ESKIMOS

Traders returning from the Hudson's Bay country tell of Eskimo families whose incomes in actual money run up to $40,000 a year, which they earn by trapping the rare white fox for its fur. These Eskimos, like all other uncultured people who come into possession of sudden wealth, have no idea of the value of money. They spend their incomes on airplane joyrides, commercial aviators having discovered that there is easy money in flying up to Herschel Island, in the Arctic ocean, where these Eskimos live and charging them $375 for a flight to Edmonton. They pay $300 a ton for coal with which to heat their igloos, buy the most expensive radio sets, and arouse the envy of their less fortunate neighbors.

Some moralists are inclined to criticize these Eskimos for their lack of thrift, but it seems to me as if they were getting more out of life than many persons who save their pennies and deny themselves anything in the way of luxury.

WINE

It is not illegal, the Director of Prohibition declares, to make wine or beer in one's own home for one's own use. The law does not prohibit the making of beverages which are not "intoxicating in fact," but prohibits their sale.

It does not take a very long memory to recall the time when the domestic manufacture of wine for home use was a part of the year's regular routine in a large proportion of farm and village homes. Elderberry wine, dandelion wine and wine from other fruits and ingredients shared honors with the grape. Ad our grandmothers always took pains to see that there was a supply on hand of "blackberry cordial," which was supposed to have sovereign value in digestive disturbances. Probably blackberry cordial would come under the prohibition ban today, for it certainly was "intoxicating in fact." But one needed a capacity far beyond the ordinary to consume enough of the old-fashioned home-made wines to become intoxicated by them.

ST. BERNARD

In ordering Italian border guards to fire on the monks of St. Bernard when they crossed the Italian border to rescue some snowbound travelers, the Fascist government outraged the humane sensibilities of the whole world. The Hospice and monastery of St. Bernard founded in the year 1025 by Bernard de Menthon, is more than a Swiss institution; it is enshrined in the heart of the whole Christian world.

Who has not heard of the men who give their lives to save others, as these monks have done for a thousand years? Situated 8,120 feet above sea-level, at the summit of the oldest-travelled pass across the Alps, the Hospice is a refuge for travellers—though motorists are not especially welcomed—and the home of the famous St. Bernard dogs. These great creatures, standing three feet tall, are a breed especially developed by the monks, with thick hair to withstand the cold, keen noses to smell stray travellers caught in the snowstorms, and great strength to drag them to safety or run swiftly for aid.

HELIUM

Instead of being a rare gas, obtainable only at a high cost, as it was a few years ago, helium, the lightest of all the elements except hydrogen, is now obtained in practically unlimited quantities from the Government-owned gas wells in Texas and Oklahoma. A movement has been started to induce the President and the Secretaries of War and of the Navy to permit the exportation of helium gas for use in commercial airships in other countries. Nothing could do more to aid in the development of dirigibles, and such an action on the part of our officials

Parent Teachers Association To Have Carnival Friday Night

The Eldorado P. T. A. will observe Halloween this year by holding a street carnival, beginning in the afternoon and lasting through the evening. Booths of all kinds will be placed on the sidewalks and entertainment for all is an assured fact. In the afternoon a huge parade will be held and all the school children will be asked to take part in this. The purpose of the carnival is to furnish a Halloween entertainment and to raise money for the Parent Teacher Association and thus help the school.

Two Small Children Burn To Death

The Sunday morning Standard Times, report the death of two small children, 1 and 4, of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Fall. The children were put to bed and tucked away for the night. The father was at work and the mother stepped across the street for a visit, turning off an oil stove as she left, and in a few minutes the home was a flame, the two little tots perishing in the flames.

Another accident resulted in the death of the 9e year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Davidson, the child stepped in front of a car driven by Robert Taylor, was knocked to the pavement and died after reaching the hospital.

WILLIAM G. McADOO VISITS TEXAS

William G. McAdoo of California visited Texas Monday stopping at Dallas and Big Springs, he has been on a business trip to New York and is traveling by airship. He was Secretary under Woodrow Wilson and is one of the United States greatest statesmen.

MRS. J. W. HENDERSON SR. OZONA IS DEAD

We note from the San Angelo Standard that Mrs. J. W. Henderson Sr. aged 77, and for 42 years a resident of Crockett County, passed to the realm beyond and was buried at Ozona Sunday. Mrs. Henderson was the mother of 6 children who with their father survive. With the passing of these old settlers, goes the real hospitality of the Old Western Life.

CECIL NEWLIN UNDERGOES OPERATION

Mr. E. E. Newlin was out from San Angelo Monday, for a short while and reports that his son Cecil, who was operated on Friday, was resting very well Monday. But would likely have to undergo another operation in the other leg, as it too was painful him greatly. The boy is suffering of puss in the bone, a disease common in France but very seldom in America. Cecil was stricken with it the first of last week.

Mrs. G. A. Neill visited in San Angelo Saturday, she was accompanied by Mrs. Lawrence Neill and children.

1. Compare Boivar and Sam Martin.
- (a) In contribution toward inflation or rebellion.
- (b) In contribution toward success of rebellion.
- (c) Military Ability.
- (d) Statesmanship.
- (e) Political Ideals.

2. Give causes of the war for Uruguay an Independence.

3. What was the effect of Uruguayan Independence on Spain, Portugal and England?

4. What marked the end of the period of uncertainty in Argentina?

5. What became the seat of government in Argentina in 1802.

6. Who was Pedro I?

would go far toward better international relations. But the probabilities are that the advocates of war and the timorous ones who think the rest of the world is lying in wait to pounce upon the United States, will make a vigorous protest against letting any other nation have something which might be used in making war upon us.

Mrs. Ella Smith Succumbs To Lingering Illness

Mrs. Ella Smith, age 42, and wife of Mr. John I. Smith died at the home in Eldorado Monday morning at 2:30 A. M., after a lingering illness of several months. She is survived by her husband and five children, two daughters and three sons. Just a few hours after her death, a phone message was received from Brady announcing the death of her father.

Mrs. Smith had typhoid fever and spent several months in the Brady Sanitarium, but has been at home here for the past few weeks. Services were held by the Rev. L. J. Ratliff, pastor of the First Baptist Church, with Robert Massie in charge. The remains were laid in the Eldorado Cemetery about 5 o'clock Monday afternoon.

MRS. MULLER ENTERTAINS WITH BRIDGE

Mrs. Muller entertained a group of her friends at the home of her mother Mrs. J. N. Davis, Thursday October, 23 at 2:30 o'clock.

After the arrival of guests six games of bridge was played and delicious refreshments were served to twenty-eight guests. Prizes were awarded Mrs. C. T. Doose of San Angelo, high lady, Mr. Melvin Crabb, high man, Mr. Albert Bailey high out, and Mrs. Sam Roberts consolation.

