One of our most faithful readers, Zora Billingsley of Amarillo, called Sunday night and wanted to know why we had quit running the "Where Are They Now?" feature about the various high school classes in McLean. I explained to her that we had dropped the feature this year, because of the time element involved in doing the stories. When we researched the classes in years past, we spent about 15 to 20 hours on each class, and we just have not had that kind of time this year.

If anyone from the classes of 1972, 1962, 1952, 1942, 1932, 1922, or 1912 would like to volunteer to track down their classmates, I'll be happy to help re-write the information and publish the story. Any volunteers?

We owe Destry Zack Magee a special apology. His name was accidentally omitted from the list of the members of the T-ballers team which we published last week. Destry has been competing with an injured arm, and certainly needs to be mentioned as part of the team. We're sorry we omitted your name, Destry. (Now maybe I can get out of the doghouse with the coach!)

Those of us who were blessed with a "second family" are a special group of parents. Ask anyone who has had one of those late, unexpected babies, and they will tell you that those children usually turn out to be a real joy. I know what I am talking about because not only do I have a "late" baby I was a late baby, so I know.

My mother had three children, ages 8, 11, and 14, when the doctors told her she had a possible tumor. Thank goodness, the doctor heard a heartbeat before they scheduled surgery to remove the "tumor"! And here I am!

I had the privilege of being beloved by not only my dotting parents, but by two dotting brothers and a devoted sister, so I was very lucky.

As the mother of a "late" baby, I can tell you that it is a different story than being a young parent. When my older children were small, I was so young that I didn't have enough sense to be frightened at the dirty tricks life can play.

However, last week our youngest, Dollie, went to the hospital for her first visit, for a "simple" tonsillectomy. Now, that operation may be simple to the doctor, but to a frightened 10-year-old, and her old, panicky parents, the procedure is anything but

McLean Ambulance Service Reorganizes, Care Course Scheduled

McLean's ambulance association was reorganized May 18 with 18 McLean citizens signing up to staff the service. Of these, five have experience with emergency medical care. An emergency medical care course, which was scheduled to begin Tuesday night, will be provided for new members of the association in order that they get the training needed to operate the service.

"I expected to see 50 people here tonight," said new member Darryel Herndon. "I was hoping we would have so many interested people here that we would have more than we needed. I think we all have taken our ambulance service for granted, and now is the time for us to take some of the responsibility on our own shoulders. Maybe more people will hear about how much we need their help and will join up."

"We're going to have to go around and ask people for their help," added Sam Haynes, who also joined at the Tuesday night meeting. "If they can't help with their time, maybe they can help with donations. It's going to take a lot of money just to keep the communications system alone, and even more to keep the department going. All of McLean knows how hard the fire department and ambulance have worked. It's time we gave those who are doing double duty a break, and it's also time for us to donate our services and money to such a worthy effort."

The ambulance department, which was separated from the fire department recently, will need to establish its own telephone and paging systems. At the present time, ambulance attendants will be notified by telephone, a definite time disadvantage over the pager system now used by McLean firemen.

Attendants will also serve on a rotating "on call" system. Each member will be assigned a time period for which he will be responsible for answering ambulance calls. A staff of three will be necessary for each shift. With the present communication system, those on call will be notified by telephone when they are needed. When the first pagers are purchased, they will be hand-passed from shift to shift until all personnel can obtain either pagers or ambulance phones.

The emergency medical course was open to all interested persons. The ambulance department will pay for the class fees for those joining the ambulance service. All others will be responsible for paying their own class fees. The classes meet Mondays, Tuesdays, and Thursdays for the next four weeks. If more than twenty persons sign up for the course, another will be scheduled later.

Glen Curry accepted a three-month temporary presidency for the organization. Curry is a veteran member of the fire department and ambulance service. Jake Hess II was voted vice-president and Lisa Patman was elected secretary. Both Hess and Patman are new members.

Members of the ambulance service as of May 18 are Norma Curry, Glen Curry, Dood Turner, Rush Turner, Mary Bybee, George Terry, Jerry Don Cook, Tina Thomas, Bill Thomas, Wana Payne, Robert Payne, Cheryl Smith, Darryel Herndon, Margaret Milam, Sam Haynes, Jake Hess II, Ann Pierce and Lisa Patman.

Harrington Endowment Fund Established

As of this week, McLean residents can participate in a unique plan to invest in our own economy and still contribute to a very worthy cause. James Allison, president of American National Bank in McLean, announced today a cooperative agreement between the bank and the Amarillo Area Foundation on behalf of the

The plan, which is called the Endowment Fund Agency Agreement, is being implemented through the Panhandle. Allison said. It calls for banks (or savings and loan firms) to serve as depositors for the Harrington Cancer Center Endowment Fund. Banks may establish the funds by pledging .02 of 1% of current deposits over the next three years. Allison explained. Then area residents can contribute to the funds through their local banks. Those donations (the principal) are held intact and invested by the banks; income from the investments goes to the Amarillo Area Foundation, which acts as custodian of the Endowment Fund for the Cancer Center. The Foundation, which manages funds for many area nonprofit organizations, holds the Cancer Center Endowment Fund in trust and disperses the income

Annual Memorial Day Service Set For Monday Morning In Hillcrest Cemetery

Monday morning at 10:30 the Rev. Archie Cooper of the Pentecostal Holiness Church, will preach the annual Memorial Day service in the Memory Circle at Hillcrest Memorial Cemetery. The service, sponsored by the Hillcrest Cemetery foundation, will have a special feature this year, according to Foundation officials. A special memorial stone, in memory of those who devoted their time to improve the cemetery, will be erected. Four names are carved on the stone, and others will be added through the years, according to Lush Rogers, president of the association.

