McLean Ward Wins Second in County Meet

During the annual county meet which was held in Lefors last week the McLean ward school chalked up scores next to high in honors awarded on all contestant entries in their division of the Interscholastic League, leading to Hopkins by only ten points. Hopkins received 132 points, while McLean received 122, according to A. R. McHaney, principal of the McLean ward school.

Events in which McLean scored were: First place—girls ground ball, 15 points; arithmetic, 15; music memory, 15; 1st and 2nd grade spelling, 15; boys declamation, 10.

THE LEADER STORE BANKRUPT SALE

D. N. Bird of Shamrock has bought the bankrupt stock of the Leader Store and opens a bankrupt sale to the general public today (Thursday).

Mr. Bird is adding new goods to the stock and has made prices regardless of cost. He says that everything must go.

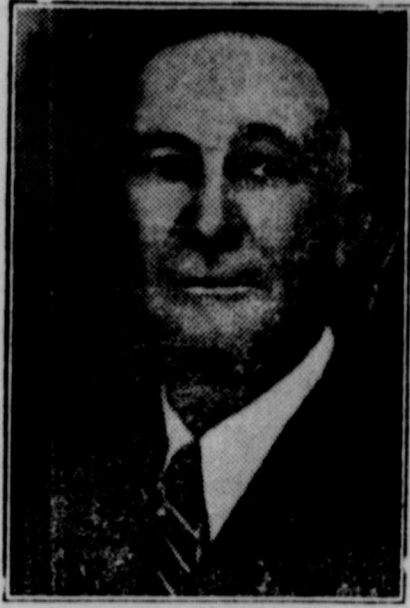

Mr. Bird has owned stores at Childress, Estelline and Shamrock, and says that he will continue the Leader store here with one of the best stocks of dry goods ever seen in McLean, if conditions justify.

Read announcement of the sale in a half page advertisement in this paper.

ERWIN SELLS CAR

Rev. W. A. Erwin, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, offered his car for sale in a 25c classified advertisement in this paper last week, and he had three calls Friday after the paper was published Thursday, and sold the car Saturday.

Rev. Erwin says that folks are still asking him about the car, knowing that the home paper is read and that advertising gets results.

McLean Boys Hardin-Simmons Letter Men

Listed among the nine freshmen attending Hardin-Simmons University at Abilene who were awarded letters for the 1934-35 basketball season were two McLean boys, Cagle Hunt, son of Rev. and Mrs. C. E. Hunt, and Buell Ellison, grandson of Mrs. Beck. The two boys were guards on the team, winning eight out of ten games played during the season, losing only to the Lamesa Golden Tornadoes, finalists in the state intercollegiate league tournament at Austin.

Lloyd Hunt, brother to Cagle, also was awarded letters for outstanding work with the freshman football team in Hardin-Simmons the past season.

1934 JUNIOR CLUB MEETS WITH MRS. KING

Mrs. Harris King was hostess to the 1934 Junior Culture Club last Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Adkins, vice president, presided at the business session in the absence of the president, Mrs. Boyd. Mrs. Breining was appointed delegate to the district convention of Federated Clubs to be held this week in Plainview.

Mrs. King was leader of the program on "Political History of the U. S."

Mrs. J. R. Glass introduced the program with the topic, "Early American History." Mrs. Travis Stokes, a guest, entertained with a piano solo, "The Glow Worm," which was enjoyed very much.

Mrs. Davidson gave a "History of the Republican Party" and Mrs. Adkins related outstanding incidents in the "History of the Democratic Party."

Mrs. Bob Thomas sang "Coming Home," with Mrs. Davidson at the piano.

The St. Patrick motif was featured in the lovely refreshment plate served by the hostess.

Other members present were Mesdames A. R. McHaney, H. C. Rippey, Charles Wilson; and Miss Margaret Glass.

MRS. COOKE HOSTESS PIONEER STUDY CLUB

Due to the Music Festival being held in Amarillo this week, members of the Pioneer Study Club were entertained on Monday afternoon instead of Thursday as dated. The club met in the home of Mrs. Donald Beall, with Mrs. Chas. E. Cooke as hostess.

"Texas Literature" was the theme of the program, with Mrs. Claud Brooks as leader. Mrs. J. W. Butler talked on "Men Who Have Helped to Make Texas Literature." Mrs. C. O. Greene responded with a talk on "Women Who Have Helped to Make Texas Literature." An interesting talk on Texas Legends was made by Mrs. Cecil G. Goff. Mrs. C. A. Cryer discussed Newspapers and Periodicals in Texas. Mrs. W. A. Breining talked on "Texas, a Mine of Materials for the Imaginative Writer." Mrs. W. E. Bogan read "The Daughter of Mendoza."

Following the program and business session, refreshments were served to members attending as follows: Mesdames W. E. Bogan, H. W. Brooks, J. W. Butler, Chas. E. Cooke, C. A. Cryer, Cecil G. Goff, C. O. Greene, J. B. Hembree, T. A. Massay, N. U. Stout, Claud Brooks, W. A. Breining, and Donald Beall.

First Trades Day Success; Attracts Crowd

One of the largest crowds seen in McLean in a long time was present for the first Trades Day held here Saturday.

The heavy dust storm made a most disagreeable day, but the crowd was a good humored one and enjoyed the afternoon program to the fullest extent.

The high school band played a few snappy numbers directed by Prof. Robt. C. Davidson, and the News editor welcomed the visitors and explained the object of the trades day plan.

Merchants report a good day's business, many taking advantage of the special bargains offered for the day.

Next Saturday a similar program will be given, with merchants offering special inducements to the trade.

These trades days will be held each Saturday during the season, or as long as conditions justify. Every person within 50 miles of McLean has an invitation to attend the programs and take advantage of the special bargains offered by the merchants. Savings can be made from purchases made here, in many cases, to pay the expenses of the trip.

DEAD LINE APPROACHES FOR CANDIDATES FILING

Friday, March 22, is the deadline for filing names for city officers, and Wednesday, March 27, is the last day to file names for school trustees.

On the city ticket, those whose terms expire this year are: Mayor C. J. Cash, Secretary W. E. Bogan, Marshal J. A. Sparks, Aldermen J. H. Bodine and D. M. Davis.

Up to yesterday, Mr. Bogan's and Mr. Sparks' names had been filed for re-election, and Dr. Batson's name was filed for alderman.

Trustees whose terms expire are: Dr. Finley and J. S. Howard. Dr. Finley's and H. W. Brooks' names have been filed.

Several candidates are being groomed for the different offices, and a last minute rush for filing is expected.

MRS. BANTA HOSTESS BIBLE CLASS THURSDAY

The unique manner in which Mrs. W. B. Andrews, leader of the ladies' Bible class of the Church of Christ, conducted the character naming contest held during the less on the 11th chapter of Hebrews, studied last Thursday afternoon, was very interesting and enjoyed greatly. Each member present named Bible characters beginning with the first letter in her given name. Mrs. Andrews and Mrs. Cloyce Chambers tied for first place in the contest. The class met in the Milton Banta home with Mrs. Banta as hostess.

After the lesson, sandwiches and coffee were served to guests and members attending, as follows: Mesdames Pete Fulbright, Chas. Eudey, Barney Fulbright, Harry Barnes, Harry Crawford, Elvin Lankford, M. C. Ruff, Ray Trimble, John Hawkins, M. M. Newman, A. C. Ayer, Henry Gossage, Cloyce Chambers, George Lamberth, U. Warren, Milton Banta, and Miss Floy Wynn.

PARK WORK MAKES PROGRESS

Work on the east entrance highway park is showing progress, with dirt being moved and the grounds landscaped. According to Engineer Gaston it is expected that trees and shrubbery will be set the latter part of next week.

Rock is being hauled for the walls and the whole project is rapidly taking shape.

C. O. Greene, president of the Lions Club, under whose direction the work is being done, says that citizens are invited to inspect the work from time to time.

It is expected that work will be rushed on the west park as soon as possible, also.