Those present were: Mesdames V. G. Tisdale, Lewis Ballew, Seth Ramsay, W. D. Gregory, J. C. Crosby, Joe Williams, Albert Bailey, Melvin Crabb, L. T. Barber, Sam Roberts, Otis Buie, Leonard Baugh, J. N. Davis, Jim Hoover, Luke Thompson, Edwin DeLong, Sam Oglesby, Richey, C. T. Doose of San Angelo, Thomas Poteat, David I. Smith, W. H. Mayo, all of San Angelo and Miss Agnes Wright, Messers: J. N. Davis, Melvin Crabb, Albert Bailey, and Luke Thompson.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks to the good people of Eldorado and community for the many courtesies extended to us during the illness and death of our beloved wife and mother. Your words of sympathy and acts of kindness will ever be remembered by us.

John I. Smith and Children.
Mr and Mrs. V. L. Jeffries

Fall Grain Looking Good

The fall grains that were planted before the rains began some three weeks ago are all up and in splendid condition. Several hundred acres can be seen in different sections of the county. All of the farmers have gotten a good stand and will be a great help to them this winter for grazing purposes. Some of them have already turned stock in on the green fields. It has been so very muddy that heavy grazing has been checked but with a few days of sunshine there will be several fields stocked heavily with cattle and sheep.

Road Grading Machinery May Be Bought By City

The grading of the roads and streets in Eldorado is getting to be quite a problem since the rains and probably will be a problem for some time to come. The city has been using the county machinery but from now on the county tools will be very much in demand. The County Judge, H. W. Finley has suggested to the city officials that they buy some light machinery to use for street grading purposes when the county machinery is not available. He states that here is a small grader that can be bought for a small amount and do practically the same amount of work on the streets. On investigation he found that they could get practically any terms that they desire.

WITH OUR EXCHANGES

The Christoval Observer reports the death of T. H. Murray, at Bo. Ina, Texas, he was a brother of Bob Murray.

The Menard Messenger reports that during the recent rain it was impossible to get out of Menard county in any direction on account of bad roads, and says the need of a good highway highway was badly needed.

The Rotan Advance says that there is 7,000 Acres of wheat sown in the Rotan country.

The Concho Herald reports that Bill Fuller was accidentally shot in the foot while duck hunting Monday October, 20.

The Eye-Witness heads a news item with another glorious rain, Saturday Sunday and Monday.

Keep-a-smiling at the jolts along life's way. Don't kick or fuss, but keep out of the way of the swift joy riders and turn a deaf ear to the slanderer and sugar-coated hypocrite.—Eye Witness.

Yesterday, we heard Latherous Acher beefing about so much wet weather in Sterling. He said we needed a "leetle sunshine". Three weeks ago, Latherous said we needed a "leetle rain". Latherous is hard to please.—Sterling News Record.

Rain without sunshine is no good, we like the old song, "Let a Little Sunshine In." Perhaps Latherous had been to Sunday School, and heard them singing about the Sunshine if so, he was entitled to the Sun hine.

Making Life Easy

I really can't figure out what we're coming to. Science and invention seem determined to take so much of the effort out of life that there won't be any interesting left to do—except meet the installment payments.

Eldorado Again Loses Close Contest To Rocksprings

The Eldorado Eagles again lost a close decision to the Rocksprings team on the home grounds, 6-0 last Saturday. It seems that the home team just can't get going. They are putting up a good defense, but are falling in their offense. The line work on the offense seems to be the great trouble. The light forwards just can't hold the heavier opponents and give the backs a chance to get away with their plays.

The passing game that Coach Williams is so strong on is failing to click. The finding of a passer that can wait for the opening has been impossible this year.

After the game with Sonora Saturday, the Eagles will be bolstered considerably by the help of three or four new players. These boys have been ineligible for the past few games but the coach has reported that they are making their grades now and the fans will see an altogether better team after this week.

The game with Sonora Saturday should be a real close game and aid that can, should attend and help the boys try to win.

WRIGHT'S PARAGRAPHS

The people awoke Monday morning to find the country again soaking wet after two or three days of sunshine. Everything has been on a standstill for 4 or 5 weeks with the wheels of progress grinding slowly.

Just a few more days until the general election, at this election will be submitted five Amendments to the State Constitution, we expect to vote for the five, but the one we would like to see carry with a large majority is the right to tax the State University land. But the Legislature made a mistake in the way it was submitted and we guess it is doomed for defeat. If voted the tax will come out of the general fund and not from the University funds. The Texas University, rich as it is should pay its own tax, and our Legislature made a mistake in the way it is being submitted. Our constitution needs many changes but it is hard to get one voted when submitted. And the University tax with the present millstone on its neck is bound for defeat. That is reason tells us to guess that way, altho we appreciate money each year for its up keep.

Every paper you read you hear of a bank hold-up, the Radio broadcasts the news that some bank has been robbed, yet some citizens criticize the Bank Association for offering a $5,000 reward for these culprits. They should be shot down like "stink kitties" in the hen house.

Don't cuss your bank for the financial conditions you are in, they didn't bring on the situation. We have too many borrowers and too few lenders. The time to save is when you make it.

We visited Christoval Sunday afternoon, and viewed the destruction of the recent flood, and heard how some of the people took chances against the flooded waters, a heavy down pour over this section now would be almost fatal to a large portion of Christoval.

The State of Texas, County of Schleicher and City of Eldorado, have notified us the exact amount they expect us to contribute to their up-keep, and we presume we will pay some with out talking back.

SELF CULTURE CLUB ENTERTAINS HUSBANDS

The Self Culture Club entertained their husbands and few guests with a Halloween party at the home of Mrs. George Williams Friday night October 24. The home was beautifully decorated in Halloween colors and the Halloween motif being carried out in detail throughout the evening. The evening was spent in playing bridge, forty two and pitch, Salad course was served to fifty guests.

SELF CULTURE CLUB

Crockett and Upton counties have road projects which will entail a large million dollars expenditure through university lands, and neither will get a cent from the university to help pay for the cost of improvements. It is a gift to the school that tax payers of the two progressive counties will bear, whereas the roads will rebound to the good of the university, the state, and to every county interest in supporting the university, says the statement of the judges.

Texas paid by the 17 counties in 1928 for state purposes amounted to $12,148.47 and the total repaid them in school apportionment was $556,185, making an excess retained by the state of $725,313.47, the judges cite in their plea for justice.

Sign on bridge: "Positively no vehicle shall be permitted to remain standing on this bridge at any time."

What a cute contraction of "No Parking!"

I had to park to read the blooming forty two and pitch, Salad course was, thing.