Memorialized on the plain white marble monument are Mrs. S.B. Fast, an early-day McLean resident who organized the community to clean and maintain the cemetery; Mrs. W.E. (Pearl) Bogan, another early day resident who devoted many hours to the upkeep and beautification of the cemetery; Mrs. Duncan (Mattie) Graham, who served as one of the first directors of the Hillcrest Cemetery Association; and Peb Everett, who served almost 30 years as president of the Association, and was instrumental in starting the group.

The monument will be unveiled, and Mayor Sam Haynes will give a short dedicatory speech.

A Modern Fairy Tale

Once upon a time in a small Texas village called Egosville, several young boy children were brought by fairies and left on the doorstep of City Hall. Since the children had no parents and no family, the City Fathers of Egosville reared them until each became a man. The leaders said to each other "We will care for these boys until they are old enough to serve the town, and then we will give them all jobs that no one else will do." For the City Fathers of Egosville were like city fathers everywhere...many jobs needed to be done but the citizens of Egosville were so filled with their own pursuits and seeking their own comfort that they did not wish to do those jobs that were called public service.

The boys grew to manhood, and the strongest desire in each heart was to serve his fellow man. Every week the City Fathers and the town loafers and the interested citizens saw the boys, and told them "You must be selfish here in Egosville; you must serve our wishes." So that by the time the boys became men, they had few other desires than to serve the public.

The boys went into different areas of public service...some of them without pay, and some worked for pay that was slightly above the poverty level of the rest of the town...but they didn't care. They felt good in their hearts because they were helping their neighbors and doing good deeds for the community and they knew they were loved for it.

But a strange thing began to happen. The boys met girls, and fell in love, and produced children, and suddenly they had less time for the community. They found other jobs, to make money for their children's food, but still tried to spend as much time as always serving the community.

One day, a light dawned, and the young men met, and said "We have served well and long. Now it is time for the hundreds who have enjoyed our service to do their share of the free work."

And what a hue and cry arose from the streets of Egosville. "How can they do this to us?" the anguished citizens cried. And they told the boys "Go back to your unpaid jobs. You are supposed to do them. It may be true that we pay you little, that we never say thank you, that we are always quick to criticize you when you fail to perform your volunteer service, but you must go back!" The coffee shoppes fairly reverberated with the wailing and gnashing of teeth.

The boys were astonished, and disillusioned, for they saw that all the years of doing good had not made them loved by their townspeople. And as they were listening to the angry cries of some, lo, a small miracle occurred in Egosville.

Some of the citizens, who had never thought about the amount of time the boys had donated, began to feel ashamed, and slowly, slowly, they stepped out and volunteered. "I'll help," each one said. "I may not know much, but I will try." And the offers of "I'll help!", almost drowned out the carping of the few. And soon there were more "helpers" than "complainers" in Egosville, so many in fact that the name was changed to Volunteer Village, and the boys and their happy wives, and their well-fed children and all the helpers lived happily ever after. And so did the complainers, for, lo, as soon as the volunteer problem was settled, the grippers found a new subject to gripe about and a new group to criticize, and they too lived and talked and griped happily ever after.

There are several advantages to such a plan, Allison said. First of all, the Cancer Center, which provides a vital service to citizens throughout the Panhandle, is assured to ongoing funds to cover operational costs, research projects, equipment, and support programs. Senator Bill Sarpalius Reports

PROOF OF INSURANCE

AUSTIN -- Ever since the Legislature passed a law last session requiring motorists to carry proof of insurance coverage, there has been a lot of confusion about exactly what proof is required. We could have been more specific in the bill, but instead we gave the Department of Public Safety the authority to make rules that we thought would clarify this requirement.

Although the DPS did make rules, many people still are confused. In an effort to cut through this confusion, the bill's author, Representative Bob Simpson of Amarillo, asked the Attorney General for opinions to clarify the matter. One of the duties of the Attorney General is to issue legal opinions to help interpret laws.

The Attorney General issued an opinion on the subject of what proof of coverage motorists must show police officers on the officer's request.

"This evidence should include the name of the insured; and the minimum amounts of financial responsibility required by statute, which may be a statement that 'the policy coverage meets the minimum amounts of financial responsibility required by statute,' or the actual policy limits," the opinion states. The minimum amount of coverage required by the statute is $10,000 for bodily injury for one person; $20,000 for the whole accident, and $5,000 for property damage. This is liability insurance, which means it covers losses to the other person if the policy owner causes the accident. It does not cover the policy owner or his property.

