PLOWIN' Out the CORNERS Uncle Zeb

Repeating a rumor is just about the worst pastime we can have. Each time we pass it along it usually gets bigger and we feel worse by having handled it.

People were given two eyes and only one tongue so that they could see twice as much as they tell.

Running down people is like running downstairs, it is always hard on the heart.

Some folks won't mind their business. The reason is you'll find. Either they have no business. Or else they have no mind.

Did you ever play the game of rumor at a party? It is fun and brings out a good lesson for us to think about. It is played by having everyone get in a line and the leader will whisper the rumor to the one at the head and he will pass it on to the next person. The game is to see if it is the same when it reaches the last person. Needless to say, it never comes out the same.

A rumor is a secret that we can tell to only one person at a time.

CITIZENS PETITION FOR PAVED ROAD FROM McLEAN TO HEDLEY

A citizens delegation composed of persons from Hedley and McLean, went before the Texas Highway Commission in Austin Monday to seek paving on the road from McLean to Hedley, joining highways 273 and 203. State Rep. Will Ehrle of Childress led the delegation.

From McLean, representatives were E. L. Sitter and Ruel Smith who presented a petition bearing 359 names from McLean.

The Hedley delegation also presented a citizens petition, together with a formal resolution passed by the Donley County Commissioners Court asking for the highway.

The request of the group was taken under advisement by the commission, and prospects for the paving in the future appear brighter than ever before. Approximately 2.6 miles of the unpaved road in question are in Gray County and must be approved by the Gray County Commissioners Court.

Estimated cost for the paving is $965,000. Cost in Gray County would be approximately $84,000 and in Donley County approximately $881,000. The Donley County mileage would include a $250,000 bridge across the Salt Fork of the Red River.

The need for the paving is apparent as a 40 mile strip now exists with no north-south route. Travel at the present over the strip is prohibitive in the extreme difficulty in crossing the river.

Members of the board of directors are George Colebank, Ernest Watson, Dick Dickinson, Hickman Brown, Bill Stubbs and J. W. Meacham.

Another meeting is scheduled within the next few days to complete plans for the first month of operation.

STUDENTS RANK HIGH IN BAND

Members of the McLean High School band, under direction of Jim Boyd, won high ratings in a contest held last Saturday in Canyon. The contests were the regional solo and ensemble performances.

One group received a first division rating, and were presented gold medals. Members were Ruth Pakan, Dixie Burroughs, Rita Brown and Joyce Beasley.

Students entering the solo department receiving a second division rating were Margie Pakan, clarinet; Keith Goodman, cornet; and Linda Guill, French horn.

A third division rating was given a clarinet quartet including Dixie Burroughs, Marilyn McElroy, Susan Blackwell and Kathy Harlan.

Jim McCarty was also given a third rating on a saxophone solo. There were approximately 1400 students competing from all schools in the area.

Mrs. Gene Herron underwent major surgery at the Community Hospital and Clinic in Elk City, Okla., Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ollie Tindall and Linda spent the week end in Fritch with their son and brother, Don Tindall, and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Pettit made a business trip to Pampa, Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Williams were in Shamrock Sunday afternoon visiting the Grover Lamb family.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne McElroy and children visited in Pampa Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Wilson and Mrs. Grace Martin.

Retail Merchants To Begin In April

McLean's Retail Merchants Association should be in operation by the first of April, it was announced this week by officials of the group.

New manager for the association will be Mrs. Betty Norwood, who will also serve as secretary. The position will be on a part-time basis, with office to be in the City Hall.

At the last meeting of the board of directors of the association, Mayor John Haynes assured the group of the use of the office space. Also, B. J. McCarty, McLean's new city manager, will replace Dan Mize as president of the board of directors.

When the group begins operation, membership will number 30 firms. Although dues have been paid by many members, it was stated that since operation did not begin in March, as originally proposed, the dues would be applied to April instead. In beginning the new organization, the first function will be that of the Credit Bureau of McLean.

