McLEAN BAND WINS THREE FIRST RATINGS IN STATE CONTEST

The McLean municipal band directed by Prof. M. J. Newman, won first in concert performance, sight reading and marching for Class 2-C bands at the state contest in Amarillo last week.

Baptists Extend Call to Rev. C. O. Huber

Members of the First Baptist Church in special session Monday evening voted a unanimous call to Rev. C. O. Huber of Gallup, N. M., to serve the church as pastor.
Rev. Huber preached at the local church last Sunday, making a fine impression on those who heard him.
Rev. and Mrs. Huber are soloists and choir directors of excellent reputation, having done much of this kind of work. Rev. Huber was in charge of the choir of the First Baptist Church of Canyon for several years and was educational director at the First Baptist Church of Pampa at one time.
Rev. Huber has been pastor and choir director at Gallup for some years, where special attention has been given work among the young people and children.
The pulpit committee has notified Rev. Huber of the action by the church and it is hoped that he will accept the position and be on the field at an early date.

The McLean church has been without a pastor since the resignation of Rev. Troy A. Sumrall some 10 weeks ago.
Mrs. L. W. Hand of Cleburne came Saturday for a visit with her daughter, Mrs. Leroy M. Brown, and family. She was accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Genn, and husband, who returned home Sunday.

Paul M. Bruce of the Bruce Nursery at Alanreed, was a visitor at the Lions Club Tuesday, furnishing the president's table with a beautiful bouquet of red carnations.
Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Phillips of Dumas visited the former's sister, Mrs. C. J. Cash; also Sammie Cubine and son, over the week end.
Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kennedy and little daughter of Skellytown visited the lady's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Noel, over the week end.

Mrs. O. L. Graham visited her sister, Mrs. B. Price, at Shamrock Sunday.
Joe Dowlin visited his mother, Mrs. M. J. Dowlin, at Fort Worth over the week end.
D. M. Beech, Jr., of Plainview was in McLean last week on business.
Mrs. L. L. Palmer of Alanreed was a McLean visitor Monday.

BAPTIST CHOIR TO SING

The choir of the First Baptist Church has arranged some special Easter music for the morning hour next Sunday. Selections from the Easter cantata, Life Eternal, will be sung as follows:
Duet, A Whisper of Hope—Mrs. Norman Johnston and Mrs. Vernon Johnston.
Chorus, Dawns the New Day—Choir.
Solo, The Redeemer Triumphant—Miss Evonne Floyd.

PRESBYTERIAN LADIES

Leviticus 8-10 was studied Tuesday afternoon when the Presbyterian Ladies Missionary Society met with Mrs. John B. Rice for Bible study. Mrs. S. R. Jones, Bible teacher, had charge of the study.
Present were Mesdames Mattie Graham, E. L. Sitter, Oscar Goodman, T. A. Massay, Boyd Meador, Enloe Crisp, Cort Meyers, C. V. Hendren, Chas. E. Cooke, Travis Stokes, J. H. Flesher, J. B. Hembree and J. W. Myrose.

County Agent Tells Cotton Stamp Plan

County Agent Ralph R. Thomas was guest speaker at the Lions Club luncheon Tuesday, explaining the cotton and food stamp plans for surplus commodities.
"Underconsumption, not overproduction, is the real problem today," said Mr. Thomas. "The food stamp plan will help both farmer and consumer. Some one-third of the population of this country is underfed. It is to assist these people and help to reduce the food surplus that the stamp plan is adopted."
Mr. Thomas said that farmers compose one-fourth of the population but they receive only 11% of the income of the country.
In explaining the cotton stamp plan, Mr. Thomas predicted that between 15 and 20 thousand dollars in stamps will be released in the McLean community this fall.

MEETING AT KELLERVILLE

A series of revival services will begin next Sunday at the Kellerville Baptist Church, according to Rev. W. O. Cooley, pastor.
Rev. Vernie Pipes, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Shamrock, will do the preaching, and the public is cordially invited to attend.

County Agent Ralph R. Thomas has the thanks of the News editor for a block of stamps for his collection and some seed of a rare Chinese tree.

Mrs. T. A. Landers, Mrs. V. B. Reagor and son, Tommy, have returned from a visit to the Rio Grande Valley and Old Mexico, returning by way of Kermit.

Mrs. W. F. Harlan and son, Gene, of Skellytown visited their mother and grandmother, Mrs. J. W. Kibler, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Arnos Shankle made a business trip to Pampa Saturday.

Funeral Services J. A. Belew Monday

Funeral services were held at the First Methodist Church Monday afternoon for J. A. Belew, aged 86 years, 3 months and 25 days, who died April 6, 1941.
Services were conducted by Rev. H. C. Smith, pastor of the Amarillo San Jacinto Methodist Church, assisted by Rev. John W. Myrose, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of McLean, and Supt. C. A. Cryer.
Survivors include the widow, two sons, H. A. of McLean, H. M. of Clayton, N. M.; and one daughter, Mrs. Connie B. Adams of Greenville, N. M.
Mr. Belew came to Texas in 1875, moving to McLean in 1918, and spending the past four years in Amarillo. Burial was made in Hillcrest cemetery.

Mrs. Carpenter Club Hostess Friday

Mrs. C. M. Carpenter was hostess to the 1934 Sewing Club Friday with an all day session and covered dish luncheon at noon, a very enjoyable time being reported.
Some 16 members and the following in guests were present: Mesdames Mattie Graham, W. E. Ballard, Willie Boyett, Ernest Beck, J. B. Pettit and Sam Kunkel.
The next meeting will be held with Mrs. J. M. Noel.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Axis Powers Protest U. S. 'Custody' Of Ships Seized in American Ports; Jugoslavia Aims at National Unity In Program of Anti-German Activity

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

AXIS SHIPS:

Protective Custody

Protest from the Axis powers was not long in coming following seizure by the United States of some 69 German, Italian and Danish merchant ships docked in American ports.

According to federal officials the ships were seized for "protective custody" on the grounds of sabotage. Finding definite traces of systematic sabotage, the navy's intelligence service started the chain of events that led to the seizures. When the first evidence was uncovered the facts were laid before President Roosevelt and with his approval the coast guard received its orders to place the ships under "custody."

One explanation of the action came from Herbert Gaston, assistant secretary of the treasury, who said the move was "protective" and aimed to "prevent the further wrecking of damage which would constitute a menace to American ships and traffic being carried on in the harbors of the United States."

When the seizures were made there was found plenty of evidence to back up the suspicion of sabotage. Many of the ships' crews had wrecked the machinery of their vessels to the point where getting them out of port was impossible. First reports indicated that the sabotage had been confined to Italian ships.