AUTO SALVAGE CHANGES

W. M. (Bill) Morgan, who has been working at Watt's Garage, has bought the McLean Auto Salvage and will continue the business at the same location.

Mr. Morgan will appreciate meeting his old friends and making new ones at his new location. Read his advertisement on another page.

Pampa Women Make Talks at Garden Club

Mrs. F. E. Leech of Pampa addressed the McLean Garden Club on organization plans Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Leech outlined the work of the Pampa and Amarillo clubs, saying that members of the garden clubs enjoy this work more than any club in which they hold membership.

Mrs. Dirksen of Pampa also spoke on the varieties of flowers suitable for this section.

The grade school rhythm band, in charge of Misses Noel and Hamilton, and directed by Prof. Robt. C. Davidson, played several selections, and cornet solos were given by Jeff Coffey R. L. Floyd, with Juanita Carpenter and Ermadel Floyd piano accompanists.

The program was in charge of Mrs. A. A. Tampke, vice president and program chairman.

The meeting was opened by President T. A. Landers, and Mrs. Robt. Davidson was secretary pro tem.

It was voted to hold regular meetings on the fourth Monday night in each month.

66 JERICHO GAP MAY BE PAVED SOON

According to plans worked out at Amarillo last Friday, between the highway committee of the Amarillo chamber of commerce and representatives of the McLean chamber of commerce, it is expected that the Jericho gap section of highway 66 will be paved this year.

The McLean delegation met with the executive board of the Amarillo chamber of commerce at their regular weekly luncheon held in the rose room of the Amarillo Hotel, where talks were made by various men.

It was pointed out that the adverse advertising received from this section of the road is hurting the whole Panhandle. Several speakers pointed out that it is useless to advertise the advantages of the route as long as unpaved gaps remain.

The McLean delegation were luncheon guests of President Hardin of the Amarillo body.

Those present from the McLean C. of C. were: President Boyd Meador, chairman of the highway committee, C. O. Greene, Rev. W. A. Frwin, Witt Springer and T. A. Landers.

MCLEAN DELEGATES AT P. T. A. CONFERENCE

A delegation of McLean Parent-Teacher Association members, with Mrs. W. L. Campbell, president of the local organization, are among the hundreds of parents and teachers who are gathered from the four corners of this district, No. eight, to attend the 112th annual spring conference of the Texas Congress of Parents and Teachers, which is being held in Canyon this week, starting yesterday (Wednesday) and lasting three days.

The theme of this three days conference is "Building for Tomorrow" with prominent educators of the state speaking on related subjects during the conference.

Tomorrow (Friday) the conference will meet in joint session with the Northwest Texas Education Conference, held annually at the West Texas State Teachers College. Mrs. J. E. Griggs of Amarillo, district president, will preside during the three days session.

Besides the business and work sessions during the conference, a program of delightful social occasions has been planned as a relief from the routine of scheduled work.

SIGMA GAMMA ENJOYS SOCIAL MONDAY EVENING

Members of the Sigma Gamma, together with two invited guests, enjoyed a social Monday evening at the home of Misses Nona and Jewell Cousins.

A pot luck dinner was served at 7:30, with table decorations and favors carrying out the St. Patrick motif. Mrs. A. R. McHaney, guest lecturer for the year, was presented a gift from the club in appreciation of her work. Mrs. S. A. Cousins was also a guest of the club for the evening.

Table games were enjoyed until a late hour. Members attending were: Misses Abbott, Anderson, Dishman, Hubbard, Howard, Kennedy, Kunkel, Newman, Noel, Stratton, and the hostesses.

Judge Ewing Will Address Mass Meet Here Wednesday

Smith Bros. Well Makes 998 Bbl. Test

Smith Bros. well on the Harlan section 49, block 24, was brought in last week and averaged 998 barrels on five day commission test.

This is one of the best wells to come in recently and was bottomed at 2529 feet with pay from 2450 feet.

Miller and Huseby No. 1 Fee in the same section and block flowed at the rate of 240 barrels per day at a total depth of 2490, oil being topped at 2490.

Shell Pet. Co. No. 6 D'Spain in section 52, block 24, pumped 320 barrels in 20 hours at 2541 feet, oil being found at the 2526 depth.

LIONS PROGRAM UP TO COMMITTEEMEN

McLean Lions heard a program put on by the program committee without outside help, at Tuesday's luncheon.

T. A. Landers, chairman, spoke on Lionism; M. D. Bentley told a humorous story, and Jesse J. Cobb called on the following for a quartette number: T. N. Holloway bass, Clifford Allison baritone, W. W. Boyd second tenor, and Creed Bogan first tenor. Lion Holloway earned the thanks of the club by refusing to cooperate, so no song was given.

Several catty remarks were made about the obstinate Lion, saying that maybe his forte was playing second fiddle at home.

The committee put on the program following a facetious remark by the Boss Lion last week that there was no entertainment talent in the club. The club voted $2.50 to the Texas Day fund for the Mexico City entertainment, and endorsed Childress as the next district convention city.

E. R. Love of Breckenridge, and Ralph R. Thomas were introduced as visitors.

Ralph A. Caldwell reported progress on boy scout work, and T. A. Landers announced the garden club meeting.

GRADE SCHOOL PUPILS ENTER MUSIC CONTESTS

The following pupils of the grade school are in Amarillo today (Thursday) entering the music contests of the Panhandle Music Festival.

1934 SEWING CLUB MET WITH MRS. FOSTER

Members of the 1934 Sewing Club enjoyed a delightful all day session last Friday when they met in the N. W. Foster home near McLean, with Mrs. Foster as hostess.

A covered dish luncheon was served to members and guests attending as follows: Mesdames J. W. Story, S. W. Rice, D. A. Davis, I. D. Shaw, J. S. Howard, W. W. Wilson, C. E. Anderson, J. M. Noel, C. S. Rice, T. A. Landers, Ernest Beck, W. L. Hinlin, E. L. Eustace, B. F. Pearson, D. M. Thomas; Misses Sinclair Rice and Floy Wynn.

NO SCHOOL FRIDAY

Owing to the Northwest Texas Teachers Conference at Canyon, and other attractions, there will be no school at McLean Friday (tomorrow).

Misses Leta Mae Phillips and Shirley Johnston visited over the weekend with friends in Lefors.

By Secretary Ministerial Alliance

At a meeting of the ministers of the various churches of the town Monday night, it was voted to call a mass meeting of the citizens of McLean and surrounding communities on Wednesday night, March 27, at 8 o'clock, in the auditorium of the First Baptist Church. The purpose of the meeting is to express approval of the excellent work Governor Allred is doing in the matter of law enforcement, and to consider the subject of higher standards of civic righteousness in general.

The outstanding attraction of the meeting will be an address by District Judge W. R. Ewing. Everyone who knows Judge Ewing has the highest regard for his integrity, not only as a judge, but as an authority on the subject for consideration. There is probably no man in this part of the country who commands the respect of more people than does Judge Ewing. When he speaks, it is with insight and knowledge of his subject.

Never was there a time when the citizens needed more to lend their whole hearted support to the subject of law enforcement than now. Likewise there has never been a time when the average citizen had a more open field of opportunity to back the officials we have placed in office. We cannot expect them to work alone—they need our support and encouragement. Our governor has begun the fight; it is our duty to fail in the line of support.

Every citizen is given a hearty invitation to be present at the meeting called March 27. It is hoped that the meeting can be made an inspiration to our citizenry and our noble officers because of one hundred per cent backing on the part of the law abiding citizens of our county.

MRS. KITE CELEBRATES 94TH BIRTHDAY

Sixty-one people enjoyed a reunion with Mrs. M. W. Kite at Hollis, Okla., on her 94th birthday, March 11, 1935.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Kite and family, Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Batten and family, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Nelms, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Cunkel and daughter, Mrs. J. R. McCutcheon, all of McLean; Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Kite and son, Bruce, of Mt. Dora, N. M.; Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Thompson, Willie Kite, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Kite and children, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Kite and children, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Call and children, C. M. Kite, Miss Ollie Kite, Mrs. Winnie Cline and son, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Kite and children, all of Hollis; Mr. and Mrs. Tom Arrant of Ballinger, John Hughes of Winters, Mrs. Emma Hampton of Abilene, Mrs. Ellis of Hollis was the only one present who was not a relation.

