Caroline suffered severe lacerations on the palm of her left hand and her left forearm. She was playing with other children when the inside front door of the hall was struck and the glass shattered.

At first it was believed that the tendons in her hand might have been cut, but she is still able to use her fingers and the physician treating her believes that the injury will not be permanent. Another report that an artery in her arm was cut was also untrue. The injuries are now healing without infection, and Caroline has been attending school this week.

Chester Gene Golithly will receive his doctor of medicine degree June 6, when commencement exercises are held for the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School in McFarlin Memorial Auditorium in Dallas. Golithly is one of 100 candidates for the doctor of medicine degree.

7.65 Inches of Rainfall In McLean During May

Officially speaking, the rainfall total for the month of May in McLean stands at 7.65 inches, and for the year at 8.37 inches.

This is the total recorded on the U. S. Weather Bureau gauge kept by Pete Fulbright, local weather observer, and the total may vary considerably with that recorded on gauges owned by individuals.

As a general rule, Fulbright said, the amount recorded on the gauge he keeps is slightly less than that recorded on other gauges in the area. The official gauge works on a work principle, while the smaller gauges are merely containers which catch the moisture and measure it directly.

A number of other residents of the area have been keeping records for May, and the amounts they have recorded have gone up to ten inches.

So far, some moisture has fallen each Sunday night in the month. The latest came Sunday night, when .25 of an inch fell in McLean. High winds early Wednesday morning ushered in another .02 of an inch.

Here's the way the moisture has been recorded by Fulbright for May:

Table with 2 columns: Date, Rainfall. May 1-.67, May 2-1.50, May 8-.08, May 9-.49, May 10-.30, May 11-.29, May 15-.79, May 16-.26, May 17-.17, May 18-1.97, May 19-.66, May 20-.20, May 22-.25, May 25-.02

VERNON GIBSON to go to Dublin

GIBSON TAKES POSITION WITH DUBLIN SCHOOL

Vernon Gibson, vocational agriculture teacher for McLean High School during the past four years, has declined to renew his contract with the McLean school district to accept a similar position at Dublin High School.

Gibson's present contract with the local school will expire July 1, Superintendent Freeman Melton Jr. said this week.

"We regret very much to lose Mr. Gibson from our teaching staff, due to his ability in this work as well as his good citizenship in general," Melton said.

The popular ag teacher came to McLean from Tatum, N. M., and has done excellent work with the agriculture students of the local schools, it was explained. The ag department has had a large number of boys enrolled each year he has been here, and the Future Farmers of America chapter has progressed under his sponsorship.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Gibson are members of the McLean Methodist Church, and have been active in church work. Gibson has also been active in Lions Club work, and is presently heading the committee working out arrangements for the summer recreation program.

During his teaching tenure, his students have fared well in district, area, and state contests. Two judging teams recently participated in the state contests; the F. F. A. band will represent this area at the state convention in July in the talent contests.

"The school board is reluctant in accepting the resignation of Mr. Gibson," J. W. Meacham, board president, said. "However, we realize that he is worthy of advancement, and the position at Dublin will represent an advancement. Since Dublin is his home town, we feel that he will have an excellent opportunity there."

Kids Program for Summer Outlined

Runaway Accident

The little two-year-old child of Mr. and Mrs. John Mertel came near being seriously injured in a runaway accident early Monday morning when the buggy in which he was riding was overturned at the corner of Main and First Streets. Mr. Mertel and his two little boys were driving in a livery rig from their home towards Main Street when the team jumped the buggy across a washout, throwing him and the oldest child out. The team began running, and as they turned the corner into Main Street, the buggy struck a telephone pole and turned over, throwing the baby clear off it onto the hard street. He was picked up and carried into the drug store, where doctors examined him, pronouncing the injuries of only a minor nature.

The buggy suffered the loss of a pole and two broken reaches. With Mrs. Holt

The members of the "Five Hundred" Club were most delightfully entertained Friday afternoon of last week at the pretty home of Mrs. W. H. Holt in the west part of town. Pot plants and cut flowers from the lady's own garden were the pretty decorations of the reception rooms.

Mrs. Montgomery and Misses Vida Montgomery, Mabel Watkins, and Cam Henry are new members of the club, leaving only two or three vacant places to be filled. Three tables of players enjoyed a series of interesting games, at the close of which iced refreshments were served.

Mrs. Roy Rice of Oklahoma City and Mrs. C. S. Rice were guests of the afternoon.

Mrs. C. S. Rice Entertains
 Among the very enjoyable entertainments of the week was the entertainment of the Embroidery Club Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. C. S. Rice. Various garden flowers made the rooms bright with their color and fragrance. After a short time spent in needle work, the hostess introduced an "advertising" contest, in which Miss Wilson won the prize. This was followed by a "Tumbled Word" contest, the straightening of which spelled the name of some article used in a lady's work basket. Mrs. Denson carried off high honors in this contest.