German and Italian embassies in Washington issued the first notes of protest to the state department but did not immediately disclose their contents. From Rome and Berlin came unofficial reports that the move had a most serious aspect to the foreign powers. The Danish government reported that no protest was being issued.

ROOSEVELT:

Hits Out

President Roosevelt took time off from a fishing trip off Florida to hit out at antagonists of freedom, liberty and the pursuit of the ideals of the present administration by going ashore at Port Everglades, Fla., and broadcasting a punch-packed message to the American people who were clinging to their firesides as winter hit back for a moment at many sections of the nation.

The President warned that the threat of Nazi and Communist doctrines were drawing more tightly around the American nation day by day. He said he was gratified that Americans are heeding the nation's determination that, with all America's resources and power, it should help those who block dictators in their march toward domination of the world.

The occasion was the President's Jackson day address. He made it the occasion of another defiance of the dictatorial powers in Europe. He also took occasion to call attention to the manner in which, he said, the Communists are attempting to undermine American free labor.

He warned the people that hard days are ahead. He said that everyone would have to labor shoulder to shoulder at the national defense wheel. The broadcast was made from the wardroom of the presidential yacht Potomac. Oddly only a freight shed separated his yacht from the Nazi freighter Arauca which was chased into Port Everglades harbor in December, 1939.

From the Potomac, as he broadcast, the President could see the Nazi swastika flying from the stern of the Arauca, as he pointed out to his nation over the air-waves what sort of a world it would be if democracy did not prevail.

He said in part: "The decision we (the United States) have reached is not a partisan decision. The leader of the Republican party, Mr. Wendell L. Willkie, in order and in action is showing what patriotic Americans mean by rising above partisanship and rallying to the common cause.

JUGOSLAVIA:

Challenge

The sudden and almost bloodless upset in the government of Yugoslavia was a challenge to popular imagination. In the briefest of intervals the people rose against the Vienna-signed Axis pact, overturned the government, placed Regent Prince Paul and his mates under military arrest, and seized the power.

Yet there was not an immediate turnaround, and though the British and American press welcomed the overturn with joy, it was evident to close observers that it was too early to toss hats in the air and to say that Hitler had been outfaced.

The Nazis immediately, it is true, demanded a clarification of the Yugoslav attitude toward the action of the predecessor government, nay, the Nazis handed it out in the form of an ultimatum.

Yet there was deep doubt over the whole situation. How sincere, demanded the watchers, were the Yugoslavs in their about-face?

Was the nation, ringed about on three sides by hostile powers, and with aid from the British and the United States, though promised, entirely problematical, going to stand up to the Nazi threat of armed invasion, not only from the west, with German troops, but from the north, also, with the Fascist legions?

Here a Nazi soldier and Rumanian sailor are shown on guard duty on the Black sea. If a general Balkan conflict results from the Yugoslavian defiance of Hitler Germany might have to contend with Russia, which, like Rumania, has a border on the Black sea.

Early in the diplomatic move there was evidence that the people were wholeheartedly in favor of the United States and Britain—that they were not willing to ally themselves with the Nazis. But there were those who were inclined to question the early shouts of Long Live Britain and Long Live Russia which were heard side by side in the streets of Belgrade.

Russia and Britain were not openly allies. What did this mean? Did it mean that the Yugoslav people had secret information that Russia had turned against Germany? Did it mean that the dispatches saying Russia had lined up against Germany had refused oil to the Nazis since last September meant that something reminiscent of the Treaty of Tilsit had occurred.

Or did it simply mean that along with the shouts for Britain there had been Communists shouting for Russia? Soon after the governmental overturn there was evidence the fact that the Croats, Serbs and Slovenes, the integral parts of Yugoslavia, were not as one on the issue.

But later reports indicated that Yugoslav national unity had been reached in opposition to the Axis powers.

R. A. F.: Rampage

The Royal Air Force, taking advantage of every break in the weather, and with a fine disregard of increasingly heavy attacks by the Luftwaffe, carried out repeated daylight attacks and night bombings over Germany and the occupied territories.

British pilots claimed that they had skimmed 20 feet over roof tops in France and Belgium and while machine-gunning military objectives had witnessed the heartening sight of the populace waving them on from the ground.

The story was told how speedy little RAF fighter planes, attacking in pairs, swooped down to fire blasts at railways, roads, shipping and German planes on the runways.

So complete, was the British report, of the RAF mastery of the situation, that not one German fighter rose to challenge them and not even anti-aircraft fire was encountered.

However that might be, German sources did admit that the bombings on Bremen and other key cities had been serious, though minimizing damage of military importance

STRIKES: Menace

When deputy sheriffs were sent to guard the CIO-striker International Harvester Co. plant at Richmond, Ind., they equipped themselves with football helmets and strong clubs, as shown above.

As a deep basso profundo background to the President's talk was there a little doubt that the Chief Executive's blasts were headed in that direction.

The great Allis-Chalmers strike, laid in the lap of the Dykstra-headed mediation board, was ordered settled pending negotiations, but on the reopening day, after some 500 employees had fired up the furnaces and had prepared the heat-treating equipment to handle the vital defense metals, less than 1,250 out of 7,800 workers on the first shift turned out. The company claimed that 1,250 showed up, but the union said it was a scant 400.

But the mediation board was rolling up its sleeves. Even as the Allis-Chalmers workers voted a continuation of the strike, claiming that Knox and Knudsen had worked a conspiracy against them, the walk-out at Plainfield, N. J., was halted, the strike at Bethlehem Steel was settled, and there was evidence that Dr. Dykstra might succeed where Frances Perkins and her conciliators had failed.

The secretary of the navy and the production manager of the nation's defense had charged that the Allis-Chalmers strike was the result of fraudulent balloting. The union's reply was that this was a conspiracy to do labor out of its right.

The union refused to go back to work, throwing a defy in the teeth of the mediation board, while $45,000,000 in defense orders lay idle in the factory.

There was no question but that the Allis-Chalmers walkout was the crux and heart of the whole American labor situation, stormy and severe. On it rested the whole government hope of controlling the situation without cracking down on labor in some drastic fashion, without robbing labor of its hard-won gains over a score of years, without forcing the plant to fall into the defense line despite the "under the law" labor difficulty.

Again the issue was not one of wages, primarily, but one of union membership, one of those technical issues which left the general public cold to the reason for which the strikers were fighting.

It was a case where union men were accusing both government and employer of failing to live up to promises—promises not only made in mediation but fashioned also in the labor laws of the New Deal.

It was an issue that all America and all Europe watched with growing intensity.

ITALY:

Almost Out

Defeated at Cheren and with Harar in British hands it was apparent that little was left in the British campaign in Africa except to mop up the faltering legions of Mussolini.

