NEWSPAPERS ALWAYS WIN WITH REAL SUPERIORITY

"Nothing can take the newspaper's place in the service that it renders to the people," pointed out F. W. Hartford, editor of the Portsmouth (N. H.) Herald.

"Never in the history of the country has the newspaper played such an important part in public affairs as it does today. We have tested other means of communication and dissemination of news, and as a result the newspaper has increased in value and importance. Here we have a record of events in every town of any size. After this record is made it becomes a reference for future generations. Hence, nothing can take its place in the service that it renders to the people. It is the balance wheel in state and community.

"It's value as an advertising medium is unquestioned. One does not forget the imprint of advertising carried in the newspaper. It is approved because it is there as a real part of the newspaper and these advertisements are enjoyed rather than objected to. It is not jammed down the throat of the reader but is there for his or her enjoyment and advantage.

"Whenever an honest test has been made of other mediums, the newspapers have easily won through their superiority."

Lion District Governor Pitts at Local Club

County Judge Pitts of Lubbock, district governor of Lions International, spoke to the local club Wednesday noon.

Gov. Pitts reviewed the activities of the local club, complimenting the club on being one of the most active of its size in the district.

Gov. Pitts stressed the work of the club among boys and girls and underprivileged children, saying that while civic affairs are important, the training of youth is more important. In talking of the work of Lions International among the blind, the speaker told of the difficulty of helping those who are not physically blind, but are selfishly blind, who cannot see beyond their own interests. "It is difficult to help citizens of this type to broaden their vision until they can include the needs of others within their horizon."

Gov. Pitts said that depression has caused only those men who have the interest of others at heart to remain in service clubs. Service clubs are now composed of men who are living in the future and not in the past; men who are trying to render unselfish service to the community.

The speaker paid his respects to Governor Alfred, who is a Lion, in his efforts for law enforcement and the club adopted a resolution endorsing the governor.

Boss Lion C. O. Greene presented the speaker and also announced that the American Legion Post had voted $10.00 to the entrance parks, being the first organization to assist in the work.

Lion Tamer Cray introduced Supt. R. B. Fisher of the Pampa schools, County Supt. W. B. Weathered and Carson Loftus of Pampa as guests.

The next meeting of the club will be held on Tuesday night, with the international director present for a zone meeting and ladies' night program.

A very clever and unique poem, appropriate to the occasion was given by Mrs. Norman Johnston. Mrs. Leslie Jones talked on "Texas Caverns," stressing most Longhorn Cavern near Burnet.

Following the program, a parliamentary drill, under the leadership of Mrs. Johnston, was given and each member present took part.

CROWS CONGREGATE HERE

According to R. H. Wilson, some 3,000 crows have been seen at different times on his farm recently. The birds do not roost here, but it is thought that dynamiting of their roosts in Wheeler county is causing them to range in this direction.

Next Week Is Annual Clean up Campaign

Next week is annual spring clean-up week, according to action taken by the city council at a recent meeting.

Citizens are urged to clean up all vacant lots, back yards and alleys about their homes, placing the rubbish so that the city trucks can get it.

No charge will be made for hauling rubbish during the week, the city furnishing the hauling free.

The general clean-up is ordered not only from a standpoint of civic pride but from a health and safety from fire hazards viewpoint.

All clubs and organizations of the town are interested and cooperating in the campaign, and it is hoped that full cooperation from the citizenship may be had.

FIRE PREVENTION OBJECT CLEAN-UP

By Boyd Meador, City Fire Marshal

There are many reasons why the spring clean-up campaign this year should receive the enthusiastic support of every man, woman and child. First, because the fire prevention clean-up campaign this year is of particular importance, as it can be combined with general welfare work and be of particular benefit to the unemployed. Second, because every dollar in property destroyed by fire, which so frequently is the result of "careless" housekeeping in the home and in the average place of business, is a serious drain upon our present economic condition. Third, every citizen should have a wholesome pride in his home city, its streets, playgrounds, parks and buildings. Homes and surroundings freshly painted, with well kept lawns and gardens, increase property values, and intensify community interest. Cleanliness creates cheer, courage and confidence. Fourth, because in the past ten years entirely too many of our citizens have lost their lives due to carelessness in their daily use of fire, and the preservation of human life is an important matter.

The year 1934 established a new low for fire losses since 1919. Let us all put forth every effort to break the record again during 1935.

Reported.

The McLean high school band attended the Music Festival in Amarillo Thursday and Friday. This is the fourth consecutive year that the band has entered this contest. Having won first place in Class C three years in succession, the band was not eligible in that class this year, so entered the Class B division. The places won in this division were: Hereford first, McLean second, Tulla third. The bands placing first and third were composed entirely of high school students, while more than fifty per cent of the McLean band members were grammar school students from the 4th, 5th, 6th and 7th grades.

Immediately preceding the contest, several members presented their director with a new baton.

In the instrumental contests, Jesse Dean Cobb, cornet, won first place in his class, receiving the highest grade made in the entire instrumental solo contest. R. L. Neil Jackson and Hobby Appling won the trombone duet contest for ages 15 to 17. Hobby, playing the euphonium, also won first place in his age class. Clint Doolen, Jr., won the 10-11 trombone contest. Jack Bogan, cornet, and Billy Cooke, clarinet, encountered strong competition. They each made a grade of excellent. Jeff Coffey, cornet, was forced by illness to withdraw from both the band and solo contests.