At the proper time, delicious refreshments were served to more than 20 guests. Mrs. Rice was assisted in entertaining by her daughter, Mrs. Roy Rice, of Oklahoma City.

Lawn Party
 A party of young people and some not so young enjoyed a lawn feast at the tennis court in front of the Byrd Gull residence Monday evening. The supper was preceded by a round of tennis games, which were very much enjoyed.

Odd Fellows Install
 The officers-elect for the ensuing term in the local Odd Fellows lodge were installed at the regular meeting of the fraternity Tuesday night of this week.

This newest and most efficient V-8 enables Pontiac to provide more power than any car has ever delivered at Pontiac's price—a full 200 horsepower with the four-barrel carburetor, an extra cost option; 180 H.P. is standard.

It's a future-fashioned beauty—Most distinctive at any price!

Style-conscious motorists turn to Pontiac for true mode-of-tomorrow design, beautifully different from any other car on the road. Exclusive Vogue Two-Tone styling, Twin-Streaked hood and low, rakish lines give you a car that you know will remain a prideful possession for many years to come.

You can buy a big, 200-horsepower Strato-Streak V-8 Pontiac for less than many models of the lowest-priced cars and for much less than stripped economy models of higher-priced makes—none of which equal Pontiac in combined power, size and future-fashioned beauty.

CAN YOU SEE, STEER, STOP SAFELY? CHECK YOUR CAR—CHECK ACCIDENTS.

A NEW CONCEPT

AUTOMATION is a new word which has become a part of the vocabulary of millions. It has made headlines and will make many more. For it stands for a process which sooner or later, will cause vast changes in the arts of industry, with all that this implies.

It has been pointed out that automation is evolutionary, rather than revolutionary. It is just one more step—albeit a potentially tremendous one—in our technological progress, made possible by relatively recent and astonishing developments in electronics and other scientific fields. What automation is has been well described in a leaflet the General Electric company distributed to employees: "Mechanization of production has so far been confined all too largely to those operations which changed the shape of materials. Automation represents the broadened hope and effort which, over the last 15 years, has emphasized trying to extend the same sort of mechanization savings into the other and badly lagging manufacturing operations such as inspection, assembly, test, and packaging, and then linking one or more of these operations with materials handling equipment so that continuous automatic production in one or more of the areas will result."

The ultimate would be the push-button factory, in which raw materials came in one end and packaged finished goods, all ready for the consumer, came out the other, with practically no human labor being involved. We don't have the knowledge to do that on any major scale now. There is also another barrier in the way—and it's human, not mechanical. The GE leaflet said of it: "Even if we did have the technical ability to create a push-button factory, the ultimate governor on our progress toward this goal would still be our free and unpredictable customer. In the end, the real problem will be that of finding the muscled or skilled or mental operations which the customer will let us keep standardized long enough—and let us repeat often enough—to liquidate mental operations automatically. The progress of automation—like the cost of the equipment required to do those manual, skilled or all other forms of technological progress—is dependent on the customer's willingness to permit his wants to be standardized long enough to make that progress pay for itself. Ironically enough, however, the more the customer's level of living is advanced by technology, the less he is willing to submit to the standardization that makes further advances possible."

Some fear that automation may create a great and permanent employment problem. Yet the historical fact is that all past technological advances—despite the temporary dislocations caused—have resulted in more employment, coupled with higher wages, shorter hours, better working conditions, and increased leisure. New demands and new purchasing power are created—and new jobs with them. To take one example, it could have been logically expected that the automatic dial telephone system would greatly reduce the number of operators employed. The truth is that in the last 10 years the number of operators in this country increased, and in a big way—by 79 per cent.

There is another important point which the GE leaflet touched on. Young people go to school longer and old people live longer in retirement. Our population has been increasing at a far faster rate than our work force. So, the output of each worker and each machine will have to increase substantially over the years just to maintain our present living standards—and increase greatly if we are to improve those standards. Automation, to many minds, offers the means of solving that problem, to the ultimate benefit of everyone.

LES TALK

To the seniors of 1955:

Congratulations, hearty congratulations, on your attainment of this goal in life, one which you have sought for many years.

You now have the enthusiasm which you will always need. Stay alive as long as you live.

Seek success and success will be yours.

But don't measure success by the amount of money you may be able to accumulate.

Success means so many different things that the word is hard to define.

To one person, riches may be success; but to most, the ability to live happily is success. To me, the latter is more important than riches.

Make up your mind what you want to do. Then start on the road towards doing it.

Don't please don't, be "wishy-washy." Start early in your adult life to make decisions. Your degree of success in life will be small if you aren't able to make decisions. A good way to make a decision is this: Gather all the evidence concerning the question you can weigh this evidence, arrive at a decision, and then act on that decision.

