Snoopin' Around

By D. A. Davis

folks, I'm appealing to you all this year to pay your poll taxes. Unless you do, I'm afraid there won't be a legally qualified voters to hold the elections that're coming up this year and summer. You'll be asked on this spring to elect two men, one mayor, one city secretary and a city marshal, as well as trustees for our city and public schools.

These positions are to be filled by your votes, and it's not right to let a few. There are two reasons why you should be interested enough to pay your poll tax in order to vote. The first is that you should have a say in the men that are to be elected to these positions, and another is that you should be interested enough to pay your poll tax in order to vote.

He began to work with a new intensity. Mary Ann, facing him across Dan's body, sensed this, and looked at him quickly. But she said nothing, asked no question, continued in every way his efforts with her own.

And presently, as his senses cleared, Doctor Greeding began to feel, with that fine instinct of the surgeon which is so often right without any tangible reason for its conclusions, that Dan might be saved. All went so smoothly. The bullet had been driven by a light powder-charge—by a target, rather than a service-load. Also, the ball had struck Dan's belt and thus lost somewhat of its force, so that its destructive effect was less than might otherwise have been the case.

Thus the wound itself was as mild as possible—though deadly serious enough. But also there seemed to Doctor Greeding ground for hope in the fact that this absurd, irregular surgical procedure insisted on performing itself without the least hitch. Razor-blades instead of the knife, blunt scissors for dissection, thread and needle in place of snaps, clumsily bent spoons for retractors, each in his hands so incredibly shrewd and skillful served their purpose well; and at the moment the supply of gauze for sponges neared exhaustion, Jerrell and Thomas came racing up the path, bringing all that might be required.

When Doctor Greeding saw the end of the task in sight, he spoke to Nancy. "Enough either—take the towel away now." She obeyed, and he finished, sure that what he had done was well done; with a nod to Mary Ann, he withdrew from the table where Dan lay. He went to the sink to wash his hands. Nancy was there, leaning back against the drain-board, white and still. Doctor Greeding looked at his daughter, and he asked gently:

"Head ache? It's the fumes. Get out of dooms. We must keep Dan warm, can't open any windows here."

Nancy went obediently toward the kitchen door, and Mary Ann said:

"We'll move him into the dining-room, arrange some sort of screen around him there to keep off drafts."

Doctor Greeding nodded. He said wearily: "It's been a strain. My head's whirling. A surgeon should never operate on his friends!"

"You did all that could be done, did it perfectly," Mary Ann assured him; and she asked, with a sudden weakening in her tones, her first confession of fear: "Tell me what you think?"

Doctor Greeding hesitated. "Everything was as fortunate as possible," he said. "There are many perforations, as you saw. That was inevitable. But not much poisonous matter free. Of course, all we could do was repair the damage, and drain the wound, and—wait. You know that as well as I." He added: "Yet—I believe he will get better!"

With Thomas and Jerrell helping, they carried Dan into the dining-room, and laid a mattress on the table for his bed, and set a fire on the hearth.

And thus began the vigil that must endure for days. Doctor Greeding assumed command. "Another procedure may be necessary later," he explained. "I'll get whatever we are likely to need, have it ready." He telephoned to Boston and arranged that a full kit should be dispatched by messenger. He suggested a nurse; but Mary Ann negated that.

"I shall be within call always," she said. "And Nancy will want to help. Any unnecessary people could only add to the confusion. He needs quiet, needs to sleep."

He assented. "Yes, that's true," he agreed.

"But I must let Father know," she remembered.

Doctor Greeding said quickly: "Of course." And he urged: "Have him come up here, Mary Ann." He was suddenly and for no tangible reason eager to see Professor Carlisle again.

Jerrell took this matter in hand; he volunteered to drive to Boston and fetch Dan's father. "It's better than having him make the trip alone," he said. "And—I must confess my fault to him, Mary Ann."

She reassured him. "It wasn't your fault. It was an accident," she urged. Yet she let him go.

Thomas took him in the boat to the landing where he had left his car. He would, they decided, return next day.

Dusk began to creep across the lake and cloak the island. Dan was drowsily conscious, murmuring absurdities and realizing their absurdity and chucking at himself; and Nancy, close by him, holding his hand, laughed with him ever so tenderly. Mary Ann had made a couch in the billiard-room, close by where he lay. After dinner—they ate in the kitchen, in relays, one

Ann insisted that Doctor Greeding go to bed for a while.

"I'll call you later," she promised. "Nancy will stay with him, and I'll sleep here, and we'll call you!"

So Doctor Greeding went to his room; but at first he did not sleep. He turned on all the lights, unwilling that there should be anywhere a shadowed corner in which anything or nothing might be hidden. The man's nerves began to twitch raggedly. He had a sense of dark forces gathering like a smothering cloud. He slept at last uneasily; and when at last some one came tapping at his door, he woke with a bound and a cry.

"It's Nancy, Father," the girl said reassuringly, through the panels. "It's all right. Nothing's happened. Only Mary Ann thought you might come down for a while now."

"At once," he promised, steadily enough; yet it was in fact some time before he was sufficiently composed to face them. When he came downstairs, he found Mary Ann by Dan's side, Nancy half asleep in a great chair near. Doctor Greeding touched Dan's wrist, his brow, and nodded reassuringly; and Mary Ann smiled. She went to spread a blanket gently over Nancy.

"You lie down too," Doctor Greeding directed.

She obeyed him, white and weary; and Doctor Greeding was left with the hurt man. He stood beside Dan for a moment; then he too sat down—sat without moving, while long thoughts absorbed him.

Sometime later he looked toward Nancy. Her eyes were open. He saw the glint of them.

"Awake, dear?" he murmured.

She smiled. "I had a bad dream," she whispered. "But it's all right if you're here." And she sighed, and slept again. Her faith was like a draft of warming wine.

Hours later Nancy roused, and came and stood with her hand touching Dan's. His fingers closed faintly over hers.

"He knows me," Nancy whispered; and Dan muttered:

"Nancy. There?"

"Here always, Dan. Hush now, darling. Sleep."

She held him in her love as a mother holds a babe in arms. Doctor Greeding drew back into the shadows while she took his place at her lover's side. And so at last the long night ended, darkness yielding to the warm gray of dawn.

CHAPTER X

There followed days of waiting, of that inaction which is so much more difficult than action, when they could only tend the hurt man, and seek to cheer him with their smiles, feeding with the fuel of their untainted strength the flickering fire of life that burned in him. Sometimes he was in torment, but he managed to grin despite the pain, hiding his

"I'm all right," he protested. "I'll stand by."

Jerrell and Professor Carlisle had arrived early on the first morning, having left Cambridge at dawn. Doctor Greeding welcomed them. There was rising in him a deep affection for these folk, a new perception of the kindness and understanding in them all. Jerrell, for instance, had not offered to throw the resources of his wealth at their disposal; his silence seemed to assume that whatever could be done for Dan, they would do. Some men, Doctor Greeding reflected, would have displayed the arrogance natural to financial power; would have insisted on summoning other physicians, nurses, on importing facilities of every kind. He liked Jerrell for his reticence in this direction.

And Doctor Greeding had, where the others were concerned, even more personal reasons for gratitude. The accident to Dan was after all, his fault; and Nancy, and Dan too—since they were familiar with firearms—must know this. Yet neither reproached him, or offered him blame.

He welcomed Professor Carlisle's coming as an opportunity for confession, hoping by an open admission of his culpability to ease his own heart; and he took the first convenient occasion. He and Jerrell were in the big living-room; Mary Ann and Nancy and Professor Carlisle were with Dan in the dining-room, the length of the house away. Then Professor Carlisle came back from Dan's side; and he asked Doctor Greeding:

"You think he has a chance, Doctor? Mary Ann says that is your opinion."

"I believe so, yes," Doctor Greeding assented. And he said, to Jerrell as well as to Professor Carlisle: "I hope so. Because, Professor, this was not Jerrell's fault; it was mine."

Jerrell protested generously: "Hardly, Ned. It was my clumsiness."

But Professor Carlisle waited, watching Doctor Greeding; and the surgeon said explicitly:

"No, Ira. He spoke to Dan's father. 'You see, Professor Carlisle, I had just fired the pistol. I removed the empty clip, thinking I had fired the last cartridge. Most accidents with automatics occur through just such carelessness as mine. I should have worked the action to be sure that the barrel was empty. I neglected to do this. I should have made sure the gun was empty before giving it to Jerrell.'"

He smiled frankly. "No one has blamed me," he confessed. "They've all been mighty kind and generous. But it was my fault, just the same."

Neither man spoke; and he added honestly:

"As a matter of fact, this was worse than carelessness. With that particular pistol, if the barrel is empty, the action stays half-open. The fact that it was closed should have warned me that there was still a cartridge in the barrel. I was incredibly stupid!"