The opinion goes on to indicate what sort of document could fulfill these requirements:

- (1) insurance policy;
- (2) an instrument issued by the insurance company to be carried in the vehicle that confirms coverage;
- (3) - (5) bonds, certificates of self-insurance or Railroad Commission cards;
- (6) copies of the aforementioned documents; and
- (7) other evidence such as an insurance binder which confirms to the satisfaction of the officer that the owner and/or driver is in compliance with the Safety Responsibility Act."

We hope this makes the act clearer, although we think it still could use some clarification.

If you have any questions about what this law requires you to do, write us and we will do our best to answer them. If you have any suggestions about how we could improve it, we also want to hear from you. Please write Senator Bill Sarpalius, P. O. Box 12068, Austin, Texas 78711.

STUDENT TESTING: USES AND ABUSES

Tests are a teaching responsibility that frequently raises vigorous misunderstanding. There is no disagreement that frequent measures of learning achievement are needed. Students need to know how they perform. It's obvious that the teacher needs to know. If there is to be any significant cooperation between parent, teacher and student, the parents should know, too. Tests that set a standard or an achievable goal - "criterion-referenced" tests - are specific in what they measure about individual performance.

They show what has - and hasn't - been learned, based on specific objectives. This information helps the teacher meet specific student needs. We also hear about standardized and so-called "achievement" tests, especially when newspapers report a sudden drop in standardized test scores, or a school's comparative standing. Standardized tests - including "IQ" tests, the SAT, the College Entrance Examination and the Graduate Record Examination - compare student performance on a predetermined "norm" frequently unrelated to specific school objectives, or student ability. There are many problems with standardized tests. To name a few, they -

- Don't enable teachers to diagnose student problems, even though they may indicate a problem exists.
- Pose questions too ambiguous for a single word or phrase answer.

- Sometimes contain inaccurate information from incorrect sources. A student who knows the correct information, and answers accordingly, is marked wrong.
- Fail to help teachers teach or prescribe remedies.
- Are long-lasting, tending to stay on students' records for many years no matter how student performance changes.

STAY IN THE BUILDING STAGE

By Richard M. De Vos
At any given moment each of us is in one of life's four stages: building, managing, defending and blaming.

better world for all by consciously striving to remain in Stage One, the building stage, in all we seek as leaders in our chosen endeavors.

My experience convinces me the amount of time we spend in any particular stage largely determines how much success we have in achieving our individual goals. Let me explain. Stage One is the building stage; Stage Two is the managing stage; Stage Three is the defensive stage, a product of Stage Two; and, Stage Four is the blaming stage.

If we are conscious of these four stages and alert to the danger of sliding from one to another in a seemingly natural way we can avoid many of the inherent pitfalls that plague others. Building, managing, defending and blaming human nature leads through all four stages at various times in our personal lives, social activities, political pursuits, and business endeavors.

As our company becomes more involved in interstate, would still be a struggling little business in a small town in western Michigan if my partner and I had not recognized early on we had slipped from Stage One (building the business) to Stage Two

One day, as our sales curve flattened and receipts were overtaken by expenditures, we made the crucial decision to move back to Stage One. Our return was in time. In less than 20 years, we added a new competitive presence to the marketplace. We now operate in 25 nations or territories. We all long for a world in which future generations may focus their energies on making that world an even better place to live. Awareness of life's four stages and concentration on remaining in the first will make that dream a reality in our lifetime. MRS. SCOTT DAVID MILLER

Maridale Glass, Scott Miller Wed

In a double-ring ceremony at First Baptist Church Saturday, Maridale Glass and Scott David Miller were united in marriage. Officiating at the wedding was the Rev. Buell Wells, pastor of the church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Dale Glass, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip C. Miller of Arnold, Maryland.

For the ceremony the church was decorated with four 14-branch candelabra entwined with greenery and accented with rose satin bows and assorted pink flowers.

Lighting the candles were Stephanie Miller and David Tims.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown of ivory silk taffeta. The fitted bodice was fashioned with a Queen Anne neckline and was covered with Alencon lace. The upper front and back bodice and the long fitted sleeves were fashioned in net and appliqued with lace trim. The sleeves were caught at the wrist by a row of tiny covered buttons. The soft A-line skirt fell from the natural waistline and was scattered with lace appliques. The skirt extended to form the full chapel length train. A row of lace bordered the skirt and continued to encircle the train.

To complete her gown, the bride wore a mantilla of ivory bridal illusion. The fingertip veil was edged with a border of Alencon lace.

Mrs. Harold Fabian provided piano music before the wedding and played the traditional wedding march. Mrs. Eva Miller of Friona, grandmother of the bride, played the organ and accompanied the soloists Sherry Glass, Sarah Mears, Dana Miller, and Curt Miller, who sang "We've Only Just Begun". Theme from "Ice Castles", "If", and "The Rose."

Attending the bride as maid of honor was Becky Camp. Bridesmaids were Sonya Hammer, Jamie Glass, Terri Glass, and Angi Glass.

They wore full-length dresses of teal blue jersey, which featured draped cowl necks, and white pearl buttons at the shoulder. They carried white lace fans covered with pink roses and baby's breath.

The groom wore a cream-colored tuxedo, and the best man and groomsmen wore dark brown tuxedos.

