IN THE SERVICE

Joe Turner Writes
Madison, Wis., Nov. 6, 1944.
Dear Sir:
I wish to inform you of my change of address. I have finished my basic training at Sheppard Field, Texas. I am now at Trux Field, Wisconsin, where I am entering a 21-week course of radio mechanics.
I look forward each week for the McLean News. Keep up the good work, and the best of luck.
A friend,
JOE TURNER.

Cpl. James T. Hofner of McLean, an airplane mechanic, has served overseas 10 months with the AAF's oldest B-26 Marauder group, which has been cited by the President for "outstanding performance of duty in armed conflict with the enemy," during a January 13, 1944, mission over Rome, Campino North and South Andromes, in preparation for the Allied landings at Nettuno, Italy, in January 22.
He is entitled to wear the blue and gold framed Distinguished Unit Badge, the only army award worn above the right hand blouse pocket. His Bombardment Wing was recently cited by General de Gaulle, chief of the French armies for outstanding bombing support of the Allied ground forces in Central Italy.

Fred Wayne Harris, AMM 2/c, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Harris of Claude, former McLean resident, has returned to the United States after eight months action in the Central Pacific. Our thanks to Seaman Dickinson and to let him know that while he is missed on the home front, our best wishes are with him.

Among those graduating from an intensive course of basic engineering training at recent service schools exercises at Great Lakes, Ill., was Spencer B. Sitter, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Sitter, and husband of Mrs. S. B. Sitter of McLean.

Prisoners of War Transportation

Lt. Col. F. A. Baird, F. A., Commanding Officer of the McLean Prisoner of War Camp, advises that the Eighth Service Command has published regulations with respect to the transportation of prisoners of war, as follows:

A separate vehicle should be provided for the guard to follow prisoners of war in trucks. If separate vehicles are not available, an armed guard will ride in the cab of the vehicle and an unarmed guard will ride in the rear of the truck bed, to prevent escapes and misconduct. However, sufficient space must be available to accommodate the unarmed guard without crowding.

Many injuries to prisoners of war are due to mechanical defects of vehicles used to transport prisoners to and from work. Such injuries result in compensation claims against the government. Consequently, camp commanders are required to cause all vehicles to be inspected before prisoners are carried from the camp. The inspection will include the condition of brakes, sideboards, adequacy of end gates, and the adequacy of seating accommodations of the vehicles for the number of prisoners involved. Vehicles used in transporting prisoners to and from work will be driven at safe speeds.

In view of these instructions, Colonel Baird requests that farmers contracting for the use of prisoners of war make suitable arrangements for transportation prior to calling for prisoners, by having their vehicles inspected at the camp and insuring that the vehicles have adequate carrying capacity for the number of prisoners and guards to be transported. Safety precautions require that provisions be made for prisoners to be seated in vehicles during transportation to and from work.

Soldier Suicide; Family Losses

Pfc. Malcomb Cassell of the McLean POW camp drank an ounce of carbolic acid in Shamrock last Sunday week. He was prevented from drinking a second bottle by a hotel employee knocking it out of his hand. He died at a hospital 10 minutes later.

Pfc. Cassell was an overseas veteran of this war. He had lost a brother in the war, and his parents later died, and it is thought that despondency over the deaths caused his act.

He had been stationed at the local camp about three months. One sister in Louisiana survives. The body was shipped to Louisiana for burial.

Sharp Makes Good Selling Eggs

Eam Sharp, who has just sold most of his white leghorn hens to accept a position with the McLean Furniture store, says he had some 400 hens and had sold 4,460 dozen eggs this year up to Oct. 1. His best month netted 620 dozen. His feed bills ran about $100 per month and the hens were confined to a quarter acre pen.

Mr. Sharp says he enjoyed the work with poultry, but it was too big a job to care for the hens and work at the store, so he sold all but about 40 to supply eggs for his family.

Strawberries Are Ripening Now

Nath Franks says for a change from big potatoes and turnips, "How about some big strawberries?" and handed the editor a handful of big ones grown in his victory garden. Everbearing strawberries do well here with a little winter protection and some extra water during the growing season.