There was a moment's silence. Then Jerrell said uncomfortably: "Decent of you to say that, Ned. But after all, if I hadn't pointed the gun at Dan—"

He added, in an incredulous recollection: "I didn't mean to, tried not to. I can't understand it, even now. It was exactly as if some one's hand, on mine, swung the pistol toward Dan—"

"If it had been empty, you could have done no harm," Doctor Greeding insisted.

Professor Carlisle looked keenly at the Doctor. "No one is—blamable for an accident," he remarked. "This of course was an accident. Let it rest so."

And he repeated his question of a moment before. "You think he will recover?"

"Yes."

"Why?" the older man inquired.

"On what signs do you rely?"

Doctor Greeding hesitated, shook his head, smiled. "I don't know," he said. "Instinct. A guess, perhaps." He chuckled. "Or it may be that I'm relying on my luck. I was born under a caul, Professor. The old women say that's a sign of luck, you know; and I've always been lucky, certainly."

Professor Carlisle sat down, almost suddenly, as though he were tired. His eyes still on Doctor Greeding's face, he filled his pipe and lighted it. So presently he spoke.

"Born under a caul, were you, Doctor?" he repeated thoughtfully. And he said: "I remember you once told me some strange experiences of a friend of yours, who was also born under a caul."

Doctor Greeding felt his cheek flame; then the blood drained away, and he cursed his folly, his own loose tongue. There was no accusation in the Professor's tone; yet Doctor Greeding felt himself accused.

"Yes, so I did," he confessed lamely.

Professor Carlisle puffed at his pipe, his old eyes stern and still. "Strange things do happen," he said gravely, "—some things too dark for the human mind to contemplate." He met Doctor Greeding's glance. "I perceive," he said, "that Dan and Nancy—"

"Yes. I am much pleased," Doctor Greeding said hurriedly.

"You do not—object?" the Professor asked.

"No," the other man assured him. "No!" And he said: "Strange things, yes. Dan's recovery—I think he will recover—is almost like a miracle, for instance." Something like an appeal for mercy was in his tone.

The old man said inflexibly: "Yes. If he does recover."

And at that, abruptly, Doctor Greeding turned away and went out through the billiard-room to where Dan lay. He questioned Mary Ann with a glance.

"He's fine," she said. "Not much pain, and no temperature. Doctor, you mustn't—doubt. He'll get better." She smiled heartily. "He's bound to. This is one of your miracles, you know."

"It's already twenty-four hours," he reflected. "Wound draining?"

"Perfectly."

"I'll stay with him for a while," he suggested. "If you want to—rest."

And he did in fact stay close to Dan's side during the days that followed. This was not all solicitude for Dan. It was in part defensive; since so long as he stayed near Dan—who was conscious and rational now—he need not be alone with Professor Carlisle.

There was in Doctor Greeding a passionate desire to avoid that wise bold man, whose shrewd eyes saw so much, who might be keen enough to suspect, and even to credit, the incredible. He perceived that questions multiplied in the other's mind; but so long as he himself stayed near Dan, who must overhear any catechism that might be attempted, Professor Carlisle could not interrogate him.

And—Doctor Greeding had no answers ready for the old man's unasked questions; so he clung to Dan as a buckler and a shield.

He and Mary Ann and Nancy shared that vigil; but he bore the greater burden. It was as though he poured his own life and strength into the hurt man. He seemed in fact visibly to fail while Dan grew stronger. For Dan's strength did begin to return, his color to improve; and his spirits were brave and unsubdued.

Doctor Greeding, by contrast, began to look like an ill man. Nancy paid him a heavenly tenderness. And Mary Ann entered with her into this conspiracy of gentleness toward the man who so visibly grew weary and drawn before their eyes. She said to him, once, at dawn:

"You mustn't—wear yourself out, Doctor." And she added, understandingly: "Father told me you blame yourself for Dan's being hurt. But that's wrong. You mustn't worry. Grief and worry can make you ill, and Dan doesn't blame you. None of us do."

He said: "I wonder if that's why Dan's getting better. Because he's not blaming me, not—hating me. Hate and anger are poisonous things, Mary Ann. They can destroy a man, if he harbors them."

She protested smilingly: "Nobody hates anybody here!"

He said gently: "You're a very fine woman, Mary Ann." There was a question in his mind, but he did not ask it. There was no need. To any discerning eye, it was clear anguish behind a brave mask of mirth from these folk who loved him.

He did this deceive Nancy; but at such hours his brow was wet, and Mary Ann knew he suffered, and eased him as she could.

Doctor Greeding himself seldom went far from where the hurt man lay. He clung to Dan's proximity, as a mariner in stormy weather clings to safe anchorage, with a jealous diligence. Here was his task and his desire; to make sure, first of all, that Dan came back to health again. He would not by even a brief absence take the least risk of failure.

The vigil left its mark upon him, so that even Mary Ann urged him to rest, to walk around the island, or take a boat-ride, or find some other means of distraction.

"You need it," she insisted. "You're deadly tired."

enough that between Mary Ann and Jerrell there was a bond which grew stronger in these days under the same roof together. Jerrell seemed younger each day; and Mary Ann wore radiance like a garment, and a happy certainty and pride.

The second day after Dan's hurt, there was a change in the weather. It grew warmer, and a hot haze obscured the sky, diffusing the rays of the sun. Dan suffered from the heat, as they all did; yet the day passed somehow. After dinner, Nancy and Doctor Greeding went out on the open terrace in front of the house, where a faint breeze stirred. The stars were obscured by the haze across the sky; and Nancy said:

"We need a shower, Father, to clear the air."

He nodded. "Tomorrow, probably," he said. "It's never uncomfortably hot here for very long."

They stood side by side, her arm through his. "But I don't think I shall ever like it here again," she confessed.

He was shaken. "No? Why, Nancy?"

"I think partly because Dan was—hurt here," she decided. "And—it can't ever be the same without Mother. When Dan can be moved, let's go back to Cambridge, Father. Sell the island."

"I wish you'd stay here with me," he suggested. "For a while, for this last time—"

She said, with the blind cruelty of youth: "I hate leaving you, Father. But—I want to be with Dan always. Life's so short! I know that now. We've so little time. I don't want to miss a single day I might have with him!"

"I shall be lonely without you, Nancy," he confessed.

"I know," she nodded. "And I'm sorry. It's the way the world is, though, isn't it, Father? No matter how much I love you, I must go to Dan."

He assented gravely. "Yes. And I won't try to keep you from him."

She laughed, clinging to his arm, her voice deep and warm. "You couldn't, ever," she whispered ardently. "No matter how you tried. Nothing ever can."

Russians Unearth Rich Archeological Finds That Are of Historic Importance

Archeological finds of historic importance have been brought to light by a number of Soviet scientific expeditions, says the Chicago Tribune.

The Crimea, Kazakhstan in central Asia, the ancient Tatar republic, the Georgian republic in the mountainous Caucasus, and the Ural province, are among the regions which have yielded rich finds that are being studied by specialists in various Soviet museums.

Ancient flint implements on the site of a 200,000 year old settlement of Neanderthal man were found on the Katcha river in the Crimea by an expedition of the Moscow Historical museum. This is reported to be the first settlement of that era discovered in an open area, all previous Neanderthal settlements having been found in hillside caves.

In the village of Pychka nearby the expedition discovered some interesting examples of the art of the pre-Scythian culture of 3000-2000 B. C. These drawings depicted battle scenes, executed on the face of a cliff in red pigment, over an area of ten meters.

Numerous relics of the Bronze Age were found in Kazakhstan by another expedition of the Historical museum. After weeks of painstaking excavations, a communal hut twenty-five meters long, tombs and a sacrificial altar were uncovered. In the altar were found the charred bones of prehistoric domestic animals, pot containing the remains of food, and several bone cubes resembling modern dice.

That the Stone Age man roamed the mountains of the Caucasus is indicated by the discovery of a cave near the city of Jugilee, Georgia, in which a number of flint implements were found.

Olfactory Organ

The sense organ of smell, the olfactory organ, is tucked away in a not easily accessible region, making it difficult to reach it for experimental purposes. It is at the top of the nasal chamber, back of each eye socket. It consists of a patch of membrane about an inch square that differs in color from that of the surrounding areas. It is covered with delicate filaments resembling hairs that are the sense receptors. A coating of mucous substance is maintained on the membrane immersing the sensitive filaments. The substance that produces the smell reaction is dissolved in the mucous coating and in this dissolved form affects the filaments.