Serving the groom as best man was Mark Pruitt. Groomsmen were Jerry Cline, Robbie Schaefer, Bobby Chance, and Doug James. Ushers were Clint Mkars, John Glass, Marvin Kramer, and Carey Smith.

The bride's parents were hosts at a reception in the fellowship hall of the church.

The three-tiered bride's cake was decorated with pink roses, and a teal blue fountain.

Included among those serving at the reception and registering guests were Carolyn Bailey, Janet Glass, Lela Kennedy, Sally Hays, Evelyn Tims.

After a honeymoon trip to South Padre Island, the couple will be at home in San Antonio.

Former Resident Marries

Debra Jane Henderson McGee of Midland and Joseph Wesley Brown of Dallas exchanged wedding vows May 22 at 2 p.m. in St. Mark's United Methodist Church in Midland. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Henderson of Midland. The groom is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. Robert O. Brown, Sr. of Amarillo, former residents of McLean.

Rev. Brown performed the wedding ceremony.

The bride wore a tea-length gown designed by Marray Hamburger in point d'esprit lace. The molded bodice was accented with a wedding band collar and full sleeves. She wore a garland of flowers and an Alencon lace veil.

The bride's attendants were attired in tea-length dresses of pale peach veil, accented with ivory lace and flower garlands. Maid of honor was Sarah Brown of Seymour, sister of the groom.

Bridesmaid was Sally Logan of Midland. Bridesmatrons were Mrs. J.E. Mendez of Midland, and Mrs. Rick Davidson, of Midland. Flower girl was M'Lea McGee of Midland.

Candlelighters were Ty McGee of Midland and James Henderson of Houston.

The groom's attendants included Samuel McGee of Midland, ring bearer; David Henderson, brother of the bride, of Midland; Mark Elliott of Midland, and Dennis Lumpee of San Angelo, ushers; and Walt May of Sweetwater, Gary Cloud of Lubbock, and Bill Richburg of Austin, groomsmen.

Robert W. Brown, Jr., of Lubbock, brother of the groom, was best man.

Following a honeymoon in San Antonio, the couple will be at home in Texline where Brown will be serving as minister at First United Methodist Church.

Loose Marbles

by Lisa Patman

Having a hard time dealing with the kiddies this summer? It's an age-old problem that many of us have had to combat.

If your little darlings seem to be underfoot more than you can stand, if you think you are enjoying a bit too much togetherness, if you think you cannot stand another moment with a person who has Kool-Aid breath, you might try one or more of the following suggestions:

1. Expose them to bubonic plague just before you send them to Grandma's house.
2. Cover your favorite classic novel with a book jacket entitled "The Explicit Sins of Bubbles DeLovely." Be sure to hide it out in the woodshed, behind a pile of rusty pitchforks, so it will be found immediately.
3. Tell them it's bathtime.
4. Present each child with a gallon jug and suggest he go out and collect perspiration from his friends and neighbors. (Your next-door neighbor, whom you never really liked anyway, will be angry enough to deliver a left hook which should render your beloved offspring speechless for quite a nice while.)
5. Announce that you are going to cook some wholesome meals during the entire summer. If this doesn't chase them off, actually serve a wholesome meal and watch them run.
6. Hint to them that their next year's teacher plans to drop in sometime during the summer to discuss their future.
7. As a last resort, shout "Time to do the chores!" and get ready to enjoy the peace and quiet of an empty house.

NOTE: Each of the above has been tested and proved effective in the Loose Marbles Laboratory, and carries the Loose Marbles "Head 'em up and Move 'em out" seal of approval.

Methodist Men Continue Revelations

The Methodist Men's Bible Study group met for their regular monthly meeting in the fellowship hall of the First United Methodist Church Monday night, for a covered-dish supper and to continue their study of the book of Revelations.

The meeting was presided over by President R.C. Parker and a special presentation was made of a Cross pen and pencil set to Rev. Joe Walker, who will be moving from McLean in June.

The next meeting will be held the fourth Monday in June, and all Methodist men and anyone else interested in participating in the Bible Study are cordially invited to attend.

"HEART MEDICINES"

Patrons often request their "heart medicine" when having prescriptions filled. There are many different types of medicines used in "heart disease" and hence there are many different "heart medicines". Here are a few common types:

DIGITALIS GLYCOSIDES-These are used in heart failure to slow the heart rate and improve the pumping of blood. Examples are Digoxin, Digitoxin, and Digitalislaef.

ANTIARRHYTHMICS-When the heart does not "beat" in a regular rhythm, an arrhythmia is said to exist. Anti-arrhythmics help regulate an irregular heart beating action. Drugs used for this purpose include: Propranolol, Quinidine, and Procainamide.

NITRATES-These drugs are used to prevent and relieve the pain associated with angina. A characteristic pain in the chest. Isosorbide Dinitrate and Nitro-glycerin are frequently used in angina.

ANTI-COAGULANTS-Although the "blood thinners" have other uses they are also used in heart disease to prevent clots from forming in the vessels of the heart. Sodium Warsarin is a commonly dispensed anti-coagulant.

