By Granison W. Wise, C. C. C. No. 1807, Grants, N. M. Aug. 12, 1933.

Editor T. A. Landers, The McLean News, Dear Sir:

We are still building roads. I am helping build bridges. It came a big rain Sunday and washed out most of the roads we had built. Some of the boys say join the C. C. C. and see the world behind a pick and shovel. There are a bunch of the boys leaving. We have lost one a day since pay day. They just don't like it. All of the army officers have left except the captain, doctor and lieutenant. Some of the C. C. C. boys have taken the places of the other officers. From Friday until Monday morning some of the boys go to Gallup or Albuquerque. There is a truck going to Gallup today. I think we will move our camp some time next month. It gets too cold to work here in the winter. The old-timers say that we will have a big frost by the last of this month. It is pretty cool here now. Some of the boys call this place a combination prison and soup line because we have to line up to eat. One of the boys got on K. P. and wrote and told his mother he was a Kitchen Police. She wrote back and told him not to be too hard on the boys. We are going to get a nine days leave in September some time, and I think most of us are going home.

BELIEF

By O. L. D. Timer

There must be more different kinds of belief today than ever before in the history of the world. Most anybody can start some kind of a hobby and lots of folks will take to it like bad tasting ants to a sugar bowl or syrup pitcher. When I went to school they believed a football boy needed a heavy padded suit to play football, but as I came in to town Tuesday I saw a bunch of boys with barely a breech clout on, going out to practice. I would suggest that they carry a good stock of tweezers to pick out the goatheads with. But if they picked out all the goatheads from the football team we might be minus a team. The next thing on program will be a nudist colony for McLean. Surely there are enough here who disbelieve in clothes to start one while the weather is still warm, for when the blue northers come it might be hard to start. I believe a human being should wear some clothes at all times, except when they are taking a bath, and then I believe he should have on a heavy coat of soap, at least part of the time.

Why, even Adam and Eve tried to cover their nakedness with fig leaves when there was no one to see them. I suppose we might as well get ready for the next step, for I believe the worst is yet to come, and the tug of war has not come yet.

It seems that people can train themselves to believe most anything if they try hard enough. I heard of one man that said the world was getting better, and he actually went and told people it was till he really got to believing it himself. I believe the world is getting better only in a mechanical way. As far as morality, honesty, integrity and neighborliness is concerned, as far as my experience and observation goes, we have a very unbalanced budget and quite an inferiority complex. I believe that scientific research and mechanical ingenuity are far and away ahead of the humane element, and before we have any progressive harmony we will have to develop a higher state of morality, honesty, and neighborly attitude toward each other, instead of passing the buck to the other fellow and plucking the government every time we get a chance; and if we don't have a chance any other way we can just plow up some cotton.

Sometimes I wonder what people do believe in. Consider a horse race for instance. Most everyone puts his money on the horse he believes will come out a head. When you put your money on a new car, an extra fine pair of silk hose, a beautiful permanent wave, and some very attractive clothes, or throw an extra big dance, are you betting on the winning horse? If you put your money in some productive machinery, constructive enterprise, pay it out for work to a man with a hungry family, pay your school taxes, or favor your church with a regular and generous collection, you might be putting your money on a winning horse. Don't pay much attention to what a man says he believes in, but watch closely what he puts his money into, for actions speak louder than words, and where a man's belief is, there you will find his money also.

I heard of one man who had a very strange belief that caused him to leave the neighborhood where he grew up. He believed that every hog he saw belonged to him. Self-interest seems to be the predominating factor that goes into shaping modern people's beliefs. For instance, the rich man believes that he has a perfect right to accumulate money, and a poor man believes he has a right to make him divide up.

All articles intended for publication should be typewritten, double spaced, if possible, or written in ink, leaving plenty of margin and space between lines.

Advices from Washington say that the merchant who is trying to adjust his business to conform with the NRA regulations, has signed the agreement, but as yet does not have the blue eagle, through no fault of his own, should have the same consideration as those who have met the conditions and are now displaying the blue eagle.