The band as it entered the contest was composed of the following students: cornets, Jesse Dean Cobb, R. L. Floyd, Jack Bogan, J. C. Walker, James Edwin Finley, Joe Cooke; clarinets, L. E. Flowers, Spencer Sitter, Juanita Carpenter, Gwynne Carpenter, Dorothy Sitter, Billy Cooke, Vester Lee Smith, Dewayne Cassidy, Frank Wharton, Juanita Mae Davidson; saxophones, Clyde Carpenter; melophones, Bobby Nelle Davidson, Billy Bert Sanders, Glenda Landers, Zane Smith; baritone, Hobby Appling; trombones, Neil Jackson, James Massay, Donald Butler, Clint Doolen, Wanda Estes, Roy Owens, Robert Smith; basses, James Emmett Cooke, Forrest Stout; drums, Marle Laniers, Arthur Ledbetter.

Butler, Ben Jackson, Z. E. Smith, J. C. Walker; Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Massay, and R. L. Appling. Other friends attending the class B audition were: Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Watkins, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Watkins and son, Walter Charles; and Miss Dorothy Jean St. Clair.

Rev. W. B. Andrews won first place, Miss Eunice Stratton second, and Miss Fern Landers third place in the student lamp contest that closed last week.

A lot of people are ready to help a good thing along—by doing the cheering.

Most of us prefer the cheerful liar to the absolutely reliable man who tells the truth that hurts.

The local merchant who buys his printing at home is practicing what he preaches and is helping to maintain community effort. He deserves the support of all who believe in home institutions.

The city clean-up campaign is one that all of us can endorse and assist in. Regardless of how careless we may become during the year, during the campaign we can put out just a little extra effort and add our bit toward making our town a better place in which to live.

It seems strange to old timers to have a city election imminent without the usual excitement of pulling for different candidates but such spirits of intense interest and then forgetting everything about city affairs until another election, is not for the best interest of any of us.

Men who consent to run for city office must face the possibility of losing time, money and friends, and they need cooperation in their efforts for the town, in place of unjust criticism.

SAFETY AWAY FROM HOME

The family of a prominent motor car and airplane manufacturer, has been sent to England to save its members from the threats of kidnapers. The attention of the lowest denizens of the underworld had been shown in a number of averted attempts in recent months and it is said to have been on the advice of police that the manufacturer sent his family out of the country for protection.

There is a lot to think about in that situation. It contains a commitment for England, where people of all degrees are safe, but nothing pleasing to Americans in its intimation that persons of any means are increasingly unsafe in the United States.

HUMUS HOLDS WATER

Soil rich in decayed organic matter will hold twice as much moisture as soil in which the humus has been depleted by continuous cropping.

We know of men, says the New Richmond News, who are paying from $2 to $5 a quart for mighty inferior hard liquor, who come into this establishment and haggle over the price of a wee bit of superior quality printing. Aren't folks funny?

"IN MY play, 'The Perfect Fool,' a few years ago, I performed what the public calls a mind-reading stunt.

"Before I began my act, I always made sure to tell the audience that I did not believe in mind reading, that my act was the result of four years' study and mental training. I had to memorize, to develop a code with my assistant, of 2,100 words, and to know the names of all famous generals, the capitals of all countries, the names of steamships, etc.

"One evening after I blindfolded, had been reading the numbers on bills for people, I heard, in the creaky tones of an old gentleman's voice, some one challenging me defiantly.

"You can't tell me what I have in my pocket."

"An elderly gentleman in the audience says I cannot tell what he has in his pocket," I repeated.

"How do you know I am elderly?" he retorted.

"You, sir, I began in a portentous voice, 'have in your pocket a passport to Europe . . . Your name is W. L. Cowen; you are sailing late tonight on the steamship—'

"In the meantime, I was receiving by code, from my assistant in the aisle, the word Skythia. I knew that there had been some error, that there was no steamship by that name. As I groped for the right word, there flashed through my mind the headlines of the morning papers: 'Steamship Scythia makes maiden voyage today.'

"I finished the sentence, 'You are sailing on the steamship Scythia.'

"Because I was annoyed at the man's antagonism to my work, I added:

"Moreover, you are going to have a bad voyage and you will never make another trip to Europe."

"Four weeks later I received a letter from England. It read:

"We, the undersigned, take the privilege of writing to you. We believe this to be a matter of world importance.

"We were in the audience the night you told a man that his name was W. L. Cowen and that he was sailing for Europe on the steamship Scythia. We, too, were sailing on the Scythia; we were being sent to England to do psychic research for the University of Pennsylvania.

"After your performance, we went to see if there was a Mr. Cowen on the boat's passenger list. We found there was not, but the next morning we saw his name on the additional list. That evening, we wanted to speak with him to discuss your reading; but he was sitting at the captain's table, and we decided to wait for a more opportune time. The following morning he was found dead in his cabin.

"We want to know if you had a psychic message that he would never take another trip to Europe.

"I put the letter down. To this day, any time I hear of anyone sailing to Europe, the thought of that coincidence comes to me and makes me shudder."

GRAFT IN PUBLIC AFFAIRS? YES, IN PRIVATE ONES, TOO

The popular suspicion that public affairs are spotted here and there with graft is no doubt justified in part; but it's just as safe a bet that there's no more of the sub-rosa in public affairs than there is in private ones. Think it over a bit, and see if you don't agree.

Did you ever hear of a couple of salesmen ganging up on a hard customer? Or a farmer trying to get a higher bid out of a hog-buyer by telling him of a better offer from another quarter?

Or a couple of neighbors getting together to fool an insurance adjuster?

Perhaps you know it's rather common practice to try to fool the assessor on the value of your property—or did you think you were the only one?

Maybe you have heard of some attempts at sharp practice in the recent corn-hog sign-up.

Sometimes you hear of children being told by parents to falsify to their age when buying theatre or circus admissions; or railroad fares.