MCLEAN WINS THIRD IN BASKETBALL TOURNAMENT

McLean was represented by 10 boys of the Samnorwood basketball tournament last week end, competing with seven teams from over the Panhandle, to finally drag down third place. The boys left McLean, accompanied by Coach Bill Allen and Manager Mike Wingo, Friday at noon. Their first game was scheduled with Shamrock at 5 p. m. The score turned at 18-16 in McLean's favor, enabling them to play with Samnorwood at 7 o'clock on the same day. They were beaten by a score of 30-20, but played again in the final Saturday night, competing with Wellington for third place in the tournament. For the 30-24 outcome of that game they were presented with a beautiful trophy. Quail won her 4th place in tournaments, with Samnorwood second, and McLean third. The boys who played for McLean were: Dannie Heil, "Sleepy" Dwight, Wild Man" Bogan, Ray Terrell, R. Floyd, "Shivers" Trimble, Woodrow Parick, Stanton Gardner, Albert Overton and Ray Humphreys. They competed with teams from Quail, Samnorwood, Wellington, Alfreed, Canadian and Shamrock. The schedule for the rest of the season is as follows:
Jan. 21—Samnorwood at Samnorwood.
Jan. 25—Alfreed at Alfreed.
Jan. 29—Lefors at McLean.
Feb. 5—Alfreed at McLean.

Feb. 19-20—district tournament at Tampa.

represents conference games. The winner will play at district in Pampa.
FOOTBALL SWEATERS AWARDED
Monday morning in general assembly twenty awards for outstanding football work during the 1936 season were presented. Coach Bill Allen presented fourteen letters, four to the manager and the junior coach with sweaters, after an introduction from Supt. C. A. Cryer. Mr. Cryer stated that the sweaters were not gifts in any sense of the word. He said that the boys had worked faithfully and hard for any prizes received. Those boys who have completed or did not pass last semester's requirements did not receive their sweaters.
The lettermen are as follows: Heil, Aswell, Humphreys, Bogan, Dwight, Nicholson, Norman, Wingo, Hess, Williams, Braxton, Finley, Overton and Barnes. Reserves were: Ivey, Jones, Mantooh and Wells. Manager Morris Turner and Junior Coach "Puff" Mcarty were presented with sweaters similar to those of the reserves.

INTERESTING PERSONS
Hazel Dyer was born in Oklahoma City, June 19, 1919. She has attended mission and McLean schools. She expects to graduate this year and take up nurse's training. Her hobbies are swimming and watching basketball games. Her favorite song is "When Will You Leave Heaven?" Hazel is a sweet-tempered and her personality is smooth.
SENIORS HAVE CLASS ADDITIONS
The senior class is glad to have new members to enroll in their class. Frances Tidwell and J. A. Roberts of Groom are promising to members that the class will be enlarged. Frances was a member of Groom basketball team, and now is playing on McLean high school team. Preparations are being made to design the class group picture. We wish to make a correction for statement made in last week's Tiger Post. We wonder why Lois Bowen's name has been changed to "Lazy" Bowen, instead of "Saxy" Bowen.
MEMBERS PROUD OF NEW MEMBERS
The Homemaking classes extend a hearty welcome to the new students who have been admitted to their class.
The first year class reports its new members as follows: Glyndora Bailey, Le Durrett, Mary Lou and Viola Ammons, Audrey Terrell, Eva Dell Smith, Mary Dell Smith, Laura and May Belle Grogan.

The second year girls report only two new members—Oleta Tidwell and Glyndora Bailey.

The third year class reports two new members—Anna Mertel and Hazel Dyer.

The Future Homemakers Club met and the time was devoted to the construction of the machine covers and draperies which the club girls have begun making.

The homemaking classes have taken up a new unit of work, "Foods and Health."

The second year girls are studying budgeting; the third year girls are studying nutrition and health.

A towel rack for the foods laboratory, and a magazine rack for the clothing laboratory are being constructed.

JUNIORS HAVE NEW MEMBERS

The junior class is very proud to have two new members, LaHoma Roberts and Oleta Tidwell, both from room. The juniors gladly accept all new members, because they must keep pace with the seniors. These girls seem capable of helping out.

FRESHMEN HAVE NEW MEMBERS

The enrollment of the freshman class is exceedingly greater than the decrease. Merle Reger, Eva Mitchell, Gordon Mitchell, John Bond and Stone Steen are new members. David Davis has reenrolled. In the last month only two are known to have withdrawn.

The class as a whole feels that it cannot express in words its appreciation for the unselfish and competent work Mr. Harding has done during the first semester, but by loyalty and hard work it vows to prepare for his return next school year.

SHERLOCK SNOOPINGS

Marietta Young often forgets to comb her hair. (Printed by special request.)

We wonder where George Watson stayed last Friday night.

They say that Faris Hess is like the sailor; he has a girl in every port, and if he does not, it is not long until he has one.

Shirley Johnston has something wrong with her, or did, last Saturday night.

Morse Ivey can really take it. What about last Friday night?

Dannie has a penny, but he won't have it long, 'cause Leona found it out.

"Missie" Hodges has a rather weak constitution as far as the "breaks" are concerned.

We wonder if Murray will really go to that ball game.

Marietta Young has been "party-planner-in-chief" for the seniors.

We are so sorry that Mr. Harding cannot be here for the last semester, and wish Mr. Allen good luck while he is trying to take his place.

Fred Cable is quite sure that there is not any gossip around here.

Stanton P. Gardner has some shoes that are the real cutest ones.

Norma Lee Rickard thinks that she is too good to get in the gossip commentaries, but she ain't.

According to Miss Kennedy, the seniors are going to have some tough going in English 4 this semester.

Whoopee! Did Harold get mad!

EDITORIAL

The grade school appreciates the interest the Lions Club of McLean is giving us. One of the finest projects which it has undertaken lately is the construction of some new playground equipment, namely see saws and horizontal bars.

The Lions Club believes in health as a fundamental essential for the training of our boys and girls. Health is the biggest objective in education. Other objectives in the order of their importance, are: command of fundamental processes, worthy home membership, vocation, citizenship, worthy use of leisure time, and ethical character. All of these are good objectives but health comes first.

The Lions Club has also fitted glasses for pupils who have weak eyes and are unable to pay for the glasses.

The grade school appreciates the interest of these men who belong to the Lions Club... indeed a great service club.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

Troop 25 met in regular session last week, on Tuesday afternoon, and the tests and ordinary scout business was attended to.

Those present were as follows: Joe Cooke, L. L. Smith, Jr., Billy Riddle, Johnny Campbell, David Dwight, Paul Bond, Ira Patty, Oran Back and Fillmore Clark.

OPERETTA ON FEBRUARY 12TH

The fifth, sixth and seventh grades of the ward school are working on an operetta to be given February 12th. Characters have been selected and the chorus has been working for a week.

The operetta is under the direction of Mrs. Marie Vogle. The name of the operetta is "Windmills of Holland" by Otis M. Carrington. Mrs. Vogle has had previous experience with this and other operative productions.

Miss Idabel Newman is the assistant director and is also in charge of the costumes. Mrs. Willie Boyett is also assisting at the piano.

Rehearsals are held each afternoon from 2:35 to 3:30 so they will not interfere with any classes.

The funds raised will be used in purchasing needed equipment for the different activities of the ward school, especially the Interscholastic League.

Committees were appointed for the different duties of the production, as follows: advertising committee, Mrs. Jim Back, Mrs. John Harris and Mr. Murdoch; ticket committee, Mr. Dotson, Miss Mildred Bessire and Miss Frances Noel; program committee, Miss Helen Heath and Miss Ima Nell Still.

SNOW BOUND

In my picture I see a mother, father, aunt, uncle and an elder sister all seated contentedly by the fireplace where the red logs give out a lot of heat. Then there is a dog with his paws stretched out and his drowsy head on them. Nearby is an oven filled with baked apples, and by a cabinet is a mug of apple cider. On the cabinet is a basket of October nuts. Outside, the wind is blowing very hard and sometimes a puff hits the window-pane or door a little bit harder than at other times. When it does, the big dog raises his drowsy head a moment then lies down again. The snow is all over the ground and it is so cold that you cannot keep warm, no matter how you bundle up.

Floyd Gibbons Adventurers' Club Hello Everybody!

"The Iron Claw"
By FLOYD GIBBONS,
Famous Headline Hunter

HERE'S a yarn with more than a touch of the sinister in it. Fiction writers go a long way to make their villains seem evil and menacing, but the villain of today's yarn doesn't have to give an inch to any of them. In fact, he might have stepped right out of the celluloid of one of those old-fashioned serial thrillers we all used to follow so religiously in the days when the motion picture industry was young, and rough-and-ready, and a good show could be seen for a nickel, with three cases of heart-failure thrown in free with every reel.

But first, let's introduce the hero of the story. Boys and girls, step up and meet John L. Dumont of Little Falls, N. J. John gets the degree of Distinguished Adventurer for telling us this tale of his eerie encounter with our villain on a dark, lonely road in Nova Scotia, in August, 1926.

John was just a youngster of sixteen at the time. He was in Nova Scotia visiting some friends who lived in the little town of Baddeck. There he met another lad, Dolph Rogers, who was working for the Canadian government, and Dolph introduced him to two young ladies from Washington, D. C., who were spending the summer in the north.

They Went to a Dance in Sydney.

