

News from Enterprise

Enterprise has not been enjoying the sandstorms we have been having. School closed Friday, May 9. Most of the pupils were glad school was out, but they hated to see their teachers leave.

The highest average in school was made by Ruth Hess, and second by Edna Mae Kunkel. The highest was 94 55-60, and second 92.

Graduating exercises were held for the seventh grade. Members of the class were: Laverne Kunkel, valedictorian; J. C. Breeding, Annie Mae Nicholson and Ernest Bratcher.

A large crowd attended the play, "Those Dreadful Twins," Wednesday evening of last week.

Misses Mittie May Jones and Mary Evans of McLean visited in the J. L. Hess home during the week end.

Mrs. G. A. Nicholson and Misses Alva Beach and Bernice Wood went to Shamrock Thursday afternoon.

Miss Lovonia Grigsby of the Ring community visited Miss Rheta Hughes Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Allen visited Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Nicholson Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Kunkel and family, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Hess and family visited in McLean Sunday.

SUCKERS' BAIT

Never before has there been so many "rackets" being worked in the southwest as at the present time, according to the May 1 Oklahoma Farmer-Stockman. Agents ply the highways, looking for suckers. And as always, the suckers are biting on about every kind of scheme that the fertile brains of the schemers think up.

One of these schemes is the spectacle racket. Folks will order spectacles by mail. Naturally, they don't fit one time in a hundred. The spectacles are sent back and they get others in return. When the buyers find they can't be fitted by mail they want their money back. Rarely do they get it. The "doctor," who is perhaps some unscrupulous shark in Chicago, probably laughs at them for even trying to get a refund of their money.

Another sucker told of the following experience:

"One day an agent came to our house saying he wanted just one person in our community to take his correspondence course at the very special price of $49. I told him I didn't have the money. He said to pay him $15 and the rest a little at a time as was convenient. The postage on the first shipment was to be 80 cents. When it came, there were collect charges of $35.65. I didn't pay it and the postmaster sent it back. The agent had solicited the entire community on exactly the same basis."

Agents are often like that. And if you listen, you are lost.

There are also those who still fall for home work schemes. One woman recently told the story of how she spent $4.95 for materials to be made into articles for which she was to get well paid. She did the work; the company refused the articles, saying they were not up to standard. That lady paid $4.95 for materials not worth $2. There is no way to get her money back.

Mr. and Mrs. Vester Smith and children visited here Saturday.

H. W. Allen of Amarillo was in McLean Friday.

GOVERNOR GARDNER OF NORTH CAROLINA

At a recent dinner in which nothing but North Carolina products were used, Governor O. Max Gardner of North Carolina, himself a farmer, expressed himself as follows:

"This is potentially one of the richest agricultural regions in the world. There is no reason except our own disregard of familiar economic laws, why it should not be a land blossoming in prosperity. Is there any enchantment upon North Carolina rich acres that prevents the growing of the many food and feed projects and the production of the great secondary crops of hogs, cattle and poultry?"

"The only evil enchantment that I know of is that of the so-called 'money crops.' Deserting the green oasis of diversified farming, our people have followed the mirage of huge profits from cotton and tobacco into a trackless desert of uncertainty and gloom, and instead of an anticipated profit, they harvested deficits, and in a tragic number of instances, actual under-nourishment and want have resulted."

What Governor Gardner said about North Carolina is equally applicable to Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, and other Southern and Southwestern States, as well as the one-crop States such as Kansas and Western Nebraska. A balanced farm program is needed in all agricultural communities. True, there is less chance for making a big killing in a single year, but the ten year average is far ahead of any single crop proposition ever undertaken.—Farm and Ranch.

IF IT WEREN'T SERIOUS, THIS WOULD BE FUNNY

Despite all the howl being sent to high heaven about mail order houses and keeping Lamesa money in Lamesa, advertising solicitors from three different cities "worked" Lamesa this week on various rackets and did mighty well. In fact, they cleaned up.

Now if the people of Lamesa like to throw good money after bad, it's O. K. by us.