Another meeting is scheduled within the next few days to complete plans for the first month of operation.

Some recent and amusing developments have arisen concerning the ever-growing white elephant called the Auto Merit Insurance Plan.

After a much-deserved furor was raised when this plan first hit the market, legislators and insurance men have tried to revise it into some sort of working arrangement.

A few revisions were made, but according to one source, furnish about as much relief as "a small dose of sassafras tea."

One change in particular stated that persons hitting a wild animal at a tremendous rate of speed would be exempt. Now all McLean drivers who have accidents because some possum runs across a busy intersection have nothing to worry about. Your insurance won't go up. Remember, however, that it must be a possum and not a domestic animal such as a dog. The domesticity of the animal somehow makes it unforgivable on the part of the driver.

Other revisions amount to about the same thing. TO SUM IT UP—It's still an unworkable monstrosity.

E. L. Sitter and Ruel Smith brought back encouraging news after meeting with the Texas Highway Commission Monday in Austin concerning the paved road from Hedley to McLean. The two men took a petition along with the Hedley delegation to the hearing.

With the likelihood of the paving being done, Gray County's Commissioners Court will need to approve the 2.6 miles in our county for paving.

It's a small amount to approve and should easily be accomplished, but it would still make a good campaign promise for the commissioner's race.

Amarillo's contest to see who can guess the population has hit a snag. The Chamber of Commerce is disheartened and people are confused as to how many to estimate.

The big problem is that when Mrs. Davis finishes her speech and the state intelligence men get through hauling off the guilty it looks like there may not be anyone left to qualify as a bona-fide resident.

Reading quips about income tax I found that one lady sent in her return with a note attached stating, "I hope you give this to some nice little country."

Another return was received from a couple that said: "Please drop us from the income tax program as we do not feel we can afford it any longer"

And on the deduction side, a wealthy dairy owner won a case in court of deducting $40,000 he spent on an African safari as business expense. He claimed he made films down there which he brought back and showed to people who enjoyed them so much they started buying his milk.

IF YOU THINK YOU'VE GOT TROUBLES: A friend of mine named Harold Zanderbuttes said his low point came recently when his check bounced for membership in the Retail Merchants Association.

Tiger Band Places Second
McLean's Tiger band was presented a second place award following last week's performance in the Shamrock St. Patrick's Day parade.

Out of six Class A bands competing, the Tiger band ranked second to the Lefors Pirate band.

Mrs. T. A. Langham and Mrs. Hal Mounie visited their daughter and sister, Mrs. Ervin Baker, in a Pampa hospital recently.

SOMETHING TO REMEMBER

In mid-June, a ceremony was held near the city of Fresno, Calif. The occasion was the dedication of an $80 million hydroelectric project—financed, built and now operated by a heavily-taxed, publicly-regulated electric company.

The president of that company took the occasion to say something that applies to all enterprise in this country, big or little. In his words: "The foundation of our American economy is its business system. The invested capital of millions of Americans in productive enterprise builds the plants and provides the tools; these in turn produce the goods and at the same time provide the employment and consumer income for their distribution."

"Every home owner, every property owner of any kind, every person with a savings account or a life insurance policy is a capitalist. The word has been maligned by socialists, communists and others, but none of them has been able to alter the simple truth about capitalism. Its values are the strength of our way of life and its benefits are shared by all the people. No detractor has offered a better alternative to free men. "It is difficult to understand why some people who thrive in the blessings of our way of life would destroy it. Some knowingly and some unwittingly attack it, with the very basic electric utility industry as one of their prime targets. It should be obvious that destruction of any basic part of a structure weakens the whole and can only lead to its disintegration."

That last sentence should be memorized by people, including public officials and business men, who pay lip service to free enterprise but because of selfishness or blindness think a "little socialism," as in power production, is a good thing. If it is proper and right in principle to socialize the electric industry, it is just as proper and as right in principle to socialize any other industry in this country.