Mrs. Kite is enjoying fairly good health, is still able to be about and visit her children occasionally. She has outlived four of her eight children, all of whom lived to be fairly middle aged.

She lives with her single son, Willie. The crowd met at the home of her second son, H. B., now deceased. They enjoyed a nice dinner, those not arriving in time for dinner enjoying an early supper. Owing to bad weather, all of the grandchildren did not attend.

Mother Kite is blessed with 38 grandchildren, 101 great grandchildren and 13 great great grandchildren.

SPECIAL PROGRAM AT PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Next Tuesday, March 26, ladies of the First Presbyterian Church will entertain with a special program, closing the church year at the church, beginning at 7:30 o'clock. A social hour will be held and refreshments will be served.

All members of the church are urged to attend this meeting, which will consist largely of reports of church work done during the past year.

Many towns are outlawing itinerant peddlers, and McLean is being overrun with them. The less one has to do with strange peddlers, the better.

Not much more time remains in which to set trees and shrub-berry for this season, and a year's growth makes a lot of difference in the looks of the place. A few trees set now will bring dividends from now on.

Loose circulars blowing over town are a real fire hazard, to say nothing of the looks of the town. Circulars should be sent by mail, so the post office waste basket could catch them, then they would not bother anyone.

Governor Allred should have the cooperation of every law-abiding citizen in his efforts to see that the laws of the state are enforced. McLean should turn out en masse for the address by Judge Ewing Wednesday evening.

A school curtain peddler was in town a few days ago and when asked the see the merchants' advertising committee, failed to do so. McLean merchants can buy school curtains much cheaper than the advertising peddlers sell them.

Hedley is another town that is planning to pave streets with relief labor. McLean will, perhaps, never have another chance to have such work done here at so little expense, and that there is a crying need for it here, few will deny.

The use of caliche with a gravel top could be very cheaply laid. The expense to the city or property owners would be so small as to make little difference.

The United Commercial Travelers have adopted as a slogan:
 "Don't buy cheapness. Pay enough to get your money's worth. This is not a shoddy nation." This slogan might seem strange in depression times, but the fact remains that none of us are ever satisfied with "shoddy" goods, regardless of what we pay—and quality goods cannot be sold at a "shoddy" price. This applies to everything—from groceries to printing.

Many towns name the "most useful citizen" every year. Why would it not be a good idea to name the most useless citizen;
 the man who takes the most out of the community and puts the least back, the man who is not affiliated with any church or anything that is working for the community, but is always ready with caustic criticism for everyone who is taking part in the community life. This would give him a break for some publicity that might be very beneficial to himself and the community.

 week end.

Luther Willis of Briscoe was in McLean the first of the week.

Household Hints

By Betty Webster

Though the variety of gay china, delicately tinted glassware and graceful silver for the adornment of the dining table has never been more alluring, it is essential to the health of the family as well as to the appearance of the table that it be thoroughly clean.

No elaborate machinery is needed for the effective washing of tableware.
 Plenty of soap and hot water will do the work.

Making the Suds

Plenty of suds in the hot dish water are easily made by putting soap flakes in the dish pan and running piping hot water in to swirl into a creamy lather. A soap shaker will do the work but is a wee bit harder to use. Use a brush with a handle or a mop that is really clean for the actual washing.

Place the dishes upright in a wire rack and rinse with boiling water.
 Use no towel unless it is a clean, dry
 one. Make soap and heat do the work while you enjoy the safety that comes with sanitation and the pleasure of bright dishes and silver.

WASH YOUR FURNITURE

Even the finest furniture can and should be washed occasionally. A soft cloth should be used, lukewarm water and very mild soap. Only a small section must be done at a time and not to much water used.

Wash gently with soap, then wipe off with clear water. Dry carefully with a soft chamolis skin. Then rub with a cloth moistened with a little good furniture polish and polish with another cloth.

This treatment will keep furniture in good condition and help it to retain its finish.

DO YOU KNOW THAT:

1. White sauce that is lumpy may be made smooth by beating with a Dover egg beater while cooking?
2. Tapioca may be used satisfactorily as a thickening for gravy?
3. Boiled ham is much more delicious if, after boiling, it is wrapped in buttered paper and baked for an hour?
4. Flour quickly absorbs the odor of kerosene, and should, therefore, be kept away from it?
5. Dates may be cut easily if wet scissors are used?

GINGER FRUIT SALAD

1/3 cup of gelatin softened in 1/2 cup of cold water.
 2 1/2 cups of gingerale.
 1/3 cup of grapefruit juice.
 1 1/2 tablespoons of sugar.
 1/3 teaspoon of salt.
 2/3 cup of dates.
 2 apples.
 1/3 cup of preserved ginger.
 Celery.
 Soften gelatin over hot water and stirring rapidly, pour into the gingerale and add the sugar and salt. Stir until dissolved. Set aside to cool.
 Cut dates into strips; cut celery into half-inch pieces; dice the preserved ginger; dice the apples; pour the grapefruit juice over the apples to prevent discoloration. When the liquid begins to set, add the fruit.
 Pour into molds which have been tipped in cold water. Serve on lettuce with bottled salad dressing or cream mayonnaise.
 This recipe serves twelve.

ON HIS WAY

"I hear you stayed in a haunted house last night. What happened?"
 "About twelve o'clock a ghost came through the wall just as if there was no wall there."
 "And what did you do?"
 "I went through the opposite wall the same way."

THE BUDGET

Hubby and friend wife were going over the family budget. Frequently, he ran across an item, "H. O. K., $3.00." Another, "H. O. K., $7.00."
 "My dear," he said, "what is this H. O. K.?"
 "Heaven only knows," she replied.

NOT THEIR LINGO

Tourist (to Indian—in heart of reservation)—"White man glad to see red man. White man hopes big chief is feeling tip-top this morning."
 Indian (calling)—"Hey, Jake, come here and listen to this bozo. He's great."

"There goes the only woman I ever loved," commented the doctor who was chatting with the drug store man.
 "Why don't you marry her?" the drug man inquired.
 "I can't afford to," whispered the doctor, "she's my best patient."

The Road to Better Health

By Dr. William J. Scholes

TREATMENT OF BURNS IN CHILDREN

Any burn should be looked upon as something more than destruction of the skin and underlying tissues—nerve-endings, terminal blood-vessels, oil glands, sweat glands and other structures.

Were that the only effect of a burn it could never have a fatal issue. The results of a burn are expressed in far-reaching chemical changes in the blood, and unless these changes are forestalled, death is almost inevitable.

Another indirect cause of death in extensive burns, and a factor very frequently overlooked, is shock. The effect on the nervous system of a burn is enormous and supportive measures are just as important as local applications, if not more so.

The accumulation of poisons through out the system likewise contributes to a great extent to the unhappy termination of so many of these cases. The skin eliminates as much poisonous matter as the kidneys and bowels combined, and when it is sealed by the coagulation of its surface, this function is obrogated.

Takes More than "Simple Treatment"

It follows, then, that the treatment of a burn involves much more than simply "putting on" something to relieve the pain and promote healing.

Toxic products pile up quickly in a burned area and their absorption from this region must be prevented. One effective way of accomplishing this is by spraying the affected part with a solution of adrenalin. This produces a constriction of the blood vessels and reduces absorption to a minimum. In some cases a combination of novocain with adrenalin is used to good advantage.

Simpler means of bringing about such "fixation" of the burned and disintegrated tissue are the application of alcohol, tannic acid or aluminum acetate. Still another means which is available in any household is immersion of the patient in a 10% sodium bicarbonate bath. Protective coverings, like paraffin, are often employed as a mechanical means of "fixing" the destroying tissue cells.