The four of them started to pal around together, and one night they decided to go to a dance at the nearby town of Sydney. One of the girls had a car, and they went to Sydney in that. They spent the evening dancing and started back about 12:30.

John was driving the car. The girl who owned it sat in front beside him. The other two were in the back seat. It was a dark night, and the gravel roads of Nova Scotia are narrow. About ten miles out of Sydney, John saw another car approaching from the opposite direction.

Traffic is never heavy on the Nova Scotia roads. This was almost the first car they had met since leaving Sydney. And since the quarters were sort of cramped on that narrow road, John pulled over to one side and slowed down almost to a stop to let the other machine pass.

As the other car came closer, John noticed that it was zig-zagging back and forth across the road. He jammed on his brakes but that did no good. The weaving car roared toward them, careening to right and left. It crashed into the left side of the machine John was driving, crumpled a fender, and shot past them, coming to a stop some seventy-five or eighty feet beyond.

Then the Excitement Started.

John didn't know what the etiquette of the road was in Nova Scotia, but back home in New Jersey, where two cars collided, the thing to do was get the other fellow's license. He climbed out of the damaged car and started walking back. As he did, he noticed a heavy-set man getting out of the other machine, and also another man who was still sitting in the car.

Dolph Rogers, in the meantime, had climbed out of the back seat and followed John. John walked up to the heavy-set man, who was standing in the middle of the road, and said, "Let me see your driver's license." And then, suddenly, the melodrama was on!

The burly man shouted, "I'll show you my driver's license, you ----," and he lashed out suddenly with his right arm. John had just time to turn—then the blow caught him. It caught him on the back of the neck and he heard a tearing sound.

Suddenly, in the dark, he was conscious that his coat was hanging from his two arms—its tails flapping at the front of his thighs. It had been ripped completely in half in the back, from top to bottom. And while John was pondering this strange phenomenon he saw Dolph running up—heard him cry out, "LOOK OUT! THE HOOK! RUN!"

His Right Hand Was a Steel Claw.

Then John saw it. In the reflected glow of the car's head lamps he got a glimpse of the burly fellow's right hand. It wasn't a hand at all, but a STEEL CLAW strapped to the end of his arm. It must have been razor sharp, he knew, to cut his coat in half at one sweep of the thick-set fellow's arm. And at the same time he realized that the man was dangerously drunk.

If there ever was a man to fit the character of the sinister villain of the movie serials, this fellow was it. Thrown into a panic by his very appearance, John started to run. To his dismay he could hear the burly fellow's footsteps pounding along in hot pursuit!

"I was just sixteen," says John, "and in fair condition. I still believe that if I'd been timed, I would have lowered by a comfortable margin all the existing records for the mile run. I don't know how far the man chased me, but the next time I looked back he had given up."

"I was alone on the dark road, and a good many miles away from town. Presently I saw the lights of a car coming my way, and as it came nearer I recognized it as that of my friends. The girl who owned it had driven it up the road while the man was chasing me, had passed him, and had finally found me."

Ruffian Was Killed in a Brawl.

They drove back to Baddeck, and next morning they learned that the man with the claw hand was a notorious gentleman around that section. The police went to look for him, but he had skipped out of his usual haunts and wasn't to be found. Before John left Nova Scotia, however, he had news of him. The fellow was killed in a brawl in a saloon near Sydney.

"I've never been able to think of that steel claw without wincing," says John. "If he had been a little closer, he probably would have ripped my neck open."

Nerve-Racking, Nerve-Wracking
The correct spelling is racking, for the meaning is derived from the pain inflicted by torture on a rack. Definition 1 of the verb rack reads: "To stretch or strain on a rack. . . hence to cause prolonged suffering or anguish, to distress or pain greatly." So nerve-racking torture or pain is related to the Anglo-Saxon raxan, "to stretch," and not to the Anglo-Saxon wreacan, "to drive out."—Literary Digest

Bible Does Not Mention Whale
The Hebrew Bible does not mention a whale in connection with Jonah. It only speaks of "a great fish." Some English versions of the Bible have translated this as "a whale" (Matt. 12:40). In the French Bible, and in many others the original meaning is preserved. A whale is not a fish; it is an animal, and though it lives in the water it breathes with lungs.—Pearson's London Weekly.

what Irvin S. Cobb thinks about:

Glory Vs. Undernourishment.
SANTA MONICA, CALIF.—Because their dictators are piling up armaments and building up armies at a rate unprecedented, the German people must, it appears, go on rations, cutting down their daily consumption of breadstuffs and fats, with the prospect of still more stringent restrictions.

But their overlords—a reasonably well-nourished lot, to judge by their photographs—keep right on preaching that such compulsory undernourishment is all for the greater glory of the waterland.

I know of but one historic parallel to match this. It is to be found in Mother Goose, where it is poetically set forth: There was a piper had a cow And he had naught to give her So he pulled out his pipes and played her a tune And bade the cow consider.

Signs of Disapproval.
ONCE, in Montana, I heard two cowboys talking about the father of the sweetheart of one of them. "I've got a kind of a sneaking idea that Millie's paw don't care deeply for me," said the lover. "What makes you think so—something he said?"

"No, because he don't never say nothing to me, just sniffs. But the other night I snuck over there to see Millie, and, as I was coming away, I happened to look back and the old man was shoveling my tracks out of the front yard."

The archbishop of Canterbury is likely to wake up any morning and find the British public shoveling his tracks out of the front yards.

International "Messifications."
JUST about the time the contesting groups in Spain lose the twenty or thirty confusing names the correspondents have hung on them and resolve themselves into the army that's going to take Madrid not later than 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon and the army that's going to keep Madrid until the cows come home, a fresh complication breaks out in China. General Chang gets into a mixup with General Chiang, possibly on the ground that he's a typographical error, and the red forces of the north get all twisted up with the white army of the north and the pink army of the north by northeast and so on and so forth, until the special writers run out of colors.

Just one clear point stands out of the messification. When the dust clears away some small brown brothers wearing the Japanese uniform will be found sitting on top of the heap. China's poison is Nippon's meat, every pop.

Rationalizing the Calendar.
THE plan to adopt a rational calendar is finding favor in administration circles at Washington, as in European countries.

Every time this proposition—which is so sensible and seemingly unattainable—bobs up, I think of the little story of the venerable Alabama pessimist who dropped into the general store just in time to hear the proprietor reading aloud from the newspaper that the project for thirteen months of twenty-eight days each had been laid for consideration before the League of Nations.

"I'm ag'in' it," declared the aged one. "It'd be jest my luck for that extra month to come in the winter time and ketch me short of fodder."

Stunts in the Films.
FOR ordinary film stunts, current prices are:

Tree fall, $25; stair fall, $50 (each additional fall, $35); head-on auto crash, $200; parachute jump, $150; mid-air plane change, $200; high dive, $75; being knocked down by auto, $75; being knocked down by locomotive, $100; trick horse riding, $125; crashing a plane, $1,500. It doesn't cost a cent, though, for practically every slightly shopworn leading man, on or off the screen, to crave to play "Hamlet" on the stage. But it is almost invariably expensive for the producers who occasionally satisfy these morbid cravings.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By REV. HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, Dean of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. © Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for January 24

TWO MIRACLES OF MERCY

LESSON TEXT—John 5:2-9; 6:8-15.
GOLDEN TEXT—The same works that I do, bear witness of me, that the Father hath sent me. John 5:36.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Feeding Hungry People.
JUNIOR TOPIC—A Boy Who Gave Away His Lunch.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why Did Christ Work Miracles?
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Significance of Christ's Miracles.

The world is looking for supermen, those who can work "miracles," and thus afford an easy solution for the problems of the home and of the nation. Men are ready to marvel at and follow in almost abject submission those who promise riches without labor, food without toil, short cuts to comfort and satisfaction. Often they are content if they only have something over which they may exclaim "Wonderful!" whether it be useful or not.

The miracles of God, through his servants and the Lord Jesus Christ, are not mere marvels or wonders. They are not for the advancement of the cause of any man or for personal glory. They are the mighty signs of an omnipotent God wrought for the good of men, for their spiritual enlightenment and as a testimony to the one true God.

The two miracles of our lesson present Jesus Christ as a Lord of mercy and grace—ready to meet the needs of men. Deep and real was his compassion as his heart yearned over needy humanity.

It is suggested that in the study and teaching of this lesson we vary our plan somewhat and present seven seed thoughts found in the two portions assigned. It is also urged that the context in both chapters be read with care.

I. We Are Impotent Folk (John 5:2).

The words well describe not only those who lay helpless about the pool of Bethesda but they fit us as well. Oh, yes, we are strong, capable, fearless, but only until we meet some great elemental problem. Then we see that we are indeed "a great multitude of impotent folk." The gently falling snow stopped the undefeated Napoleon. The silent fog can paralyze a nation. Death, sickness—who can stay their hand?