Not only that, but London was claiming that the British navy aided the Greek units and the Royal Air Force had met the rapidly dwindling Italian fleet away from its bases and had badly shattered the remainder.

The British claims included one Fascist warship sunk and one battleship, and a destroyer badly damaged. Apparently this was the major engagement of the war in the Mediterranean.

The victory at Cheren was previously forecast as the last stand of the Italians. On this, it was claimed, the whole campaign in Eritrea hinged. It seemed that the forecasts were well founded, for hardly had Cheren fallen than two events occurred. The first was that Harar, walled fortress, capitulated. The second was that Mussolini, according to grapevine reports, suffering from a nervous collapse, removed Graziani from command.

The naval defeat was said to be the last straw. The British asserted that they lost only one bomber.

MISCELLANY:

Hongkong: The Chinese silk industry, badly hit by war, will be re-established by the creation of a "silk village" near Hunan. A sum equal to $1,500,000 has been invested there, it was said.

Pittsburgh: Carlo Columbo, well-known restaurateur, was frightened to death by a rubber Hitler mask worn by a merry-maker, according to a cornerer's report. The proprietor, said to have been on the verge of delirium from drinking, saw the Hitler impersonator, collapsed and died of a heart attack.

Up-to-the-Minute Easter Costume Calls for Gay, Tiny Flower Hat

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

MYRIADS of provocative little flower hats will "top" spring suits and ensembles this season. Why not climax your Easter costume with a gay flower chapeau? You'll not only be "right in fashion," but you will be joyously "in tune" with spring.

This is a season which calls for "prettiness." No matter how simple the frock, the suit or the ensemble, you should give it lovely lady airs by enchanting accessory details—flowers, perfumes, veils, decorative handkerchiefs, frothy fragile neckwear, an intriguing handbag or colorful gloves.

Flower hats this spring are as bewildering in type, color and design as a garden of flowers. Some of the floral headpieces seem not much more than a cluster of posies anchored to the head by a labyrinth of ribbons and bandeau devices. They finish off with a cloud of misty, colorful veiling arranged smartly.

While flowers of every variety are in fashion, there is particular emphasis on roses. You will see roses on hats, on bodices, on handbags, on sheer party dresses, and even under the wide brim of felt hats. The la Her may match the rose worn at the wrist as a bracelet.

Smart Gob Dress

A smart gob dress, perfect for the junior high or high school girl, is here shown. It adheres to a traditional pattern of simplicity in accordance with the present fashion trend toward classics. That this dress reflects the patriotic note so characteristic of current fashions is readily seen in its every detail—the dress is of red, white and blue rayon cotton, with an all-pleated navy blue skirt and long-torso lines for the blouse. The white nautical blouse is trimmed with red braid and red anchors.

It's a two-piece and makes the best of all school dresses. With it you'll no doubt want to wear a saucy sailor hat, and perhaps shoes with turned-back middy designs. It's an easy dress to make.

Even handkerchiefs are apt to yield to the sway of flowers this season, in that they have posies embroidered or painted on them to match those on one's "Easter bonnet."

Above to the right in the picture is a lovely black satin hat, trimmed with two waxen white roses. A veil of black fishnet subscribes to the slogan "with every hat a veil this spring."

Centered in the picture, a young lady of high fashion wears one of the tiny pompadour hats so smart this season. Note the glorified rose splashed on her handkerchief. These handkerchiefs come in a series of flowers, so you are sure of getting a "hankie" to match your flower hat.

You will be wanting a red hat this season to keep pace with fashion, or at least one trimmed with bright red flowers. The little hat shown in the upper left corner is gaily flowered with bright red poppies. Wear it to set off a navy blue costume. Add a smart red under-arm bag.

Pastels are popular for headgear. A beguiling soft rose colored felt beret is shown below to the left in the group. The shoulder length veil emphasizes romance and coquetry.

A swatch of pastel silk on a tall black felt turban is pictured below to the right. A hat of this type calls for a shimmering lavender veil.

PATTERNS SEWING CIRCLE

A DRESS that's complete in itself and smart for general wear. A jacket that transforms it into a street ensemble. And both carefully styled, accurately sized, to fit large sizes perfectly. All that, surely, is a good deal to get in one easy and inexpensive home pattern. Yet that's just what you get when you send for this one—No. 8886. That high-cut front panel has a magically diminishing effect upon your waistline and hips. Beltless, to accentuate height, the dress is gathered for correct fit over the bust. Broad shoulders give a slim look, too. The jacket, made with pleats drawn in by a tie-belt at the waistline, opens in the front to show the crisp frill and buttons that trim the frock, with a charmingly soft, somewhat formal effect. Silk print, flat crepe or sheers are smart for this.

Pattern No. 8886 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50, 52. Size 38 requires 7 1/2 yards of 39-inch material and 1 1/2 yards of ruffling to trim the dress. Send order to:

As a Senior to a Freshman

By Margaret Combs

As a senior to freshmen, I'd always advise you guys to get busy, morally, mentally and physically. You think you know a lot now but just you wait; you will soon discover you are pretty dumb and if you don't watch out you will be discovering it, too late.

Start trying to get along with your fellow classmates then when you get that well under way try to cooperate with your class. Sure, they don't do anything you like, but before you see your sun setting there will be more than mere class problems to confront. Don't be a back-slitter in your class. Then last, but by no means least you had better start studying before you find yourself a senior, but still a freshman in the head. You think to yourself, "I can make bad grades this year and I will make them next year." But still "next year" you will repeat that very sentence and then the "next" again, and then you are a senior realizing "I could have studied but I didn't."

You had better take the advice of a senior, future senior, and study before it is entirely too late.

ASSEMBLY HONORS BAND

Band members and Director M. J. Newman were honored Monday morning by having a special assembly called to inform the rest of the student body of their rating at the recent contest in Amarillo. The band as a group won first place in all events entered: marching, sight-reading, and playing. According to the judging rules this means that "Division 1 will represent the best conceivable performance for the event and the class of contestants being judged and worthy of the distinction of being recognized as a first place winner. This rating might be compared to a percentage grade of 95 to 100." Recognition was also given to the winners of the various solos and quartets.

We feel justly proud of this record and extend our congratulations to the band and Mr. Newman.

SNOOPER SNOOPIN'

Naomi, why deny going with a certain guy—after all, a gal's considered lucky if she even rates a date these days.

Amos Hanner is trying his best to make up with Maxine Goodman but she still says, "Nothin' doin'."

We wonder why people call W. C. Simpson "Flu Flu."

Alice Billie Cortz, you haven't any right to write notes like that to Frank Simpson—after all, you might flatter him.

Bobbie Crisp really goes in strong for red trucks, fast driving, and Car Sullivan.