MATERIAL MIRACLES

We live in an age of material miracles, major and minor. And there's hardly an enterprise or a life which isn't touched by them.

Take, just for example, the oil industry. We might think, reasonably enough, that the techniques of finding, producing and transporting oil are pretty permanently established.

But that isn't the case. Oil fields without derricks . . . nuclear-powered submarine tankers capable of carrying 200,000 barrels of oil . . . pipe line systems so automated they do everything but pay the monthly bills . . . the use of sound waves, bugs and atomic energy to double the recovery rate of crude oil from the ground—these are but a few of the forecasts which 10 experts have made in the American Petroleum Institute Quarterly. And they appear, fittingly, in the oil industry's centennial year.

These remarkable developments, when they move from the realm of theory into reality, will further advance the industry's high standards of efficiency, economy and service. And some will do more than that—they will, in effect, greatly increase our reserves of oil by greatly increasing the amount that can be recovered. This is a fascinating age, for all of its troubles and problems.

RESHAPING AMERICA

Back in 1952, there were some 6,490,000 shareholders in American industry. A few years later, in 1956, the number had shown a healthy rise to 8,630,000. Of late, estimates have placed the shareholder army in the neighborhood of 10 million. But now we find that this was low—way low. Early this year the New York Stock Exchange conducted a census of shareowners—and the total was 12,490,000. That large a number was not anticipated before 1965. So the American people have demonstrated a far greater enthusiasm for becoming partners in corporate enterprise than even the experts expected.

The census produced a number of other facts. One out of each eight adults is a shareholder, as compared with one in 12 three years ago. Women shareholders outnumber men 52.5 to 47.5%. Housewives who are shareowners now total 4 million—the largest single group. Almost half of all shareowners are in the $5,000-$10,000 income bracket, and their average household income is $7,000—which completely refutes the stale old socialist-communist argument that capitalism is designed to serve a few, not the many.

The results of this census caused the Exchange's president to say that the growth in shareownership is a "quiet economic revolution that is reshaping America." And it's reshaping it precisely the way that our totalitarian enemies don't like.

A Corral Full Of Stories

By Joe Evans

The president of the El Paso Chamber of Commerce was introducing Captain Gillett as speaker to a group of Masons. This happened in March when the wind was blowing and the dust had covered everything. You couldn't see the sun, just a typical Western day. He apologized to Capt. Gillett about the dust storm by saying, "We never have a day like this in El Paso."

The old Ranger Captain had forgotten more about West Texas than the Chamber of Commerce president ever could learn. Capt. Gillett said, "I came to El Paso in 1879, and they were having storms then and have been ever since. I remember one time we were coming in off of an Indian scout. The wind had been blowing for three days and the sand had covered up the grass and mesquite bushes. As we rode along through the sand hills between El Paso and Alamo, we discovered a man's hat lying on a sand dune. We got down to pick it up and found there was a man's head in it. We scratched the sand out of his eyes and ears and mouth with our fingers. He said, "Get a shovel, I'm horse-back."

The rules in our camp when we didn't have a regular cook were that anybody who complained about the chuck had to do the cooking. One cowboy broke open a biscuit and he said, "They are burnt on the bottom and top and raw in the middle and salty as hell, but shore fine, just the way I like 'em."

The Cowboy and the Politician

The cowboy gets up early in the morning, decides what to do, then straddles his pony and gets to work. He does the best he can and spends as little money as possible.

The politician gets up late in the morning, straddles the fence, spends all the money he can, gets the votes lined up, and then decides what to do.

Back in the old days about all the traveling any of us cattlemen did was going to Kansas City with a train of cattle. This meant you rode in a caboose for four or five days and nights without ever pulling off your boots. This kind of traveling was anything but pleasant but it was the only way we could see any of the world.