II. Despair Spells Defeat (v. 7).
Long familiarity with his weakness had bred in the man with the infirmity a sense of despair. Such an attitude invites defeat. It is unbecoming to a Christian. Let us not forget in the darkest hour to "keep looking up."

III. God Answers the Weakest Faith (v. 8).

Jesus evidently saw in the man's despairing reply a spark of faith. He who believes honors the name of God. We may need to cry "I believe, help thou mine unbelief," but if we believe God will gloriously meet even our faltering faith.

IV. God's Command Empowers (vv. 8, 9).

Jesus told the man to "Rise—and walk"—the very thing he could not do for his thirty-eight years of life. But when the Son of God speaks to us he gives the power to respond to his command.

V. Works Follow Faith (v. 9).
The man arose, took up his bed, and walked. Man's faith in God and God's response to faith lead to man's action on God's command. Too many are they in the church today who have never stood up and walked for God.

VI. Look to God, Not at Your Resources (John 6:9).

Humanlike, the disciples counted their money and found it was not enough to supply food for a multitude. And then there was a boy, but he had only five barley crackers and two little fish. It almost sounds like a church-board deciding to close the cross-roads church and let the Devil have the boys and girls, because it costs too much to keep up the work. God help us to trust and go on for him. "Little is much when God is in it."

VII. Followers for Bread Not Wanted (v. 15).

Those who follow Christ because of business advantage and social prestige know nothing of what it means to be a Christian. He is not a bread-making king; he is the bread of life.

Essence of Prayer
Prayer in its essence is not so much the expression of our desire for things at all as of our desire for God Himself.

Discourtesy
Discourtesy occasions not merely suffering, but sin; and Christian courtesy is a "means of grace" to all who have the happiness to receive it.—R. W. Dale.

The Day's Work
Let us make haste to live. For every day is a new life to a wise man.—Seneca.

Grieving for Wasted Time
He who knows most, grieves most for wasted time.—Dante.

Uncle Phil Says:

Leaving No Stain

Let us seek so to live that our bygone year may, to use Cowper's beautiful expression, leave "no stain upon the wing of time."

Of all the wingless angels on earth that you value, the man who you know when he tells you he will do a certain thing on a certain day, will do it, is the most precious.

How you behave is your neighbor's way of judging—not by what you think.

Action Counts

Good thoughts are no better than good dreams, except when they are put into action.

If one knows a mean story on himself, let him remember it when he is tempted to tell a mean story on someone else—and refrain.

Features of Gentility

Two main features of gentility are propriety and consideration for others.

Dignity is beautiful to contemplate, but it needs to be employed with skill.

We all know how much we like a man when we hear he has just died. Let's tell him a little of that before he does.

Aren't the ladies' pages full of advice on how to manage a husband; but where do you find admonitions on how to manage a wife?

DON'T RUB YOUR EYES

Rubbing your eyes grinds insoluble particles of dust and dirt right into the delicate tissues, making the irritation just that much worse. A much better way, as thousands have discovered, is to use a little Murine in each eye—night and morning. Murine may be depended on to relieve eye irritation because it is a reliable eye preparation containing 7 active ingredients of known value in caring for the eyes. In use for 40 years. Ask for Murine at your drug store.

Calotabs Help Nature To Throw Off a Cold

Millions have found in Calotabs a most valuable aid in the treatment of colds. They take one or two tablets the first night and repeat the third or fourth night if needed. How do Calotabs help Nature throw off a cold? First, Calotabs are one of the most thorough and dependable of all intestinal eliminators, thus cleansing the intestinal tract of the germ-laden mucus and toxines. Second, Calotabs are diuretic to the kidneys, promoting the elimination of cold poisons from the blood. Thus Calotabs serve the double purpose of a purgative and diuretic, both of which are needed in the treatment of colds. Calotabs are quite economical; only twenty-five cents for the family package, ten cents for the trial package. (Adv.)

Each Soul a Universe
Every soul is a universe in itself and no two souls are alike.

Glory in the Attempts
In great attempts it is glorious even to fail.—Longinus.

Sore Throat Pains DUE TO COLDS Eased Instantly

1. Crush and stir 3 Bayer Aspirin tablets in 1/2 glass of water.

2. GARGLE thoroughly—throw your head way back, allowing a little to trickle down your throat.

3. Repeat gargle and do not rinse mouth, allow gargle to remain on membranes of the throat for prolonged effect.

Just Gargle This Way with Bayer Aspirin

Here is the most amazing way to ease the pains of rawness of sore throat resulting from a cold we know you have ever tried.

Crush and dissolve three genuine BAYER ASPIRIN tablets in one-third glass of water. Then gargle with this mixture twice, holding your head well back.

This medicinal gargle will act almost like a local anesthetic on the sore, irritated membrane of your throat. Pain eases almost instantly; rawness is relieved.

Countless thousands now use this way to ease sore throat. Your doctor, we are sure, will approve it. And you will say it is marvelous.

Get the real BAYER ASPIRIN at your druggist's by asking for it by its full name—not by the name "aspirin" alone.

LEGAL EVIDENCE

A man was charged with shooting number of pigeons, the property of farmer. Counsel for the defense led to frighten the farmer.

Now," he remarked, "are you prepared to swear that this man shot the pigeons?"

"I didn't say he did shot 'em," was the reply, "I said I suspected him of it."

"Now we're coming to it. What do you suspect this man?"

"Well, firstly, I caught him on my way to a gun. Secondly, I heard a shot go off and saw some pigeons flying in his pocket—and I don't think they birds flew in there and he shot 'em!"

HINT TO SPEAKERS

Walter Williams used to tell a speech he once made in a university. The Chinese is in symbols. At the back stage was a great blackboard.

The speaker proceeded, the interpreter translated the speech into symbols on the blackboard.

Williams noted that the interpreter stopped writing for most of the time, and at the conclusion of the speech, he said, "How come?"

The interpreter replied, "We only write down what the speaker says sometimes." William Southern, Jr., in The Kansas City Examiner.

THE GRUMBLE FAMILY

There's a family nobody likes to meet. They live, it is said, on Complaining Street.

In the city of Never-Are-Satisfied. The river of Discontent beside. They growl at that and they growl at this.

Whatever comes there is something amiss; And whether their station be high or humble, They are known by the name of Grumble.

The weather is always too hot or too cold, Summer and winter alike they scold: Nothing goes right with the folks you meet

Down on that gloomy Complaining Street, They growl at the rain and they growl at the sun,

In fact, their growling is never done, And if everything pleased them, there isn't a doubt

They'd growl that they'd nothing to grumble about! And the worst thing is that if anyone stays

Among them too long he will learn their ways, And before he dreams of the terrible jumble

He's adopted into the family of Grumble. So it were wisest to keep our feet

From wandering into Complaining Street; And never to growl, whatever we do, Lest we be mistaken for Grumblers, too.

PRACTICAL DEMONSTRATION

An editor and a merchant were discussing the virtue of billboard advertising. The merchant contended that more people read the billboard than the newspaper. After neither man would give in, the two parted.

The next week the merchant came tearing down the street to the newspaper office wanting to know why the obituary of his wife's mother was not in the paper, especially after he had seen that a copy was taken to the newspaper office.

"Well," said the editor, "I know you wanted the obituary read by the people, so I took it out and nailed it up on your billboard."—Sedan (Kan.) Advertiser-Journal.

An exchange newspaper in a nearby town who formerly refused to carry out-of-town advertising in his paper through loyalty to his home town merchants, was well filled with advertising from several other towns, in a recent issue, with only one or two decent size ads from his local merchants. Verily this editor, who has been so loyal to the old home town has been forced to go outside to secure business enough to meet the payroll and other overhead expenses, or else close the door. It's too bad that any town does not value their newspaper enough to support it with advertising and job printing.—Miami Chief.

Raymond Gray of Kellerville was in McLean Saturday.

Miss Jean Goodman of Amarillo visited relatives here this week.

Miss Alpha Bell of Memphis visited here last week.

W. B. Upham made a business trip to Berger last week.

E. J. Windom was in Lefors Saturday on business.

AN ECONOMIC CURE

In the pinch of economic stress men's spirits easily sink—their wills as easily weaken.

And while they look to quacks or new-fangled cures to heal their sores, they overlook an old-fashioned, home-made, sure-shot remedy.

In every financial crisis we finally come back to frugality and industry. Thrift and work—upon these was built our whole financial structure, and back to these we shall turn for permanent relief.

It's a bitter dose for some of us to have to swallow—we are so accustomed to sugar-coated pills and pretty labels—but wise doctors know that finally we shall have to take the stronger tonic—industry and thrift!—Clayton Rand in The Gulfport (Miss.) Guide.

Last week we received two complaints from local readers. One because a certain person's name appeared in our paper and another since their name failed to make the issue. Finish each day and be done with it. You have done what you could. Some blunders and absurdities, no doubt, crept in; forget them as soon as you can. Tomorrow is a new day; begin it well and serenely, and with too high a spirit to be encumbered with your old nonsense.—Emerson.