First Aid Remedy Suggestions

The medical cabinet of every home where there are children should contain some first aid remedies for burns. For example, an ounce of picric acid crystals. This is inexpensive, takes up little space, and lasts indefinitely. Aside from the one objectionable feature that it discolors everything with which it comes in contact, I regard it as the best first aid application for burns.

A teaspoonful of the crystals should be dissolved in a pint of tepid water, gauze dressing saturated in it and applied over the burned area. The dressing is then covered with waxed paper, followed by a layer of cotton, the whole secured by a bandage. Every hour or two some of the solution should be poured under the waxed paper to keep the dressing moist.

Not overlooking my penchant for prevention—the best measure of all is to keep away from fire. The number of children burned to death annually in the United States is appalling. Deaths from such a cause are not only preventable, they are inexcusable!

SWEET FORGETFULNESS

"Now, girls," said the restaurant manager, "I want you all to look your best today. Add a little extra dab of powder to your cheeks and take a bit more care with your hair."
 "Why, what's the matter?" asked the head waitress. "Butter bad again?"
 "No," replied the manager, "the beef's tough."

REVENGE AT LAST

SENIOR NOTES

The date has been set as April 19 and 20 for the senior trip to Carlsbad Cavern. This was the most convenient date that could be chosen. To add to this fund, the seniors conducted a cake sale last Saturday and will have another next Saturday. The seniors are selling candy and gum at school this week. They are planning other ways to make money.

ALLISON DEFEATS TIGERETTES

The Allison girls team defeated the Tigerettes in a hard fought tilt in the local gymnasium last Friday night. Although the score was 35 to 25 in favor of the visitors, the game was interesting throughout. The Allison team quickly got a big lead with their "unguardable" forward. In the second half the Tigerettes gained steadily until the latter part of the game.

TIGERETTES TO PLAINVIEW

The Tigerettes went to Plainview Wednesday to enter the state A. A. U. Their first game was Wednesday afternoon, with Irene. There has not been any advance information as to the strength of their opponent received by Coach Loter.

The Tigerettes have high hopes of surviving at least the first two rounds. If they are fortunate enough to defeat Irene they will meet Dimmitt in the second round.

In case the Tigerettes are defeated in their first game they expect to enter the consolation bout and try to win that trophy.

Eleven basketball girls, their coach, Henry Loter, sponsor, Clara Dishman, and Mrs. T. A. Landers compose the party. They went in Mrs. Landers' and Mr. Cryer's cars. The tournament will end Saturday night and the Tigerettes hope to win enough games to enable them to remain for the four days.

TEACHERS ATTEND CONFERENCE

The faculty of McLean public schools will attend the Northwest Texas Teachers Conference, which will be held in Canyon on Friday and Saturday, March 22 and 23. The theme of the entire meeting will center around curriculum changes. Because of the above mentioned fact the schools will enjoy a holiday on Friday.

MUSICIANS ATTEND MUSIC FESTIVAL AT AMARILLO

Juanita Carpenter, pupil of Mrs. Willie Boyett, will play "Sonata in C Sharp Minor" by Hayden, in the Panhandle Music Festival which is to be held in Amarillo on Thursday and Friday of this week.

The McLean high school band, directed by Prof. Robt. C. Davidson, will enter their division in the festival. The McLean high school band has won in the C division for the past three years. Since the rules prohibit them, because of their winning for three consecutive years in that division, entering again in the C division, they are entering this year in the B division.

The following band members will enter solo contests: Jeff Coffey cornet, Hobby Appling baritone, Nell Jackson and Hobby Appling duet with trombone and baritone, all accompanied by Juanita Carpenter; Billy Cooke clarinet, Wanda Estes trombone, accompanied by Dorothy Sitter; Clint Doolen, Jr., trombone, R. L. Floyd cornet, accompanied by Emerald Floyd; Jack Bogan cornet, Jesse Dean Cobb cornet, accompanied by Willie Louelle Cobb.

BAND CONCERT

Prof. Robt. C. Davidson presented his contestants in a band concert in the high school auditorium on Monday evening, March 18. The band played all the pieces that will be played in the contest in Amarillo on March 21 and 22. The soloists and players of duets mentioned in the previous article played their selections. Each selection was played in an excellent manner and showed both talent and careful training, aided by much practice.

ASSEMBLY

Rev. Stout brought an inspirational and interesting message to the high school assembly at 11 o'clock on Tuesday. He selected the same text that Eld. Andrews used at the last assembly. "We are workers together with God."

The following soloists who will enter the music festival in Amarillo this week played their selections: Jeff Coffey, R. L. Floyd, Jack Bogan, Billy Cooke, and Clint Doolen, Jr.

HOME ECONOMICS NEWS

Two luncheons were served last week by section No. 1 of the home economics 1A class. Lydia Moore was hostess for one and Charles Cunningham for the second. The first menu was: salmon loaf, candied potatoes, creamed peas, cornbread and butter, fruit salad, angel food cake and lemon pie. The second was salmon loaf, lemons, creamed potatoes, biscuit, butter, buttered peas, peaches and whipped cream.

AGRICULTURE ITEMS

On Saturday, March 16, the McLean dairy and farm shop teams took all honors in the Miami contest. They received banners for highest rank and individuals. Bill Webb was highest individual in dairy, with T. B. Masterson and Kid McCoy next. In shop, George Chambers was highest with Charles Weaver and Glynn Pugh next. The livestock team was second with Arthur Ray Ledbetter second individual scorer. The poultry team was third. There were fifty boys competing.

MUSIC CLUB REPORT

The Music Lovers Club met in regular session Tuesday, March 19, with Mrs. Boyett as hostess. The minutes were read, and roll call was answered with a fact about Beethoven's life. Shirley Johnston gave a sketch of Beethoven's life. All the members who plan to go to the music festival in Amarillo this week played their pieces. Each of the other members played a memorized selection. Those that were voted upon as being the best players were: Shirley Johnston, Beth Evonne Floyd, Dorothy Sitter, Juanita Carpenter, Thelma Jean Dishman, Frances Hudzetz and Georgia Colebank.

HOW TO MAKE UP

Two little people, who couldn't agree. Were having a tiff, and were mad as mad could be.

They looked at each other in silence a while, And then a glad thought made one of them smile.

She said, "Say, you are not very mad, are you, Jess?"

"Well, no," said the other, "nor you, are you, Jess?"

"Then let us make up," little Jessie replied.

"Well, you be the one to begin," Bessie sighed.

But that didn't suit, so the tiff lingered still.

While the little disputants were showing their will.

Then, what do you think brought about sunny weather?

Why this—they agreed to begin both together.

—The Christian-Evangelist.

A CHILD'S LAXATIVE SHOULD BE LIQUID

(Ask any doctor)

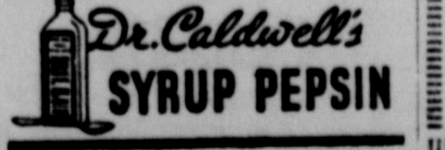

For your own comfort, and for your children's safety and future welfare, you should read this:

The bowels cannot be helped to regularly by any laxative that can't be regulated as to dose. That is why doctors use liquid laxatives.

A liquid laxative can always be taken in the right amount. You can gradually reduce the dose. Reduced dosage is the secret of real and safe relief from constipation.

The right liquid laxative dose gives the right amount of help. When repeated, instead of more each time, you take less. Until bowels are moving regularly and thoroughly without any help at all.

The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara, natural laxatives that form no habit—even in children. Its action is gentle, but sure. It will clear up a condition of biliousness or sluggishness without upset. Every druggist has it.

S. S. LESSON

By Rev. Cecil G. Goff
Pastor First Baptist Church

PETER DESCRIBES THE CHRISTIAN LIFE

Lesson text, 1 Peter 3:8-18. Golden text, 1 Peter 3:15—"Sanctify the Lord God in your hearts."