Ages of horses and cows are not always correctly given when a sale is involved. Eggs not entirely fresh used to be sold to the grocers without hurting the seller's conscience, hardened to the practice.

Doctors, it is said, sometimes have little agreements among themselves regarding a wealthy client; lawyers ditto. Merchants sometimes incorrectly describe the merits of their goods.

In fact, I can think of "graft" possibilities in all lines but the newspaper business, and I'll let you do the thinking on that.

Yes, there's doubtless a little graft here and there in public affairs because public affairs are run by people just like you and me.—Pres., Osage, Iowa.

Fresh, pure air . . . constantly circulated at just the right temperature and humidity to keep your food in perfect condition. That's modern air-conditioned refrigeration with ice!
Odorless, Tasteless Refrigeration!
Odorless . . . because the constantly changing air freshens the interior of the modern ice refrigerator, thus removing strong odors. This air-conditioning process makes it possible to place, in open vessels, butter or milk, in the same storage space with onions, cabbage, or other foods with a distinctive odor. The air-washing effect of the melting ice carries all odors out of your refrigerator. Each food retains its own individual flavor. Ask your ice dealer to demonstrate this new method of refrigeration to you.

THE TAX EXEMPTION FALLACY
The surest way to achieve tax reduction would be to spread the burden evenly, based on the capacity to pay—without exemptions.
Tax exemption for persons with incomes in the lower brackets has long fooled a substantial part of the public into believing it is not taxed at all. It creates the idea that the cost of government is being borne by wealthy individuals and by big business.
No idea, no belief, could be less justified. There aren't that many wealthy individuals—and there aren't that many big businesses. The great part of the cost of government—federal, state, county and municipal—is paid by the people who think they are tax exempt. Instead of paying their money direct to the tax collector's office, they pay it indirectly in higher rents, more expensive food, clothing and entertainment and everything else. That big business which is so highly taxed, for example, is the business you patronize when you buy groceries or shoes or insurance or transportation or something of the kind—and the cost of the commodity or service includes the taxes the business pays. In other words, the business simply acts the middleman—it collects money from you and passes it on to the government.
Today the tax problem is an intensely personal issue to every American. It stands in the way of employment, of wage increases, of industrial expansion, of productive investment. It is a barrier to recovery. It is going to become a bigger prob-

JUNIOR REPORT

The junior class is sorry to report the withdrawal of three of its members, Kivie Ayer, Velma Honey and Cecil Brock.

F. F. A. BOYS ACTIVE

James Lee Rice secured three Hereford calves from Bar Lo Ranch and two calves from J. M. Carpenter, which makes a total of five calves for his feeding project.

Billy Wilson has selected two calves up to date, one from Bar Lo Ranch and one from Boyd Reeves. He expects to feed ten calves for next year's shows.

F. F. A. BOYS PUT KNOWLEDGE TO PRACTICE

Last week Mr. Horace Brooks called on Mr. Tampke at the high school to treat a sick cow. Mr. Tampke was busy and could not leave, so he suggested that two F. F. A. students go treat the cow.

McLEAN WINS HONORS IN MUSIC FESTIVAL

The piano honor roll is unusually large this month because of the number who entered the contests at the Panhandle Music Festival at Amarillo last week and received certificates for acceptable playing.

A division, 90-100, Patsy Ruth Hardendorf, Ruth Strandberg, Bernadine Breining, Marcella Campbell, Thelma Jean Dishman, Ermadell Floyd, Johnnie Mae Scott.
B division, 85-90, Beth Evonne Floyd, Vada Appling.
C division, 80-85, Frances Hudzettz, Georgia Colebank, Dorothy Sitter, Juanita Carpenter, Jessie Mae Lynch.

Honor roll for the Music Lovers Club is: Vada Appling, Juanita Carpenter, Thelma Jean Dishman, Georgia Colebank, Beth Evonne Floyd, Erma-del Floyd, Anabeth Gatlin, Frances Hudzettz, Jessie Mae Lynch, Catherine Patterson, Ruth Kratzer, Johnnie Mae Scott, Dorothy Sitter.

BAND WINS SECOND PLACE

The McLean band won second place in the contest in Amarillo in the P. H. Festival. They were defeated by Hereford. Many compliments were heard on the ability and training of the McLean band.

SENIOR REPORT

Another food sale was given by the seniors Saturday, and this one also met with a great deal of success. The seniors have received a letter from a tourist camp in Carlsbad, N. M., with their prices and all accommodations they can offer a large group. The prices are as low as we can expect to obtain and they offer the best in modern camps, so the seniors voted to stay overnight at this camp.

BASKETBALL REPORT

The Tigerettes were not successful at all on their trip to the State A. A. U. tournament at Plainview. Their first defeat was by Irene, the third place winners of the tournament, with a score of 17-53. The Tigerettes then had hopes of bringing home the consolation trophy, but were defeated by Dimmitt in the next round with a score of 28-42. Dimmitt was not defeated again, so they won the consolation.

Although the Tigerettes did not win either of their games, they had "bushels" of fun. They first night they were there they went to see some of the other teams play. The next night was their night to play, but they spent most of the day seeing the town. We are sure that there was very little that escaped the eyes of any of the girls, as well as that of the coach.

All of the girls were assigned to rooms in exceptionally nice homes and enjoyed their visit immensely. The basketball squad of '35 and '36 hopes to enter the A. A. U. next year and make a worth while showing. The girls came home with heavy hearts because of their defeats, but with a great many tales to tell on their roommates.