Thirteen Inches Of Rainfall Received In Schleicher

After waiting for several months, hoping and praying for a rain, the people of Schleicher at last have received an abundant amount of rainfall for the winter. Thirteen inches have been received in the last four weeks. It has been a life saver to the ranchmen and a great aid to the farmer in just a little late to benefit the farmer on this year's crop. It will insure him a planting season this fall and probably one for the planting season in the spring. Had the rains come earlier in the summer, the cotton and feed crops in Schleicher would have surpassed all record crop years of other times.

Many of the ranchmen in the county have shipped a large number of the stock to market and have lightened their ranges up to where they have a small number on the range and with the recent rains, the range should support their stock without feed this winter.

BOY SCOUTS OF AMERICA

Troop 18 met on October 24. There were nineteen present. All were there on time except one. The meeting was opened with J. R. Conner leading in the Scout Oath. The Scoutmaster, Mr. Brooks, then checked upon the one hundred points that were to be gotten this month. That meeting ended up months record. There were very few that got theirs. They got theirs by being present at the troop meetings, patrol meetings and passing tests and the few other things. Although there were very few that got their amount it showed the other boys what they had to do in order to get theirs and the ones that didn't get their amount said that they would try again for next month. Joe Hearne then got the new members and took them in another room and worked with them on knot tying. They all learned fast. We were then dismissed.

SELF CULTURE CLUB MEETS

The Self Culture Club met at the home of Mrs. Reuben Dickens, on Thursday October 23, at 2:30 o'clock. Miss John Alexander was leader for the afternoon, the subject being "The Meaning of the Kindergarten to the Child, to the Home and to Civic Life." A lovely Salad course, carrying out the Halloween motif was served to ten members and one guest. Mrs. Jack Conley entertained with a piano solo.

OVERPRODUCTION

The business stringency from which the United States has been suffering for the past year, and from which recovery is now slowly setting in, is not confined to this country. All over the world similar depression exists, with very much more serious consequences to the masses of the people than we have experienced so far.

There is not much consolation for the man out of a job in the knowledge that there are more men out of jobs somewhere else. But it is something to understand that the condition which we are facing in America has not been wholly caused by anything which we could have prevented. In every nation of the world the people are blaming their respective governments for the stagnation of industry. In several South American countries the resentment has expressed itself in revolutions which have thrown the old government out. In Europe political conditions are critical in Germany, England, France and Spain, from the same causes.

Economist who have delved deeply into the present world situation blame it largely on the overproduction of raw materials of all kinds, all over the globe. And that overproduction is a direct result of the war. Although the war was over twelve years ago, its effects are still being felt, as they will be felt for a generation to come.

During the war every form of production of raw materials was immensely stimulated in the countries outside of the war zone. Immediately after the war there was a tremendous demand for copper, tea, rubber, coffee, sugar, cotton, wheat, corn, beef, silver wool, and so on through the whole list of raw materials. The prices which were paid further stimulated production. Statesmen who foresaw a glut of these things beyond the ability of the industrial world to utilize them began to counsel caution, but producers who had been reaping the big profits of high prices were only human, and continued to produce in the hope that prices would keep on.

Of course, prices began to fall. Worse than that, producers of some commodities found themselves with hardly any market at all. In many other lines prices fell below the cost of production. We have had only a slight touch of this world situation, in the falling price of wheat to the grower, in the low price the planter gets for cotton. We have been going on at the overstimulated pace set in war times, when "marginal" lands which it does not pay to cultivate in peace time, were put into crops which cannot now be profitably marketed.

This overproduction is the underlying cause of all of the world's economic troubles, in the opinion of some authorities. It certainly has a great deal to do with it.

AUTUMN

Europeans hardly know what Americans are talking about when they speak and write of "glorious autumn weather" and prate of the loveliness of our "Indian Summer." Climatic conditions are different on the two sides of the Atlantic. Over there Spring is the season of which poets sing, the loveliest period of the year. Summer follows Spring and then, with the briefest of intervals, Winter comes.

Spring in most parts of the United States is hardly distinguishable from Summer. Winter drags on, then suddenly Summer is at hand. But after Summer comes Autumn, the long week when the few light frosts merely whet the zest for the out of doors, when the leaves turn to brilliant colors unmatched anywhere else in nature and impossible to depict by art in their full gorgeousness. Is there anything more beautiful than a forest-clad hill side when the leaves are turning? The pale yellow of the birch, the brilliant scarlet of the sugar maple, the yellow browns of the elms and the soft maple the purplish tones of the ash, backgrounded against the several greens of the different evergreens, make a blend of riotous color such as no painter has ever succeeded in catching on his canvas.

The leaves fall, the frosts sharpen, and then comes the hunting season,

YOU'VE GOT TO GIVE THEM TIME

A woman whose son is in his second year at college writes that her boy is well mannered and intelligent but does not seem to have any objective.

"His father and I urge him to decide what he wants to do in life," she says, "but he tells us that he can not make up his mind."

For the encouragement of this mother I can cite two interesting cases. A certain man now stands near the top of his profession, with an income considerably in excess of a hundred thousand dollars a year. He worked hard in college, but his health was poor; he was frequently despondent, and at his graduation he felt that he was not trained for anything.

He took the first job offered and made surprisingly good progress. Just about the time that his parents thought he was well established, he suddenly chucked the job and started around the world. After a year's travel, which used up all his savings, he started in another position. The company failed, and he was out again. A third time he started in a different line, but it did not interest him. He could not get to first base.

On his fourth attempt, when he was almost thirty years old, he finally found work that gripped him. Also, he became engaged to be married. He jumped into high speed and has been successful ever since.

I know another man whose ability was clearly recognized by the heads of the big company where he worked, but somehow they could not seem to fit him into the place where he would be really productive. Four or five times they shifted him into different departments. They were just about to turn him into the street when he struck the one thing for which he was really fitted. Today he is vice-president of the whole concern.

When I buy an automobile the sales man tells me that it has been perfectly manufactured for its work, and carefully inspected and tuned up. At the same time, he says that I must be patient with it. For the first two thousand miles I must run it slowly, and must bring it in often and have it adjusted.

We expect this is an automobile. But in a youngster we have the notion that the factory—which is the school or college—ought to turn him out all ready for a championship race at high speed.

It takes a lot of wisdom and patience to be the father of a boy who is starting in life. Boys must have a chance to get adjusted. You've got to give them time.

The "Indian Summer" the like of which is known nowhere else in the world. This Autumn season is one of the elements and not the least important one, of our American heritage.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

By John Joseph Gaines, M. D.

MARRIAGE

Two elements are at work in every legitimate marriage contract, "sex-urge," and "love." The physician, in his daily round of service to humanity, observes many phenomena which enter mightily into human existence for better or worse. I think the conscientious doctor may be a first-rate moral and spiritual adviser as well as a battler against disease.

The sex-problem, like the poor, "we have with us always." Without it, I fear there would be few marriages. Cut out the sex-urge, and the few marriage contracts, based on love alone, would endure unto the end, "when death do us part."