But, folks—just want to take this opportunity to remind you that whenever you have a stray dollar or two to spend for advertising where you can expect results—Which no fly-by-night proposition in the world can offer—your home town paper is right on the job to help you.

There, there, don't cry—it's all in fun.—Lamesa Reporter.

Mesdames G. V. Koons, W. E. Bogan and Sam Hodges visited in Amarillo last week end.

J. R. Bain of Clarendon was in McLean Friday.

Miss Cora Greer visited in Amarillo Saturday.

1. Everything belongs to the public or some individual. Well-defined rules govern its enjoyment, use or possession. Observe them.
2. Common decency demands thoughtful use and protection of the property of others. Obtain permission before camping, fishing or hunting on private property.
3. Keep waters pure; don't pollute springs, streams and lakes. Depositing body discharges in streams is unforgivable.

FAKE ADVERTISEMENTS

Fake advertising schemes are having their run in south Texas at present. The high pressure salesman goes into a town and gets prominent men to ok them, promising a writeup of them, then canvass the town for advertising. The same reading matter is made to do the duty of advertising any number of nearby towns, with just a few changes to localize the matters, and only enough copies printed to go to each advertiser and other interested parties. A collection is made and the bird flags it from the scene before the merchants become wise. All advertising propositions should be carefully investigated and put up to a committee of the chamber of commerce who are appointed for that purpose.—Brownfield Herald.

METHODIST W. M. S.

The Methodist W. M. S. met Tuesday afternoon in social at the home of Mrs. J. M. Noel.

Contests and other amusements were enjoyed. Anna Dell Wilkins gave a reading and a musical number, and Bennie Mae Wade gave a reading.

Delightful refreshments were served to the following: Mesdames H. W. Brooks, Haskell Smith, N. W. Foster, Scott Johnston, W. B. Upham, W. L. Haynes, C. S. Rice, W. C. Bushfield, E. E. Dishman, Roy Campbell, B. W. Wilkins, W. E. Bogan, D. A. Davis, Geo. W. Sitter, J. L. Andrews, C. S. Doolen, W. L. Campbell, W. S. White, C. C. Cook, Alvah Christian, C. W. Watkins, G. V. Koons, S. A. Cousins, John Harris, C. C. Bogan, Harold Clement and J. H. Wade.

The society will meet on Tuesday of next week at the church. The study, "Roads to the City of God," will be completed. Those who were assigned parts for discussion on last study day are requested by Mrs. Blake to take the same parts for next Tuesday.

WHY MERCHANTS TURN GRAY

"Dear Sir: I have your statement showing that I owe you $759.80, and I am enclosing check for $5.00 for which please send me a receipt. I am sorry that I cannot pay more at the present, as I am unable to collect from my customers, as money is so scarce right now.

"My own living expenses are terrible and I can hardly get along. I will try to send you another payment of $5.00 when I sell my hay, which will be in July. I cannot pay you more at that time, for daughter finishes at college this year—that costs a heap of money.

"I thought I could send you a check when I gathered my cotton crop, but it took all I could rake and scrape to put in the Delco lights, as my wife did not have electricity to run the sewing machine and the vacuum cleaner. Then, too, we had to build a shed for the Ford, so we could put the new Packard in the garage, and build a new concrete bridge over the brook road, so we could get in and out better.

"I can't send you the corn money in the fall, because my son is going to college then, and although the lads of today are very economical about hats and garters, still a coon skin coat costs the old man a lot, and even junk-yard Fords come rather high by the time they are decorated for college use.

"I might send you the hog money, but the missus and I have planned a trip to Niagara in the fall, and after working hard all these years, I think she deserves a trip. We can't go before fall, for she is having the house redecorated and refinished, taking out all the red plush and putting in over-stuffed cane and mahogany. This is a terrible strain on my finances, especially as the new we was needed closer to the house and the new up-to-date barn was to be paid for.

"All the farmers here are in a hard place financially, with strawberries this season at 75c a quart and the price of gasoline as it is."