HOME ECONOMICS NEWS

Use Dogs in Ghost Hunt in "Haunted" Farm House

Every night half a dozen armed men, accompanied by dogs, watch at a 100-year-old farmhouse, South Roston Hall, near Louth, Lincolnshire, England, because mysterious things had been reported happening there. The dogs are present because it is believed that canine senses are more sensitive to supernatural manifestations than are the senses of human beings.

Here are some of the strange, and at present unexplained, incidents which have occurred: Room thrown into confusion; food taken from the pantry; soot thrown down the chimneys; large holes made through a ceiling, and a bed slept in.

A young woman asserts that twice she has seen an "animal having a pointed nose and bushy tail." She fainted when she saw it. One theory is that an escaped monkey, hiding in a false roof of the house, is responsible, but a search failed to locate either a monkey or any other intruder.

The master of the East Lincolnshire Otter Hounds took his dogs and a terrier into the roof. Apparently scenting something, the terrier barked furiously at one spot, but nothing was found.

The strength of the intruder is an extraordinary feature. In a bedroom a sack filled with heavy material which had blocked the chimney for 50 years was thrown down to gain admission to the room.

Cause of Pounding Water Pipes

The cause of a pounding noise in the water pipes when the faucet is turned to shut off the water is the condition which plumbers call a "water hammer." It may be due to loose washers in the faucets, but is more likely to be caused by a lack of air cushions in the piping system or the fact that existing air chambers have been filled with water.

The Road to Better Health

By Dr. William J. Scholes

SANITATION IN RURAL SCHOOLS

Sanitation of schools in rural communities presents difficulties not met in urban centers. In the latter there is a background of organized sanitation which makes of school sanitation simply an extension and adaptation of existing facilities.

Let me call attention to a few measures for improving the sanitation in the rural school which, when carried out, materially enhance the mental and physical welfare of the children.

Heating the School

It seems to be generally agreed that the jacketed stove is the best heating unit for a one-room school. Fresh cold air can be conducted to the inside of the jacket through a pipe laid under or, if that is not feasible, on top of the floor.

Airing the School

Each child in a school room requires a certain number of cubic feet of fresh air. A child that is dull and lousy generally is in need of fresh air rather than a spanking. The only ventilation possible in a one-room school is through the windows, which is more or less of a makeshift.

Wash Room Facilities

Many a case of constipation in children is brought on by inconveniently located, uncomfortable and inadequate toilet facilities. The toilets of many such schools are situated at a considerable distance from the school room, are difficult of access, unclean and cold.

Cleanliness of the School

The way leading to many rural schools is often little more than a path. As a result the children carry into the room mud and dirt, much of which is laden with infective material. To minimize this danger the sensible procedure is to build cement sidewalks, or at least to cover the path with cinders or crushed stone.

Chalk dust should not be permitted to enter the air of the room. A simple device for preventing this is a trough covered with a wire mesh at the bottom of the blackboard. The board should be cleaned with damp cloths after school hours. This and all other dusting should be done with cloths and never with feather dusters and the like.

PUBLICITY IS PUBLIC FUND SAFEGUARD

Judging by the number of investigations that are being made of the expenditures of our state and national officials there is a need for the development of an informed and intelligent citizenship.

The state law requires or permits county clerks, city clerks and other official tax-spending bodies to publish a statement of all claims authorized and ordered paid. The purpose of the law is to acquaint the interested citizens with the expenditures of the various units, to advise them as to just how and for what the tax money is being spent.

It was one of the wisest laws ever enacted from the standpoint of safeguarding public funds and insuring them against waste, extravagance and misuse. When the controlling body knows that it must account publicly for every cent it spends and that every citizen is to be given the opportunity of scrutinizing every item of expenditure, there is a natural tendency to be careful and cautious in the appropriation of funds.

Without any reflection upon anyone, we undertake to say that many unwise expenditures would not have been made had the governing bodies known that the full glare of publicity would be turned upon their monthly claims.

Mr. and Mrs. Alton Bodenhamer and sons, Hayden Ray and Gene, of Paducah, visited the lady's sister, Mrs. Sam Hodges, Sunday. They were accompanied by Paul McKinney of Dodsonville.

Mary demands an explanation of Craig's aloofness, and in reply to his question of why she didn't tell him all about herself, admits that she was afraid she would lose him if he knew she was rich.

"You'd—" The hands tightened their hold. Tersely, doggedly, analytically: "That—presupposes that—that you loved me, Mary."

"I've adored you forever!"

His bewilderment rivaled the leap of light to his eyes, the swinging of the door wide open.

"And how could you lose me, except by telling me that you didn't want me? For heaven's sake, talk, darling! End this hell I've been in, if you can. Why wouldn't you marry me?"

He didn't even guess, the funny angel! Again her head was in the hollow of his shoulder. Again he was cupping it with his hand, pressing it closer.

"Men do run," she told him from that sanctuary, "from a girl with a million."

"A million! Great jumping grasshoppers!" demanded the idealist, the dreamer. "What's a million dollars?"

But those were her lines, too! Could their slants on this wretched million actually be identical?

"Denny, I never dreamed you had so much sense!"

He kissed her. He wiped her wet cheeks with his handkerchief. He held her close. His face, she thought, looked spiritual under the moon. He spoke in a voice all husky and tender.

"You precious little goose, what's money? Just a commodity. What has it to do with love?"

"Darling, I'm not an orthodox edition. I don't give a continental whether you come to me with rings on your fingers and bells on your toes, or just in your old pants—so long as you come! I don't care whether we eat your caviar or my rye bread—if we but dine together. Hope of Heaven which I shall remodel for you (sweetheart, I couldn't stand the place with you gone!) or on one of your estates, so long as we live together. I don't care whether those precious fingers make biscuits or bridges, where your mind and hands turn to make life interesting while I'm at my day's work—so long as you are happy, and your heart is in my keeping."