CONGRESSMAN JACK HIGHTOWER [front] is seen here taking part in the National Hearing on the farm economy, the massive farm call-in, May 11. Organized by the Agriculture Council of America, the call-in featured a toll-free telephone number and a 50-phone bank manned by Congressmen, senators, agriculture committee staffers and farm lobbyists. Congressman Hightower received calls from farmers in Colorado, Iowa, and several other farm states. The purpose of the call-in was to compile survey results on the growing farm depression that could be forwarded to the Congress and the White House in the hopes of speeding aid to farms. Gray County Gardening

HORTICULTURE ACTIVITIES

If you haven't gotten a lot of your garden planted already, now is certainly the time to plant beans, peas, cucumbers, summer squash, muskmelon and watermelons. Also, you may want to sow lettuce seed every two to three weeks to keep salad greens coming along. Use heat tolerant varieties such as Buttercrunch, Salad Bowl, and Tendersweet. If possible, plant lettuce on east side of a fence to avoid excessive heat.

PLAN YOUR LANDSCAPE FOR EASY CARE

The downfall of most home landscapes is the lack of maintenance. It is practically impossible to maintain an attractive landscape without a few hours of care each week. Yet, too often the homeowner will tend to plant and forget, thinking that everything will turn out looking OK.

Good landscapes don't just happen. Leaving your landscape to Mother Nature's care doesn't usually work out, particularly in Texas where summer alone can take a scorching toll. Plants basically are like pets—they must be fed, watered, groomed and occasionally treated for insects or disease—otherwise, they die or at best, live an unhealthy life.

Becoming a "Saturday Slave" to your landscape is not necessary. The trick is in the planting. If possible, plan your landscape in advance—mentally or on paper—and be sure to have definite purposes and place for every plant, tree, shrub or other feature you use. Plant with minimum maintenance in mind.

Here are some do's and don'ts to consider in establishing a minimum maintenance landscape:

—Do eliminate as many "frills" as possible. A good landscape design is based on simplicity, so use only those things that do a definite job in the landscape. Don't just plant for the sake of variety.

—Do avoid a scattered arrangement of flower beds or shrubs. A cluttered yard with many beds and shrubs will require a lot of hand edging and clipping. That in itself can become a maintenance nightmare.

—Don't try to grow grass in areas too shady, too dry, too wet or too steep to be mowed safely.

—Don't fight a losing battle. Use groundcover plants in these areas; there are several excellent ones to select from.

—Don't line walks and driveways with unnecessary plantings or place foundation plants so close to the house that they can't be maintained.

—Do select your plants carefully, considering their ultimate size (height and width), and plant accordingly.

—Don't use large, fast-growing shrubs which will require constant pruning. Consider, instead, some of the easy-care, dwarf type plants to fill your basic landscape needs.

—Do consider the use of native plants since they are obviously adapted for our climate and soil and usually have few insect and disease problems.

—Do use mowing strips or edges along walks, flower beds and around trees and shrubs. They will reduce mowing and edging problems and create a much neater landscape.

—Do use mulches to minimize watering and reduce weeds in flower and shrub beds.

—Don't overfertilize. Keep plants at minimum fertilization levels and mowing, pruning and trimming will be minimized.

At last but not least, don't confuse low maintenance with no maintenance. Plants will sooner or later need water, fertilizer, and care, and the grass must be mowed. The idea is to find the easiest way to do the maintenance jobs which must be done.

One good way to keep from becoming that "Saturday Slave" to your landscape is by setting aside an evening or two during the week for doing your landscape chores. Allow gardening to be a joy, a time for relaxed work of being out-of-doors.

PERIWINKLE—THE HOT WEATHER FLOWER

Periwinkles are "Made to order" for the hot Texas summer weather. The periwinkle or Vinca Rosea is one of the most colorful and reliable summer flowering plants for hot Texas conditions.

It is a shrubby plant that produces white, pink or lavender phlox-like flowers.

Common varieties grow from 18 to 30 inches in height but newer dwarf and spreading varieties get 8 to 10 inches and may spread about two feet.

Best varieties of the dwarf for compact types include Coquette and Little Pinkie, which have rosy pink flowers, and Bright-Eyes, which has white flowers with a red center. Little Linda is fairly new and has lavender flowers.

Dwarf varieties can be used for edgings for flower and shrub borders while spreading types can be used as ground cover and in hanging baskets and window boxes.

Two of the best spreading varieties are Polka Dot which has a white flower with a red center and Rose Carpet which has a rose flower with a deep red center.

Place periwinkles in full sun or partial shade in well-drained soils with liberal amounts of organic matter.

Add fertilizer when preparing the bed for planting, and make additional applications every four weeks throughout the growing season.

Periwinkles are not susceptible to many pests or diseases. Once established, they will provide color throughout the hot summer when most other plants need special care to survive.

The recipes for our favorite dishes around the house seem to grow and change as the years go by, and I add a new ingredient occasionally or discard one on the recipe. One of those changing recipes is our version of goulash. This old stand-by can be changed and adapted, depending on the ingredients that you have on hand. But it is a favorite anytime.