MOBY DICK

(Continued from Tiger Post page) head against the bottom of Ahab's boat, which turned the boat over. As the Pequod was close at hand, she picked up her crew, and so ended the second day. The third day the boats were lowered again. When the whale was reached he turned on them with his churning tail and dashed in the upper part of the bows of the two boats. The ship picked them up and repairs were underway. Ahab's boat which was not scared, continued the chase. Then close enough, Ahab darted his lance into the hated whale. Moby Dick writhed and then darted through the sea. The men in the boat were ready for the moment when the line would not hold. The moment that the line felt the strain, it snapped. Seeing the huge ship, Moby Dick, thinking this was his foe, charged into the ship starboard bow. Moby Dick then turned and shot thru the water within a few yards of Ahab's boat. Ahab darted his last harpoon into the whale. As the line ran through the groove it ran foul. As Ahab stooped to clear it, the flying turn caught him around the neck and he was shot out of the boat before the men knew he was gone. The crew of the boat turned in time to see the uppermost part of the masts of the Pequod sinking into the sea. From this sinking boat the men stood aghast. Ishmael, the lone survivor, was picked up by the Rachel.

I liked this book very much because it was so exciting and adventurous. The author stresses one point and that is Ahab's determination to destroy Moby Dick. The author portrays whaling life so vividly that you feel as though you know all about whaling. Melville put in excitement, adventure, curiosity and humor into the story. He could make you feel sympathetic with the whales at one time and at another time despise them. A mystery is created around Ahab which makes the story more interesting. Moby Dick is truly a masterpiece. All should read such a thrilling novel. Reviewed by Irma Ruth Fubright.

CORNER ON COTTON

We give you the world's outstanding and longwailing corner on cotton, Bill Jackson, of Phillips county, Arkansas. Bill has just sold the bale he held 14 years. Jackson picked the bale when cotton was bringing nine and one-half cents a pound. Rather than sell "for less than cracklin's" he stored it away in his home. He waited so long for a profit, he said, that there was many a time he thought he'd have to let it go for "a mess of black-eyed susans." Late last month, however, he managed to dispose of his treasure, still healthy-looking, for 21½¢ the pound. "It's all a matter of patience, I say," Jackson expounded, going home. Despite long storage, Bill Jackson's cotton was graded "strict middling."

Lord, let me plant a tree,
And let me watch it grow,

And let me hold it in my heart,
Secure—at hour of prayer.

A FISH STORY

A fisherman told us of an unusual sight at Lake Pauline last week. The big lake is lower now than it has been in years. At a certain time in the afternoon a run of shad came through a channel, followed by hundreds of bass. The big fish, some large as hogs (we quote him) were feeding on the shad. Many of the smaller fish leaped out on the banks as they tried to avoid the cannibal bass.

We have seen a similar sight off the coast of Newfoundland in the Atlantic. Acres of the ocean were churned white, as fish three to 10 pounds in weight leaped into the air and dodged through the water, avoiding the larger fish which were feeding on the school. —Quannah Tribune Chief.

A woman grew a rambler rose as lovely as could be. It blossomed on the garden wall. For all the world to see. She could not paint a masterpiece. Nor write immortal prose. Nor charm the world with melody. But she could plant a rose.

A 6th WAR LOAN?
SAY... EVEN I CAN SEE WHY WE'VE GOT TO BACK IT TO THE LIMIT

YES, JOE - WE'VE STILL GOT A BIG WAR TO FIGHT - AND HERE'S WHY IT'S GOING TO COST MORE THAN EVER

IT'S simple arithmetic. More B-29 Super Fortresses that cost $600,000 each in War Bonds. More P-47 Thunderbolts that cost $50,000 each. More amphibious tanks! More aircraft carriers! More gasoline and oil than it took for the invasion of Europe! Over seven billion dollars a month!

That's what is going to war now.

So sign up for extra War Bonds on the Payroll Plan. Welcome the Victory Volunteer when he or she calls at your home. Go to your bank or Bond booth. For final Victory—for your own future security...

THOUSANDS OF AMERICANS ARE STILL IN JAP PRISONS

What Will YOU Do About it?