"Denny!"

His lips touched her forehead as he added, whimsically, "Maybe it isn't sense I have, darling. Maybe I'm just a case of a fool rushing in. But, at least," more seriously, holding her back until his eyes could meet hers, "I'm not a coward, dear. Not coward enough to sacrifice our happiness because people will say I'm marrying you for your money. I'm used to having people say things. You and I know what brings us together."

"I'm not afraid of the financial adjustments that will have to come. Surely, with an engineer and a promoter in the family, we can find some recipe to keep me from the role of Mary Brown's husband!"

She slipped an arm about his neck. "I can name you a formula that will take care of the filthy lucre, public opinion, self-respect, and what have you."

"Name it, sweet."

"It is—just going on forever being a little mad together."

The Brown Bowl lay flecked with sunshine and shadow as live oak leaves swung to soft breezes. It was the wedding morning of the girl for whom the Brown Bowl had been named, and of the fledgling promoter who had dedicated it to her when she was a penniless engineer.

It was the culmination of two weeks breathless with the romance of a man and girl brought together by an orphaned million; two weeks during which all interest had centered in the rich David Brown and his family. There were the arrivals of Mary Brown's sisters, their husbands and children; of Clarissa and the eleven trunks Mary had left behind. The arrival of wedding finery within those trunks.

A wedding as it is done in one of the country's richest families was no event to be taken lightly. The assembled guests waited eagerly. Mary Brown was the type to make an ideal bride, with her slender, fragile figure, were this very moment, sweet!"

"With your bride—this way?" she laughed, looking down at herself in boots and breeches.

"Even so?" tenderly. "She will be 'beautiful' in her wedding gown, but she's dearer to me this way. I have so many memories of her—like this."

Now the dress lay waiting on the bed. "You must get into it, Mary," accented Diane.

"And you girls must go, this minute! Now, hurry along, and go in slowly and turn about several times so everyone can have a chance to see your dresses. They're dreams! Rissa'll help me, and I can easily get there ahead of Denny after I sight him."

And after they had departed, she added "And I can manage dad!"

But it was Denis Craig's car which first came swishing toward the amphitheatre in a cloud of dust. There was a baffling glimpse of Denis leaping out and disappearing back stage. Then shortly came the magnificent limousine of the copper magnate, parking at the entrance to a vine-covered archway which connected with the stage.

A breathless interval with the orchestra throbbing out Lohengrin's melody of love triumphant—

The bridegroom appeared at one side of the stage—and there seemed to be a common intake of breath about the amphitheatre.

Then appeared the robust figure of David Brown, and, on his arm—on his arm—

Even the leaves seemed to stop rustling. Surprise crept into the strains of the orchestra.

To David Brown's arm slung a slim boyish figure in soft white shirt, riding breeches, and putts. Her eyes, eager and questioning, sought out Denis Craig.

Denis, across the stage, started gazed at her for one second, that touched tender look suffusing his face.

Then, after that first brief glance, he rushed forward with a quickly murmured "Darling!" Mary Brown flew girl to whom a million had been an obstacle to success stood within the circle of the arm of the man to whom a million had been an essential to success, fearlessly repeated the old vows which should start them forth upon the adventure of being a little—oh, quite a little—mad together.

They stood, at sunset, on the threshold of Hope of Heaven, watching the shadows deepen in their own isolated round little valley.

She laughed suddenly as her eyes fell upon a little pine tree snuggled chummily against the cabin. Her hand went out to touch its shining needles.

"There, Denny," she declared, "am I! At least, there I was! Just another foolish little pine tree that didn't like its own green needles! Remember?"

"I'm afraid I'm rusty on my old classics, sweet. I suppose there was a fairy—"

"Um!" She pampered its whims, snuffing it again and again, according to its heart's desire. But each time its dreams ended only in frustration. If, too, discovered through experience, that one meets life best in one's own uniform."

LESSONS FROM THE LIFE AND LETTERS OF PETER

Lesson text, 1 Peter 5:6-11; 2 Peter 3:14-18. Golden text, "But grow in grace and knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. 2 Peter 3:18.

For the past three months we have been studying in our Sunday school lessons the life and writings of Peter. When we first meet Peter he is a grown man with a family. His occupation is fishing. He probably had as sole owner, or a partnership in, a wholesale fishing concern. His home was in Capernaum, and he was in what might today be called moderate circumstances. In his day he was probably considered well to do. Peter was a religious man, loving the hope he had in the appearance of the Messiah. Thus he went to investigate the preaching of John the Baptist and was converted to the baptism of John. When Christ appeared Andrew sought Peter to bring him to Jesus. Peter followed Jesus.

Peter followed Jesus and fished intermittently for a year, and in the summer of 28 A. D. Jesus definitely called him into continuous service. His name appears at the head of each of the enumerations of the disciples' names. Peter was one of the chosen three to go with Jesus to the death chamber of the ruler's daughter, upon the mount of transfiguration, and into the Garden of Gethsemane. He was the first to confess his belief in the deity of Jesus, and first to enter His empty tomb. He made bold to rebuke Jesus, and denied Him thrice, yet he loved His Master devotedly as he expressed to Him after the resurrection. Peter probably preached the most powerful single sermon ever preached, and as a result three thousand souls were won to his Lord. He gave his life to missionary preaching, both to Jew and Gentile. His life ended as a martyr for his Master, likely about the year 68 A. D.