If the Christian life as described here by Peter was practiced faithfully by all those who claim by public profession (or better said, by church roll profession) to be Christians, their witness to the love, peace and power of Christ would in a short time win all men to faith in Christ. Peter in this passage is saying that it is one thing to profess to be a Christian and another to live that profession. And there is a definite need today for every professing Christian to realize that he must back his profession with the living and doing the commands of Christ.

vv. 8, 9. Here is a picture of beautiful fellowship—Dr. Hill's term for it is "fraternal living." Christians ought to be able to find a common mind among them, the mind of Christ being the common denominator of the thinking of His followers. Such a mind would lead to the virtues mentioned—compassion, love, pity, and courtesy. Christians are somewhat lacking in these virtues because their thinking is not determined by the sayings of Jesus. Such thinking would take away the oft aroused desire or tendency of dealing to a fellow human evil in return for evil received, or slander in return for insinuating gossip. The contrary, blessing for evil and prayer instead of slander, is the Master's way for His children.

vv. 10, 11. Dr. Hill, that great Christian humanitarian, has called these two verses the "recipe for good days." Peter is here quoting substantially from the 34th Psalm. How difficult to hold the tongue. If money is the root of all evil, the tongue comes next in line. Many things have been invented for pastimes, but none have been more adhered to than gossip. Happiness and good never come by that route. The next thing is that a man must hate evil. Evil always terminates in bitterness, and the man who harbors it in his heart spends his days in hatred and sorrow. The third thing is the search for peace. God is a God of peace and honors those who love peace. Good days come to those who will faithfully follow God's rule in their living.

v. 12. God is looking for the man who will do righteously. He watches over such men and cares for them. His ear is also inclined toward them to hear their prayers. Most men hope that God will hear their prayers, but here Peter is giving us a method of living that will insure our being watched and heard. How cold and difficult life must be for those who feel God's face turned away from them, God's ear deaf to their prayers. Such is the condition of all who do evil.

vv. 13, 14, 15. As a rule one need have no fear if he follows the right way of living. It will lead him out of trouble's path. But in case trouble comes to one who has been following the path of righteousness, he has a clear conscience, knowing that he is suffering unjustly. God has never promised that He will always withhold us from the hand of the persecutor, but He has promised that He will always give to His children the grace and the strength to withstand in the hour the evil one takes hold of them. There can never be a satisfactory answer to the question "Why do the righteous suffer?" on this earth, but God does make it possible that they may rejoice and be happy in their sufferings. A great portion of that happiness springs from the fullness in one's heart to be always ready to give a reason for the hope that holds the heart in the eternal love and power of the Master.

vv. 16, 17, 18. It behooves each Christian to so live, following the commands of his Savior, that those who speak evil of him will have reason to be ashamed of their speaking. The likelihood is that those who speak evil of Christians will not be ashamed of it here and now, but the day will come, if not here, hereafter, when their shame will be greater than they can well bear. Here we are introduced to Christ's way of looking at suffering. It is better to suffer for well doing than evil doing. Christ suffered for well doing that we might live lives of well doing through His name. The world feels that there is some reason for suffering for evil doing if the much-laughed-at and evaded law can catch up with its violators. However, only the worst violators should suffer. Peter is saying that it is shameful to suffer for evil doing. It is not shameful to suffer, but the shame is to come from the evil doing. There is no shame in suffering for well doing. This is not the standard of the world. The world sees the shame in the humility of punishment, not the deed itself. Christians should be especially careful that their lives contain no deeds that would merit suffering or punishment. The deed is the shame, not the punishment. Christ suffered—unjustly so. The result was everlasting glory, for Himself and all those that will trust Him and follow in His steps and keep His commands. It is not the profession that counts, but rather the living for Christ a Christ-like life.

Women Folks

By Floy Wynn

Just about the time we are mustering up courage enough to join up with the "Old Maids" Club, along comes Olin Hinkle in the Pampa Daily News and says: "And at last Scottish spinsters are banding together with a slogan of 'Pensions at 55.' We're not much afraid of this movement spreading to America. By the time our spinsters admit being 55 they will be eligible for regular old age stipends."

To you two young ladies (I judge to be between the ages of 14 and 15) whom I overheard wishing you were pretty, even said you'd give half of your life to be pretty . . . get an earful of what Estell Winwood says about pretty faces:

"The attractive woman of 40 can easily take a man away from a woman half her age if she chooses to do it. Men are becoming less romantic and more realistic in their conception of the 'ideal woman.'"

"Today they want, as companion, a woman who stimulates them, who is entertaining, amusing, witty, who has ideas and common sense and understanding. She must have something tangible to offer, something more than mere youth and a pretty face."

Now, stop wishing and wanting to give your years away, and get busy developing that brain of yours and create some individual individuality, if you ever expect to be the "ideal woman" in some man's life.

Two people have said to me this week, "Are you a teacher in the McLean school?"

I beg to apologize to you McLean school teachers, and will just repeat the story your superintendent, C. A. Crayer, told me the other day when I visited in his office. It goes like this:

Once upon a time there was a school teacher who became so bored with being called Prof. that he decided to go miles and miles away, change his manner of living and occupation and maybe he could overcome the name. So, he moved several hundred miles away, bought him some new clothes, thinking surely now he could go among men and not be recognized as Prof. He did very successfully . . . until one day, he decided to go into the court house and sit among the lawyers and judges and forever forget. So he walked up the walk into the court house and just inside there sat two little newsboys, and as he walked toward them, one youngster stood up quickly and said, "Stand, please, while we recite our geography lesson."

I wish: I were as happy and carefree as Mrs. W. B. Andrews; as calm as Mrs. Pete Fulbright; as contented as Mrs. Milton Banta; as delightful as Mrs. E. O. Dennis; as modest and sweet dispositioned as Mrs. Sam Hodges; as refreshing as Mrs. W. L. Campbell's voice over the telephone; as thoughtful and considerate as Mrs. W. A. Breining; as busy as Mrs. Leola Saunders; as accomplished as Mrs. W. E. Bogan; as accommodating as Marie Watt; as charming and delightful as Mrs. Witt Springer; as pleasant as Viola Smith; and liked to piece quilts as well as Grandma Hindman.

THE STORY

Mary Brown, daughter of David Brown, self-made multi-millionaire, obsessed with the idea that her personality is obscured by the fact that she is the child of the "rich David Brown," determines to make her way in life, discarding her father's wealth, and her own. She has a million dollars, legacy from her mother, which she insists her father invest in the "wildest dream" imaginable, and about which she must know nothing. She is a graduate of a college of engineering. Her father, secretly admiring her courage, humors her.

As "M" Brown, Mary secures a job on the Paradise Valley project near the village of Foggy Gulch. After a period of what seems to be the pinnacle of success, the "wild dream" peters out, and workers are notified that all activities must be suspended. Craig urges Mary to marry him at once, but she refuses, with visions of what he would do when he learned that she was the daughter of operator, but she gives it up in favor of the "rich David Brown."

Craig offers Mary a job as telephone operator of a man with a family, leaving a note for Craig. A month passes, and no word comes from him. Mary takes a job as assistant in an art shop. Craig secures funds and collects his old force to resume work on the project, but does not send for Mary.

Circumstances cause Mary to give up her job at the art store, promising to see the owner and buy it for herself.

She meets Craig, who follows her to one of the city's largest hotels. There he finds her in luxurious apartments, and she explains the situation, bitterly commenting on life's unfairness in that, after she has provided her personal ability, Fate would not allow her to succeed "on her own." He learns that it has been her money which has financed his "dream."

Suddenly he leaped to his feet. His face lighted, his eyes seemed afire. Enthusiasm made his voice vibrant and lilting. He was seized with an idea—and everything else was forgotten.

"What would I do with a million? Why, I have it, Mary! I have it!" "Tell me!" eagerly. This, this thawed-out creature was more like Denis!

"I'd take it to John Stark, of course, to start his engineering firm with. My capital, his experience. And, if I were a young engineer like Mary Brown, looking for an opening to success, I'd go into his department of design—"

"Denis! Denis!" Lilting rushed into Mary's voice, too. "That's it! That's it! Oh, Denis, you're a—"

A look silenced her. Why, she might say he was an angel, a sweet thing, even a darling! She had been known to make those extravagant assertions. No such nonsense now, said the forbidding look on his face.