"LEST WE FORGET"

Each year, during the week preceding Memorial Day, the legion sponsors and the auxiliary conduct a national poppy sale to provide funds for veterans' welfare work. This is a noble honoring of the dead through service to their comrades—the disabled. There is only one official legion and auxiliary poppy. It is entirely by disabled men and bears the approved label of both organizations. Plan to buy and wear a poppy on poppy day, Saturday, May 24th. (This notice donated in the interest of disabled veterans by The McLean News).

LEGION AUXILIARY

The American Legion Auxiliary met Tuesday night in the basement of the Presbyterian church. Plans were made for poppy day, and it was decided to assist in raising of funds for the Red Cross storm relief.

"Bring out your scales," said the sweet young thing as she drove her Ford up in front of a filling station. "The scales?" replied the attendant. "Yes, see how many pounds of air I need in my tires."

Chauncey—"Darling, I've just lost my entire fortune to a slick oil promoter. What have I to offer you now?"

Charlotte—"Give me his address!"

"I'd die for you in a minute," softly cooed Archibald, under the romantic moon.

"Well," replied Rosaline, after what seemed to him an hour, "the minute's up."

ON PRINTING SCANDALS

Not many years ago, when we were cutting our eye teeth in the newspaper business, a scandal broke out in our town. Unfortunately, it had to do with two of the town's most prominent young people—a young man and wife. A man came to us and said we should "air the matter" in our paper, that two such persons moving in the best of society in our town should be held up to public scorn and run out of town, and, according to his version, the best way to accomplish the feat would be for us to publish the scandal. This man was a neighbor of the home in which the scandal had arisen. What he didn't know about the whole affair, according to his story, only lacked his not being a mouse in the corner of the scandal house.

The next day we were talking to an old gentleman on a street corner of our town, when along came our scandal vehicle. When he passed, the old gentleman said to us:

"See that man who just passed? He came to this town twenty-five years ago from Tennessee. Lived here about five years, when some officers from Tennessee appeared at my office of justice of the peace with a warrant for this man's arrest on the charge of having beaten his wife almost to death, run all the children off the place, and then left the state with a team and wagon that had been mortgaged to the community merchant who had supplied him with groceries. I had almost forgotten him when all at once he appeared on our streets again."

We didn't print anything about the scandal. In fact, we never intended to, because we were young and didn't want what looked to us like a long, pleasant and profitable future cut prematurely short.

After that we have been a little suspicious of the former record of the fellow who would like for us to print some scandal dope that may have happened in our town.

Any of you boys that have any scandal dope you want "aired," go tell it to a policeman. We darn sure are not going to print it.—Olney Enterprise.

Believed in Caution

By FRANK G. TRAVERS

GROVER C. PENDERGAST was known to his few friends as a careful man. In fact, caution was his distinguishing characteristic, and had been from infancy to the present date. Grover lived in a world of facts and certainty, and abhorred chance, speculation and doubt.

As a boy he had refused to be drawn into games with the neighborhood children. The outcome was too uncertain; he might win, but on the other hand, he might lose.

Mr. Pendergast, at the age of forty, was a very ordinary appearing man. One would meet fifty such as he in any hour of the day. He lived in an ordinary section of the city.

On this particular May morning to which your attention is called, he had arisen as usual, at six o'clock; shaved as usual; eaten his breakfast as usual—one orange, one soft-boiled egg, one rasher of bacon, one slice of buttered toast, one cupful of coffee; read the paper, as usual, until the little parlor clock announced the hour of eight, and then donned his hat and started for the office, as usual. All done precisely according to custom, and yet Mr. Pendergast was not himself. He was worried. He was in doubt.

"It is a matter," he mused, "that a man should understand. I'll seek the opinion of those who may have had experience. I'll put the question squarely up to a few men whom I chance to meet; to men in different walks of life, in order to obtain a general view rather than a class judgment."

Rev. Doctor Parsons was slowly approaching, and the harassed bookkeeper accosted him.