Snooper hears that "The Lone Ranger" has decided to fly an airplane.

The boxers are sporting new jackets around the campus this week—maybe it will help them renew their old romances.

Snooper wonders why Miss Cousins prefers to walk to school on such a windy morning—it couldn't be that you are trying to keep that "girl's figure," now could it, Miss Cousins?

Syble Lee, try to be good during the Easter week end, for "company" is coming from Abilene and Junior Pinner will be busy.

Jean C., this trying to "hook" the other girl's boy friend is going to get you in "dutch" one of these days—especially when he is a soldier—how about it, Hazel Smith?

Sonny Back, here you had us thinking you were the he-man of the senior class—and you had to go get sick all because of a cigar!

Oran Back, Snooper's been hearing things that wouldn't do to publish about you—watch your step.
We've been wondering why Joe Cooke and Virginia Blackerby always make Paul Bond and Frances Sitter live the car.

SENIOR PLAY FRIDAY NIGHT

"Tea Toper Tavern," the senior play to be presented Friday night, April 11, is a gay comedy-drama concerned with the adventures of three college graduates who open a tea room during summer vacation with the hope of increasing their college endowment fund. Things happen fast and furiously; major catastrophes are a quarantine for smallpox and a fire.

There are fourteen seniors in the cast. Marion Day, a canny chaparrone, Cleo Shelburne; Rosamond Feld, her niece just out of college, Madge Burrows; Sally Lee Dixon, niece from the sunny South, Maxine Little; Ann Annesley, a social service friend, Mary Alice Ledgerwood; Barry Feld, Rosamond's freshman brother, Oran Back; Harriet Annesley, Ann's younger sister, Naomi Hancock; Tess, Ann's protégée from the village, Maxine Goodman; Mike Ryan, a brilliant young lawyer, Sonny Boy Back; Rev. Archibald Perry, pastor of the village flock, Bob Sherrrod; Dallas Thorpe, owner of the "tavern," Paul Bond; John Sedgwick, an old suitor of Miss Day, Melvin Bailey; Gloria Sherwood, a fascinating widow, Opal Tedder; Celeste, Gloria's maid, Evonne Floyd.

The seniors feel that you will be interested in seeing how the group work out their difficulties and bring the play to a happy ending.

RIBBONOLOGY

For generations and generations, girls have had ways and means of selling boys their personality. Today we have adopted our own modern way, by using ribbons of different colors. Our ribbon talks, boys, so keep your eyes open!

White—keep away, boys, I am going steady.

Yellow—I am looking for a fellow.

Pink—don't bother me, I'm in love.

Green—I just flirt with them all.

Red—beware, I am dangerous.

Blue—my boy friend has gone to camp or army.

Black—I am disappointed in love.

Brown—my boy friend has left town.

Wine—I am bashful.

Aqua—I'm in the mood for romance.

Tan—tell me your troubles, I'll understand.

Gray—I'm a man hater.

Orange—I want a football hero.

Ochrid—I am a gold digger.

If a girl doesn't wear any ribbon at all, she is an old maid.

BOXING JACKETS AND GOLDEN GLOVES AWARDED

Boxing jackets and golden gloves were awarded to the boxing boys Monday morning.

The jackets are reversible satin; liver gray with maroon trim on one side, and black on the other, bearing the yellow M on the left side.

Fuzzy Bonner, 118 pound champion of four states, was the only boy to receive a three letter jacket. Frank Simpson, Joe Hill, Ollis Lowe and Maxine Combs received two letters.

First year men were Raymond Smith, Wayne Back, Lavelle Vineyard and Jack Lisman.

Boys receiving golden gloves were Billy Hill, W. C. Simpson, Quinton Worley, Troy Corbin, Bob Sherrrod, Frank Simpson and Joe Wayne Hill.

Joe Wayne Hill won the sportsmanship trophy at the intermural boxing tournament held in McLean recently.

STUDENTS, TEACHERS AND "BY-WORDS"

Many of the students and teachers at high school are recognized by their set words and phrases. We have collected a few of them which follow:

Sonny B. Back—"Hooy and good night."

Mr. Cryer—"Young American."

Erey Fulbright—"My cow."

Syble Lee—"Kid."

Bobby Campbell—"Great day in the morning."

Ernestine Shelburne—"Great balls of fire."

Maxine Goodman—"Gads Mrydle."

Faye Thomas—"Ahi turkey."

Miss Cousins—"Young lady."

Opal Tedder—"Heavens."

Madge Burrows—"Nerts."

Bob Sherrrod—"Baloney."

Hazel Smith—"Blue beetle."

Elva Blankenship—"That ain't the way I heered it."

Jack Jones—"Egad."

IF ONLY—

Hazel Smith would remember she had a friend by the name of Elva B. when there's an extra soldier along. Zora Petty would let us in on these secret romances from Canadian. Phyllis Ann G. didn't expect so much from other people's boy friends. Jo Ann C. wouldn't take things for granted when the soldier couldn't find Hazel Smith's house. He really had a date with Hazel, Jo Ann. The band members could catch up on their sleep. We knew if Thelma W. accepted the date offered her by Edward Sargent.

Maxine Little would have spared one of her handsome boy friends Friday night on the band bus.

Oran Back would stop flattering girls. But Ernestine S. does have pretty eyes.

Juanita C. could have figured out which boy friend she would take; and of course this happened Friday night on the band bus, too.

We could have gotten a better look at the blonde Mr. Guinn was with over the week end.

Exclusive: Virginia B. don't shock us so. You didn't give us fair warning. It was Earl Humphreys.

News from Pakan

TIPS to Gardeners

TRIM FLOWER GARDEN

THERE is much value in keeping the flower garden trimmed. Wise gardeners pick bouquets of favorite annuals like Marigold, Zinnia, Petunia, Sweet Peas and Snapdragon with systematic regularity, for the picking promotes continued blooming.

Periodic trimming is not best for such small, low-growing edging flowers as Alyssum. A complete cutting, however, will benefit this type of plant. This treatment may be applied to Ageratum, Linaria, Lobelia, and Nemesis as well as Alyssum.

Pinks, Cynoglossum, and Dwarf Bedding Rust Resistant Snapdragon are grown both for cutting and for garden beauty, but they too will profit by a thoroughgoing "haircut" such as that prescribed for the smaller, edging favorites.

It is advisable to pick the flowers of certain popular perennials when they are in their prime, to prevent their running to seed, and to promote the production of a second crop of blossoms in a single season. Delphinium, Sweet William, Coreopsis, Perennial Dianthus, and Pyrethrum should be handled in this manner.

THE TRUTH SIMPLY TOLD

Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of world-wide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion, supported by the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed.