Sex-urge, is not love. Holy Writ refers to it as "lust of the flesh," a part of that evil trumvirate, "the world, the flesh and the devil." It is but a means to an end, to "multiply and replenish the earth." Sex-urge is humor for human exercise and control. If uncontrolled—but who doesn't know the penalty?

Love is far above the lust of flesh. When men and women love each other truly, independent of sexual attraction, the divorce courts go a-begging. I have seen time and again, men and women live as husband and wife, regardless of sexual bankruptcy, and their devotion and happiness seemed far above the intensely animal natures. The sex-urge nuptial contract is dangerous if wholly animal; it is not much higher than the union of the beasts of the field. The sexual marriage ceases when sex falls, then infidelity, unchastity, jealousy, the divorce court and its miserable attempts at self-justification. No, sex-urge is not love; the latter rises above the coarse, animal passion.

When men and women learn that true love is an identity far removed from sex-urge; when they try to occupy a plane above that of the beast of the field, then, and not till then, will the highest ideal of humanity have been realized.

"A BARGAIN IN EVERY PURCHASE"

"RAINMAKERS" CANT

MAKE RAIN

Hundreds of Them Have Been Getting Money From the Gullible During the Drought

By Caleb Johnson

This has been a great year for the "rainmakers."

All over the United States charlatans and fakery have been persuading communities to pay them for making rain. None of them has produced any rain, but a good many of them have collected. Some got their money first, where they found a particularly gullible community. Others took the chances that it would rain sooner or later anyway, and got contracts calling for the payment of money to them if it rained within a given period, which was usually long enough to give the rainmaker a break.

Sooner or later it is bound to rain everywhere, except in the desert of Sahara and a few other arid regions of the earth. But anybody who pays a "rainmaker" to bring on the rain before the forces of Nature in their orderly progress are prepared to deliver a shower is just one more name added to the sucker list.

No human agency has yet succeeded in causing rain to fall.

No method known to science can cause rain to fall except at a cost far greater than all of the possible financial benefit of the rain when it did come.

There is always a certain amount of water vapor present in the atmosphere, even on the driest day. The professional "rainmakers" speak truly when they tell you that, but that is as far as their truth-telling goes. It is true that if that vapor could be condensed sufficiently in the air it would form rain-drops and fall to the ground, but all of the efforts to bring that about by human agency have failed.

Yet the belief in rainmaking is one of the oldest human superstitions. The natives of the East Indies and some parts of Africa believe that their medicine men can cause rain. One method is to throw selected individuals into certain sacred lakes. Another African rainmaking device is for all of the people of a village to carry gourds filled with water from a stream to a dry field and spray the water into the air, apparently as a sort of "ground-bait" for rain.

Because thunder and lightning are usually accompanied by rain, the natives of some parts of India try to bring on rain by making their horses neigh like thunder. Black horses, or horses covered with black cloths, in imitation of thunderclouds are supposed to be most effective for this kind of magic. In Estonia the peasants strike steel against stone to make sparks of a sort of miniature lightning, while beating metal kettles to simulate thunder. In the East Indies professional rainmakers make noises like ducks, frogs and other amphibious creatures in the hope of luring rain from the sky, while other savage races attempt to make it rain by flogging each other with switches until the blood runs down their backs like rain. This is supposed to tempt the rain to fall!

You will hear people say that it always rains on the Fourth of July, because of the amount of gunpowder that is exploded, the theory being that the explosion jars the water-vapor in the sky and causes it to condense and fall. But the U. S. Weather Bureau records show that rain is no more prevalent on the Fourth of July than on any other date, anywhere. Similarly, it is a common belief that it always rains after a great battle, because of the shooting off of cannon and small-arms. But it is curious to note that Plutarch, the ancient Roman historian, who died centuries before gunpowder was invented, recorded the same belief of rain following great battles.

Most modern efforts at rainmaking are based on the idea of exploding something in the air. Serious scientific efforts to determine whether this or any other method within human power could produce rain have been undertaken in the past by several governments, including our own. Nearly forty years ago R. G. Dyrenforth, a scientist of standing, was engaged by the United States Department of Agriculture to carry on such experiments. Mr. Dyrenforth spent $17,000. He tried sending up balloons filled with dynamite or with an explosive mixture of oxygen and hydrogen, and exploding them in the upper air. He produced plenty of loud noise, but no rain. The late C. W. Post of Battle Creek spent a great deal of money in bombarding the sky, but the only rain that fell was the tail-end of a general rainfall which occurred in that entire region.

Another scientific effort at rainmaking was proposed by an English savant, Professor Espy, who pointed out that if a sufficiently strong upward current of heated air could be sent aloft, the warm air on expanding would cool the water vapor and precipitate it. This theory, which is undoubtedly sound enough scientifically, was propounded in 1829, and many efforts to demonstrate it by building huge fires in drought-stricken regions have since been made, but without bringing rain. An investigation by the government of New South Wales, Australia, into the cost of carrying out the Espy program indicated that it would require the burning of nine million tons of coal a day to send up enough hot air to materially affect the rainfall in that region.

R. G. Dyrenforth's conclusions were to the same effect. It is humanly possible to make rain fall, he says provided there is a raincloud present, or conditions such as often come close to rain without quite reaching the point of precipitation, but the cost and labor involved would be so great as to make it more economical to lose all the crops and all the livestock which would perish by drought than to spend the necessary money to bring on rain. Out in Medicine Hat, Canada, as late as 1921, a tank filled with chemicals was exploded some distance about the ground, but the rain which followed shortly after was less than fell in nearby regions where there had been no explosions. Commenting on this, the Canadian meteorological authorities pointed out that to cause rain to fall to a depth of one inch over an area of a hundred square miles it would be necessary to condense six million tons of water vapor, requiring the lifting of hundreds of tons of air, and that there is no energy at the command of man sufficient to do this.

Yet every dry season brings forth its "rainmakers", who collect money for their efforts, even in such an enlightened country as we like to believe our is. Just the other day a California chamber of commerce paid one of them $300 and promised him $1,000 per inch of rain falling during the month, up to five inches.

Rainmaking, it seems, is not a problem in meteorology, but rather of psychology.

BEAVERS

The first European settlers in America found a curious animal in the New World. The beaver, which builds its nests like little log houses, in the middle of a stream or swamp, and then builds a dam to raise the water level so that its enemies cannot reach the entrance to its home except by diving, is more than an interesting little animal. It was the source of the greater part of the wealth of the early Colonists.

Beaver fur, it was soon discovered, made a better felt for hats than wool or any of the other readily obtainable furs. We speak today of the tall silk hat of fashion as a "beaver", but it is merely a remote descendant of the fashionable beaver-fur hats of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. An immense commerce between the Old World and the New was built up on fur, now mainly obtained from Canadian sources, is still one of the most highly prized pelts.