REMEMBER CORREGIDOR? Remember the pictures of grinning Japanese soldiers guarding American prisoners? We're out to wipe the grins off their faces. We're out to liberate thousands of American soldiers and civilians still in Jap prisons. That day can come only with final victory.

We're out to finish the job the Japs started. The 6th War Loan Drive's part of the great national effort to win quick victory in the Pacific. The cost of victory comes high. It costs billions of dollars a month to fight Japan! But we know you'll do your full share, as you have in all the other war loan drives. Your full share is at least one extra $100 War Bond. Buy more if you possibly can. War Bonds are your best insurance of a safe, independent future.

6th WAR LOAN DRIVE

The McLean high school is taking an important part in the 6th war loan drive by carrying on a stamp drive.

Two members of each class, a boy and a girl, are on the committee with Johnny Cubine as general chairman.

In the assembly last Friday Edmy gave the school's quota as $1,361. This amount of money paid for stamps will buy a jeep which will have the school's name engraved on it. If each student will buy $7.00 worth of stamps before school is out, this quota will be easily reached. This would be $1.00 a month, 25c a week, or 1c a day for each student. If the students will buy bonds as well as stamps, this jeep will be on its way all the sooner. So let's buy both stamps and bonds and send a jeep to Tokyo!

THE JUNIOR RED CROSS

Mrs. McCasland and Mr. McLaughlin, chairmen of the junior Red Cross drive, spoke to the student body and faculty. They stressed the need for equipment at our own prisoner of war camp.

One of the projects that has been given to the homemaking class is to make cushions for the chairs at the camp theatre.

The Red Cross got permission from the 8th Service Command for 100 comforts to make these. Besides this, every student is joining the junior Red Cross—we hope.

ASSEMBLY PROGRAM

Everyone enjoyed the assembly program Friday morning given by the Girls' Choral Club, celebrating Armistice Day. Harold Meador led the pledge to the flag and the group sang The Star Spangled Banner. Several other songs were sung by the chorus. Molly Rogers and Charlene Roach sang In the Gloaming. Imogene Peabody and Dorothy Clark sang Mighty Lak a Rose. Rev. Grady gave a talk on the Causes of War and laid forth a plan to make this a better world in which to live.

SENIOR PERSONALITIES

This week we are testing the ability of the student body at guessing. Do you know who the following seniors are?

First we give you a rather small boy who was born April 1, 1928 (April fool), at McLean. This boy is interested in agriculture and has been a member of the brass section of the band since in grade school. He is interested in sports and this year participates in football practice. He is also unusually interested in girls. After graduation this particular senior plans to go to Alaska and raise reindeer.

The other Yoo-hootie is likewise a boy, of the larger build, and has brown wavy hair. He was born February 2, 1927, here in McLean. Yoo-hootie has been a member of the MHS football squad for three years and is this year on the main line-up. His hobby is sports and agriculture. After graduation, if plans permit, he will attend Texas Tech.

GUESSES? GUESSES? GUESSES?

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

The girls started basketball last Monday. There were 40 girls started but it will be cut down to 15. The first game was played at Alameda Tuesday night. The results will be given later.

FASHIONS

The fashion spotlight this week falls on three very attractive girls, Loreva Davis, Betty Bruner and Betty Ann Woodie.

Red seems to be the color of the week as designated in this article. Loreva's outfit is a navy blue jumper trimmed in red buttons and red saddle stitching. The blouse is made of red and white checked sharkskin. Brown oxfords and navy blue anklets complete this.

Betty goes in for white. Monday she wore a white skirt and blouse, but the most outstanding feature of her outfit was a white wool shawl where their thoughts, too, were colored trimmed in red flowers and of Moby Dick.

back stitching. A very pretty costume. She wears white boots.

Betty Ann, a new girl from Le-fors, wears a very attractive two-piece red corduroy suit and white blouse. She also wears boots.

A sailor has a wife 28 years old and four children, 2, 4, 6 and 8 years old. He has been sailing the seven seas 16 years. He has been wounded three times. How old is he? Answer, 42.

Find how you figure this out. See Zeke Gibson for correct information. If no one can figure this out, the answer will be published next week.

Each week in this column a brain teaser or a tongue twister will be published.