"I'm a promoter," said his voice.

"Yes, of course." For just a moment Mary felt stepped upon. Then her exuberance returned. "And it takes a good promoter—to promote some other person's dreams! Come, snatching up her bag. 'Let's go to Mr. Stark's office!'"

She was being a little mad with Denis again! Then it came to her that they were leaving this isolation. But Denis wouldn't leave without telling her why he had ostracized her, would he?

Denis would. He was opening the door.

CHAPTER 15

What's a Million Dollars?

They dined out at Cliff house, Mary Brown, John Stark and Denis Craig. "And I thought I had matured enough to swing a man-size job!" Mary laughed ruefully to Stark when he had recovered from what he called his Cinderella attack. "But my mind was still in rompers. I thought that to succeed I must start in as you and dad did. I can't see why dad didn't tell me—"

"He did, my dear. In the most dramatic way. By showing you thru your own experiences. You had thought it a lot of twaddle if he had told you in words that the opportunities for pioneering today lie in quite different fields and under quite different conditions from those of fifty years ago. And—the experiences have been good for you."

"I don't deny it," Mary dared. "I've preened myself as Denny's silent partner." Surely, surely, something would make Denis stop looking at her as if she were merely a person with a million dollars to invest! Something would make him remember she was Mary! But not this.

"You probably mean that you relinquished it," she might take him lightly or seriously as she chose, "after you were convinced that this million was a loan to me, not a wind-fall."

Mary couldn't attempt to answer this. Had he forgotten the morning at the cabin when she proclaimed her undying faith in him—before she ever dreamed of his repayment?

"After your project is finished, Denis," Mary ventured, "maybe you could dream some dreams for Stark and Brown to materialize. Won't you perhaps ally yourself with us some time and in some way?"

Stark chuckled; grew daring himself in an effort to thaw out the iceberg remotely suggestive of Denis Craig.

"How's that, boy, for an answer to your claim that Mary had repudiated you by refusing two offers you said you made to keep her there?"

Two offers! Mary flushed painfully. Of course Mr. Stark didn't know that one had been that of becoming telephone central, the other of becoming Denny's wife.

Denis looked as if he could have murdered John Stark.

"I understand, now, of course, why Mary couldn't be telephone central. And her note explained her other refusal eloquently. She is entirely vindicated."

Mary hacked a morsel of steak savagely. Her note hadn't explained a thing! How could Denny be this way? Why was he determinedly standing aside to let her pass?

"By the way," Stark asked, "what were you doing in an art shop?"

Denny merely explored his salad. Mary answered. "He was looking for chintzes for Hope—for the cabin, having some silly compunction about using mine after I passed out of the picture."

"The cabin is closed," Denis stated without looking at her. "I'm planning on refurbishing it, and selling it."

"Oh, Denis!" The cry broke from her voluntarily, but it came from the very depths of her being. "You wouldn't—you couldn't—"

Denis held out his hand, then turned to offer it also to Mary.

"Good-bye," he said pleasantly, as if she were just some one he had chanced to meet at a dinner. "Good luck to the new firm. And I shall be glad to see your father at any time."

He was gone.

Mary leaned back in her chair, trying to look as if everything that mattered in the world hadn't gone with him. She must get herself together; must talk to John Stark. But John Stark was talking to her, his eyes narrowed, his bristling little mustache severe.

"Where's your courage, M. Brown? You aren't letting him go, are you?" "Do you mean that I should ask him—I ask him—"

"Make the idiot talk, Mary!"

Mary gave a wild frightened look at Stark, a desperate one at Denis. Denis's back just vanishing through the door, took a deep breath and flew after him.

"Denis!"

He turned, removed his hat with a faultless gesture.

"Denis, I want to talk to you."

"I don't believe there is anything to be said, is there, Mary?"

"I have a different slant on that."

"I'll miss my train."

"Miss it, then!" defiantly. "May I talk to you?"

With a gesture which signified that he couldn't be rude, he followed her around the cliff, beyond the glare of lights, to the beach below, and seated himself beside her on a bench facing the ocean.

Mary, attempting to speak, made a strange noise and camouflaged it as a cough. How did a millionaire ask a poor man to marry her—if he happened to love her yet? And how did she find out if he did love her yet, all shut up as he was inside himself, locked and barred and the key farfung?

"It Happens to Be Money, Not Leprosy, That I Have!"

"Denis," she cried impatiently, looking at the rigid figure well, very well, on his own side of the bench. "It happens to be money, not leprosy, that I have! And besides, you treated me as if I were a quarantine sign before you knew I had money. Why? Talk to me!"

"What's money?" truculently. But those were his lines, were they not? "And you should know that I can't give you friendship, Mary. I'm not made that way."

"What—?" she gave a preparatory swallow, then emitted the question—"what did you mean, Denis, when you said I wrote first?"

"Mean? What else was your note? I just can't do it, Denny?"

"But, you see now why I couldn't tell you—why I didn't want you to know I was—"

"I see no slightest reason in the world why you couldn't have told me everything—unless you meant that you were closing our chapter."

"You—you don't?" she gasped. She jumped up excitedly and ran to dabble an uncertain toe in the lapping water. Thinking. Trying to figure it out. A seal slipped into the water. She watched it, unconsciously; turned back suddenly to cry, almost joyously, "Can't you, Denny? Truly, can't you?"

He had arisen to pace the beach. Mary swung into step beside him. Half crying, but as if worlds were at stake, she demanded, "Will you stick to that, Denny?"

"Mary, where is all this getting to? I can't stand more of it."

"Will you?" she persisted, "stick to

I Want to Know

By D. A. Davis

Where in the world are all these newspapers, paper sacks, cardboard boxes, tin cans, and every kind of other imaginable that clutters up our streets coming from?

Folks, have any of you all stopped to take an eagle eye'd view of our streets right along our highway thru McLean? Did you ever see such a mess? I have been observing a little lately to notice where the tourists stop mostly when they do stop in McLean, and I notice most of them coming from the west pull up to the curb from the corner of Witt Springer's drug store, up to the city secretary's office. And folks, if that stretch of our streets is not a disgrace to us all, I want know the reason why. Last Friday morning I happened to be hanging around O'd Brindleface's office and a tourist car drove up, and when they got out of their car they had to wade through a pile of old dirty papers almost up to their necks. And folks, were they impressed? If you could have heard what one lady said about it as she gathered up her skirts and "waded through" that dump ground you would have another guess coming.

This condition, folks, simply is nothing but downright carelessness on the part of some of you business men and as much as I like you all, you simply should be ashamed to allow such conditions to exist.

And just take a bird's eye view of the landscape north of the highway coming east from town from the Church of Christ to the city limits along that draw, and look at the millions of papers that have caught on those weeds. They sure are waving a cheerful farewell to the tourists as they pass along. That place, folks, looks almost as bad as the city dump ground and is disgrace number two. But if you will drive over town and take a few observing looks you will find just plenty of places that are just as bad as these.

Folks, I'm proud of McLean. I love to live here better than in any town I ever lived in. I like the folks here and I intend to spend the rest of my life in McLean. It could be made one of the most beautiful little towns in the Panhandle if we would just all do our individual part toward beautifying it. There is no use of just a few trying it. It will take the united effort of ALL of us. And if all of us would do our part it would be an easy task. It's not very much trouble to fix up a place to burn your papers and trash and sack up your tin cans and haul them off every once in a while, and it's not very much trouble to plant a few flowers, trees and shrubs and keep the weeds cut, and you folks that have cows to stake out, instead of staking them with a twine string, get a good rope or chain and don't leave the staking too much to your little boys. See that your cow does not get loose, for when she does it sure does make your neighbor good and mad to have old Jersey come tearing across his well kept lawn or precious garden. It's not right, you owners, to be so careless and inconsiderate of others sure enough, so folks, don't let your cows get loose and just simply ruin somebody's flowers, garden or trees, because honestly, it is enough to make the best man or woman that ever lived mad enough to cuss.