We have something seldom seen before. From the governor on down, most officials are electioneering for the state bond issue, and they are using the same old stall that was used last year to get the State Centennial measure over—that it only grants the legislature the privilege to issue bonds. Voters may rest assured that in all likelihood the bonds will be issued, if voted. If it is a good thing, why not say they will be issued?

And why do we have to listen to arguments on the beer issue that it is the party pledge and the President wants it—everything but on its so-called merits. Voters will do well to study any proposition handed to them and lay aside all prejudice, for the party whip, and vote for the best interests of themselves.

WHY REPEAL THE 18TH AMENDMENT?

By Rev. Cecil G. Goff

Those interested in the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment have put their best foot forward to win the farmers, and in many instances have succeeded. The main argument used is that the manufacture of liquor will consume a great portion of the surplus grain and bring prices up. In other words, it will constitute a market for a fair portion of the grain crop. If the repealists stopped at this it might sound reasonable to one who was uninformed. But the same repealist has already said that one reason for repeal is that there is as much liquor drunk now as in the old saloon days, and that the need is for the government to receive the revenue for the stuff that is drunk. Both arguments will not hold, for it takes just as much grain to make illegal liquor as it does to make legal liquor.

But as to the actual facts concerning the matter of the grain consumption; according to the World Almanac, 1931, page 343, the amount of grain raised in the U. S. in the year 1917 was as follows: Barley - 211,759,000 bushels, Corn - 3,065,233,000 bushels, Oats - 1,592,740,000 bushels, Rye - 62,933,000 bushels, Wheat - 636,655,000 bushels. Total - 5,569,320,000 bushels.

In 1917 there were only 11,900,028 bushels of corn used for the purpose of fermented liquor, and less than 1% of the corn crop for the making of whiskey. Less than one-third of the barley crop was used in making spirituous liquors. When the actual facts are known, the amount of grain used for these purposes was exceedingly small. In fact, the amount used in any given year has been far surpassed in the use of the same grain for cow feed since prohibition. And again, many times that amount is being used to prepare either bread or cereal for the millions who, in the old license days never knew what it was to have enough bread to eat, and had never seen a prepared cereal.

Note the experience of one town, Peoria, Ill. This town was second only to Louisville, Ky., as the whiskey producing center of the U. S. Mr. Homer H. Dewey, president of the Peoria Board of Trade, first gathered the figures for a luncheon club talk in February, 1931. Later the figures were widely spread. Here is the statement, taken from The American Issue: "In 1914, Peoria's half-dozen or more big distilleries used a total of between 7,500,000 and 8,000,000 bushels of corn for the manufacture of both whiskey and commercial alcohol. In 1929 the commercial solvents plant (converted distillery) alone used 8,000,000 bushels, and at the same time the Corn Products Manufacturing Company which, in 1914 used 2,379,500 bushels, used in 1929, 14,525,398.

So that, at the very lowest calculation, the use of corn for manufacturing purposes in Peoria is not less than two or three times as great as before prohibition.

"The Corn Products Company is giving employment to ten or twelve times as many men as were employed by the two largest distilleries of the city. The distilleries gave employment to no more than eighty men each."

Beside these statistics, let us observe some from the milk industry. The following statistics are to be found in the United States Statistical Abstract for 1925, 1926, 1930. In 1929 there were almost 7,500,000,000 gallons of milk produced in the U. S. During the following ten years there was a fair increase in population, but the increase in milk production was only a little over 300,000,000 gallons. After prohibition went into effect, many millions of children had the privilege of drinking milk who never before had it, and during the first four years of national prohibition the milk production increased 1,393,000,000 gallons, an increase of over four times the previous increase over a period of ten years. Taken in proportion to the years, the increase was something like 1000% more during those prohibition years than during the pre-prohibition years.

Again note the increase in butter. In 1919 there were 8,800,000 more pounds of butter produced than in 1909. Five years after prohibition had gone into effect, half the previous period mentioned, there was an increase of 458,800,000 pounds. The annual increase in pounds of butter was over 52 times that in the ten immediate pre-prohibition years.