The proclivity of the beaver to build dams is being utilized in the Palisades-Interstate Park, lying in New York and New Jersey. A large swamp needed a dam to make it into a lake. Several families of the 350 beavers that live in the park were trapped and moved to the swamp. They proceeded to build their houses there and to construct the dam just where it was needed. Although no longer an important item in commerce the beaver is still useful.

Old Wade was called to Bangs Monday to the funeral of his mother, who died at the home of her son George Wade on the ranch near Kerrville.

The Electric Man Shows You a Delightful New Breakfast Method

"Through the use of electric toasters, waffle irons, percolators, egg boilers, electric grills and many other small appliances, the task of cooking breakfast has been made thoroughly enjoyable.

"And now, with the new Home Comfort rate, the low cost of operation adds another advantage to the electrically-prepared breakfast.

"You see, this new schedule of rates makes all service over the first 45 kilowatt-hours, for a five-room house, cost only 4c per kilowatt-hour—3c where service is also used for heating or cooking.

Just think of the possibilities of this new rate. All the service you want to use, and yet your bill will always be quite moderate, compared with other necessities of the home.

"Next week I'm going to tell you about the advantages of this new schedule in connection with your lighting problems, and I'm sure you'll get some ideas from my suggestions."

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Giles Chitttenham swears to avenge the death of his young half-brother Rodney, driven to suicide by the notorious Julie Farrow who had spurned his love. He will make Julie love him, then throw her aside as she threw Rodney. He meets her in Switzerland, goes with her to the hotel on the St. Bernard Pass, and succeeds in winning her love. To his amazement, he discovers that he has fallen over a woman who has ruined herself in love with her husband! And he is married, to an American girl with whom he has nothing in common.

Then he discovers that the girl is not the same Julie Farrow who ruined Rodney, but her cousin of the same name. She scorns him when he confesses his love and his ability to marry her. They meet later in London, where she is going the same way that kills. An other man, Lawrence Schofield wants to marry her, in spite of her wild life.

Through his friend Lombard, Giles Chitttenham meets the "other Julie", the notorious woman who had ruined Rodney's life. She tells him that she is going to die; the doctors have given her up as incurable and she is leaving England. She is worried about her cousin, the girl Chitttenham loves. That Julie—his Julie—is going in fast company, among them a common little American girl named Sadie Barrow.

And Sadie Barrow is Giles Chitttenham's wife. He did know that she was in England. That night he sneaked her at a party at his mother's house. They pretend to be strangers.

Giles learns that Sadie Barrow, his wife, has gone in for spiritualism and is attending seances by a medium named Chrysler.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Julie swung round from the contemplation of her pale face beneath the brim of the green hat which she had picked up from the bed to try on.

"No," she said sharply. "I'm just going out. Say I am engaged."

"Very good, Miss."

The door closed quietly behind the maid, and Bim said a trifle maliciously:

"He will think you are afraid of him, Julie."

Julie's cheeks flamed.

"Afraid—?"

She made an impetuous rush to the door and opened it.

"Wait a moment—"

The maid, already half-way across the little passage, turned.

"Tell Mr. Chitttenham I will see him in five minutes," Julie said and went back to her room.

Chitttenham was standing by the mantel-shelf looking at an impressionist photograph of Bim Lennox, but he turned at once when the door opened.

"Hullo!" Julie greeted him with a casual nod. "What in the world brings you here at such an early hour? I've only just crawled out of bed myself."

She spoke rather loudly and defiantly, and she deliberately left the door open behind her.

Chitttenham stepped past her and closed it, then he came back to where she stood.

"This has got to stop, Julie," he said without preamble.

Julie opened her eyes wide.

"Stop?" she echoed blankly. "What has got to stop? My getting up so late, do you mean? My dear man—"

He interrupted ruthlessly.

"The whole of this miserable, damnable play-acting has got to stop. You're ruining yourself and me body and soul. Do you think I don't understand? Do you think I'm such a fool that you can take me in for one minute by all this—this chifflishness—?"

Before she could prevent him or move a step from him he caught her by the shoulders, roughly turning her round to the morning sunlight which streamed through the window. "Look at the stuff on your face? You'd have scorned to use the much two months ago. Look at the life you're leading—when you left my mother's house night—or rather early this morning—you were horribly drunk—"

Julie laughed in his face.

"Delightfully drunk!" she mocked him coolly. "But go on, go on! Don't let me spoil this soul-saving lecture. You're mistaken your vocation. You ought to have been a low-church parson instead of what you are—a coward and a cheat—I can just picture you in a clerical collar, with all the old tabbies in the congregation—"

"Julie—!"

She wrenched herself free of him.

"I object to being called by my Christian name by you. I hate the name, anyway. You can keep it for my estimable cousin—she'll appreciate your cave-man attentions and I don't—she—"

"She's a braver woman than you are—" Giles said savagely.

Julie shrugged her shoulders.

"Has she made a conquest of you already? Well, good luck to her, she's welcome. And if you've only come here to behave like a bully you'd better go—I've a lunch appointment—"

"With Schofield?"

"That's my affair."

"If he was a decent fellow he'd stop your nonsense. He'd never have allowed you to do what you did last night—"

"You flatter your sex. All the men in the world could not stop me from doing exactly as I please—"

They faced one another like deadly enemies, white and shaken. It was astonishing how suddenly the storm had arisen.

Chitttenham was not a conceited man, but by his own love for Julie he measured her love for him an unhappy love that would give neither of them rest or peace, and could not bring happiness, and realising this he suddenly broke out passionately:

"Oh, my dear, it's not worthy of you or of our love! Must you make it harder for us both than it already is?—Do you think it's nothing to me to see you as you were last night—"

The tender sincerity of his voice almost broke her down. She swayed a little and caught at a chair back but when Chitttenham would have gone to her she waved him furiously away.

"Don't touch me. Don't come near me."

For a moment she struggled hard for self-control, then she was erect once more and facing him defiantly.

"You said when I came in, that this must stop. Well, I agree, and so we'll just settle it now once and for all. And will you please understand, Mr. Chitttenham, that you and I are nothing whatever to one another, and never have been. If you want to hear the truth I even rather dislike you. However foolish you once thought me—Oh, I'm not shirking the memory, if you are—" she broke out as he would have spoken. "I am quite willing to admit that for one night, just for a few hours—I let you think I rather liked you. Don't blame me for that. It was the snow and the wind, and being up there so far away from every one—in the morning it had all gone, and, as I said then, we had come back to earth again."

Her voice was studiously cold and quiet, almost expressionless.

"You will make your name a by-word, even amongst these—these ridiculous people you call your friends."

"And that, of course, will break my heart, if it is not already broken," Julie sneered. "It matters so much what people like Doris Gardener and Sadie Barrow say—they haven't any vices themselves, have they?"