In the lesson text for this week we find some simple spiritual laws by which Peter in his divinely inspired writing is directing the followers of the Master to obey. The words to whom Peter was immediately writing and who first read the letters no doubt felt the need of following them to the letter. They were best on every hand with persecution. It indeed seemed to them that their enemies were like a roaring lion through whom the devil was working to tear down their faith and tenacity to the cross of Christ. They had an hourly need of the grace and strength of Christ, for they never knew what moment the powerful hand of Rome would fall upon them to devour them in persecution. Their trials were indeed great.

The situation found among those early Christians, compared to that found among groups of Christians in modern civilized lands today, is entirely different. There are countries today which boast of being civilized that are not extending to Christians the right to worship according to the dictates of their own conscience. But for our part we are in "religious-free" America, or rather the United States, for all America is not "religious free." Let it suffice to study our own circumstances for the present.

The command is to be humble, waiting for God's exaltation, casting cares upon God, sober, watchful. These things are not a part of our American life. The watchfulness Peter refers to is to be maintained in order that Satan might not cause us to do that which is evil. The American watchfulness so far as individuals and organizations are concerned is not that they might not themselves do evil but that someone else might not cause evil to befall them. The wildest criminal record of the ages is proof of this. Our faith is in holding companies, loan corporations, banking systems, governmental programs of security, employment relief appropriations and military armament. Our claim is that complex civilization has taught us to bow to these necessities. We are groping through a smoke screen of drinking, gambling, vile screen productions, vulgar magazines by the dozens, immorality, and an epidemic of divorce—Christian America! How different this to the command in 2 Peter 3:14: "Wherefore, beloved, seeing that ye look for such things, be diligent that ye may be found of Him in peace without spot and blameless." Too many are "spotted" and "full of blame" today. "Such things" refers here to righteousness. See v 13.

Christian men and women are at fault here. Why have they deemed the command of the Lord to withdraw themselves from the world and to be separate, a needless command. The purpose of this command was that the world might see the value of a Christian life above that of the world and be inspired to desire such a life. We have brought our standards to those of the world. We do what the world does instead of differently than the world. Should true Christians become bold enough to follow the teachings of their Master they would likely find themselves in a state of persecution, not only from the world but from a great percentage of their nominal Christian brothers. We Christians are playing at the job! We are making mock of our Lord and His Word! Let us arise and gird ourselves with the promises He has given us and go forth to live as He commanded that the world might see what real Christianity is. Peter was weak, so are we. God strengthened him. He will be equally as faithful to us.

Text: "Lo, children are an heritage of the Lord." — Psalm 127:3a.

CHILDREN—GOD'S PRECIOUS GIFTS

Some so-called "modern" women pride themselves in the fact that they have no children. They would rather take care of a lap dog and fondle it as they would a child. Such women are abnormal—something is wrong with their mind. It is true, not every woman is blessed with a child. Many such adopt one or two and provide happy homes for such orphans. Every normal married woman wants children for she knows that "children are an heritage of the Lord."

Many a time a child has cemented a severed relationship in the home. The love of a mother for her children is something to be desired and not to be despised. But—to prevent a woman who is financially embarrassed from having a child is a gross sin and a crime against nature. We are referring to a recent "relief and dole scandal" reported from Martinez, Calif. A grand juror alleged that women on relief were coerced (forced) into undergoing sterilization operations with threats to remove them from relief rolls.

Upon this report Arthur Brisbane, columnist, comments: "This is going a little far, even for gentlemen distributing taxpayers' money."

It is more than possible that many of such unfortunate women will find regular work and not be dependent on government relief. But—if they had been forced into sterility in the meantime, how about their desired motherhood? Should such an outrage if sterilization be permitted in this "land of the free?" Where do such unfortunate women have freedom?

Brisbane further comments on this problem: "The presumption back of the attempt to keep women on the dole from having children is, presumably, that women on the dole would necessarily have inferior children." But we know that many children born in poverty have become famous and a credit to their country. Note the following example noted by the columnist just quoted: "Nancy Hanks, who lived in a little cabin without windows, was very poor, and might well have been on the dole in such times as these. It would have been a mistake by 'enforced sterilization' to have prevented the birth of Abraham Lincoln." The great Emancipator was indeed a blessing of the Lord for our United States. But just think what might not have happened if such ruthless and crude measures were taken against his mother.

An attack on the theory of sterilization was also made recently by the Rev. Ignatius W. Cox, S. J., of Fordham University, who told the Guild of Catholic Lawyers in New York City that "sterilization is pseudoscientific because it is based on an assumption of a knowledge of heredity which we do not possess.

There exist no hereditary dynasties of murderers, crooks, psychopaths, as here exist no such dynasties of geniuses and men of virtue. Great men have been born of mediocre parents, and even inferior parents, and have brought into the world mediocre and inferior children.

"Michelangelo, Beethoven, Goethe, Wagner are examples. . . if you sterilize human beings, you may be suppressing a Moses, an Aristotle, or an Abraham Lincoln. That is the reason why sterilization is no more than an unscientific gamble." (Literary Digest, 3-16-35).

There are all kinds of problems that have arisen the past few years during the economic crisis. But they cannot be solved by resorting to inhuman and insane measures, crimes against man and God!

God will provide. Let us trust in Him alone and ask Him to be our Guide at all times. Let us confess our adherence with the Psalmist: 'For this God is our God for ever and ever: He will be our Guide even unto death.' Psalm 48:14.