Burning, stony or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
 (Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK.—Our old friend Ben Lucien Burman, the author who became the leading impresario of rivers, is off by clipper to take a River Impresario look at West African deserts, for a change—on his gaudiest writing assignment. One of his most exciting traveling adventures was promoting five cents for the subway ride which started his writing career. Mr. Burman will be with General Wavell's army and with the De Gaulle forces, accredited by a magazine and a syndicate.

Mr. Burman's first river book, "Steamboat Round the Bend," became the last film in which Will Rogers appeared. After that he did a stretch at Hollywood, and then got under way with some river books and magazine stories, riding not only rivers, incidentally, but camels, in this same desert country toward which he is heading now.

On this trip, Mrs. Burman, who is Alice Caddy, the artist who illustrates his books, is going with him, to supply a black-and-white obligato for his stories. Mrs. Burman scores heavily in both his traveling and arriving, as disclosed by the story Mr. Burman once told me.

"I quit my job as a reporter on the Morning World to write stories. I wrote plenty of them and they kept on making extraordinarily quick round trips to the publishers. One day I was fondling and caressing my last dime when I passed a baker's shop, with some freshly baked buns in the window. I am instinctively a plunger. The dime went for four buns.

"After the banquet, I sang 'The Star Spangled Banner' and went home, pondering various plans for making a fresh start in life. There was a letter from the Fictorial Review, saying they liked my story, 'Minstrels of the Mist,' and would print it.

"My dime was gone, and while the buns had bucked me up a bit, I was too weak to walk to the magazine office. There just wasn't that much mileage in four buns. Then I thought of a pretty girl I had seen going in and out of her nearby Greenwich Village studio. I called on her, told her my story and suggested that she invest a nickel in my gill-edged career.

"She said it looked like a good bet, but she, too, was short on liquid assets—but she had six cents in stamps which she would be glad to risk. I converted the stamps into a five-cent piece at a stationery store, and bought a subway ride. The magazine people gave me a check for $600." Of course he went right back and married the girl.

Mr. Burman was badly wounded in the World war and walked with a cane and crutches for several years afterward. He returned to Harvard, and was graduated in 1920.

SIR ARTHUR SALTER, British economist and philosopher, has been building a bridge of ideas between Britain and the U. S. A. for quite a few years. Now, as parliamentary secretary to the ministry of shipping, he comes over to help build a "bridge of ships." News from Washington is that he will be a powerful councillor in devising ways and means to run the gantlet of German submarines and keep goods moving to England. This isn't his specialty, but he is one of Britain's heavy-duty thinkers.

When he delivered the Jonathan Peterson lecture in New York, five years ago, he stirred some sharp criticism in the American press on the ground that he was assuming too much about our fraternal co-operation with Britain. He urged this country to join other nations in fending off war and insisted that we could do this without dangerous entanglements or commitments. Our intellectual elite of banking, finance, foreign policy and economics heard and applauded, but were not so perturbed as the somewhat gloomy Sir Arthur.

Sir Arthur is a shrewd, wary, grim little man. He is short, muscular, vigorous and alert, and endowed with a skeptical mind which has enabled him to score heavily as a prophet. However, he is of the intuitive or "hunching" school of statesmanship. When he feels inspiration stirring, he goes swimming and floats on his back, looking up into the sky—preferably in the sunshine. This seems to have the effect of disjuncting rigid cause-and-effect sequences and enhancing his "extrasensory perception," the gift of all good "hunch" men.

A cheer went up from the Flying Cadets, formed in ranks along the field's edge, as veteran flying instructors flashed across the air-drome, wing tip to wing tip.

CHICKS SELECT FEEDING NEEDS

'Cafeteria Method' Is Found Very Satisfactory.

By G. T. KLEIN
 (Extension Poultryman, Massachusetts State College, Amherst.)

Cafeterias for chickens may sound a little queer to the average poultryman, but it is one of the newest feeding methods now in vogue. By the new system, Biddie has her choice of feeds and believe it or not, she can make a much more intelligent choice of what she needs than can some poultrymen.

In three separate feeders there are whole oats, whole or cracked corn, and laying mash. Biddie's appetite may vary from time to time, but during the year her diet will consist of 41 per cent corn, 30 per cent oats, and 29 per cent laying mash. The ration has been balanced at 12.9 per cent protein over a year's period, although individual birds vary from 11 to 15 per cent.

It is very important that every bird in the poultry flock has a chance to eat grain or mash at any time, and hoppers must be large enough to take care of all of the flock. Hopper requirements are 20 linear feet, feeding from both sides, for every 100 birds, or about five inches of feeding space per bird.

Feed consumption is increased by adding fresh mash frequently, running the hand or fingers through the mash often, and placing the hoppers in well-lighted positions. Hens like to see what they're eating as well as humans.

Although whole wheat is not used extensively in this cafeteria feeding system, it is a good practice to throw some into the litter as a scratch feed. This helps to keep the litter in a dry fluffy condition.

Because of the small quantity of mash used in this system of feeding, the vitamin D carrier must be increased in the mash.

There has been no tendency for a flock bred for production to become too fat on this system of feeding. The large proportion of grain that is used makes this system economical and also cuts down labor requirements. Cannibalism has not been too excessive since it is held in check by the large quantities of oats that are fed and the scattering of wheat in the litter.

Good Fence Should Last Seven to Twelve Years

Good wire, properly strung between strong, well-braced posts, should make a farm fence last from 7 to 12 years, says H. M. Ellis, extension agricultural engineer of N. C. State college. There should be a good coating of galvanizing or zinc on the wire to protect it against the elements, he says.

"Some copper in the wire will add still more years of service to the fence," Ellis stated. "The copper content should not run less than 0.2 of 1 per cent, which is usually spoken of as '20 point' copper. The quality of the wire is the main consideration in building fences; it isn't good economy to buy cheap wire."

Ellis also says that for a good, long-lasting fence the quality of the posts and the workmanship in erecting the fence must be of the best. The posts must be big enough, properly spaced, well planted, and well braced. If durable wood is not available, soft timber may be treated with creosote or otherwise to make the posts last as long as the wire.

"It is wise," the specialist declared, "to build your fence on paper before you start cutting posts and buying wire. Farmers spend much money every year maintaining fences that are not essential.

Grinding Roughage Not Very Advisable

Farmers are fooling themselves and not their cattle when they grind up corn fodder and starchy hay so fine the animals are unable to separate the good material from the bad, according to R. R. Snapp, professor of beef cattle husbandry at the University of Illinois college of agriculture.

"It is true that a given amount of ground fodder will go somewhat further than it would if it were fed whole. However, the unpalatable roughage tend to dilute good feed, making for less palatability and digestibility for the ration as a whole," Snapp explained.