The earliest ice cream period begins with 1919. During that year there were 132,000,000 gallons of ice cream manufactured in the U. S. Five years later the production had increased to 181,500,000 gallons, and in 1928 to 232,000,000 gallons. Of course, it stands to reason that mothers cannot buy milk and butter, and the children ice cream, with the money the father of the family spends for liquor.

Where is the farmer who can honestly vote for the return of liquor in the face of these facts? Where is the man or woman who has a heart of flesh who can vote for the return of liquor, knowing the starvation, hunger, suffering, degeneracy, lack of education, deposed minds, beaten wives and children, that are bound without question to result from its use?

PATRONS OF McLEAN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

By the Board of Education

We are making every effort possible to give the people of this community an efficient school, run as economically as is possible to run a school. We have cut every expense possible to keep the school upto standard. We are asking the good people of this community to cooperate with us in this, as they have always co-operated.

There have been more than two hundred window panes broken out of the ward school building, near 25 out of the high school building, and some out of the vocational agriculture building. This has cost the school district more than two hundred dollars, so we are pleading that the citizenry of this school district help us eliminate this annual cost. The boys with the "nigger shooters," and "air guns" are costly to the community when used for such purposes. Please cooperate with us.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine. For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling in your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul. Skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned. It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely. But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Be sure to substitute, 25c at drug stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

MORE LIKE PLAY THAN WORK!

"A woman's work is never done"—an axiom loses its basis in fact when an Electric Washer moves into the first place, the hard work is shifted to the Washer—in the second place, it's all done in a fraction of the usual time.

You'll certainly appreciate the ease and freedom an Electric washer brings you—particularly on hot days. No steaming and no backbreaking labor—just throw in the dirty laundry and get it out clean. Yet the cost of all this service is only two or three pennies a week. Go to your dealer's and see the new Washers—convenient terms can be arranged.

The McLean News informs us that it is not possible for merchants to sit still and then profit from the expected good times that are to come. Here is where the Home Town Paper comes in to assist the Merchants in landing prospective sales. The Home Town Merchant must get busy and advertise his goods and do this every week in the local paper, and if he is in sympathy with our President's move towards prosperity, he will do this very thing. If any merchant fails to do his best in advertising his goods, he is throwing a damper over the efforts of our President in his attempt to bring back prosperity. A move is on to sell more goods, put on by our national leaders, and business men who advertise their goods EVERY WEEK, will be the ones who help this prosperity move and at the same time get their part while the non-advertiser will fail to get his.—Claude News.

"Made With Milk"

by "The Man Who Remembers"

I LIKE to buy bread where the sign in the window says, "Made with milk". It's a pretty sure sign that the baker who makes his bread with milk is putting in other high quality ingredients too.

Up until lately, bread has been sort of an ornament for the table, like the center bowl of flowers, something to look at only. But times are different now. Good food that nourishes and don't cost so much is popular. Bread is one of our main foods again.

In every community there is one baker who is baking a loaf of REAL bread. He is making it with good flour, good milk and other high quality ingredients. Your money buys more REAL FOOD at a good bakery like this than any place else you can spend it.

Even the best bread—bread "made with milk"—costs little, so pick out a baker who makes good bread and give him your business.

A GENERAL MOTORS VALUE

GAMES OF CHANCE COMPETE WITH LEGITIMATE BUSINESS

Untold quantities of tears have been shed by victims of stock gambling in the past. Hence it was about like spitting in the Pacific ocean when those young reformers launched a tear-gas attack on the New York exchange and forced it to be unceremoniously closed.

Such an attack might close up any gambling joint—but no amount of opposition will ever get rid of the gambling spirit which seems to be one of the most deep-seated weaknesses of human nature. We say this advisedly—after having helped to eat an excellent ham which one of our girl friends won at a church fair.

Many churches employ the lottery principle to raise funds. It isn't ideal, but it does bring in the money. Just recently the mayor of a Massachusetts city was indicted on a charge of operating a lottery.

