly awaited project during the 16 years it took Garcia to make it: I was ready to love it, but was hugely disappointed.

That's my opinion as your average moviegoer, not as a Professional Columnist. I do not pretend I know enough about cinema to write a professional film review.

Not that professional film reviewers disagreed. Almost unanimously, critics panned it. That's their job. The problem comes when movie reviewers pretend they know enough about politics to write political commentary. Beyond tearing the film apart on its artistic merits, too many film critics waded into Cuban political waters and quickly found themselves in way over their heads.

The movie tells the story of Fico (played by Garcia), a nightclub owner in late 1950s Havana whose middle-class family is torn apart by Fidel Castro's revolution. The script was written by the late Guillermo Cabrera Infante, widely considered Cuba's greatest novelist, and from a historical point of view, the film is dead-on.

But the politics in the story's background went right over the heads of film critics playing political commentators with no understanding of Cuba beyond the myths officially approved by Hollywood. The same Hollywood that turned down Garcia's project but perpetrated on the public pro-Castro garbage like the laugh-a-minute Robert Redford melodrama "Havana" and "The Motorcycle Diaries," a romantic ode to Che Guevara.

Complained one Andy Klein of something called Los Angeles City Beat, "We hear not a word about Castro's early push for 100 percent literacy." As if that excused 47 years of dictatorship, as if Cuba before Castro had not already ranked fourth in literacy in Latin America.

Oh, yes, Garcia made the unforgivable error of pretending "life sure was peachy before Fidel Castro came to town and ruined everything," as The New York Times' Stephen Holden put it. Maybe Holden went to the bathroom and missed all the scenes that depicted the tyrannical and corrupt rule of Batista. Garcia, whatever his faults as director and star of this movie, was equally critical of Castro and the dictator who preceded him.

Another unpardonable socio-political error: Too many middle-class white Cubans. The movie, claimed Rex Reed, "fails to focus on the poverty-stricken workers whose plight lit the fires of revolution." It was a popular reprimand.

Rex, Stephen and the Andy who is not Garcia but gets to insert clueless political commentary in his film reviews do not seem to know that the Castro rebels were almost all college-educated, white, middle-class Cubans who abhorred Batista's rule. Batista himself came from a working-class family, never graduated from college and was of mixed black, Chinese and Spanish ancestry.

Which does not fit the condescending lefty stereotype that to be authentically Lah-tee-no, you must be a member in good standing of the poor, oppressed brown masses. Stick to what you know, film critics.

All that stands between the graduate and the top of the ladder is the ladder

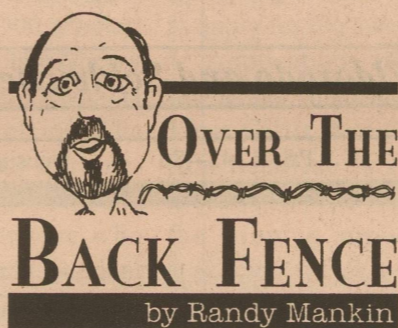

Forty graduates will pick up their diplomas from EHS tomorrow night as they conclude their formal education here in Schleicher County. Some will go on to college. Others to trade schools. Still others will enter military service or go straight into the work force. All of them will no doubt continue their education in the school of hard knocks.

Across the country, graduates will sit through long, boring ceremonies awaiting that moment when they finally receive their diplomas while well-meaning speakers drone on and on about new beginnings and the value of hard work.

Actually, there are some bits of wisdom that graduates should probably hear. Here I list a few of my favorites:

A graduation ceremony is an event where the commencement speaker tells thousands of students dressed in identical caps and gowns that "individuality" is the key to success. ~Robert Orben

A man who has never gone to school may steal from a freight car; but if he has a university education, he may steal the whole railroad. ~Theodore Roosevelt

The roots of education are bitter, but the fruit is sweet. ~Aristotle

An investment in knowledge always pays the best interest. ~Benjamin Franklin

The future lies before you Like a field of driven snow, Be careful how you tread it, For every step will show. ~Author Unknown

It is indeed ironic that we spend our school days yearning to graduate and our remaining days waxing nostalgic about our school days. ~Isabel Waxman

In the business world, everyone is paid in two coins: cash and experience. Take the experience first; the cash will come later. ~Harold Geneen

Do not follow where the path may lead. Go, instead, where there is no path and leave a trail for others to follow. ~Ralph Waldo Emerson

If at first you don't succeed, do it like your mother told you. ~Author Unknown

If you aren't fired with enthusiasm, you will be fired with enthusiasm. ~Vince Lombardi