TEXAS GOULASH

1½ lbs. ground beef
½ cup chopped onion
1 small flat can chopped black olives
½ cup chopped green olives salt, pepper

2 tsp. chili powder
½ package short noodles
1 tall can tomato sauce
water
½ cup cheddar cheese

Brown ground beef in electric skillet. When meat loses red color, stir in onions, black olives, salt, pepper, chili powder, and green olives. Let cook for a few minutes. Put enough water to cover meat. Dump in uncooked noodles. Cover and simmer gently until noodles are soft (Check mixture, if it becomes too dry add more water). Just before serving, stir in tomato sauce and cheddar cheese and heat through.

Becky Adams Sen. Tower Receives Award Gets Degree

Rebecca Adams Simmons received a bachelor of science degree May 15 during commencement exercises at William Woods College in Fulton, Mo. Mrs. Simmons is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Adams of Alanreed.

The 1982 commencement theme was "Honoring Our Own." In accordance with the theme, Ms. Anna Maria Best, distinguished professor of business and economics delivered the graduation address. Dr. Griffith A. Hamlin, retiring professor of religion, presented the baccalaureate sermon.

William Woods College, founded in 1870, is a four-year liberal arts college for women.

WASHINGTON—U.S. Senator John Tower (R-Tex) has been awarded the "Distinguished Service Award of 1982" by the American Academy of Who's Who in Small Business. The honor was awarded on the occasion of National Small Business Week.

Senator Tower, in remarks prepared for delivery before the Senate, congratulated and commended the entrepreneurial spirit of small business men and women around the country. "The initiatives and challenge of small business is the life blood of the American way. Small business is symbolic of the freedoms that only Americans enjoy," Tower said.

Tower called upon the Congress to "recognize that small business can only reach its full economic potential by being freed from the shackles of excessive taxation and overregulation by the Federal Government that has grown too large." Tower cited statistics from "The State of Small Business," a White House report, which he believes evidence a need to curb the growth of government. The report revealed the small business share of Gross National Product declined in all major industry sectors from 1972 through 1977, from 56 percent to 51.3 percent. It also found there was an across-the-board decline in the sales share of firms with less than 20 employees, and an overall decline in the number of small businesses with less than four employees.

"The extent to which small businesses have been regulated has meant that the typical small business must become larger in order to survive the increasing burden of regulatory red tape. This is a dangerous trend, that in my view, must be correct and reversed," said Tower. "Final enactment of 'The Regulatory Reform Act,' recently passed by the Senate and pending in the House, would be an excellent first step toward easing the burden of over-regulation on the small business sector."

"The importance of the small business sector and our free enterprise system must be stressed in our national policies on exports, federal procurement, and research, development and innovation. It is small business that will play the primary role in the economic revitalization of this country, and it is imperative that Congress effectively address the needs and problems of small business," concluded Tower.

Are Benefits Correct?

Are you getting overpaid or underpaid Social Security benefits? If you have not yet filed your Annual Report of Earnings this could be happening said Larry Mayo, Manager, Pampa Social Security office.

So far this year, in the Pampa Service Area, we have had two beneficiaries that were due some benefits for the past 7 years. However, because they had not filed timely Annual Reports of Earnings with Social Security, they will not receive all the back benefits. The statute of limitations will only allow us to pay back benefits for the past 3 years (1979-1981).

This means we cannot pay them for the years of 1975-1978. In these cases it would have amounted to about $10,000.00 in back benefits.

This situation, said Mr. Mayo, will generally have the same characteristics.

BUSHLAND WHEAT DAY

There will be a Wheat Field Day at the USDA Research Laboratory just west of Bushland on I-40, on Thursday, May 27 at 1 p.m.

The highlight of the tour will be a nursery of commercial hybrid wheats being compared to TAM 105 and other varieties of wheat. TAM 105 is the highest yielding and the latest wheat released by the Texas Agricultural Extension Experiment Station. The irrigated Small Grain Nursery will be shown by Dr. K.B. Porter. The researcher has developed TAM 105 and several other outstanding wheat varieties that are grown on several million acres in Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, and Kansas.

Other features on the tour will be a dryland wheat nursery, effect of fertility and water levels on six varieties of wheat, limited tillage dryland wheat production systems, cattle grazing, and research with a new herbicide for wheat called Gleam.

Growers interested in seeing the latest wheat varieties and hybrids and finding out about new efficient limited tillage production methods for wheat will benefit from the tour. Everyone is invited to attend by Dr. B.A. Stewart, Resident Director of the USDA Laboratory.

CATTLE PRICE PROSPECTS

The following information comes from the latest issue of the Western Livestock Roundup, a cooperative project with USDA and the Extension Services of Western and Great Plains States and headquartered in Denver.

Current fed cattle prices are probably very close to the highest prices for this year. Increased supplies of fed cattle later in the year will likely result in the widening of the marketing margin. Additionally, weights tend to increase seasonally from summer through fall. This will result in even more of an increase in beef production relative to the increase in slaughter.

It would appear that some strength in feeder cattle prices would be warranted given the profitability picture in cattle feeding. However, it likely will take several months of sustained profits from cattle feeding before those profits are reflected in higher feeder cattle prices. With anticipated lower fed cattle prices throughout the remainder of 1982, it appears doubtful that sufficient optimism will be generated to sustain much of an increase in feeder cattle prices. Prices for 6-700 lb. yearling steers are expected to continue trading in low to mid-$60 per cwt. area throughout much of 1982. Prices for steer calves may increase slightly, but calves are expected to trade in a range from $68 to $73 per cwt. over the next several months.