The stock exchange just now isn't doing the business it did several weeks ago. This is not because the stock gamblers have reformed; the reason is that the sheep have been shorn for the time being and the shearers must wait for some more wool to grow.

A survey which has been made tells us that at least 10% of the people in our cities are regularly engaged in stock gambling. They are always hoping that they can buy some more stocks and sell them at a price high enough to make up for their losses in the past—and pay back the loans they have begged from their friends or raised on their insurance policies.

Betting on horse races of course is very prevalent. This gambling is done not only at the race tracks, but all over the country. Inquiries directed to college students have shown that they knew far more about the horses that were "going to win" than they did about the sober subjects which their parents had paid to have them taught.

In every city—even in the national capital—there are gambling concerns which continue to do business year after year without interference. The gambling czars are well known; they have fine homes and live lives of money and ease.

The "numbers" games is one which flourishes quite generally. Each day lottery drawings are made. The prizes were formerly awarded according to the total number of shares sold in Wall Street that day. At present the scheme generally is to use a combination of the numbers of the winners in the horse races for the day.

The daily papers print this dope knowing it is used mostly by the gamblers. Some newspaper publishers cater deliberately to the gambling class, by specializing on early racing and other news of the sort. Thousands of copies are bought by the betting fraternity, just to learn the winning races.

Men will always find something to gamble with or bet on. On ship voyages the travelers bet on everything that comes up—the length of the day's run, the age of the purser, and even the color of eyes of the pilot.

Considerable betting is done on baseball, though this greatest of American national games is freer from this taint than some others. Prize fights of course are primarily a betting proposition, and if it were not for the bets they would never be held.

Golf has degenerated into a betting game—with plenty of drinking on the part of those thousands of wonderful country clubs would never have been created if it had not been for the chance they offered to men—and women—to do a lot of hard drinking in comparative privacy. Prohibition repeal and the return of beer is already putting a quietus on golf. Many clubs will undoubtedly have to close up, when it is no longer necessary to go off to a distant club as an excuse to take a few drinks.

The game of bridge, as most women have found to their sorrow, is also largely a blind for drinking and gambling. The game itself would not survive a single week on its merits.

It doesn't matter much what people bet about, but they will bet. Elections are good to bet on, but don't come often enough. The ancient game of backgammon has come back, on that account; the claim that it is just a good old game is all gammon. Roulette wheels are now being sold in large numbers, and people carry them around from house to house and hold cocktail parties and all-night gambling bouts as a regular thing.

The desire to get something for nothing (instead of working for it) is uppermost in the minds of a great number of people. It is being seriously proposed that our cities and states, or even the nation, might get out of the hole by conducting lotteries with regular drawings—as in the days of the old Louisiana lottery, which was a tremendous success, but which was closed up by Uncle Sam over 50 years ago. The Irish sweepstakes drain huge amounts of money from this country.

The biggest gamble of all is making counterfeit money. This is a game in which the player wins everything—until he gets caught. The people who pass counterfeit money are making a little over 200% on their "capital investment" now, according to Uncle Sam's sleuths. The old standard price for bogus money was $35 for a roll of $100, but since the United States has gone off the gold standard the price of the "phoney" money has been reduced to $32 for $100. This proves that the people who manufacture the fake money are really very honorable—fully as honest as some bankers. They are not quite as bad as the regular gamblers, whose cardinal rule is to "never give a sucker a break."

It doesn't pay the counterfeiters to make $1 bills, and hence these bills are very seldom bad. The $5 and $10 bills are the favorites, as these can usually be passed without much difficulty. Banks right in Washington have recently paid out bogus $10 bills without noticing it, and have had to make the losses good. This shows how dangerous such bills are.

As a rule the paper used in these counterfeit bills is of a different character from the genuine that a person who is used to handling bills can tell a bad one by the "feel" at once. Girl cashiers at movie houses and similar places sometimes detect a bad bill when some stranger asks for change, and have the man arrested.