Observation

Speaking of the powers of Observation, look at this one:

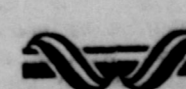

A Glasgow professor, in order to emphasize the value of observation, prepared a little cupful of kerosene, mustard and castor oil, and calling the attention of his class to it, dipped a finger into the atrocious compound and then sucked his finger. He next passed the mixture around to the students, who all did the same thing, with the most dire results. When the cup returned, and he observed the faces of the students, he remarked:

"Gentlemen, I am afraid that you did not use your powers of observation. The finger that I put into the cup was not the same one that I stuck into my mouth."

People, particularly advertisers, are woefully prone to fail to observe obvious facts in the matter of appealing to customers. They fail to observe that certain newspapers, like The McLean News, have a select circulation among people who matter; that their interests are considered in making up the editorial contents of the paper—without featuring crime news or scandal; that, finally, these people—these discriminating subscribers to The News—have or control the greater part of the purchasing power of this region.

Before you place your advertising, ask The News for proof of its efficiency as a salesman.

The man who is not honest with himself is not honest with others.

A wise man corrects his own faults from observing the faults of others.

The man who says advertising will not help his business has never tried advertising.

Business is like a chicken; it is never so healthy as when it is doing a certain amount of scratching for what it gets.

Chamber of commerce banquets only happen once a year in McLean, and it would be nice if everyone would make it a practice to attend them. A little consideration for the ticket sellers can be appreciated this year. Let's make the attendance 100% for once.

During the past 30 years, Ed Slayden of Mills county has paid $21,000 rent on a farm that recently sold to the Federal Government for less than half that amount. The government will sell the farm to Slayden on 40 years' time, and he will pay less for it than the rental he has paid during his 30-year tenancy. If the Federal Government can solve the farm tenancy problem, it will make up for a lot of mistakes in other lines.

There are a lot of things the Garden Club might sponsor this year that would mean much to the beauty and attractiveness of the town. We understand that the annual election of officers will be held some time next month, and a drive for new members might very well be staged soon after. Up to now, there have been no dues of any kind, the only requirement for membership being a love for flowers, trees and shrubs, and the urge to better the home surroundings.

City and school politics are warming up in many towns, as the elections are to be held in April. McLean voters usually wait until the last minute, and then somebody begins to tear his shirt for a favorite candidate. We need to be careful in choosing officials this year, for there is need for a conservative, businesslike handling of city and school affairs, if we are to survive the depression and continue to progress. A violent change of any kind just at this time could easily be disastrous.

With the proper care, roses are easily grown in the Panhandle, as are many other ornamental shrubs; however, the grower should be careful in buying, as many varieties are not suited to local conditions. Arbor vitae, Arizona and Italian cypress have been frozen at different times here in the past, and when it is remembered that so many of the cedars, junipers, pines and spruces are perfectly hardy, and readily take the place of the semi-hardy evergreens. Abelia is another shrub that should be left alone, unless one is willing to run the risk of disappointment; but with mahonia and nandina to take its place, it will not be missed in the landscaping of the home. Those familiar with local conditions can give advice that will save the amateur many dollars and much lost time in trying to adapt unsuitable plants to this climate.

TRADES DAY LOTTERY

Recently the Herald, along with other business and professional men of the town, received a form letter from the local Lions Club, asking whether or not it was the desire of the town for them to carry on with the first Monday Trades Day. We have been expecting something like this to develop for some time, but we did not know that as many merchants were taking out from buying tickets as the report would indicate.

For some nine months the Herald has not greatly troubled itself to boost the day, for the reason that such a small per cent of the business men seemed to take any interest in the matter. If there were no inducements of any kind, such as first Monday specials, trades day specials, or dollar day specials, what could the Herald say to get people to come here to a trade? If we mentioned what takes place on the east side of the square the Post Office department could hold up our paper for mentioning what they maintain is a lottery.

So, gentlemen, we had to just ease out of something we couldn't boost conscientiously. It wasn't just a case of "it takes money to make the mare go," although that was part of it, but it was more, it was a case of making a big blow about something that did not exist, and we hated to tell 1200 farmers and their families each month to get them here when nothing was offered for the day. The Herald is the last institution on earth to advise our merchants to put on a lot of specials on staples that could be below cost, but we believe that specials that are attractive can be put on for special days that will draw business to Brownfield, and at the same time leave a good taste in the mouth of the business men.

Another suggestion we would make if the ticket business has to be dropped, let a committee of Lions or other business men get out and see what the attitude of the merchants would be to donate a small sum each month toward providing a free auctioneer each trades day for anything the farmers bring in to sell.—Brownfield Herald.

SMALL SHOPKEEPERS

The 1935 census of leading service establishments shows that, based on revenues received, the country's 17,386 funeral directors head the list of small shopkeepers, according to an article appearing in a recent issue of "Business Week." There was a 35% increase over 1933 in the number of undertakers. Every death in 1933 cost about $185 for funeral services alone.

Based on number, barber shops outnumbered every other service industry covered in the recent survey (not including professionals, hotels, amusements). Barber shops also stood first as a source of employment and second in revenues and payrolls. Average annual volume was less than $1,800. Beauty parlors ranked second in number of service establishments, but first in volume of payroll. They did an average business of $2,791 per store. Compared with 1933, their number swelled 43%; their income 48%.

HARD TO BELIEVE

It was in the sales room, and the talk had turned to hens. "Talking of hens," remarked one of the gentlemen, "reminds me of an old hen my dad once had on the farm in Dakota. She would hatch out anything from a iron ball to a lemon. Why, one day she sat on a piece of ice and hatched out two quarts of hot water."

"That doesn't come up to a chick-footed hen my old mother once had," remarked the other. "They had been feeding her sawdust by mistake instead of oatmeal. Well, sir, she laid twelve eggs and sat on them, and when they hatched, eleven of the chickens had wooden legs, and the other was a woodpecker!"

Politeness is an asset to any man, even though for the moment adversity may hold him in her grasp. If he knows how to be polite and gentle the world will soon find him out, then he will be able to build from the ashes of defeat a mighty structure which will stand the winds and storms of adversity and rise like a tower to show men the possibilities of being kind.—Moore County News.

They sat at the table, he and she, and gazed into each other's eyes, what time he mechanically consumed the food which was set before him. "Ah," she said, "I'm glad you like it. Mother says that there are only two things I can make properly—potato salad and marmalade tart."

LAMENT MASCULINANA

I'm through with all women. They're fickle, untrue.

They make you, then break you and laugh when they're through.

They wreck and degrade you with motives most base.

Then reward all your love with a slap in the face.

I'm done with all women, there's no one alive

Who's worth all the misery that men must survive.

To win their black hearts where a flame seems to dwell.

That is fed by the men that are under their spell.

I'm through with all women, they cheat and they lie.

They prey on us males to the day that they die.

They tease us, torment us and drive us to sin—

Say, who is that blonde that just now came in?

WHEN FICTION FAILS
Young Author—The art in telling a story consists of knowing what to leave unsaid.

SOMEBODY'S LITTLE BOY
Somebody's little boy was crossing the street.
Innocent, young and fair,
He hadn't the judgment of older folks,
He didn't see the danger there.

Somebody's boy had a song on his lips,
But it died in an instant away.
For a motorist ran the little boy down,
And he died at the close of day.

Somebody kneels by an empty bed,
And fondles a little shoe;
Somebody looks through the empty years—
Suppose this somebody were you?

Will you watch for the little boys,
Drivers in the city and town?
Really, it's one of the greatest crimes
To run a little boy down.

CAN SUCH THINGS BE?

The female of the species is in the ascendency if we are to believe news items appearing in newspapers.

Example: Women strikers, Munden, La., stopped a train, beat up the engineer, tore the clothing from a railroad official and chased the train crew into the woods.

Utah's home economics supervisor made a survey of high schools and colleges. She found: enrollment of men in domestic science classes increasing, one-third of Utah high schools offer home-making courses for boys.

From Baltimore comes a story of Doghouse, Inc., a nation-wide system of clubs or hideouts. These are refuges for husbands who get in Dutch with the "Mrs." They are becoming plentiful. Instead of the wife running home to mama, the husband takes the air.

"Yep, times ain't what they used to be forty years ago."

Let's remember that an engaging personality becomes a handicap rather than an advantage when one shows too much self-appreciation.

THE JOLLY OLD JESTER
In the good old days of romance and adventure, a king's jester one day found His Majesty bending over a basin and washing his face. In a spirit of fun the jester gave the king a resounding kick on that part of his sacred person situated directly behind his stomach. Deeply enraged, the king ordered the immediate execution of his audacious jester, but finally consented to pardon him if he would make an apology more outrageous than the original insult.