"At least Sadie does not drink," Chitttenham interrupted, unthinkingly.

He saw he sudden look of angry surprise that flashed into Julie's eyes.

"You seem to have found out a great deal about Sadie in a short time she said sharply.

"One does not have to be either very quick or very inquisitive to find out such a thing," Giles answered. "As a matter of fact I find her very charming," he added with an almost childish desire to sting her.

But Julie calmly agreed.

"So do I. She and I have a great deal in common. Chiefly our dislike of your noble sex."

"Schofield always excepted, I suppose."

Julie laughed.

"Lawrence Schofield certainly excepted. He is a great friend of mine—he is rich, and moreover he is anxious to marry me—"

"You don't care two straws about the man."

"On the contrary, I care a great many straws. Not that it is any business of yours—"

"It is my business when the woman I love talks of rushing into a ridiculous marriage."

"The woman you love!" Julie's face flamed. "How infinitely touching! and what a pity you are not free to marry me yourself. Think of the divine bliss we should experience—think of the happy-ever-after ending—"

Julie slipped past him and opened the door.

"Please go," she said.

Bim spoke from the narrow hall rather nervously.

"Julie dear—Mr. Schofield has just driven up—"

"I'm coming at once."

"There was an eloquent silence after the door had slammed behind her, then Bim half-shrugged her shoulders and went into the sitting-room where Giles stood staring out of the window.

"Don't be too angry with Mr. Chitttenham," she said. "I am so sorry, so dreadfully sorry."

He turned and looked at her.

"It's all my fault," he broke out agitatedly. "And there's nothing I can do to put it right—nothing."

The telephone rang suddenly and Bim went across the room to answer it.

"Yes?—No, Bim Lennox speaking. Oh—yes, Miss Barrow. No, she's just gone out. Can I give her a message? Oh—yes, very well—to-morrow afternoon at four."

Bim hung up the receiver and turned. There was a little angry frown between her level brows.

"Do you believe in spiritualism, Mr. Chitttenham?" she asked.

"No."

"Nor do I, but it seems all the fashion just now. There is to be a seance or whatever you call it at your mother's house tomorrow afternoon. That was Miss Barrow phoning. She's an ardent believer—"

"She never used—" Giles began, then stopped.

"It's all nonsense," he protested angrily. "A pack of charlatans duping a lot of silly women."

"Julie is going, too. They have got hold of some wonderful new medium—Bim's voice was quietly sarcastic.

"They have invited me, but it's not the sort of thing I care about."

Chitttenham frowned.

"It's not the sort of thing any healthy-minded person would care about anyway, and—" he paused. "It was impossible to tell Bim that his mother had declared she would not have Julie in her house again. I hope you will try and dissuade Miss Farrow from going," he added.

Bim shrugged her shoulders.

"You might as well ask me to try and stop Niagara," she said hopelessly.

"Once Julie has made up her mind nothing will change it."

Bim went with him to the door, but after they had said good-bye he hesitated and came back.

"Miss Lennox—don't leave her if you can help it."

"No."

"You see—" He flushed, and stopped, only to flounder on again. "You see, it's all my fault—all my cursed stupidity."

"I know, Julie told me."

"She told you?"

"Yes."

"And I suppose you think—what do you think?"

Bim smiled.

"It would be so easy for me to say that I think you behaved like a knave—so easy to rail at you, but I don't want to. I think Life is so tragic—nothing ever seems to go quite right for any of us, does it?—at least that is my experience. We can only just go on—hoping that something will turn up to straighten things out, and if so seldom, does, I often wonder if it isn't because we lack courage."

"What do you mean?"

"I mean courage to face facts and see things as they really are—"

She looked away from him. "Mr. Chitttenham, you know Julie doesn't really—hate you—"

She laughed rather sadly.

"I suppose I ought not to have told you that, but I can't bear to see her as she is now, so reckless, so broken—"

She stopped, afraid she had said too much, and for a moment there was a profound silence, then Chitttenham held out his hand again.

"Thank you," he said.

As Chitttenham walked away from the flat he made up his mind to one thing. He would ask Sadie to divorce him.

If Julie still loved him—in his heart he was sure that she did, and nothing else mattered.

He had promised to lunch with his mother, but in his eagerness he forgot where Sadie was staying.

She was out and they did not know when she would be back. Giles left a message asking her to ring him up.

He waited till six o'clock and rang up Julie's flat.

"Bim Lennox answered the telephone. 'No, Julie is not in. She rang just now to say she was dining out and not coming home to change. I think she is with Mr. Schofield still.'

Giles hung the receiver and turned away. He was powerless, and yet he knew that he could never be content to let things remain as they were. He must see Julie again, somehow—"

Some one tapped at his door.

"Mr. Lombard to see you sir."

"Confound!—Oh, well, show him up. Lombard seemed nervous and apologetic. 'I say—' he broke out suddenly. 'I'm in the devil of a fix—'

Chitttenham looked up.

"Money?"

"How did you know?"

IT'S ALL IN YOUR STATE OF MIND

If You think you're beaten, you are:
If You think you dare not you don't:
If You'd like to win
And don't think you can,
It's almost a cinch that you won't.

If you think you'll lose, you're lost,
For out in the world we find
Success begins with a fellow's will,
It's all in his state of mind.

Think big and your deeds will grow,
Think small and you'll fall behind;
Think that you can and you will,
It's all in your state of mind.

Life's battles don't always go
To the stronger or faster man;
But sooner or later, the man who wins
Is the fellow who says "I can."

EAGLES ARE DEFEATED

BY ROCKSPRINGS
Saturday October 25

The Eldorado Eagles lost their third game Saturday, but not without doing their best and then some. They were outweighted pounds to the man and played a much more experienced team than they were.

By the end of the first quarter one could not tell which team was doing the best playing. Rocksprings was troubled with fumbles and Eldorado just couldn't get through the line. At one time we got the ball up to their 18 yard line and it looked like we were going to make a touchdown but they tightened up and carried the ball back to a safe distance.

In the second quarter the game became very interesting, with both teams almost scoring several times. When they had the ball on our 28 yard line and it seemed that they were going to carry it over in spite of all we could do, all the boys tightened up. James Williamson took the man carrying the ball for a six yard loss on their second down, they made one yard with 18 to go on third down, and on fourth down, Aubrey Smith broke up a very dangerous pass but we were penalized 5 yards for interfering with man as he was catching the ball.

Junior Isaacs was sent in for Carl Kerr who hurt his knee. Their fourth down gained them nothing and we began to go through their line. Williamson punted to their 28 yard line where they took it out of bounds. Aubrey Smith received a pass from Williamson and gained about ten yards just as the half ended, with the score 0-0.