Controlling Lice

Lice can be controlled on calves and heifers without recourse to dips and other "wet" preparations. Excellent results can be obtained with a mixture of one part sodium fluoride and two parts of ordinary flour. This is dusted lightly over the backs of the animals from a perforated can and worked into the base of the hair with the fingers. One application is usually adequate. Sodium fluoride is poisonous and should be handled carefully.

The 1941 major league baseball season will open April 15. This year teams face changing personnel, as players are called into the army. Among leading players subject to call are Bob Feller, Cleveland Indians; Henry Greenberg, Detroit Tigers; John Rigney, Chicago White Sox; and Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox.

D. A. R. Convenes

Concluding a three-year term as president of the Daughters of the American Revolution, Mrs. Henry M. Robert Jr. (above) will preside at the organization's fiftieth congress in Washington, April 14-19. The D.A.R. has 143,000 members.

Strengthen Pan-American Solidarity

Pan-American day, first observed 10 years ago, will be celebrated April 14 in every independent country in the Western hemisphere. Map shows shortest distances between points in the Americas and the Old World. With the airplane reducing these distances to hours, co-operation between the Americas becomes increasingly important.

Writers' Meet

Writers from both Americas will attend the Inter-American writers' meet at Rio Piedras, Puerto Rico, April 14-24. A. MacLeish (above) will head U. S. group.

Business life is a mixture of good days and bad, give and take, victory and defeat. Some things must be allowed to go over your head like water on a duck's back. Losing one's temper means a loss of business and about 97% of "getting along" with the public depends upon your own behavior.

Last week was state-wide "clean-up" week, but was disregarded here, possibly on account of the elections. The annual spring clean-up may well be undertaken here this month; however, from the general appearance of things, the town is cleaner right now than for several years, as more people become yard and garden conscious.

Last week saw two local elections, one of them attracting the largest percentage of voters ever seen here, the other the smallest. The reason can be found in the two ballots: in one there was a choice of men, in the other no choice. This is not condemning anyone for the fault of the ballot, as an effort was made to have a choice on the other, but is just to point out that voters like a choice and like to express that choice, and when no choice is offered only a small minority take the trouble to vote.

OPTICAL TECHNIQUE

A gentleman in the optical business was instructing his son in the technique of chiseling a fair and honest price out of a customer. He said: "So, after you have fitted the glasses to a customer, and the customer asks 'What's the charge?' you say: 'The charge is ten dollars.'"

"Then pause and watch for the flinch."

"If the customer does NOT flinch, you say: 'That's for the frames; the lenses will be another ten dollars.'"

"Then you pause again—but this time just slightly—and again you watch for the flinch."

"If the customer does not flinch, you say, 'Each.'"

IF YOU LIVE IN the Panhandle YOU'RE IN THE OIL BUSINESS

There are nearly 65,000 like us, including oil workers and our families, in the Texas Panhandle. We get our entire living from oil and gas. The wage earners of our group receive over 19 million dollars a year.

My Dad is a rancher. He gets nearly one-fourth as much from his lease and royalty payments as he does from his cattle and crops. Over four million acres of Panhandle lands are now under lease and nearly 1 1/2 million produce oil or gas.

The oil and gas industry spends in our Panhandle area 50 million dollars a year. This money, paid to workers, ranchers, farmers, tax collectors and others, is spent and re-spent until every merchant, business and professional man—in fact every one—in our section gets his share of it.

You and I and our families and our community have a very important stake in the oil and gas industry and its future in Texas.

THE SMOKY YEARS

By ALAN LE MAY W.N.U. Release

INSTALLMENT 4 THE STORY SO FAR:

Dusty King and Lew Gordon were joint owners of the vast King-Gordon range which stretched from Texas to Montana. When building up this string of ranches, they continually had to fight the unscrupulous Ben Thorpe. Thorpe rivaled King-Gordon in power.

CHAPTER V—Continued

Bill glanced at Jody, and her startled face was very lovely, high-lighted by the little fire. He laced his hand together to stop their shaking. "Tonight I told you father what I'm going to do. My idea is to give Thorpe his own medicine, and force it down him until he's finished; a wild bunch of our own, tougher than his, made up of men that hate him to the ground."

"And then—?"
"Raid and counter-raid, and what he's taken, take back! Until his credit busts, and his varmints drop from around him, and he's just one man, so that another man can walk against him with a six-gun, and know that when that's done he's finished for sure . . ."

"Bill, are you crazy? You can't—you can't—"
His voice was bleak; it could hardly be heard. He was looking at his hands. "We've talked too many years of what couldn't be done, or how. Until now, Dusty's out there tonight, under that stone pile—and still nothing to be done. I reckon it's my turn to ride, now."

"But—all his outfits—his sheriffs, his men—"
"They'll quit, as he breaks. I'm going after Cleve Tanner first, in the Big Bend; and when I'm through with him, Thorpe won't be able to throw a feeder herd on the trail. Then Walk Lasham, in the north, where they're already hurt for lack of the Crying Wolf—until—"

His words were monotonous, but Jody Gordon, bred and born to the gaunt Texan plains, knew what a wild bunch was, and what it meant to go against Ben Thorpe by his own means.

Jody said, "And—what about us?"
"Jody, I was hoping—I was hoping you'd swing with me."

"What way is there for me to swing with you?"
"This may take a long time; but it won't take forever. Some day all these war clouds will be cleared away. And—if you could see it my way, maybe you'd let me come back to you then."

There seemed to be no breath in Jody's voice. "I'm opposed to wait around, and think well of you, while you gang with the wild bunch in a crazy, useless feud that you can't win!"

In the uncertain light of the fire Bill Roper's eyes could not be seen; his face was a mask painted by the embers. He found nothing that he could say.

Suddenly Jody flared up. Her eyes blazed, and her hair streamed back from her face as she sat up, as if she rode in the wind.

"You can't, you can't! I won't let you—it isn't fair, nor right, nor decent—"

"It's what I have to do."
Jody stopped as if she had been struck. When she spoke again her voice was low and even, and so stony hard that he would not have recognized it.

"I don't believe you. I think tomorrow you'll be telling me that all this isn't so. But if you do mean it—if you go on and do as you say—then you and I are through, and I don't want to see you again, or hear your voice. We—we had everything; and you're throwing it all away . . ."

The firelight caught the glint of her tears, and she turned away, head up, with a toss of her hair so that its brown mist hid her face from him.

Bill didn't say anything. He had turned gray-faced, and he stared into the coals. Presently, as he watched the fire, he saw again a rift of brush, in which a little boy hid like a rabbit; and a gently grinning face, that was through with grinning now. He thought of Dry Camp's story: "Seemed like he'd never fall . . ."