And you folks that have dogs. Folks, there is nobody that loves dogs any better than I do, but I ain't got no dog and don't intend to as long as I live in town. It simply ain't no place for dogs. And a dogged dog can carry more old bones and carcasses of every kind right onto your neighbor's front yard and run and play right on the most beautiful and attractive part of a lawn and simply ruin it.

Of course an old hen with a bunch of little chickens are as harmless as the can be. They simply won't go near a nice freshly worked flower bed or garden. You can't hog tie an old hen with chickens in a flower bed or garden bed of young tender lettuce and radishes. Just go ahead and turn them out on your neighbors; they won't mind an old hen and her chickens a bit. In fact, when you do such a thing your neighbor will come right over and almost hug you to death.

Let's clean up our town, folks, and then put our reasoning powers to work and quit imposing on our neighbors. Let's make McLean a dandy place for us all to live in and enjoy.

SALVE FOR TREE CUTS

The ideal wound dressing for trees ought to last several years, and contain an antiseptic strong enough to prevent growth of parasites, yet not enough poison to injure or prevent growth of bark. One of the best, although not the ideal dressing, is made by mixing dry powdered Bordeaux mixture with linseed oil to make a thin paste that can be applied with a brush. This dressing lasts fairly well and does not harm the tree.

FLOWER TONIC

When cut flowers are put in copper vases, they remain fresh from 1 to 3 days longer. New York State College has found. This is due to the fact that some copper dissolves in water and hinders the growth of bacteria which cause flowers to wilt.

Simple Life

By A. T. Wilson

Twenty or thirty years ago you saw a good many articles on the simple life. I don't know whether they believed in what they wrote or whether they were like some doctors' medicine, made to give and not to take. Anyhow, few there were that took them, for in the last twenty years life has become as complicated as an interlocking directorate in the industrial world.

It's an almost impossible task to live a simple life at present, and a person living simply is ill at ease, for if he goes to bed early and rises early he is out of time with the other cylinders on each side of him; and if he goes to town early to buy, he finds the stores still closed up; and if he neither smokes, drinks or swears he will get into complicated company that does, and it takes all the joy out of life and all he can say is "Woe is me, for I am all undone." I actually saw a gentleman of refinement get up and leave a big bean banquet because of his inability to handle the enormous quantities of second hand smoke. I once knew a simple living farmer who moved to town and started to paying rent, and on top of that his cow went dry and he ran out of meat and there was no work to be had. He finally said to his wife, "Let's get out of here, for I am sweating blood," and he went back to his farm as the crow flies.

You can see some people returning to the simple life, on the roads and streets with picks and shovels, instead of complicated modern machinery, but this kind of simple life is absolutely sure to bring on complications later.

Our laws and courts have become as complicated as the labyrinth of Grecian mythology which was so complicated that when a person went into it he had to wind up a thread to find his way in, and wind up another to find his way out; and to a simple living person they look like a Gordian knot which nobody could untangle.

Lots of old simple living fellows have been living with the same woman for over 50 years, but lots of complicated, modernized fellows have had several changes of venue and are yet unsatisfied.

You can walk down the street and see a woman who has lived a complicated life, with a hideously painted and disfigured Egyptian mummy face, with nothing natural about her but her curiosity; and then along comes a simple living woman with a plain but beautiful face, and she is sure restful to the eyes, and she is natural and constant as the north star and Panhandle sunshine. Then the cigarette dude with a silly grin blended into an idiotic expression comes into view and fades away like a soap bubble, and is replaced by a sober, thoughtful, simply dressed and dignified man who politely lifts his hat to the queenly woman, while the dude persues his favorite phantom.

Those articles on simple life made a deep impression on my mind and I have learned to enjoy the simple life, and am far better satisfied with it than most folks are with their complicated, high tension methods of living, and from here on out I am letting the rest of the world go by if they will but let me keep my simple philosophy of life which I can understand and enjoy, and like Hercules I choose simple Duty instead of complicated Pleasure.

Text: "Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is."—Hebrews 10:25a.

WHY GO TO CHURCH?

In the Old Testament we read of people gathering together for public worship. It was very necessary. The prophets preached to them of the will of the most holy God, of His goodness and mercy, of His love toward sinners. Sin was emphasized as a dreaded universal malady. Cure for that ailment was also stressed—the Word of God, acknowledgement of sin, and repentance.

John the Baptist also preached repentance while preparing the way for the Messiah, Jesus Christ. People came out to hear him. They assembled themselves together to hear God's messenger. It was necessary for the people to get together to hear sermons and to enjoy fellowship.

People like to get together for the sake of comradeship and fellowship. It is something they need. The same holds true for meeting at church.

God foresaw this and had the people meet together in the tabernacle and later, in the temple and synagogues—houses of prayer.

In the New Testament we read of Christians meeting in homes and places of worship for public confession of their Christian faith, for prayer, for the hearing of the doctrine of the Apostles and for the "breaking of bread," the Lord's Supper.

A wide awake and broad-minded person must admit that this cannot be done if everyone stays at home. To enjoy these benefits Christians must get together. They are not to forsake the assemblies of God, the true churches where the old Gospel is preached truthfully in all boldness and sincerity.

The Christians were taught that the final day was approaching and thus they had no time to waste. They got together and listened to sermons, sang hymns and psalms of praise; they admonished and exhorted one another; they fostered brotherly love and encouraged good works pleasing to the Lord. Could they do this if they all stayed at home, if they forsake the assemblies?

The admonition holds good for us also, "Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner

Even today in our country many are of the opinion that they can get along without the church. Out of about one hundred twenty million people in the United States, about sixty-eight million are without church connection.

God grant that the remaining millions of souls will also wake up from their spiritual sleep and find their way into a true Christian church.

TRUE DETECTIVE STORY by Vance Wynn

The Man Who Cut the Wires

SOME years ago Pittsburgh was much wrought up over the robbery of a safe belonging to the Union Express company.

One hundred thousand dollars was taken from the receptacle, and no one knew how it had been done.

The safe came into the Union station in the usual manner, locked and guarded, and was conveyed to the office of the company in the custody of armed men.

But the messenger, who was supposed to be in charge of the valuable property, could not be found.

That fact, however, gave a clue upon which the authorities were able to start an investigation.

Thomas Furlong, one of the ablest railroad detectives in the United States, was put upon the case, and the first question he asked was the name of the messenger who had charge of the safe when it left the other end of the line.

That was easily answered. The man was J. J. Bingham, not only a reliable employee, but a brother of the superintendent of the express company.

"Find Bingham," said Furlong, curtly.

He was found very readily at his home and was just as much astonished to hear of the robbery as the officials had been.

But he was able to give Furlong some significant information.

He said that he had received a telegram the day before from his brother, George Bingham, which directed him to look out for the new messenger, "J. C. Brooks."

The telegram added: "Meet him at Templeton, en route. Turn over cash and valuables to him and take receipt for same. Then report to superintendent at Parkersburg, who will give you further orders."

Obedience to orders was ingrained in J. J. Bingham, and he did exactly what he was told to do in the telegram.

The suspicion that anything was wrong never occurred to him.

The men in the service were used to being shifted at short notice.

He did not find the superintendent at Parkersburg in his office, and had gone home to change his clothes.

The telegram was a forgery.

Detective Furlong made his decision quickly. He determined to go to Templeton to get the lay of the land.

While he was walking around the station he came across a little girl, sitting on a log.

He got into conversation with the child and she remarked that he was not the first stranger that had been in town in the last two days.

Questioned further, she said another man had been there and had torn a sheet of paper into little bits and thrown them behind the station.

By rare good fortune Furlong found the scraps of paper. He got down on his hands and knees and gathered them, and after that he went into the station, and by the use of magnifying glass and a fresh sheet, managed to paste them together.

The result was a blank check on a bank at Carlisle.

But that was not all. While Furlong was doing his Sherlock Holmes act he found a little pocket telegraph instrument.