Things turn out best for the people who make the best out of the way things turn out. ~Art Linkletter

The important thing is not to stop questioning. ~Albert Einstein

Obstacles are those frightful things you see when you take your eyes off your goal. ~Henry Ford

There are no shortcuts to any place worth going. ~Beverly Sills

The true meaning of life is to plant trees, under whose shade you do not expect to sit. ~Nelson Henderson

The Wasps now have a home

On March 8, 1943, a group of Women Airforce Service Pilots arrived at Avenger Field in Sweetwater to start the only all-female air training facility that operated during World War Two. The women trained briefly in Houston, but the skies were too crowded and the weather was bad, so they moved the training to Sweetwater, which had 300 days of sunshine every year and lots of room.

Rig Edwards was one of 400 pilot instructors at Avenger Field. Each instructor was in charge of five girls. Rig's daughter, Sandra Spears, helped get him to work.

"We would drive up to the entrance early in the morning and the guard would shine his light into the car. My sister and I usually had on our pajamas. When he saw that it was us, he would wave us on in. Then when it was time for Daddy to come home in the afternoon, he would buzz the house three times and we'd go get him."

The women pilots received six months training at Avenger Field. "There were 25,000 women that applied. The women had to know how to fly before they could even be accepted into the program. The men could learn how to fly from the ground up, but WASPs had to have a commercial pilot's license to get in. At that time there were only about 3,000 women in the United States that qualified. Of those, there were 1,845 accepted into the program. There were 1,074 that actually graduated and got their wings. They were then stationed all over the US."

by Tumbleweed Smith

The WASPs flew 77 different types of aircraft. They could not fly outside the US.

"One of their main duties was to ferry planes from aircraft factories on the west coast or Texas to the east coast so they could be sent off to Europe. Some women pilots tested planes after they were repaired.

Others were tow pilots, where they were towing targets for the men pilots to shoot at. And they were using live ammunition."

The trainers and students were all civilians, except for military pilots who gave the WASPs their final check flight.

"WASPs were not recognized as veterans until 1977. They paid their way to get here. If they washed out of the program they paid their way home. If they were killed in action, the girls usually took up a collection to have the body sent back to the family. When the program closed in December of 1944, they had to pay their way to get home."

After the program ended, some women joined the military; others became housewives or started other careers. For some time, efforts were made to have a museum to honor the WASPs. On Memorial Day of last year, the WASP museum opened in Sweetwater. Sandra is a board member.

"We have a hangar where huge photos of WASPs line the walls. Beneath the photos is information about the girls. The museum is attempting to interview all the remaining WASPs as an oral history project. 38 WASPs died in action."

Governor signs business component of tax reform plan

by Ed Sterling

AUSTIN — Gov. Rick Perry on May 18 signed into law House Bill 3, subjecting most Texas businesses to a 1 percent tax on profit, minus deductions for either cost of goods sold or personnel costs.

The tax will take effect on Jan. 1, 2008. It is a component of a wide-ranging plan hailed by the governor's office and many others as "the largest property tax cut in Texas history," amounting to $15.7 billion.

Combined, these cuts are expected to reduce the school district property tax rate by one third. Of course, if appraisals increase at a normal rate, the sensation of a lower tax burden might not last for long.

Perry's office said HB 3 will:

- Reward employers for creating jobs and investing in employee benefits. "Every time a business puts a Texan to work, pays for health insurance or invests in a pension plan... their tax liability will go down."

- Protect small employers so that they can continue to drive Texas' economic growth.

- Exempt sole proprietors and general partnerships from the tax, as well as businesses whose gross receipts total $300,000 or less, and those whose tax bill is less than $1,000; and

- Reward employers who create jobs and contribute to the economy, but will penalize businesses that hire illegal immigrants with higher taxes.

HB 2, another part of the tax reform plan, devotes future excess revenue to property tax reduction until the rate reaches 75 cents per $100 valuation. The governor had not signed HB 2 into law as of May 21.

Members of the 80th Texas Legislature will file bills making clarifications to HB 3 and perhaps carving out exceptions to it in the next regular session, which convenes in January.

Dampener on tax-cut euphoria

Already, critics of the tax reform plan are saying it will create a $25 billion revenue deficit between now and 2010.

Chief among those critics is state Comptroller Carole Keeton Strayhorn, whose assertions may be colored by the fact that as an independent candidate, she is campaigning to get her name on the election ballot and unseat Perry as governor in November.

Strayhorn said that if elected, she will work to repeal the Perry tax reform plan and come up with something better.