PRODUCERS INVITED TO INSECT SCOUTING WORKSHOP

Cotton, corn and sorghum producers in Gray County are receiving a special invitation this year to take part in the annual High Plains Scout Training Workshop to increase the effectiveness of their pest management programs.

The workshop will be held Tuesday and Wednesday, June 1-2, at the Hale County Agricultural Center in Plainview. The center is on U.S. 87 Business Route south of the city.

The workshop, conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, was first held in 1973 to train scouts in the pest management programs conducted by Extension. In subsequent years, it has expanded to include scouts employed by consultants, serial applicators, and others, as well as producers who want to learn how to scout their own fields for insects. The workshop focuses on perfecting skills in identifying crop pests and making timely pest management decisions which can protect investments and yield and hold down production costs.

The June 1 session opens at 8:30 a.m. with Dr. Pat Morrison outlining the scope of the workshop and explaining pest management concepts. Also on the morning program are Dr. Dale Pennington, Extension soil chemist; Dr. James Supak, Extension cotton agronomist; Dr. Robert Berry, Extension plant pathologist; and Dr. Jim Leser, cotton Extension Entomologist.

The afternoon program will include Dr. Kirby W. Huffman, Extension agronomist; Dr. Pat Morrison, Extension entomologist; and Allen E. Knutson, Castro County Extension agent-entomology, who will discuss corn and sorghum pests.

The June 2 session, beginning at 9 a.m., will focus on scouting procedures and reports. Instructors will be county Extension agents-entomology Greg Cronholm of Hale County and Allen Knutson.

During the afternoon, participants will receive practical training on insect identification and scouting procedures during a field session.

I recently received a copy of a booklet on "1982 Tractor Operating Cost Estimates" from Elston K. Grubaugh, Extension Ag. Engineer-Mechanization at Lubbock. This booklet provides a method for farmers to estimate average operating costs for two and four wheel drive tractors in the Texas Panhandle this year. If you would like a copy of this booklet, let me know as I have a few copies for distribution.

CROP AND LIVESTOCK REPORTS FROM FARMERS AND RANCHERS NEEDED

The Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service will begin interviewing Texas farmers and ranchers in mid-May on 1982 crop acreage and mid year livestock inventories, State Statistician Doug Murfield has announced.

Results of the confidential interviews, conducted through the mail or in person by field enumerators, will be published in June.

Murfield is urging farmers and ranchers to complete and return mail questionnaires promptly. Information will be combined for state and county estimates.

Murfield said estimates give Texas farmers and ranchers planning information for planting, breeding, storing, producing, and marketing. "Without these reports, most producers would have to depend on trade and other sources for information on crop and livestock prospects," he said.

Reports are also used by farm organizations and legislatures to plan and develop farm programs, Extension economists and farm and ranch management consultants to advise farmers and ranchers, and exporters to plan and promote sales of Texas agricultural products in foreign markets.

Estimates are published annually for livestock, dairy, poultry, cotton, small grain, vegetables, fruits and pecans, and cash receipts from the sale of Texas farm commodities.

For free copies, write the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, P.O. Box 70, Austin, Texas 78767, or Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown, Texas Department of Agriculture, P.O. Box 12847, Austin, Texas 78711.

McLean's Hillcrest Cemetery-- Many Have Worked To Make It Beautiful

By Linda Haynes

When the first white men began settling in the area that was to become McLean, they needed a general store, a church, a school, and soon they needed a place to bury their dead. Grandma Eva Rogers, an early settler in this area, said in her memoirs that the first people to be buried in McLean were two Negro construction workers who were working on the railroad through town. The men were buried near the tracks. Mrs. Rogers said that the first person buried in what is now Hillcrest Cemetery was a Mrs. Owens. Other pioneers claimed that the first burial was that of a baby whose parents were passing through McLean as part of a wagon train.

The beautiful windswept hill that became Hillcrest Cemetery in McLean, was designated as a burial place in the original deed of the townsite given by Alfred Rowe, in 1902. The area gives a panoramic view of the surrounding plains, and was a perfect choice for a cemetery.

Although the earliest recorded burial in that cemetery was that of Little Pearl Bowman on Oct. 16, 1904, the area may have been used as early as 1899. City Secretary Stella Lee said that there are at least 114 unidentified graves at the cemetery, and some of those may date back to the 1800's.

The original cemetery was platted in 1908, and resurveyed in 1952 when the Hillcrest Cemetery Association was formed. The original block of land was added to when the City bought a small parcel of land which adjoins the original cemetery on the east.

Through the many years, various interested citizens urged their fellow townpeople to help care for the cemetery. The early editions of The McLean News contain an annual call for a "Workday" at the cemetery each spring before Decoration (now Memorial) Day. Most of those workdays were for the women of the town, who brought their picnic lunches and spent the day working on the families' plots.

In June of 1952 a group of citizens formally organized into the Hillcrest Cemetery Association. Peb Everett was elected as the first president, and continued that job for 25 years. Marvin Hindman was the first secretary-treasurer, and W.E. Bogan was the first vice-president. The first directors were Mattie Graham, Ellen Wilson, and Mrs. H.E. Franks.