If you want to go to college, make up your mind you can go to college, regardless of the circumstances. If you do this, you can get this further training. It's up to you.

If you do not want to go to college but prefer to go out and get on your own now, then do that. If you simply are not interested in college, chances are you will be wasting your time, your efforts, and your money by going.

Actually, there is little that can be substituted for college training. Experience is one substitute, but it comes hard and it takes a lot of time. But remember that a college degree is not necessarily an ingredient for success.

And one more thing. As you grow older, you will form more and more habits. Remember this: Bad habits are easy to form; good habits are easy to break.

My best wishes to each of you on your graduation.

We are losing two excellent families from our town in the near future—the J. H. Kritzer family and the Vernon Gibson family.

Doc Kritzer has endeared himself to most of the families in our community. Through his patience with his patients (no pun intended), he has come to be looked upon as an essential part of our lives. Yet now he will be leaving in late June. Doc hopes to improve his ability in the treatment of people who need care, and we all know that he will be an asset wherever he should choose to settle following his further training in Dayton, Ohio. His fine wife, Eleanor, and their three children will be sorely missed, too.

Vernon, although he has not been in McLean quite as long as Doc, has made himself a valuable asset to this community. He has done exceptionally well in his work as a teacher and sponsor of the F. F. A. But Vernon has gone farther than his job requires and has made an excellent citizen for the community through his civic and church work. His wife, Ann, and their children will be missed also, for they have contributed much.

Naturally, we are glad to see both men advance, but the entire community will miss them and their families.

"You sure have an excellently run garage here," remarked the tourist as he was having his car serviced. "I was noticing that mechanic working on the car over there. He is so careful to use that cloth blanket on the fender when he's working on the motor. It was a pleasure, too, to see a mechanic lower a hood gently. And notice he washes his hands and puts a clean cloth on the upholstery before starting the car." "Yeah," replied the attendant. "That's his car."

Enjoy "White Glove" Cooking

That's electric cooking, of course — the modern cooking method, the white glove cooking way. That's because electric cooking is so clean that you can actually take a clean, white glove and run it across the top of the electric element. Unlike the old-fashioned flame-type burners, electric elements collect no soot.

Then, too, electric cooking is electrically controlled for accuracy and dependability. Ever notice how engineers build things with electric controls when they're after modern, automatic control? So, it's obvious that for modern cooking it makes good sense to go all-electric. Get the range that cooks with and is controlled by electricity.

An electric range is clean and it always looks modern. That's because electric cooking is as clean as an electric light bulb. And, it looks modern because it's electric. It IS modern. See the beautiful, modern electric ranges on display at your Reddy Kilowatt Electric Appliance dealer's store. Ask for a free demonstration. Go modern... and that's to go electric!

You may wonder why your physician gave you a prescription this time when he called on you, when on the last call he gave you some medicine directly. Whenever a physician can do so, he gives you medicine. But he is limited to the kinds and amounts of drugs he has on hand. The modern physician knows he cannot possibly keep in his office all the "specifics" that have been developed to meet the varying needs of his individual patients. To practice modern medicine, he must write prescriptions, making use of the thousands of drugs available in a well-equipped pharmacy.

When you have a prescription to be filled, bring it to our Rexall Pharmacist.

If you have been totally disabled for more than six months or become totally disabled in the future, and have engaged in social security covered work for a substantial period of time, you should apply for a "freeze" to protect your benefit rights.

This part of the federal social security law protects your insurance rights while you are totally disabled. It does not provide cash disability payments. Your earnings record may be "frozen" if:

1. You have a disability which has lasted more than six months, is expected to continue indefinitely, and keeps you from doing any substantially gainful activity.

2. You worked in a job covered by social security law for five of the last 10 years before you were disabled, of which one and one-half were during the last three years before you were disabled.

An application made by a disabled person can establish a period of disability as far back as the total disability actually began (but not earlier than October, 1941), providing the disability still exists. After June 30, 1957, the applications can go back for only one year.

If you are already receiving old-age payments, but you were totally disabled for an extended period before reaching 65, and are still disabled, your benefit may be refigured to see whether the new disability provisions would increase your benefit amount. No benefits can be increased under these provisions before July, 1955.

Inquiries regarding filing or for further information should be sent to the Social Security Office, Amarillo.

Refreshing Springtime Dessert

Here's a dessert you'll have fun serving because it looks beautiful, it's a sheer pleasure to eat and practically no effort to make.

The "nests" are a macaroon mixture made with sweetened condensed milk and coconut. Instead of forming solid little macaroons, spread them in individual circles and bake. Whisked from the oven and cooled, the centers are filled with chilled canned apple sauce mixed with strawberries and flavorings, topped with whipped cream. It unites the sweet candy chewiness of coconut macaroons with the refreshing lively taste of ready-prepared apple sauce and strawberries.