"I know who you are, Doctor Parsons, although you are unacquainted with me," announced Grover.

"I am," admitted the preacher.

"And, do I not state a fact when I say that in your ministerial capacity you are frequently called upon to give advice in private matters?"

"That is true," conceded the reverend gentleman.

"Then," resumed Grover, inserting a fore-finger into the button hole of the other's coat, "supposing a man forty years old, who is sober and honest and a good citizen, occupying a position of trust, is married to a woman who refuses to perform her household duties; neglects her children; devotes her time to card playing and at times for money; frequently when her husband attempts to reason with her, becomes violent; strikes and kicks him and throws dishes and other articles of furniture at him; supposing such a case as this to exist, what would be your advice?"

"It is a sad case," declared the divine, "a case which arouses my sincere sympathy. If I were the unfortunate husband of such a misguided mate—as you suggest—I should pray for her, and I should seek spiritual guidance."

Mr. Pendergast inscribed the doctor's remarks in his notebook, thanked him and moved on to interview a barber who stood in the door of his shop.

"Are you a married man?" enquired Grover.

"Yeh, I'm a victim," replied thoughtfully of the razor, "been married twice."

"Then," continued Pendergast, "I should like to ask you a question regarding a private matter."

"All right, sir."

"This is the problem," said Grover, leaning in: "I want your opinion in a case like this," and he repeated the question he had submitted to Rev. Doctor Parsons.

"I understand," promptly replied the barber. "There's others in the same boat, now. Mr. Timberly—you know him; lumberyard over the tracks—he was in here not two weeks ago and asked me the same identical question. I says, 'Just two things to regulate a kind of a female. I says, 'First, 'Pay her revenue; pay all bills, and leave her have no money; that'll cramp her style. That's the first thing, I says, 'and the second thing, Mr. Timberly, I says, 'is to have a big family. Fill up the house with children, I says. 'Whenever a woman finds herself having to suffer seven or ten kids, that'll clear the nonsense out of her.' I says, 'I says—'"

Pendergast thanked the barber, and was time to be at his desk; in fact, it was past time, yet Mr. Pendergast was unsatisfied with the result of his investigation.

The elevator bore him to the floor where his daily labor awaited him, he determined upon a bold stroke. He would ask the bookkeeper, Pendergast. What's on your mind?" inquired Mr. Stocker.

"I'm up from the papers on this matter, and without prejudgment, Grover told him.

"My dear me," sympathetically replied the boss, "this is a great surprise. I always thought you were a conservative. How long have you been in the office?"

"About a year," inquired the bookkeeper, "not at all. No, sir, no. I've been married, but it is a question that intrigues me. It might happen to me."

Pendergast has never been able to understand why the boss hurriedly turned the phone directory at his head, and tore so loud and viciously.

It might surprise the fellow who thinks the world owes him a living, if he were asked to present an itemized bill of services rendered.

The man who never advertises makes about as big a success as a deaf and dumb salesman. There are many ways of advertising, but statistics show that newspaper, show window and direct mail pay best in the order named.

Despite the fact that we are complaining of an over-production of cotton last year we are importing cotton from Egypt and India. This is due to trying to beat the boll weevil by raising short staple cotton. There is only one remedy, and that is to plant better cotton.

People who are sensible enough to let intoxicating liquors alone have no need to fear "jake paralysis," and it would seem that most anyone would display enough good judgment to let the stuff alone after the warnings given by the more than 100,000 recent victims of the disease.

Gray county commissioners prorated the court house insurance among all the agents of the county. Amarillo architects raised a howl about employing out-of-town men by their commissioners. It might be time for the printers of each county to ask that the same worthy consideration be given them.

Distance lends enchantment, and a hat from Chicago, a coat from Kansas City, a dress from a nearby town, or printing from a peddler may seem cheaper and more desirable, (frequently they are neither) but the fact remains that our fame and fortune is bound up with the prosperity of our own community. There can be no prolonged spending abroad unless there is permanent prosperity at home.