In itself it meant nothing.

In connection with other things it meant everything.

The detective hastened to Carlisle, where he continued his inquiries.

He talked to the station agent and wanted to know if there was a telegraph operator in town.

There was one by the name of Macauley and only a few days before he had been inquiring where he was likely to obtain a small instrument.

It was less than a week Furlong had reconstructed the whole affair.

Macauley, a shiftless character, needed money.

He conceived the idea of robbing the express company.

Getting his telegraph instrument and ascertaining the name of the messenger who would be on duty with the safe of valuables, he had gone to a lonely spot in the wood near Kittanning.

He cut the wire and connected it with his pocket instrument.

He sent the telegram to Bingham, met him at the appointed place and then proceeded with the safe to Pittsburg.

Having been given the keys, he opened the safe en route and rifled it of the valuables.

Then he locked it and accompanied it to the supply city and saw it loaded on the express wagon and started on its destination duly guarded.

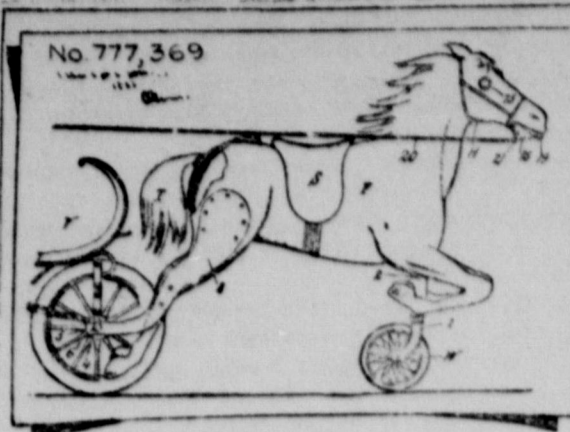

Before reaching the office he slipped away and disappeared with the loot.

The search for him went almost around the world, and he died before being brought to trial.

The Bob-White

The bob-white is an American percid bird, especially the common quail of the northern United States or the partridge of the southern section. They are about ten inches long, the lower breast and abdomen are white or buff, barred with black; the males have white throats and a white band over the eyes as well as a black crown, and bands on the upper breast and under the eyes.

LANCASTER SPEAKS TO BAPTIST BROTHERHOOD

Rev. C. E. Lancaster, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Pampa, and Deacon Jake Erwin of the same church, were guests at the Baptist brotherhood banquet held last Thursday evening, at the McLean church, with Rev. Lancaster making the address of the evening.

The speaker talked on "Man's Place in the Kingdom," stressing the stewardship relation to kingdom affairs.

Rev. L. H. Shockley gave the invocation, Jesse J. Cobb played the piano, T. A. Landers led the singing, and Rev. Cecil G. Goff said the benediction.

The time of meeting was changed to Thursday night after the first Sunday in each month.

Elmer James and E. R. Love were presented as visitors. There were 26 men present.

HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

"A place for everything and everything in its place," said Miss Ruby M. Adams, to the McLean Home Demonstration Club, meeting with Mrs. J. H. Wade, the first Friday in March.

"A clothes closet that has a place for everything is easier to keep. A garment cover made of chintz does not allow dust to penetrate inside of the cover." Members answered roll call with "Here Comes the Bride," describing her wedding dress. Some of the members also showed pictures.

Mrs. John B. Vannoy displayed a white organdy dress with a train trimmed in ruffles. The yoke was of lace, and lace medallions trimmed the waist. The sash was made of satin ribbon. Mrs. Vannoy also had white lisle hose which cost 40 cents.

The eleven members present each described her wedding dress, ranging in date from 1902 to 1927.

The second meeting of the club was held on March 15 at the home of Mrs. C. Cupell.

Mrs. Claude Robinson gave a report of the reporters school, also a demonstration on the appreciation of beauty.

"Artificial flowers should not be used, as we cannot imitate nature," said Mrs. Robinson. She also stated that a gaudy vase would detract from the flowers.

Those attending were: visitors, Mrs. Carl Wood and Reba Smith; members, Mesdames Claude Robinson, J. R. Williams, John B. Vannoy, E. J. Gething, Luther Petty and J. H. Wade.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Watkins, accompanied by their son, E. E. Watkins, and family of Borger, attended the fat stock show in Fort Worth this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther Petty accompanied Mrs. W. E. James of Alanreed to Erick, Okla., for a visit Sunday and Monday.

Harold Prather of Erick, Okla., visited Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Dennis Sunday.

Mrs. T. A. Landers and daughter, Marie, are in Plainview at the basketball meet, this week.

JOHN FLOYD CAMPBELL CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

Honoring her son, John Floyd, who was eight years old Saturday, Mrs. W. L. Campbell entertained many of his little friends at a birthday party in her home Saturday afternoon, between 3 and 5 o'clock. Games of various kinds were enjoyed during the afternoon. Cake and cocoa, with favors of Easter egg candy, were served.

Enjoying this very delightful party were: L. E. Carter, Kenneth Goodman, Maurice and Maxine Goodman, Gerald Glenn, Melvin Sole, Pat Wiggs, Ruth Strandberg, Laura Ruth Glenn, Charlotte Bodine, Jo Ann Campbell, Mary Katherine Brooks, Geneva Rowe, Marcella, Wanda, Nan, and John Floyd Campbell.

BAPTISTS ELECT WEBB DISTRICT MISSIONARY

Rev. O. K. Webb, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Memphis, was elected district missionary at a meeting of the executive board held in Pampa Friday.

Rev. D. D. Sumrall, former missionary of the 22 Panhandle counties, has resigned to accept the pastorate of the First Baptist Church of Wellington.

Rev. Webb has not signified his acceptance as yet.

MEMPHIS SCHOOL BOARD QUILTS

Memphis, March 19.—Unable to agree upon the selection of a superintendent for the Memphis public schools to replace H. A. Jackson, resigned, the entire school board tendered its resignation Monday night and called a mass meeting to make nominations for their successors.

The board was presented with a petition of a little over 100 names asking that the present principal be elected, but a previous action of the board that no one at present connected with the schools be considered, was sustained.

The following have been in McLean this week, attending the bedside of their father, W. C. Phillips: Mr. and Marcus Phillips of Kingsville, Mrs. W. T. Winston of Weatherford, Mrs. T. A. Bodine of Tucumcari, N. M., Mrs. W. C. Collier of Amarillo, T. C. Phillips of White Deer.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Johnston left this week for their home in Fort Worth after several months' stay in McLean. They were accompanied by Mrs. Scott Johnston and son, Elton, who returned to McLean Tuesday.

Little Nancy Wilson, small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Wilson, is quite ill this week from pneumonia.

Boyd Meador returned Wednesday from Lubbock, where he visited his brother who is in a Lubbock hospital.

Mrs. Jeanne Chapman of Alanreed is a new reader of The News.

METHODIST S. S. CLASS PARTY TUES.

Members of the intermediate Sunday school class of the First Methodist Church enjoyed a class party Tuesday night in the basement of the church, with Henry Loter as sponsor. Games of various kinds were the diversion of the evening. Refreshments were served to something like twenty boys and girls.

FFA BOY SELECTS CALF

By Dr. A. A. Tampke Last Tuesday Maurice Wilkins selected and started feeding his project calf for the 1936 shows. This is a senior calf from the J. S. Morse Hereford herd. Maurice has the distinction of being the first F. F. A. student of the McLean community to select his calf project. He plans to also buy a junior Aberdeen Angus calf in May.

Other boys will be very busy selecting their calves in the near future. It is anticipated that many more calves will be fed by students next year than McLean has ever had.

LLOYD HUNT TEACHING

Lloyd Hunt taught in Mrs. Jim Back's place at the grade school this week, Mrs. Back being absent on account of the illness of her son, J. D.

TOO TRUE

"What are you children playing?" asked mother one day. "We're playing church," replied Jackie. "How nice!" said mother; "but worshippers shouldn't whisper in church." "We know that, mother," said Jackie. "but we're the choir."