Household Hints

By Betty Webster

When cooking in quantities for a church supper or community party it is usually difficult for the housewife, accustomed only to preparing small amounts of food, to judge those necessary for a large number of people. To make it easier I have a table of quantities which I will gladly pass on. Here it is:

- Coffee—1 lb will make 40 cups.
- Sugar—One and one-half pounds are sufficient for 40 cups of coffee.
- Cream—One quart of thin cream is sufficient for 40 cups of coffee.
- Lemonade—Three to four gallons are sufficient for 100 servings, depending on the size of the glasses. Sixteen lemons will make one gallon.
- Ice cream—Three gallons will serve 100 people. Seven or eight slices may be cut from a one quart brick.
- Butter—A one pound brick will cut into 40 small squares.

A DELIGHTFUL MENU

Speaking of church suppers, here's a menu that may prove appealing: Split pea soup, baked ham, glazed sweet potatoes, corn pudding, Boston brown bread, ginger fruit salad, cookies, ice cream, coffee.

DO YOU KNOW THAT:

- 1. When baking cake the oven door should never be opened until the cake can be smelled? This will prevent many a fallen cake.
- 2. A cake may be tested with a

The Student Lamp
Observing in the evening that many school children were studying under poor light, at dining room tables, in corners of the living room, in the kitchen, and other convenient, but improper lighted places, the illuminating engineering society developed the student lamp.
The cost of operating the student lamp is low. It may be used on almost any desk or table. It gives sufficient, glareless light on the reading or working plane. One cannot get into the bare bulb from study position.
We believe the student lamp is the best lamp ever designed for school children. Difficult tests and examinations are approached. Make the preparation for these tests and examinations easier by going to your dealer's for a student lamp.

I Want to Know

By D. A. Davis

I've got a problem on my mind this week I don't know how to solve. It's about an old timer friend of all us old timers. A man whom we all like to call a frontiersman. He came to Gray county away back yonder, and boy, has he been through the mill. He has raised a big family of fine boys and girls, and did they have a hard time? Why, this man tells me he had never known himself to be out of debt for years and years, and some of those years were sure enough gloomy. He has lived for days and days not knowing what was going to happen next, and he has worried and worried thousands and thousands of times about how he was going to manage to provide for his family. But somehow he and his good wife managed to pull through somehow and managed to give the children all a good education, and now they are just about all married and have families of their own and are doing fine and dandy. All through these years he kept a stiff upper lip, smiled and joked his way through life and succeeded in making a whole raft of friends who were always ready to smile and joke and cut up through life with him, and at the same time you never heard a whimper out of him, but on the other hand he was willing and ready at any time you called on him to do the right thing about anything that came up, but in spite of his good nature and happy conception of life he sure did have a hard battle of life to fight, but you always found him apparently as happy and full of jokes and pranks as any man living and he had one of the strongest handshakes of any man you ever shook hands with, and if he ever gave you one good handshake you always remembered it. But along came the oil development and struck this man right full in the face, and as a result he was able to pay up all his debts, pay off the mortgage on his little home that he had struggled with so many years, and had some money left.

And what did he do? He went down on the South Plains near Lubbock and bought him a fine home down there and moved away from his old timer friends. And right there folks, is where he made the one mistake of his life. Those people down there don't understand him as we do around here and he don't have the fun playing pranks down there as he did with his old timer friends here. And now, folks, he's losing his grip. That dust down at Lubbock is too soft and fine; it's not got enough grit in it to keep a man as fit as it does around here, and last week when this man was up here you could see he was losing his grip and pep. Why he shakes your hand just about like shaking a catfish's tail, and that mischievous grin he has carried all thru these years is fading away to a softer glum expression. The main reason I believe, is because he has nothing in the world to worry about, and my prediction is that before long old man M. H. Kinard will move back to McLean where he can be with all his old timer friends again. Come on back Milo, old boy, we certainly do miss you.

And another thing is proving itself out, and that is that McLean can boast of as fine a set of youngsters that can blow their own horns as you will find in any place in the United States. We are proud of these horn blowers, but folks, we must give their daddies credit for some of it, because Clint Doolen, Karl Estes, Jesse Cobb, Bob Appling, Ben Jackson and Wayland Floyd the six of the biggest wind jammers in the Panhandle. Congratulations, kids, congratulations.

TEMPORARY

By A. T. Wilson

It seems that the whole world is trying to operate on a temporary or experimental basis. The nations of Europe borrowed money from the U. S., and all are refusing to pay except one little lone Finland. We should by all means take off our hats to that nation as they are the only people that have any conscientious scruples left, while the others conclude that they are in on the U. S. about as deep as they can get and they will quit paying and keep their money at home and get off temporarily and risk the consequences. That will cure the U. S. permanently of the money lending racket, besides impairing the European nations' credit for a generation. It looks like a high price to pay for a little temporary relief.

Europe is not by itself in practicing this modern temporary philosophy or killing the goose to get the golden egg. America is the goose that they killed, and she sure is dead as far as laying golden eggs for European nations is concerned.

This temporary modus operandi is not only afflicting nations but individuals as well. Darwin said that people descended from monkeys, but from the way they act it looks like they might be a cross between a bad tasting ant that gets in the sugar bowl and a swine that tries to hog up everything in sight and use up all nature's resources in sight regardless of consequences to the coming generation. As a result of these indiscrete or temporary actions the air is filled with tons of drifting soil. Not that man had to plow up all the grass that held down the soil that Mother Nature had worked thousands of years to establish; in order to make a living, but in order to make more money and create a disagreeable surplus and keep Wall Street in spending money. We have tried our best to kill our rolden egg laying goose, but she wiggled her neck and the axe of greed barely missed and we are studying about turning her loose and trying to build her a new nest.

It certainly was fine sport to tear up this fertile western soil and skim off the cream, but when this temporary skimming process is over it will be a disagreeable task to flounder around in the skim milk of blown away soil. And it is great sport to punch holes in the ground and lay pipe lines to carry off our rich heritage of oil and gas for a mere pittance in return.