In the third quarter Rocksprings was seen to have the advantage and were out playing the Eagles, but nevertheless some very good offensive playing was done. Lefty Smith and Brownie Bullion downed a man who was loose with the ball on our 15 yard line. Rocksprings was penalized 15 yards for trying to pass after being tackled.

They kicked to our 15 yard line and Albert McGinty got loose with ball and carried it 40 yards through their line before they downed him. Lefty made several tackles that probably prevented them from getting touchdowns while they were going through the line so easy. They finally got the ball up to our 30 yard line on first down, gained 5 yards on second down, 5 more on third, and after two or three more first downs, had it on our one yard line. Another down carried it on our goal line which gave them another first down. Their first down gained them nothing, the ball dropping on the goal line again, and they were penalized 5 yards for offside. The quarter ended with the ball on our 5 yard line and three more downs for Rocksprings.

Their second down gave them no gain, the third down gave them a 2 yard gain, and the fourth down found the most part of the ball over the goal line. A kick for the extra point failed. Things looked bad when they kicked and Williamson received it back of our goal line but as the yardage went by with the ball still under his arm, they did not look so bad. He was dropped on our 30 yard line. A pass was intercepted on our 40 yard line but Eldorado covered ball on fumble on the 35 yard line. We fumbled again but Williamson recovered the ball and he carried it around the right end for a 10 yard gain. They intercepted another pass on their 25 yard line and punted to our 25 yard line. There were several incomplete passes made on both sides during the last few minutes of the game.

The game ended at 4:15 with the total score; Rocksprings 6, Eldorado 0

FOOTBALL STUFF

"Syde" Liner

Weight, seemingly, doesn't count with these wild cats on wheels type of Eagles that the high school is sporting this year.

Just seems to make 'em sock the other guy harder. Boy they do show grit.

In the five games played the score of the opposing teams have been 31 and that of Eldorado 31. That surely must prove something.

In that score the Menard gang piled up 18 points. Doesn't that show some pep in that gang of kids.

The next game with Sonora at Sonora is being talked about more than any other game. If possible see it. From all indications it will be the best game of the season. Remember, November 1, at Sonora.

ELDORADO HIGH SCHOOL HAS MORE BOYS THAN GIRLS

Probably for the first time in the history of the school there are more boys than girls enrolled in the Eldorado high school this year. Of the total enrollment of 110 there are sixty boys and fifty girls. Another unusual situation also exists in that there are 8 boys and only 4 girls in the senior class. This is the smallest senior class for many years. The enrollment of the junior class is twelve girls and eight boys; that of the sophomore class is twenty five boys and sixteen girls and that of the freshman class is eighteen boys and the same number of girls.

ALGEBRA II

Miss Bradshaw's Algebra II class is improving since the first six weeks period. The class is now studying factoring. Most of the class seems to understand it but the students that have been going to the country schools are having a pretty hard time with it. However, they are making a good showing not to have had it before. There are thirty-two students enrolled in Algebra II and only two or three out of that number are failing. That is a pretty good percentage compared with some of the other subjects. Miss Bradshaw is trying to divide the class into two sections for the benefit of those that have never had factoring before. Miss Bradshaw thinks that if she gets the class divided this week some time that by the end of the second six weeks period there will be no one failing. If there is no one failing at the end of the second six weeks period this class is likely to be among the few in High School in which there are no one failing.

SENIOR CLASS RINGS ARRIVE

The latter part of the third week in October was a busy time for the Seniors. They were notified Thursday afternoon that their rings were in the post office. The officers of the class got busy and enough money was collected by 8:30 the next morning to remove the rings from the office. As each member of the class was eager to wear this ring which only many years of hard study has made possible, they were easily distributed by 9:00. These rings have the school emblem the Eagle, placed on top between two torches. Under this "Eldorado H. S." is written. The date is placed on the sides "19" on one side and "31" on the other. Chivalry is also represented on the sides by Helmets and daggers. These rings were finished with what is called the Antique Roman Finish. The class is not looking forward to the many pleasures which may be obtained from these rings.

ENGLISH IV CLASS

The English IV class, under the supervision of Miss Allen, is studying English Literature. The subject is very interesting despite the hard work required. There are twelve members of the class, three girls and nine boys.

The rise of the drama, Elizabethan writers, Shakespeare, and Milton have occupied the time of the class within the last few weeks. In most cases these higher writers seem to be above the realm of most student's mimos in any case the taste for simpler writings seems to prevail.

The last half of the school year will be taken up by a study of grammar, the first being given entirely to the study of literature.

IN THE RACK

By "Magpie" Zine
Of all the magazines we have that are all the title implies is the "Scientific American." It is a monthly publication and has the following departments; "Learning to use our Wings," "The Back Yard Astronomer," and the department for inventions." There are articles on all phases of science in this magazine. The "Scientific American" is one of the first Magazines subscribed for by the high school.

One of the newest magazines to be added to the rack is the "Athletic Journal." It is a monthly magazine and is very useful to football players and their coaches. The "Athletic Journal" stresses the sports that take place at that time in the season.

PERCENTAGE OF FAILURES NOT TOO LARGE IN HIGH SCHOOL

As a general rule the best grades are made the first six weeks of school. This is due to the fact that vacation time is over and we are ready to get down to business. Of course as time passes so does this determination to a certain extent. The first six weeks are passed now and we are starting on another term. There were thirty seven who failed and on third of this number failed in two or more subjects. This is not so bad, because it is a known fact that one out of every ten always fail. We are about on the average, there being sixty nine passing and most of these are good averages.

Mr. Smith's Shorthand class made good grades and there were no failures in that class, nor were there any failures in Mr. Williamson's Chemistry class.

For the first six weeks of school the percentage of failures in some of the classes ran as follows: Spanish I 23 percent; History II, 21 percent; English IV, 20 percent; Biology, 20 percent; English I, 12 percent; Math III, 5 percent; History one, 13 percent.

ELDORADO EXES

Every week an article will appear under the title "Eldorado Exes" on some ex-student of the Eldorado High School. The fifth of these appears below.

MR. J. F. ISAACS

By Eli McAngus
Mr. J. F. Isaacs attended the Eldorado High School at Eldorado in 1908 and 1909 and completed two years of high school work. Fourteen members of the class who graduated a freshmen. An here something was in his class at that time. He took part in baseball while here, this being the only important sport at that time in this part of the country. Mr. Isaacs finished his last two years of high school career in the San Angelo High School where he graduated. After finishing high school, he took a course in the San Angelo Business College and graduated from it.

He is now the County and District Clerk of Eldorado, which office he has held for some eight or ten years.

FALCON FEATHERS

By Hassell Ratliff
Mr. Smith: "What do we call a man who keeps talking and talking when people are no longer interested?"
Carl Kerr: "A teacher!"

Pauline: "Did I leave an umbrella here yesterday?"

Clerk: "What kind of an umbrella?"
Pauline: "Oh, any kind, I'm not fussy."