Careless parking of cars causes much inconvenience and many accidents. Cars at home should be parked in the driveway and not alongside the curb, if the rights of others are to be considered, and then some cars downtown are parked without regard to the curb markings, taking twice as much space as needed. Then we have the double parking evil. Just a little observance of the golden rule in this matter would make for much better conditions generally.

A Childress editor was asked to leave a city council meeting Monday. There is no good reason for barring reporters from any board meeting whose members are elected by the people. There is no reason for "star chamber" meetings where the people's money is being used. All such boards should welcome the fullest publicity of their actions. Of course, no reporter will use anything happening in the discussions that might be hurtful, but all actions should have the widest publicity, if they are for the benefit of the people—and no other actions are permissible.

We note one Panhandle editor advocating union church services for Sunday nights during the summer. While this plan would give a larger congregation to the minister chosen to preach than he would have otherwise, there is in no town a single auditorium that will hold the folks that should be in church Sunday evenings. If the field is big enough for each church to have a place during other seasons of the year, it is plenty big for effort during the summer. The union proposition would be fine for the fellow who is looking for an excuse to absent himself from duty, or who is inclined to be a grandstander and want to be where the crowd is. If a church is important enough to fill a place in the community at any service, it should not give up its Sunday evening services at any season of the year. Services at only one church in town is practically inviting 9-10 of the population to stay at home, for they could not find room at the church. No, let each church do all the good possible, without trying the impossible task of getting everyone under one roof.

Mesdames E. B. Hedrick, W. J. Ball and W. H. Blakney of Alanreed were McLean visitors Thursday of last week.

Mrs. Bill Taylor and little daughter of San Angelo are visiting the lady's parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Gray.

HORDES OF "GYPS"

There is now in almost every large city organizations known as Better Business Bureaus. They are maintained by home merchants to protect their patrons against fly-by-night and fake salesmen, canvassers and promotion men. Word was recently passed among these Bureaus to be on the lookout for a new type of "gyp," and we feel sure we are doing motorists around Tulla a good turn by passing on the warning. The latest scheme is worked by salesmen who offer a concoction for "pepping up" batteries and giving, they claim, more power to the car. An analysis of one of the concoctions showed it consisted of nothing more than a few cents worth of epsom salts, for which the salesman collected one dollar from each of his victims. And this is but one of a long string of such fakes that are being daily worked on the public in various parts of the country. There seems to be one answer to all of them. That is to buy advertised goods and from a dealer you know personally or by reputation.—Tulla Herald.

Mesdames Sam Kunkel and W. L. Haynes, and Mr. and Mrs. T. N. Holloway visited relatives at Enterprise last week.

GLYCERIN MIX REMOVES

CAUSE OF STOMACH GAS
Simple glycerin, buckthorn bark, saline, etc., as mixed in Adierika, acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel, removing poisons you never thought were there and which caused gas and other stomach trouble. Just ONE spoonful relieves GAS, sour stomach, sick headache and constipation. Don't take medicine which cleans only PART of bowels, but let Adierika give you a REAL cleaning and see how good you feel. It will surprise you! Erwin Drug Co. 6

BREAK THE CHAIN

We note in an exchange that the old time chain letter nuisance is again bobbing up, despite the numerous attempts made by the postoffice department to discourage such foolishness. Anyone around Tulla who gets a letter instructing him to write a certain number of letters just like it and to mail them on to that number of friends, along with a veiled warning that "bad luck" will descend upon anyone who breaks this chain, should tear the letter up. No need to read it in full, after you've discovered what it is. Such nuisances are originated by people with more time than brains; they do not help anybody or any cause; they mean a waste of time, paper and stamps, and simply add to the burdens of hard-worked postal employees. You will show good judgment if you ignore the chain letter. As far as having bad luck is concerned, that is too silly even to think about.—Tulla Herald.

Those wishing to unite with the church will be received into fellowship with us next Sunday.

Our subject for the morning hour next Sunday will be "Our Responsibilities to God." Come out next Sunday and let us work with renewed interest and zeal in the work of the Lord.