The first impulse, perhaps, for a dessert so decorative is to serve it to guests, but this dessert really belongs on the family meal table, too. For it's light, easy to fix, delicious and inexpensive.

SLOW DOWN and LIVE!

An Appeal for 101 Days of Safe Driving

During the summer months—from Memorial Day through Labor Day—highway traffic fatalities are high. So high that the Governors' Conference has endorsed a nation-wide safe driving program during the 101 days between the two holidays.

Only you, the motorist, can make this campaign a success . . . If you, and every other highway traveler, will resolve to drive at a safe speed, to follow the recommendations of Safety Associations for safe highway driving, literally hundreds of lives will be saved during this summer's travel. One of them may be your own.

Wherever you drive this summer, PLEASE DRIVE SAFELY

Safety Associations recommend that you follow these simple rules for a safe vacation trip:

- Observe all posted speed limits; don't hurry, ever.
- Regulate the speed of your car to highway and traffic conditions.
- Don't drive too long—stop when you're tired.
- Observe all highway caution warnings—slow down for curves, when descending steep hills, etc.
- Don't drink when driving.
- Follow the golden rule of traffic courtesy: give other motorists the same consideration you'd like for them to give you.

MEMORIAL DAY MAY 30, 1955

Three years had passed since the last shot had been fired. In the beginning it had not been easy for fighting men to learn again the ways of peace—to sleep without having an ear cocked for the crack of a picket's rifle, to get up by one's own will rather than at the call of drum or bugle, to work at a steady job instead of doing only what some officer ordered. For awhile even the beds had been too soft, and the food too rich for stomachs that had made their peace with hard-tack or grits and bacon.

But by the spring of 1868 most of the veterans, North and South, had taken up their old lives or made new ones. The war was fast slipping into the past, and men were coming to remember only its comradeships and victories, and to forget its horrors.

And perhaps to forget, too, the graves that marked every battlefield, even every hamlet. It was then that General John A. Logan, Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, issued his celebrated general order designating May 30 as a day for strewing with flowers the graves of the men who had given their lives for their country. A few weeks later, solemn processions everywhere moved with slow step to the resting places of the dead.

Even before 1868 a number of Southern communities had decorated the graves of Confederate soldiers. As in the North, the custom spread and became permanent, although some Southern states still honor their dead on dates other than May 30.

While the war remained an unhealed wound, it was natural that the people of each section should glorify the valor of their armies at the same time that they did homage to the fallen. But with each year bitterness diminished, and ever-larger numbers saw that grief has no respect for geography. Thus Memorial Day came to embrace all Americans and the dead of all our country's wars.

We can do little more than set aside a day of recognition for those who never came back. But there are thousands who have come back—ill, maimed, burdened with hurts from which they will never recover. For these, the disabled, we can show that we mean our annual tribute. We can, if we will, make an effort to understand their problems, and offer them every opportunity to earn decent livings and lead normal lives. If we fail in this small obligation, we strip Memorial Day of its meaning.

SPEAKING & CARDS

WHO WAS HOYLE?

How many times has your favorite card game been temporarily interrupted by someone exclaiming: "I wonder if I should play that card... is it according to Hoyle?" The expression is so familiar that it has come to mean anything properly done. But, did you ever stop to wonder who, or what, is Hoyle?

Around the year 1730 in London there existed a number of "coffee houses" where the gentry and merchant classes gathered to drink coffee and chocolate, to talk, and to play a new card game called Whist, the grandfather of Auction and Contract Bridge and other trump games. One of those who frequented the coffee houses was Edmond Hoyle, a middle-aged lawyer.

Hoyle had learned to play Whist and became so proficient that he began to teach the game to the lords and ladies of the time at, we are told, "very stiff prices." In 1742, he published his first book, "A Short Treatise on Whist." A few years later he came out with the first volume of "Hoyle's Games," giving rules and advice on five games of skill: Whist, Chess, Backgammon, Quadrille and Piquet. Thus he was the first to write scientifically on any card game, to understand and present clearly the rules, ethics and strategy of games as we understand them today.

Hoyle's books were best sellers of the 18th Century and his fame was accorded by noted authors and artists of his day. Hogarth, the British painter, pictured "Hoyle on Whist" in one of his famous canvases, while Lord Byron, the illustrious poet, wrote in "Don Juan" that "Troy owes to Homer what Whist owes to Hoyle."

The reputation Edmond Hoyle established was so great that nearly two hundred years later his Code of Ethics and Fair Play from the Treatise on Whist was included, almost verbatim, in the Laws for Auction and Contract Bridge! Today his principles are as sound as ever.

Little wonder then that when he died at the age of ninety-seven his writings had made his name a household word, even to the extent that it is now synonymous with correct procedure in anything whatever.