WILDCATS TRAMPLE TIGERS

The Tigers traveled to Canadian Friday night to receive a 31-0 licking. The Tigers held the Canadian squad to one touchdown in the first half, but coming back in the second half the Wildcats romped over the Tigers, scoring four times.

The Tigers will meet the Lakeview Eagles Friday night on Tiger Field. The two teams being well matched, this should be a thriller game. This is the last home game of the season, so all McLean fans should come out and help support their fighting Tigers.

TIGER ROARS

Harold Richardson, you had better start working. Lota Mae Hughes is some cuty.

FLASH! The latest reports on Melba Miller and Billy Pete Hughes—they're still fighting!

Joyce Smith and Faith Hancock may not have any specials, but the boys sure like them.

Bob Beall, what's the matter with your charms? The girls used to like you.

The Frank Sinatra of M. H. S. seems to be Tuffy Sargent. What about it, girls?

I wish Don Montgomery would make up his mind which girl he likes and let me know.

Who was that cute girl that called Donny Dowell out of geometry class Friday? Could it be a sister? We wonder.

Ann Bogan and Jim Carpenter, Harold Meador and Billie Marie Stewart went duck hunting and then to the show Wednesday night. Billie Thacker and Kathryn Brooks sat behind them and heckled them. I guess they were jealous.

ENGLISH DEPARTMENT

Book reports have caused many groans and headaches, but at last they are finished and the following one is considered an example of how a good book report should be written.

MOBY DICK

By Herman Melville

I have just returned from a voyage on the Pequod. I served under a captain who was nursing a revenge on the great white whale, Moby Dick. I swore that I, too, would take revenge on Moby Dick. I pulled hard at the oars while harpoons were thrown into the whale. I labored to render all the oil from the whales. I took my turn at the masthead to lounge serenely and to become lost in the infinite series of the sea, with nothing ruffled but the waves. I fought a typhoon and enjoyed the calms of the sea. With the rest of the crew I raised a half-mutinous cry which was quickly put down. I saw Moby Dick in all his glory and in all his terror. Adventure is there on board the Pequod. Board the ship only if you are ready for excitement and adventure.

The setting is on board the Pequod, a rare old craft from Nantucket. She was long seasoned and weather-stained by many storms and calms of all four oceans. Her decks were worn and her masts were not her original ones. Her old antiquities were added and marvelous features pertaining to the wild business that she followed. An air of mystery hung over her which aroused your curiosity and made you ready for excitement.

The plot shows how a captain can nurse a revenge so much that he will carry it out even if it means the destruction of his crew and his ship.

Moby Dick, the whale, had taken Ahab's leg off in a fierce struggle between the two and Ahab had sworn revenge. He had no other thought but this. At every turn Moby Dick was thought of by Ahab. He even got the crew to ful maneuvering the boats eluded three lines that were fast to him. So he quickly cut his line. Moby Dick dashed the other two boats together and then submerged, re-entangled in the slick of the together and then destroy them. (Continued on editorial page)

Blake Howard, The Second

By CLARA BRAUTOVICK
McClure Syndicate—WNU Features.

KAY hurried along through the misty shipyard, trying to catch up with the launching party ahead that was being guided to the Liberty ship S. S. Blake Howard. She was late because she'd been caught in the melee of tin-helmeted men and kerchiefed women coming off the graveyard shift. Approval lighted the tired eyes of the younger men as they passed her.

Carlene, Blake's sister, must have suggested her name, for the invitation from the shipyard read, "Guest of the sponsor." Carlene never resented her as the older Howards had.

It might embarrass the family to have her here. It wouldn't hurt her—for suffering had drained her dry of emotion. She had lived in a vacuum ever since word had come that Blake had lost his life in covering the Pacific war as a foreign correspondent. She didn't even care now who won. There could never be any sort of victory for her.

Ahead, a long sleek car halted. Mr. and Mrs. Howard and Carlene stepped out and led the way. Kay stayed in the rear. As she rounded a corner she saw the shining new stern of a Liberty ship, and on its side the name Blake Howard. She lost some of her numbness and was afraid she would cry. "Not now!" she told herself severely.