Roper got up silently, and went out of the house.
Lew Gordon was playing solitaire when Bill Roper got back to the little shack by the loading pens. Roper took off his hat, tossed it aside, and sat down.

"We can just as well figure up the terms of the split."
"What did Jody say?"
"She's quitting me, Lew."

"What the devil else can you expect her to do, if you go on with this wild, stubborn—"
"I couldn't expect anything else."
Lew Gordon looked baffled; obviously he had counted on Jody to turn back Bill Roper.

"You ready to draw up the terms?"
"Hardly seems it can be done in a minute. It'll take a few days to—"
"I'm leaving in the morning. My terms are few and simple. You can work out the details any way that suits yourself."

"Let's hear your idea of it."
"I don't figure to take much with me," Roper said. "But there are some things I need. First thing, I want seven of our camps in Texas."

Lew Gordon stared at the table, picked up a pencil, fidgeted with it. "Which ones?"
"I want the Pot Hook camp; and the winter camp of the Three Bar, er and wealth, but he had gained his position through wholesale cattle rustling and gunplay. King outbid Thorpe in an auction of valuable grasslands; the same afternoon he was killed. Bill Roper, King's adopted son, found out that he had been shot down and the southwest outpost of the old Bar-Circle. I want two of the border camps; Willow Crick will do for one, and the Dry Saddle Crossing will do for the other. I want the new Bull Wagon camp, and the K-G horse ranch at Stillwater."

"The brands are going to be terrible mixed up," Gordon said.
"I'm only taking such cattle as are running under odd brands; all our regular brands stay with you. I've placed my camps so that your stock can be worked as before. Except maybe the Pot Hook, and we'll come to some special deal—"

Gordon threw his pencil down. "You're not getting anything out of this that anybody can use," he declared.

"I think I'll know how to use it. Later on I'll send you a list of the northern camps I want; they'll amount to about the same as the ones I want in Texas."

"It sure sounds to me like you're wanting me to buy you out in cash," Gordon said. "And if that's what's in your mind—I can't do it, Bill. There just ain't the money."

"There won't be any trouble about that. In Texas I may need up to fifty thousand dollars; but I don't have to have it all at once. It'll work out easy enough, Lew."

Even the rough provisional terms that were noting here provided innumerable complications. In the next few hours, as they worked it out, many a consideration came up that Bill Roper hadn't thought of. It was near morning before Roper left to seek out Dry Camp Pierce to complete his plans.

CHAPTER VI

Bill Roper headed south shortly after sunrise. Today Dry Camp would be going east by railroad, beginning the long roundabout way which would bring him to Texas long before Bill. With his camps as a secure base, Pierce was to begin the missionary work which would lay the foundations for Bill Roper's wild bunch.

Lew Gordon had shaken hands with him gravely at his departure; an uncomfortable job for Bill, which he was glad to get over with. But Jody Gordon—he had not seen her again at all. He was thinking of her now as she had flared up at him the night before, warlike as a little eagle, but very lovely still, with the fire in her eyes.

Watchful always, he knew when, two miles off, a horseman dropped from a lookout just at the crest of a rise; and he knew that the rider had seen him and was moving to intercept his trail.

He did not have so long to wait as he had thought. No more than ten minutes had passed when the unknown rider came dusting around the shoulder of a sand hill and headed toward him at the dead run. Roper turned his horse broadside to the approach and waited.

The rider was Jody Gordon.
She appeared to have taken to the saddle in a hurry, for she wasn't wearing chaps, or anything else she should have been riding in. What distance she had come she had come fast, for her pony's flanks were heaving.

"You sure punish that horse," he said.
"I've got no call to save him. I'm not going any place."
There was a little silence, awkward for Bill Roper, as she sat and looked at him. The lower lids of her eyes were violet, so that he knew she had not slept; but he could not read her faintly smoky eyes.

By Thorpe and two aides. Against the strong opposition of his partner, Lew Gordon, Bill decided to start a cattle war in Texas against Thorpe. Before leaving Bill went to tell his sweetheart, pretty Jody Gordon, about his plans.

She was more pale than he had ever seen her, and the passivity of her face made her look like a little girl again.

"Sure sorry," he said, "that I didn't get to say good-bye to you. Didn't seem like you were any place around."
For a second or two the familiar twinkle seemed about to come into her eyes. "Did you hunt real hard?"

"Well—maybe I didn't. I guess it kind of seemed like we'd already said everything there was to be said."
"Maybe," she said slowly, "I didn't say everything I ought to have said. I want you to know this: When you ride out of my life there isn't going to be anything left in it."

"Jody," he said, "are you trying to turn me back now?"
Her only answer was a little hopeless motion of her hands.

"Your father and I put in four hours last night, roughing out the terms of my split from King-Gordon. Think back yourself—did you ever see me turned back from something I figured I ought to do?"
She shook her head, and her face had even less color than before.

"What did you say to my father?"
"That I—quit you."
"Well—didn't you?"
"Don't you know," she said crazily, "I wouldn't ever do that?"
He was silent, his eyes on his buckskin gloves as he adjusted his rope, the buckle of his rifle boot.

"I don't care anything about King-Gordon," Jody said. "I don't care whether you stay in King-Gordon, or get out, or where you go, or what you do. I'd go with you if you wanted me to go; and if you don't know that you don't know anything at all!"
"Jody—you mean that?"
"In King-Gordon you were on the way to big things. But I don't care anything about that. Let the break-up with my father go through. Quit King-Gordon without two bits to your name. Take the least outpost camp there is under the brand, and let him have the rest. I'll go with you, and stay with you; and I'll help you in every way I can to build something of our own."

He wanted to say something, anything; but he found he could not speak; at all.
Jody said, almost hysterically, "Aren't you ever going to say anything?"
Bill Roper mumbled to his saddle horn. "Didn't know you felt that way . . . Wouldn't ever be any call—any reason—for you to let go all holts like that."

She was leaning toward him now, her voice gentle, coaxing, very tender. "Our own little old outfit—any outfit, any place—don't you see what a happy place we could make that be? A place where we could plant trees near the water, and watch them grow into big trees; and we'd be there together—"

CHRIST SHOWS HIMSELF ALIVE

LESSON TEXT—Luke 24:13-17, 25-35.
GOLDEN TEXT—I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore.—Revelation 1:18.

Certainty and assurance—these are at the heart of our observance of Easter. We declare with Paul, "Now is Christ risen from the dead" (1 Cor. 15:20), and that He is "declared to be the Son of God with power . . . by the resurrection from the dead" (Rom. 1:4). We would join the apostles who "with great power gave . . . witness of the resurrection of the Lord Jesus" (Acts 4:33).