There is a big cow standing over the United States and her under hings over Wall Street and Detroit, Mich., and her head and mouth describe an arc from Florida 'round through the Southern States and up through the Mississippi Valley or great grain belt to the Canadian border, and boy, oh boy how those boys are milking this great cow! The products of her range are do produce lots of good rich milk and a beautiful stream of rich golden cream, and since the drouth came on and the milk flow lessened and it looked like she would go dry they sent us down plow-up money, hog and corn money, and millions of relief money, and the Wall Street cow is freshening up and bids fair to keep on pouring the milk as long as these temporary plans work.

UNDERSTANDING

By Charles Burton MacGrath
It is, after all, a good old world. It is you, and I, and others like us, who get out of tune with the harmonies of life. We turn deaf ears to the kindly things our neighbors would tell us, because we are piqued over a fancied wrong. We close our eyes and lament the darkness of the world. We close our fists and shake them, daring others to test our strength. We place a premium on physical prowess and mortal combat, and a wreath of glory on the victor. And we forget a neighbor who, in the quietness of his mental laboratory, gives his life to develop a solace to mankind. Whatever wrong there is in the world, is man-made, and until man learns the simple rule of thoughtfulness—the understanding of the other's viewpoint—he must suffer the consequences of a disappointed life.—Tidings.

TRUE DETECTIVE STORY by Vance Wynn

The Man With the Dark Lantern

WHO killed John Hayes in the old inn between London and Oxford? The facts can be stated very briefly. The gentleman in question was an English squire of great wealth. On his way from the capital to the old university town he stopped at a tavern kept by Jonathan Bradford. There were two other guests at the place and Mr. Hayes struck up an acquaintance with them. They had supper together, and during the course of the meal the squire laughingly remarked that he had a large sum of money with him. The two other guests—Brown and Harley—exchanged significant glances at this unexpected confidence. Bradford, the landlord, was in the room at the time, and it was noticed he listened to this part of the conversation with eagerness, if not greediness. Late that night each of the three guests was escorted to the room that had been assigned to him. John Hayes was domiciled in a middle apartment on the second floor, and his valet was placed in a room on the same floor and in the rear of the house. James Johnson, one of the permanent guests of the inn, sat up late that night reading. He used a candle which stood in its socket on the table, and just when this began to sputter Johnson was aroused by sounds of a scuffle in the adjoining room. This was the apartment to which John Hayes had been assigned. Sounding the alarm, Johnson rushed to this room and, opening the door, rushed in. To his horror he saw a man in the bed, covered with blood. Standing over him, with a knife in his hand and a dark lantern fastened to his arm, was another man who averted his face. Johnson was so petrified with astonishment that he was unable to speak. Two other boarders came into the room, and they were so shocked that they were helpless. In the meantime the man with the lantern slipped around the foot of the bed and out into the darkness of the night. The police were summoned and they began the investigation to discover who killed John Hayes. Suspicion pointed to the two men who had been the companions of the deceased at supper on the previous evening. But when the inquest was held Mr. Johnson said that the man with the lantern and the knife who stood by the side of the bed was Jonathan Bradford, the keeper of the inn. He was much confused at this charge, but positively denied that he was in any way responsible for the murder. He said he had heard the groans of the dying man and had gone to the room to ascertain the cause of the trouble, and was thus found standing there by Johnson and the other boarders. But the evidence was against him and he was convicted and duly executed according to law. After it was all over one of the county detectives was curious enough to get a list of the property that had been stolen from the murdered man. One of the articles was a gold snuff box which had engraved upon it the coat-of-arms of George I. The investigator made a tour of the pawnshops of London and in one of them he found the gold snuff box. With the assistance of the pawnbroker he managed to locate the man who had pledged the article. And whom do you suppose it was, gentle reader? None other than the valet of John Hayes, who had slept in the inn that night! He was followed to a little room where he was living in London, but was found to be in a dying condition. Before he passed away, however, he made a full confession, in which he admitted that he had gone into the room that night and murdered his master for his money. It might be imagined that a cruel miscarriage of justice had occurred if another and even more startling revelation had not come to pass. One of the men who accompanied Jonathan Bradford to the scene of the murder, he was morally guilty. He confessed that he had conceived the idea of killing the poor old man for his money and securing a dark lantern and a knife, had slipped into his room for that purpose—only to find him dead by the hand of another.

Sleep a Repair Period Authorities agree that sleep is a repair period. According to the chemical theory, the body burns up cells during waking hours. This burning releases energy. But, as when coal is burned, waste products form. These waste products act as poisons. They accumulate as the day wears on. They dull the mind and slow the body. During sleep another set of toxins is generated. In proper ratio these neutralize the toxins formed during waking hours. If a person gets too much sleep he has the same feeling as when he has had too little sleep.

Large Crowd at Law and Order Mass Meeting

The auditorium of the First Baptist church was packed Wednesday night to hear District Judge W. R. Ewing, District Attorney Lewis M. Goodrich and Sheriff Earl Talley speak at the law and order mass meeting called by the local Ministerial Alliance. Judge Ewing made the principal address, striking at the bottom of the present disrespect for law, with special reference to the liquor laws. Both the judge and the district attorney rapped juries that return verdicts of acquittal in liquor cases regardless of the evidence. Several local citizens spoke endorsing the efforts of the officers in law enforcement, and a resolution endorsing Governor Allred's attitude toward law enforcement in Texas was adopted. Rev. W. A. Erwin, chairman of the Ministerial Alliance, was chairman of the meeting and presented the speakers.