Another counterfeit that is giving some trouble just now is a $100 bill. Ordinary people don't have to worry about bills of that size, as they very seldom see one unless it is through a banker's window. The new $100 bill is a very perfect imitation of the genuine—so good that it might easily fool an expert. Secret service men say that it can be detected by the squint of one eye in the portrait of Benjamin Franklin. One eye is larger than the other and has the lid slightly drooped.

Quantities of real silver quarters and dimes, as well as nickel five-cent pieces are being placed in circulation by the counterfeiters now as a result of the low prices for these metals. It is difficult for the government to follow up these counterfeiters as people accept them without a question unless they are made of lead or some metal which doesn't "ring" true.

It goes without saying that the making and passing of counterfeit bills is the most dangerous gamble of them all. Here the offender is absolutely certain to be caught sooner or later—and when caught there is no alibi. Uncle Sam may wink at some things, but he hears down hard on anybody who tries to enter into competition with him in the issuance of money. —Pathfinder.

MASONS AND BEER

Masons who wish to keep their good standing with the order in Nebraska are under order not to engage in the sale of 32 beer. Grand Master Archie M. Smith of Pender, Neb., has ordered that a copy of the edict be sent to each blue lodge in the state. If any member violates the edict he may be ousted from the lodge, if found guilty by a Masonic commission.—Clarendon News.

Here is what is worrying some of the country weeklies. Will the merchants that have been patronizing the big city printers still do so, even if they can get the same service in the old home town? It is a poor rule that won't work both ways, but the country papers have been loyal to the old home town, despite the fact that some of his home town merchants have been patronizing outside printeries. Yet they are big and broad enough at this time to forget the past and ask the public to patronize the stores that are pledged to bring back prosperity. On with the battle. The home publisher and printer well knows that the big city merchant is not going to spend any money with him, but it seems that some small city merchants have never learned that the big city printer will not spend a farthing with him nor boost his business a penny's worth. Gentlemen, the time has come for fair play. Have you any cards up your sleeve that you aim to use against home folks? The newspaper that will not boost for his home town is a traitor. The merchant that will not, under the present condition, patronize his home paper, can figure out for himself what he is.—Terry County Herald.

Rather than being a menace to the freedom of the press, advertising patronage is potentially a guarantee of editorial independence. No paper is stronger than its financial structure. If its editorial quality be such as to make a good advertising medium, the necessity for subservience is eliminated.—J. E. Drewry.

BOND ISSUE ARGUMENTS

By M. D. Bentley, Local Chm.

Why we should vote for the state relief bond amendment, which is in line with the new deal sponsored by the President:

More than one and a quarter million Texans are now living entirely from funds supplied by the Federal government in Washington.

Nearly a third more destitute Texans received Federal aid in July than in June.

Half of those now unemployed are not yet on the relief rolls. They will likely be the first ones to get jobs back. Until they have been re-employed there will be just as many helpless Texans to be cared for as now.

In July we received more than two million dollars direct from Washington to feed hungry people in Texas. The payments average one million and a half a month. If this amendment fails, the legislature cannot appropriate a single dollar to aid hungry and destitute families. No matter how many destitute there are, or how severe their condition, no Texas city or county can expect any outside aid in caring for them, unless this bond issue is passed.

If the bond amendment to be submitted August 26th fails, it will be two years before it can possibly be voted on again. The Constitution fixes that.

If the bonds are defeated, we can expect no more funds from the Federal government. If more than a million Texans are left without food for a single week, there will certainly be a distressing situation. When they find out that it will be two years before they can be relieved, the result will surely be disastrous.

Lots of people dislike to vote bonds. In this case we would only make it possible for the legislature to issue bonds if needed to aid the Federal government in caring for our destitute, and the legislature would only issue such bonds as would be necessary to render such relief as should conditions be all right they will, there is no necessary to issue all the $1,000,000. And our last year's shown themselves to be conservative, so we can expect to issue any bonds that are needed.

Another item to be considered property tax can ever be paid off these bonds. The saw to that in submitting a ment.

Remember your fellow-citizens possibly not been so fortunate. Consider this very thing very seriously before you vote down, then you will vote for and help the President's new deal. At the same time show your interest in the humanity.