Meanwhile, Perry is waiting for Strayhorn — the state's chief accountant — to certify HB 1 before he can sign it into law.

HB 1 is a major component of the tax reform plan passed by the Legislature during the special session that ended May 16. It is supposed to hack down the maintenance and operations portion of all school district property tax rates by 17 cents per $100 valuation in 2007 and by 33 cents per $100 valuation in 2008.

Power struggle in ballot process

Strayhorn turned in more than 230,000 signatures to get on the ballot, but the signatures must be verified by Secretary of State Roger Williams.

A Perry appointee, Williams seemed to be in no rush to verify signatures submitted by either Strayhorn or entertainer-novelist Kinky Friedman, who also is running against Perry as an independent.

Signatures were delivered to Wil-

In honor of a fine young man

Dear Editor:

On Friday evening around 6:00 o'clock I was finishing up some mowing in my front yard when a nice young man stopped and ask if he could do that for me. He said it was awfully hot to be out and I said it had cooled off some as the wind was blowing and I was mostly in the shade; however it was still in the high ninety degrees.

He asked if there was anything he could do to help and I told him I needed to edge around the curbs and walks and would appreciate him doing that for me. He went home and came back shortly with his string trimmer and in a short time had the job done. He would not take pay and said this is what he does - tries to help someone who needs help - that is was the way his parents raised him.

This not only speaks highly of the young man, Cruz Sanchez, but also of his parent.

I am grateful for parents who guide their children and to the children who heed their parent's guidance. As Mother's Day has just passed and Father's Day approaches let us all remember to give thanks for the good teachings of parents and the children who honor their parents teachings.

ELDORADO HIGH SCHOOL

GRADUATION SUPPLEMENT

This graduation supplement is graciously sponsored by the businesses and individuals listed herein.

May 25, 2006

Dear Graduates,
It is my pleasure to take this time to congratulate each and every one of you on obtaining one of the many goals that you have set for yourself.

Many of life's opportunities await you. Many decisions will need to be made throughout the rest of your lives. I know you are ready to meet these challenges and to take advantage of the opportunities that lie ahead.

It has been my pleasure to have been associated with you through your graduation.

Congratulations to the 2006 "Graduates of Eldorado High School"

Sincerely,

George Blanch

George Blanch
Superintendent of Schools

E.H.S.
Graduating Class of 2006:

Congratulations on completing a major step in your life. You will face many more trials in the paths ahead of you. Set your goals and go after them. You may not succeed at everything you try or get to do what you really want to, however, always have high expectations and shoot for them. Sometimes what we want and what The Lord wants do not always coincide.

There have been many people such as parents, teachers, and friends, who have spent many hours working with you. Always remember where you came from and who got you there. My prayer is that each of you will be prosperous, safe, and successful. Have faith in God and yourself, and good things will happen.

You still have many things to learn as you grow older. Think of all the years in front of you. You have spent a very short period of your life so far that has ended with your graduation from Eldorado High School.

Many opportunities are ahead of you, however, so are many possible difficulties. Be wise in your decisions, trust in your abilities, and be persistent in your goals. Proverbs 3: 5-6 states: Trust in the Lord with all your heart and lean not on your own understanding; in all your ways acknowledge him, and he will make your paths straight.

I have had the opportunity to watch most of you Seniors grow up since Kindergarten. I am truly going to miss all of you.

Good luck to all you and may God Bless.

with your Diploma... our very Best Wishes!

Dear EHS Graduates of 2006,

You are about to celebrate one completed journey and start another. The success that you will have on this next journey of your life will be linked to your attitude. You will make mistakes and have disappointments, but if you have an attitude that there are no mistakes, just lessons to be learned, then those obstacles will become challenges that can be turned into success. Each of you has the potential to achieve anything you want in life. The way you live your life today will create your life for tomorrow. As graduates you have the ability to change the world, influence lives, and build history. You will be the beneficiary tomorrow of the work that you complete today.

Whatever you plan to do, whether it be go to college, join the work force, or take time off to just think; listen to your heart. Do what you really love to do and if you don't know why that is yet, keep searching - because when you find it you will bring "that something extra" to your work that will help ensure success. The aim of education is the knowledge not just of facts but of values. Honesty, integrity, sincerity, and compassion are not just hollow words. They are values that will be used to evaluate your performance. Wherever you work you will be judged for your values as well as your knowledge.

In closing I leave you with a quote from Eleanor Roosevelt - "The future belongs to those who believe in the beauty of their dreams". So believe in a dream and persevere in your pursuit. The future belongs to those who believe.

May God bless you.