Although the City of McLean continued to help maintain the cemetery, this group hoped to work to beautify the general area. A new entrance was designed, and a wall of Colorado red sand stone was built. The association also erected a brass plaque at the entrance dedicated to all the men who gave their lives in service for their country. The workers cleaned the area which is now the circle at the center of the cemetery, and planned landscaping for the entrance, the circle, and the drives.

Through the 30-year history of the Association, a yearly letter has been sent to those who have family members buried in the cemetery. All those who wish to do so pay small amount of dues each year to help with the maintenance of the area.

About two years ago, the Association members began to formulate solid plans to establish a perpetual care program at the cemetery. The Association charter was changed and the group became a foundation, set up so that gifts and donations to the group could be used to invest in savings bonds. The interest from those bonds eventually will be used to fund perpetual maintenance for all the graves at the cemetery.

The fund was started with a $5,000 gift from the late Alice Short Smith, and the Foundation now has $20,000 invested. Foundation officials hope to continue to invest gifts, and reinvest the interest, so that eventually the principal will generate enough money to pay for the care.

Monday, the Foundation will sponsor a memorial service to honor the more than 160 veterans of the Civil War, the Spanish American War, World War I, World War II, Korea, and Viet Nam. The religious and patriotic service, along with flags put on the veteran's graves by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, provide a yearly tribute to the men who served their country.

But Hillcrest Cemetery is more than a resting place for the veterans. It is the final resting place for thousands who once called McLean home. Almost every family in town has some member buried there, so that the goal of perpetual care is one that should concern each of us. If you have a loved one there, or if you own lots there, and you wish to help see that the beauty of this part of Mc-Lean is preserved through the years, then make your gift of money now. Donations can be mailed to Hillcrest Cemetery Foundation, In care of Eva Emmert, McLean, Texas 79057.

Eld. Flavil Yeakley, newly elected minister of the local Church of Christ, has moved his family to McLean and now lives in the Willison Sitter house in the east part of town. Eld. Yeakley is from Gainesville to this section, having moved to McLean from Lefors, where he had charge of the church there. He is a graduate of the North Texas State Teacher's College.

Dr. C.B. Batson made the commencement address to the graduates of the McLean Elementary school last Thursday. The program opened with the singing of America and The Eyes of Texas. Eld. Flavil Yeakley of the Church of Christ gave the invocation, and Myrl Andrews and Marie Landers played a piano duet. Pauline McCracken gave a reading, the class sang several numbers, followed by a piano solo by Helen Boswell. After Dr. Batson's address, J.S. Howard, president of the board of trustees, presented the diplomas. Rev. W.A. Erwin, Presbyterian minister pronounced the benediction.

60 YEARS AGO... T.A. Landers, Editor Dr. Lear M. Jones motored to Childress Saturday. He was accompanied by Elton Johnston, who took the train at Childress for Arlington to visit his grandparents.

County Agent R.O. Dunkle took Frank Corum, Milton Carpenter, Louie Calaway and Homer Cash to Canyon Thursday to enter the stock-judging contest for the club boys of this district. Mr. Dunkle thinks these boys have a good chance to win first place in the contest.

Friends of Miss Lula Peters, who is visiting her grandparents at Stamford, will be pleased to learn that her healthy is much improved, and that she is preparing to enter the summer school at Stamford, which opens next Monday.

Neil, Glenn and Misses Estelle and Alvera Cooper of White Deer arrived Saturday for a visit with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J.R. Hindman.

Miss Mabel Watkins returned home Wednesday night from Plainview, where she has been teaching in the schools.

Miss Ruby Cook, who has been teaching an excellent school at Washita returned the first of the week, having finished the term.

REWARD...I will give 50c cash reward for the arrest and conviction of the party or parties who broke into my house recently and carried away certain household goods. Chas. H. Rowe.

Miss Sallie Lou Haynes contributed the pleasure of the News force Wednesday by the donation of a beautiful bouquet of roses.

Attention is called to the ice cream social at the Salmon Heggie home on the evening of the 31st instant.

HOMEMAKER NEWS

With the end of school nearing and summer fast approaching, many families are thinking about vacations! One of the jobs that goes with vacations; week-end trips, or even business trips is that of packing the bags. Have you ever felt frustrated when you faced an empty bag and a pile of apparel? With a little practice and some thoughtful pre-planning, you can be a first-class packer in no time!

BASIC LUGGAGE TYPES
There are two basic types of luggage hard-sided, made from boxes or molded shapes and soft-sided, made with or without interior frames. Hard-sided luggage is durable, can take abuse from airline, train or bus travel, and keeps the clothes and contents neat. Soft-sided luggage is lightweight and less sturdy but more stuffable. It works best for persons who travel occasionally. It is available in latch or zipper closings.

When you shop for luggage take into consideration durability, secure locks or zippers, a neat finish, ease in packing, comfortable handle, size easy to carry, and good looks.

Apples, grapes, cranberries, plums and cherries should be stored in the refrigerator immediately after purchase and are best eaten within a week.