Someone may say, "That's well enough for you who have faith in God, but I'm bewildered, uncertain, fearful, in a disordered world. What shall I do?" Come with us, in our lesson, we join two men who had become bewildered, who felt that all their hopes had been crushed, that the future was only to be feared.

We join them as they walk wearily along the road from Jerusalem to Emmaus. Suddenly there is Another with the little group. Let us listen to their conversation. First we find

I. Hidden Eyes and Slow Hearts

(vv. 13-17, 25, 26).

The two sad men who had left Jerusalem to go to Emmaus were disciples of our Lord who had just been through the crushing experience of seeing Him crucified. Now, as the jeering mob held triumphant sway in the city, they left the dead Christ (as they supposed) in the tomb and went their way. True, there had been some reports on the morning of the third day that the women had seen Jesus alive (vv. 23, 24), but their hope and faith was at such low ebb that they could not—or did not—believe. Even when Jesus appeared to walk with them and question them, they did not know Him.

Eyes closed by unbelief; faith hindered by doubt and fear; a despondent heart slow to believe God—how very effectively these shut out the blessing of God and of His Word, even to the believer. Even deeper is the darkness in which the unbeliever finds himself. But all is not lost; there is One here who can open unseeing eyes and warm cold hearts—even Jesus.

II. Burning Hearts and Opened Eyes

(vv. 26-32).

Although they did not realize it (how slow we are to appreciate our blessings!) until after He was gone (v. 32), their hearts began to burn within them as soon as He began to expound the Scriptures to them. What a Bible exposition that was, as Christ Himself opened all that the Scriptures taught concerning Him! Bible teachers have talked about, and it makes one's heart burn just to read their suggestions (see for example Morgan on Luke, page 278). Little wonder that these men were "strangely warmed" as they listened.

The way to have a burning heart is to read God's Word or to have it expounded by a Spirit-filled teacher or preacher. Especially is there blessing in reading and studying what the sacred Book teaches about our blessed Lord.

With the heart "strangely warmed," as John Wesley described his Aldersgate experience, comes the opened eye. "They knew him" (v. 31) in the breaking of the bread. Perhaps they saw the scar in His hand, or possibly they identified a familiar gesture or something in His voice; but until their hearts were warmed they did not see. Paul knew that truth when he declared: "But the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God; for they are foolishness unto him: neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned" (1 Cor. 2:14).

Some reader who has trouble believing in the resurrection will find the problem solved when he meets Christ and has his heart changed in regeneration. What follows?

III. Quickened Feet and Glad Testimony

(vv. 33-35).

The seven miles (sixty furlongs, v. 13) which had passed so slowly were now quickly retraced. They had glorious good news to bring to the disciples in Jerusalem. How swift are the feet of the one who has good tidings to bear (see Rom. 10:15). One wonders why so many professed Christians are so slow about carrying His message. Can it be that they do not yet know the risen Christ? For if we know Him, surely "we do not well" to keep silent "in a day of good tidings" (II Kings 7:9).

Note in verse 34 that before they could speak, the others gave them the good news of the resurrection. It is proper and delightful that believers share spiritual blessings (Rom. 1:11, 12). That's why we come together in God's house.

Brother in the Lord, Christian sister, how long is it since you had a new and stirring experience of the presence of Christ? Not necessarily spectacular or exciting, but a real spiritual experience. Let's ask Him or it!

NEW IDEAS for Home-makers

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

stitches were then made on the inside to catch the edges of the cotton in place.

NOTE: Are you planning to make slip covers this Spring? Mrs. Spears' Books 1 and 2 tell you exactly how. Book 1 gives directions for fitting and finishing slip covers for chairs and davenport. Book 2 shows you how to make a pattern first; also how to arrange openings in covers for chairs of unusual types, and how to anchor slip covers so they will stay neatly in place. Books are 10 cents each. Send order to:

DO YOU remember how old-fashioned comforters used to be tufted? They were made of two layers of fabric with cotton between and every four inches or so in rows the three layers of material were caught together with a stitch of wool yarn double which was then tied twice and clipped to make a fluffy tuft. Well, that is exactly the way many of today's smartest chair covers are made. A cover of this sort redeemed this old rocker and revealed its hidden charms.

The cover is plain, medium green glazed chintz tufted with dark green yarn and three inch dark green fringe is used around the bottom. A long zipper makes a center back closing. Each section of the cover was fitted on the chair in the muslin lining first and these pieces were used as patterns for cutting the chintz, also the cotton which was trimmed to be 3/4-inch smaller all around. After the pieces were tufted, as shown at the upper right, the seams were stitched up. Long

At Least Stern Parent Had Son's Rapt Attention

Father had decided that he must administer a strict lecture to his six-year-old son. The boy had been naughty, but did not seem to appreciate the fact, and it was with some reluctance that the parent undertook a scolding.

He spoke judiciously but severely; he recounted the lad's misdeeds, and explained the whys and wherefores of his solemn rebuke. His wife sat by, duly impressed.

Finally, when the father paused for breath, and, incidentally to hear the culprit's acknowledgment of error, the lad, his face beaming with admiration, turned to his mother and said: "Mother isn't father interesting?"

Difference in Energy
The real difference between men is energy. A strong will, a settled purpose, and invincible determination, can accomplish almost anything; and in this lies the distinction between great men and little men.—Thomas Fuller.

FEEDING HUSBAND IS BIG JOB, SAYS HOME SPECIALIST

Feeding a man is a big job and a complicated one, according to Dr. Mary L. Greenwood of the School of Home Economics at Oklahoma A. and M. College. Not only must his meals be planned to provide all the necessary food essentials, but the man himself must be shown the necessity of eating the foods which are set before him.

THE MINDS OF MEN

Faulty thinking and nothing else is responsible for the situation in which the world finds itself today. We have no excuse for those who talk about the inevitability of conflict or the march of events over which no man had any control.

Henry Cabot Lodge could have contributed to the progress of humanity in 1919 if he and his wifful group of senators had not fought the joining of the United States in a world league of nations.

Adolph Hitler could have contributed to the progress of humanity in 1933 if he had conceived of a Germany determined to earn the respect of the world instead of its hatred.

Benito Mussolini, by working with his former allies, could have contributed materially toward isolating Hitler as a dangerous fanatic and thus have furthered peace in Europe and throughout the world.

WHEN SHE IS GONE

When she is gone she'll have no faults, (But she has plenty now). We'll say, "How good she was, the dear!" When stroking her cold brow.

When she is gone we'll try to find Some good that she has done, Her worthy deeds may be but few, We'll find them—when she's gone.

When she is gone her failings here Our kindness will allow; We'll cover all her faults with love; Oh, why not do it now?