The condemned jester reflected for a moment and then remarked: "Will Your Majesty please forgive me. I did not know it was you. I thought it was the queen."

I AM THE PRINTING PRESS

I am the printing press, born of the mother earth. My heart is of steel, my limbs are of iron, and my fingers are of brass.

I sing the song of the world, the oratories of history, the symphonies of all time.

I am the voice of today, the herald of tomorrow. I weave into the warp of the past the woof of the future. I tell the stories of peace and war alike. I make the human heart beat with passion or tenderness. I stir the pulse of the nations, and make brave men do braver deeds, and soldiers die.

I inspire the midnight toiler, weary at his loom, to lift his head again and gaze, with fearlessness, into the vast beyond, seeking the consolation of a hope eternal.

When I speak, a myriad people listen to my voice. The Saxon, the Latin, the Celt, the Hun, the Slav, the Hindu, all comprehend me.

I am the tireless clarion of the news. I cry your joys and sorrows every hour. I fill the dulleard's mind with thoughts uplifting. I am light, knowledge, power. I epitomize the conquests of mind over matter.

I am the record of all things mankind has achieved. My offspring comes to you in the candle's glow, amid the dim lamps of poverty, the splendor of riches; at sunrise, at high noon and in the waning evening.

I am the laughter and tears of the world, and I shall never die until all things return to the immutable dust.

I am the printing press.—Robert H. Davis.

1937 SIX-POINT PROGRAM

John Guernsey, distribution economist of the United States census bureau, offers the following six-point program for retail merchants during 1937:

1. Modern store exterior, fresh paint, attractive signs, color.

2. Windows well-lighted all day and at night, with displays designed to sell merchandise by spotlighting specific specials; window cards that describe and price everything in the window, not just the principal items in display. Motion of some kind in the window helps to draw attention.

3. Clean, low, colorful store fixtures designed for attractive display of merchandise and convenience in electing and selling. Good lighting and plenty of color. The self-serve groceries, the variety stores and the cafeterias have accentuated the desire of customers to serve themselves, instead of being served entirely by salespeople. Encourage that preference by the way your store is laid out and your merchandise is displayed. It will cut selling costs and please customers.

4. Much personal attention of store leads in the selection and training of salespeople. If you or your son or any of your employees do not enjoy meeting customers and waiting on them, keep them behind the scenes, not behind the counters. It is absolutely essential today that you make your store a pleasant place to shop in. If you must reprimand employees, do it out of sight and hearing of customers. And in your own conduct on the floor, smile and be agreeable always, even if it cracks your face.

5. An adequate stock of merchandise, with as many related lines as finances and the nature of your trade will permit. Keep experimenting with additional lines, in small quantities, until you find those which will sell well—and in these experimental lines disregard your normal mark-up, because to buy in small quantities for safety you pay more and should not reflect that in your price. In pricing, always meet a competitor's price for the same merchandise and the same service. You can afford to carry full stocks of regular, staple merchandise under present conditions, first because there is no better way to build volume than to have what the customer wants when she wants it, and second because we are facing a period of steadily mounting prices in staples.

6. Advertise regularly and aggressively. The newspapers are the best medium for most retailers.

ODORIFEROUS

Two men were arguing as to which smelled the worse, a tramp or a goat. They agreed to leave it to the judge.

"All right," said the judge, "bring on your evidence."

The goat was led in and the judge fainted.

GETTING FULL VALUE FOR YOUR DOLLARS

Years ago the old time merchant bought his season's supply of merchandise at one time. He filled his shelves and store room to capacity and then waited for the people to come and get it. He didn't advertise because he figured "everybody knows me anyway." He didn't consider turnover, he didn't offer bargain specials.

We are not endeavoring to belittle his methods. He was a good, careful business man. He contributed notably to the community he served. He enjoyed the confidence of the public.

But his methods today are out-moded. The business world has changed, and we believe in many ways the change is all in the public interest.

Today's live-wire merchant doesn't stock a whole season's supply at one time. He wants to keep his capital moving rapidly. He understands the importance of turn-over. He expects smaller profits but more of them.

As a result he advertises his new merchandise, so that the people may know what he has to offer. If he finds that he is over-stocked in some items, he reduces the price, offers the buying public real values in his advertising and turns to something new.

He knows it doesn't pay to carry merchandise over from year to year. People don't want to buy out of date goods—the idle capital thus tied up represents a big expense and a real loss. He can't get volume that way and volume is more important than unit profits.

The small cost of his advertising is a trifling item compared to the big cost of idle capital. This probably explains why it is usually easier and more economical to buy from the merchant who advertises regularly, who keeps his stock moving, who sells you this year's merchandise next year.

This explains why the cost of advertising is not added to the price of the merchandise. For advertising is an agency of moving merchandise economically and efficiently. It is indispensable in modern merchandising.

This acts to combat fever, and cold aches and pains. Repeat the treatment in 2 hours if necessary. This modern, inexpensive way to ease a cold is approved by thousands of doctors. DRUNKEN DRIVERS

Using tobacco in any form is very disagreeable to the user. If he smokes a pipe or cigarette, he may burn holes in that new suit he put on last Sunday. If he chews tobacco, he will surely get "tobacco juice" on some part of the new suit. Yes, indeed, it is a very bad habit, but not half so bad as drinking whiskey while driving an automobile. The latter habit has been known to kill innocent women and children on our public highways.

The men are not by themselves. We see many women going into drug stores and buying a pint of liquor with just as bold a front as a man. Women who try to drive a car while intoxicated or even partially intoxicated, should be condemned just as much so as men. It is against the very nature of any woman to smoke cigarettes or to drink whiskey, therefore, we believe this habit was formed because of the association of some gentlemen friends, who taught them this bad habit. No man wants to marry a woman who is a drinker, and no lady should marry a man who is a drunkard. Gasoline and whiskey will not mix without disastrous results. Just think of the thousands who are being killed and crippled for life because of drunken drivers.—Claude News.

ADVERTISING BELIEVED

Does the public have confidence in advertising? A survey of more than 5,000 persons by Charles A. Stech, a consumer research specialist, proves the affirmative, according to the Topeka (Kan.) chamber of commerce.

"Of those canvassed," the report set forth, "85% consider the statements made in newspaper advertising more reliable than those of men elected to public office."

"More confidence was placed in advertisements than in the statements of salesmen. Of those interviewed, 85% were convinced that advertised brands were more likely to be held to a high degree of quality than those not advertised."—Missouri Press News.

Marriage in this day offers advantages never dreamed of back in our younger days. They shower the bride and then each birth calls for a shower. If they "burn out," that calls for a shower. Offers New Opportunities

THE modern woman who sews is really an enviable person. She has at her finger-tips an endless array of fashions from which to choose for her own and her daughters' wardrobes. Today's trio affords her new opportunities in several size ranges; in fact, there's something here for the mature figure, size 42, right on down to the tiny tot who just manages to fill an "age 4."

Pattern 1987—This diminutive frock is for Miss Four - To-Twelve. Its easy lines, flaring skirt, and pretty sleeves are perhaps second only to its thru-the-machine-aptness, so far as the woman who sews is concerned. But this is all too obvious to mention. Better cut this pattern twice for all 'round practical reasons. It's intriguing in taffeta—a winner in gingham and linen. It comes in sizes 4, 6, 8, 10, and 12 years. Size 6 requires 1 1/2 yards of 39 inch material plus 3/4 yard contrasting.

Pattern 1211—It is a smart frock like this that will turn the most immune young lady into an ardent seamstress almost overnight. And rightly so, for it's plain to see how becoming are its princess lines, how flattering the wide shoulders and slim waist, yes, and how spicy the swing skirt. A pretty and colorful motif can be had in the use of velvet for the buttons and belt. Monotone broadcloth, black or royal blue, with the collar and cuffs of white linen, is a startlingly chic material for this model. It is available in sizes 12 to 20 (30 to 40 bust). Size 14 requires 2 3/4 yards of 54 inch fabric plus 3/4 yard of 39 inch contrasting.

Pattern 1210—Which would you have, Madam, an artistic smock or a glamorous house coat? This pattern allows you to make this interesting choice and it has what you'll need to make either of the models illustrated here. The

A felt blackboard eraser is best cleaning the top of the kitchen stove. If grease gets on the stove should be rubbed over the top of the stove while it is still hot. The eraser is much more satisfactory than a cloth and it keeps hands from getting soiled.

Fish is sometimes broken through overboiling. If this happens, remove all skin and bones and flake it. Mix it with a sauce, and sprinkle it with chopped parsley, chopped hard-boiled egg, and macerated and cheese, and serve in fireproof glass dishes.