Wife: "We have been married for a year and never quarrel. If a difference of opinion arises, I am right; Felix always gives in immediately."
Ell: "And if he is right?"
Wife: "Oh! That never occurs."

Merchant: "Look here, you've been owing me this bill for a year. I'll meet you half way. I'm ready to forget half you owe me."
Bill: "Fine! I'll meet you, I'll forget the other half."

Question in Seventh grade: "Who is President of Senate?"
Answer: "The president is president of the vice president and the vice president is vice president of the senate."

Question: "Why are all math teachers blue-eyed?"
Answer: "So they can stand off the icy gaires they get."

BOYD IS GLAD THAT HE FOUND THIS ARGOTANE
San Angelo Man Says His Troubles Disappeared After Taking Four Bottles of Argotane

"I fell off in weight and could digest hardly a thing I ate before I started taking Argotane but now I can sit down and eat three square meals a day and enjoy them and am gaining in strength every day I live." is the statement of G. H. Boyd, residing at 112 E. Avenue J, San Angelo.

"I was all rundown in general and so restless that I couldn't get but a few hours' sleep at night without waking and being so restless and shaken up that I couldn't get to sleep again. I was awfully constipated and everything I took to relieve it just helped me for a little while and I was worse than ever after a while. I didn't have any appetite at all and what food I did eat I had to cram down and it just worried the life out of me because I didn't digest it properly. I read so much about this Argotane medicine in the papers and some of the people who told what it had done for them had cases just like mine so I thought it would benefit me and I gave it a trial.

"Well, sir, I feel a hundred per cent better in every way since I finished that fourth bottle of Argotane. Why, I can just eat like a farm hand and I have already gained a lot in weight. I don't know how much but I can notice the gain because my clothes fit me different from what they did. I began to pick up in strength and to improve after the first few doses I took and now I can go to the table three times a day and enjoy the biggest meal put before me as well as any man. When I go to bed at night I can drop off right away and sleep like a healthy baby and when I get up in the morning I feel as full of life and energy as I ever did in my life. Argotane is the only thing that is responsible for the remarkable improvement in me and I gladly recommend it to anyone suffering from a general rundown condition like I was. I am sure glad I found it when I did."
Genuine Argotane may be bought in Eldorado at the L. M. Hoover Drug Store.

THE HI-DIVIDE

Teacher dont know im doin it, caus i want to go to the movies tonite. Say they got a eagle in a glass box up in front of the studyhal. Im afraid hes goin to die in that closed up box so ever body beter come an see him before he dies. He sur stands still an i bet hes getin hungry caus i never seen nobody give him anything to eat an i been lovin fer him to fal over any day.

Well i Gee the teacher came up and tuck my booklet away from me rite while i wuz ritten in it. This evening a telecaled out my name to remain in my seat an i remained ther til five o'clock. Then the teacher wot tuck my booklet away from me came in an gav it back to me an said i could go but not to let her kech me ritten in it again an when i said she wouldnt she staid out that time til six o'clock when she came in and woke me up and said i could go an i sur did.

I ran down the steps an out the door as fast as i could but just as i got out i herd somebody cal me an when i loked around a teacher said fer me to stay in tomorrow evening after scool for runnin in the buildin. This made me mad but i didat say much an he tole me i better study my history instead of goin to the show. Now i wonder how he knew i wuz goin to the show.

ASSEMBLY

Mr. Smith, the instructor of the commercial work had charge of the assembly program Wednesday. The student body started for the auditorium at 8:45 to enjoy this excellent program.

The first number was a reading given by Lorene Shoemake. In this she gave a vivid description of the type of position that she wished.

Next Lucile Oglesby and Frances Ballew read articles from the Short-hand Manual. Lucile pointed out the necessity of a Shorthand and Typing course. Frances gave the many points which a student should use to make a perfect failure in Stenography.

MAIN STREET LOOKS AT BROADWAY

By Ernest Camp Jr.

NEW YORK.—Motoring through Huntington or Southampton, noting the names of the palatial estates that sprawl at the ocean's edge, is like turning the pages of the Saturday Evening Post.

Every resident bears some name that has screamed at you from the front pages. Calling them over sounds like a Blue Book of American business and industry.

Many of these summer homes include among their routine equipment speedboats, yachts, seaplanes, and as many as ten automobiles.

Wasted Enthusiasm

In company with a seasoned New Yorker, I was taking a peek at a particularly swank estate near Huntington. We drove inside the gates and stopped before a large white house on a noble elevation, stately with rambling porch and tall white columns.

I at once burst into gasps of admiration. Whereupon my companion, with mingled amusement and disgust, informed me that I was wasting my eququence upon one of the tenant houses! The manor house was further up the hill.

The administration of such an estate is a business of no mean proportions, calling for a young army of skillful servants. And these are no ordinary servants, either. If you aren't careful one of them will check you up on your pronunciation.

I talked to one chauffeur who was a college graduate, and gifted with fine vocabulary and manners to rank with the best. Many a chauffeur lives in a home—always located on the estate—that would make an eminently respectable dwelling for any small town.

One Man's Village

The most amazing of all the estates that I was privileged to peep at was that of Marshall Field, the celebrated merchant prince. This establishment was a community in itself.

In addition to the "Big House," set far back amid vast acres of woodland, lawns, and shrubbery, there were any number of tenant houses, garages, and enough roadways to lose any unwary motorist.

There were, besides, a school conducted solely for the children of tenants, a private movie for the proprietors of the estate, and an immense dairy. The latter is conducted because of the family's fondness for raising blooded dairy cattle but the products are sold at regular commercial rates to the surrounding countryside.

Chewing gum was especially pointed out.

Last was a short one act play given by members of the Shorthand class. The characters were: Mr. R. U. Well, Eli McAngus, the office manager, Miss Lotta Speed, Margaret Williams, The applicant for a position, Miss O. B. Swift, Margaret Bradley, Miss Speed's assistant, and the office boy's James Williamson. This play brought out the many comical remarks of a dumb Stenographer.

We admire Mr. Smith not only for his excellent program but for his wonderful persuading power. The students noticed that this is the first time that Eli has ever been on the stage.

After this the student's returned to their rooms and the days work began.

Pale and Weak

"I think Cardui is a wonderful medicine, for I improved greatly after taking it," says Mrs. A. W. English, of R. F. D. 4, Roanoke, Va. "When I was just a girl of 13, my mother gave this medicine to me, and it did me a great deal of good. I was weak and run-down. After I had taken Cardui awhile, I felt much better. "In 1924, my health was poor. I felt miserable, and hadn't enough strength to do my housework. It took all my willpower to keep up. I was pale and weak. "I got Cardui again and took it. My improvement was wonderful. I can recommend Cardui to others, for my health was so much better after I had taken a course of the Cardui Home Treatment."