Winding steps mounted to a platform built to the keel. The faces of the workmen were expectant and proud. From beneath the great hull came the sound of blocks being removed. The Howards ascended to a smaller, higher platform. The women carried large sprays of red roses. Blake had always brought just such roses to Kay. . . .

Cameras clicked. Of course newspapermen would be at the launching of a ship honoring a reporter who'd been killed covering the biggest story of all!

A shipyard representative showed Carlene how to hold and swing the red, white and blue encased bottle of champagne. Then, trotting to the microphone, he boasted that this ship had been built in twenty-six days and that well over three hundred and fifty had gone down the ways since the war began.

Then a noted editor spoke of Blake Howard, the man. It was hard to hear everything above the roar. But Kay did get the references to "the curly-headed kid with the shining eyes." He told of the great stories Blake had written. But nothing of the woman he'd loved—the most important part of a man's life!

The first speaker explained that the steel plates were all that now held back the ship. He said he'd count as torches burned through them. "Burn number one!" he cried dramatically.

Till now Kay had kept out of sight of the Howards. Interested, she stepped forward. Her name was called and she glanced up. Mrs. Howard, holding out a thin hand, said, "Come quickly!"

Someone prodded Kay from behind. She found herself mounting the steps as the second order came, "Number two!"

Carlene, poisoning the bottle, yelled, "Take this, Kay. You're the one who should launch this ship!"

"No!" Mrs. Howard grabbed her hand and pulled her to Carlene's side. "Both of you hold on!" she ordered. Kay's old awe of Mrs. Howard made her obey.

"Number three!"

The ship began to tremble and lurch forward. As it started to move away Kay swung the bottle. It crashed against the hull and the champagne foamed in a weird design. The second Blake Howard slipped away from her to go into active service. Only this time Kay was glad! Looking at the bottle that she still clutched tensely, she was suddenly aware that it had broken in a perfect deep "V."

Kay thought, I've launched a ship—Blake's ship! For Carlene had taken her fingers off. Suddenly Kay felt alive. Her eyes met the friendly ones of the Howards. "They don't resent me any longer!" she told herself, and watched the ship float away.

Someone said, "Now she goes to the fitting-out dock and in two weeks she'll be ready for service."

Ready for service! Blake had been ready. Was Kay?

Men and women had fallen into their places and were already working. They were building another Liberty ship, started even before the S. S. Blake Howard hit water!

The necessity for speed, the thought that every second counted because the enemy also had that second in which to work, struck Kay all at once.

As the shipyard representative thanked her and presented her with a gift, Mrs. Howard asked Kay to go home with her.

"Thanks, but—" "We objected to Blake's marriage but now we want to thank you for having made Blake happy."

Kay kissed the leathery cheek "I'll come soon, but not now. I've something to do." She motioned toward the overalled women, riveting "I'm ashamed of all the days I've wasted. I'm going to the employment office to ask the name of a school where I can learn to do my part."

ALL OVER AGAIN

A superintendent of schools visited a night-school for negro adults. He was called upon to congratulate an old negro. She had enrolled at the start of the course with a single, avowed intent—to learn to write her name. She had succeeded, and the course was at end and she was leaving. The next year the superintendent visited the same school. The old woman had enrolled again, he was told.

"Why?" he asked her. "A's got to learn to write mah name," she said. "But you learned that last year." "Ah knows dat. But now"—and she swelled with pride—"now Ah done got married."

HOBNOBBING

He had never been outside the United States, and neither had she, but both were recounting their experiences abroad.

"And Asia. Ah, wonderful Asia. Never shall I forget Turkey, India, Japan—all of them. And most of all, China, the celestial kingdom. How I loved it!" She held her ground.

"And the pagodas—did you see them?" "Did I see them?" She powdered her nose. "My dear, I had dinner with them!"

THE TEEN-AGE PROBLEM

A team of Sedalia young folk collecting funds for a teen-town project went into a place where liquor is sold, relates the Democrat. They asked the proprietor for a donation and he came across generously and then said, "I don't believe I know just what this donation is really for." "Oh," replied one of the solicitors, "it's to keep us kids out of a place like this."—Missouri Notes in the Kansas City Star.