Never put soda and water into enameled saucepan that has been burned. Although it will remove the burned particles of food will make the pan more likely to burn again the next time it is used. Use salt instead of soda. Wash the pan with cold water, leave the next day and then allowing to dry to a boil.

house coat has become woman-kind's most desired "at home" attire; so rather than being among the minority, why not turn your talents to this princess model—you'll have it complete in a mere few hours and think of the countless days it will stand you in good stead as a really good looking wardrobe asset. It is designed in sizes 14 to 20 (32 to 42 bust). Size 16 (in full length) requires 5 1/2 yards of 39 inch material plus 3/4 yard of bias piping and 1/4 yard contrasting material for pocket.

Style-Correct 'Comfy' Snow Clothes

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

IF YOU would be graceful, "lady of the snows," you must be comfort-wise as well as fashion-wise. Warm and cozy but light as a feather, the new lightweight woollens are the big news in winter sportswear this season together with a decided vogue for gay Tyrolean "picture" costumes.

Wool gabardine, wool covert cloth, snow cloth and the finely knitted snow-tested woollens are safe and happy choices, for they keep the wind at bay and are snow-shedding and waterproof. Ideal for tailoring, they keep their rounder circumstances. Be sure that your winter sports clothes are all wool, because this is the only way to be certain of adequate warmth without an ounce of extra weight to impede action. Two pair of wool socks, one short and one long enough to turn back over the tops of your ski shoes, also wool cap, scarf and gloves are advisable from a purely common sense standpoint. From a style basis these details give opportunity to dramatize every ski and skate suit, so choose the smartest dashing items you can find—most especially of Tyrolean, Norwegian and Dalmatian influence in colors and embroideries.

The smiling snow enthusiast to the left in the picture is perfectly clad from both a comfort and style viewpoint. This smiling queen of wintry realms is sporting with pride a new spectator coat of weather-resistant wool, soft and fleecy as a warm woolen blanket. Swagger in cut with neck and comfortably full sleeves, it is buttoned smartly up the front in bright gold. A striking blanket stripe bands the sleeves and the bottom of the coat, also making the distinctive yoke set in for broad shouldered effect.

Picturesquely Tyrolean in feeling is the "suspender" skating costume centered in the group. A cable knit sweater, in fanciful stitch, with flattering high neck is in soft white wool with matching toboggan-type cap, mittens and socks. Black wool gabardine flares in a widely pleated skating skirt and is caught at the snugly fitting waistline by decorative woolen suspenders done in colorful and authentic Tyrolean design.

FRINGED WOOLEN

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

In the fabric realm fringed woolen is one of the successful novelties of spectator sports frock in one of the amusing new fringed woollens. It is a deep oxford gray with blue and gray fringed tufts woven right into the fabric. Silver buttons and a wide leather belt are nice outdoor accents.

To the right a classically tailored Austrian type ski suit is shown. It has a stunning, expertly tailored, double breasted gray wool gabardine jacket. Back-belted and snugly buckled, it stays nicely in place over high-bulked trousers in smooth suede-like black wool. A becoming gabardine soft-crowned cap fits well down on the head.

It is not only that modern snow clothes present an exciting variety of styles, but they are built on professionally correct lines. Current collections include a number of classically tailored types with simple mannish effect. Styled in dark monotone shades they depend on bright accessories for color accent. Then there are the feminine outfits with emphasis on combinations of fabric and colors together with cunningly devised details.

To pink-checked winter sports fans now dotting ski trails and snowy hills all over the countryside, crowding skating rinks or the old mill pond, it is of the utmost importance that sports clothes be snow-worthy and completely adequate. Look to it that your snow clothes be warm and wind-resistant. Be sure, too, that they are freely cut for plenty of action. Beware of gaps. Let sock upon sock, scarf and sweater added to sturdy costume, dependable slide fasteners and other strong and stout gadgets make you feel "sure" even should you find yourself head-first in a snow drift.

VEILS FOR SPRING, MILLINERY EDICT

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Paris milliners are saying for spring "a veil with every hat." And wait until you see the veils! Of course you may choose the modest little eye-screening affairs if you wish and they really are practical and will maintain their vogue the season through. However, they do not tell the whole story of veils, for in the new varieties there are most dramatic veils, some almost shoulder depth. Many tiny hats, especially the pill-box type, are individualized with clever veils, the wide mesh effects being especially good. The newer French veils also favor scrawly thread embroideries tracing fanciful patterns.

Lowered Necklines Will Be Welcomed by Many

Those among women of fashion that have been doing penance in wearing high unflattering necklines just to be stylish will welcome the good news that incoming dresses for spring assure a return to becoming soft lines. No longer will the throat have to be swathed in high drapes and fitted bands. The new trend is to square necks, and pointed ones also. This, together with short youthful sleeves, presents a very promising outlook.

Home Heating Hints

By John Barclay Heating Expert

IT'S easy to regulate a furnace fire to meet the requirements of daily temperature changes. All you need to do is to understand the functioning of the check and ashpit dampers.

Check Damper—a flap-like damper, which should be located in the chimney pipe between the turn damper and the chimney. When it's open, it slows up the burning speed of the fire; closed, it quickens the speed.

Ashpit Damper—located below the grates and controls the amount of air supplied to the fire.

To produce the best results, these dampers should work together—when one is open the other should be closed, and vice versa. In mild weather, when a slow, lasting fire is needed, the check damper should be wide open and the ashpit damper closed. When more heat is needed, the check damper should be partly closed, the ashpit damper partly open. For extremely cold weather, the check damper should be closed tight, the ashpit damper wide open.

The proper use of these two dampers insures the proper degree of heat at all times on a minimum amount of fuel.

Remember the Birds

Do you remember the birds in cold weather, with food on a feeding tray, or at least scattered on the ground, and perhaps a lump of suet nailed or wired to a post? Many do; there is no form of winter charity more appealing or self-rewarding. But remember to give them water, too. Birds need water constantly, and when their usual sources freeze up they often suffer cruelly from thirst. Be sure you warm the water—make it as hot as your own coffee or tea. Then it will stay unfrozen for quite a while and give more of your feathered guests a chance to drink.—Science Service.

COLDS

Colds are coming. Most doctors say that there is very little to be done to avoid catching them or to stop them once they are caught. Yet on the subject of colds every one of us is not only his own doctor, but also a storehouse of advice to others. Anyone who took all of this advice simultaneously would be very unhappy. He would wrap himself up in an ice-cold sheet and drink a half-gallon of boiling lemonade. He would take two tablets of aspirin, two jiggers of whiskey, two ounces of castor oil and the juice of two lemons. He would cover his chest with flannel soaked in kerosene, taking care not to light a match, though (who knows) that might help also. He would swallow lots of medicines or no medicines, eat heartily or not eat at all, avoid stimulants or fall generously off the wagon. He would sit with his feet in mustard water, rising from time to time to lie in bed under eight blankets.—Canyon News.

A STIRRING TALE OF YOUNG LOVE THAT WOULD NOT BE DESTROYED!

Follow It Serially IN THIS PAPER!

THEY SHOULD PAY

The Enterprise is always ready and willing to publish notes and news of the schools, churches, clubs and other societies and organizations, but must draw the line at publicity for paid entertainments, etc. A newspaper must have a certain amount of revenue to exist at all, and unless a charge is made for advertising, it would cease to operate. Remember this article is not written in a spirit of animosity toward anyone, but to acquaint the public with facts which they perhaps are not familiar with. So in fairness to ourselves we must insist that any reference to paid entertainment, suppers, bazaars, bake sales, made in notes, correspondence or otherwise, must be classed as advertising and paid for, or left out of the paper.—Palmyra (Wis.) Enterprise.

MRS. HOMMEL DIES

Following a short illness, Mrs. M. J. Hommel, aged 71, died at the home of her daughter at Clarendon, Saturday, Jan. 16.

She is survived by her husband, three sons, and four daughters; among them being Mrs. W. E. Kennedy of McLean, Ollie and Frank Hommel of Clarendon, former McLean residents.

The Hommel family formerly resided in the Alanreed community.

Son—Say, dad, what does it mean when the paper says some man went to a convention as a delegate-at-large?

Dad—It means his wife didn't go with him, son.

A little boy attending Sunday school at a summer resort was asked by his father: "Well, Billy, whom did you have for teacher today?"

The boy replied: "Daddy, we didn't have a teacher today; we had a man."

Snip (slipping engagement ring on her finger)—Mollie, dear, have you told your parents?

Mollie—Oh, you poor innocent! Why, they knew it six months before you did.

Inventory Time? What of It?

Advertisers who are afraid of the bug-aboo of the ages—January inventory time—because they think everyone is too much occupied with inventory and income taxes and trying to recover from the holidays to buy anything, are fooling themselves pretty badly. That is to say—everyone isn't taking inventory. Old John and Jane Customer, for instance, are not bothering about inventories, and a lot of them are not worried much about income taxes—at least until the deadline approaches.

During January and February, replacements are to be made in almost every household need. The holiday season is over and buyers are ready to resume the purchase of commodities, like coal, bedding, house furnishings, draperies. They are ready to consider new carpets and rugs and other things not in the gift class.