All of this traveling was offset when we got to Kansas City and sold our cattle and got our money. The first thing we did was to buy us some store-bought clothes and dress us. The commission men who sold our cattle were very thoughtful of us and showed us around and saw to it that we had a good time. They would take us to a good show or to a banquet, anything was entertainment to us.

One night at a banquet a big crowd of celebrities and high brows were making after-dinner speeches and giving toasts, some quoting Shakespeare and Kipling and a lot of stuff the cowboys had never heard of before. To his surprise they called on my friend for a toast. You talk about being "between a rock and a hard place," that's where he really was, but he didn't want to be a piker, so he stood up and made a stab at a poem he had learned in the cow camp. He was so nervous that he was trembling like a leaf. He tried to quiet his nerves by rolling a cigarette from his sack of Bull Durham. He split the tobacco on the lady next to him and turned his coffee over, but finally he started. The poem went something like this:

Here's the Answer

They met on the bridge at midnight. They never will meet again. One was a west bound helper. The other an east bound train.

An old nester that had a few cattle and a homestead, better known among the cattlemen as a starve-out, always made it a point to show up at our chuck wagon. This was a good chance for him to fill up; he was never known to do any work and was more in the way than he was a help. It soon became a by-word when the cowboys saw him ride up to say, "Yonder comes old Jim; when he comes to the outfit it's just like two good men leaving."

say one for me

Everybody ought to read the papers once in a while. Lots of people do, and, in fact, I once knew an illiterate disc jockey who had the morning paper read to him occasionally, although the rules of his profession were strictly against reading anything. I understand. However, he had it read to him while on the air, and of course, nobody pays any attention to what goes on over the air.

But like I was going to tell you, I read the papers one day last week and the main thing that impressed me about it was that I found out the going price of "automobile blessings"—which is currently $70. That's Catholic blessings. Perhaps you could get a good Protestant blessing a little cheaper. It would probably be a good deal louder too.

At any rate, this is the straight poop. It came direct from the Pope when a group of Notre Dame alumni presented his highness with an air-conditioned Cadillac Wednesday. In turn the pontiff felt obliged to bless his new auto, AND all the autos of those making the presentation.

Now there were 100 people making the presentation and figuring a Coupe de Ville at $7,000, it comes to about $70 per blessing you see.

There's always somebody to take the joy out of life. I thought I had EVERYTHING on my car . . . spoke wheels, hot and cold running heaters, license plates, sanforized, barometer—the works. The salesman told me it had everything, but I forgot to ask if it had been blessed. You've just got to have everything in writing nowadays.

What've got to find out is if I have to send my car all the way to the Vatican to get it blessed, or if I can arrange with the Pope to do it by proxy. I certainly want to do the right thing here. All the same, it's such a little car you'd think they ought to give me a discount. At least $65.

But the strangest part is about that air-conditioner. Boy that's playing it safe, huh? Even if the Pope slips and hits reverse, and travels the wrong way, he'll still be protected in the end.

uninformed

It's a wonder how people like Sen. John Williams of Delaware get elected to Congress nowadays.

Sen. Williams is just plain backward. Why just the other day, he said this ridiculous thing: "Whatever our idealistic purposes, we can do only what we can afford."

See how unenlightened he is about national economics? Why Sen. Yarborough could teach him worlds about spending money you don't have—faster and faster.

hole in one, or both

I wish I lived in Florida where you could just wear sandals and didn't have to bother with socks. Socks have given me trouble all my life. Everytime I turn around there is another hole. And if there isn't another hole then I have lost the other mate.

Personally, I have never been convinced of the wisdom of discarding a perfectly good sock merely because the laundry misplaced its mate. With women it's different though. They are as allergic to mismatched socks as mice.

Like the other day, the wife of a friend of mine, kept harassing me because of a small hole in one of my socks revealing an ankle bone and portion of the heel. Nothing serious.

I said, "Why is it that you women are always so concerned about things that don't amount to a hill of red beans?"

And she said, "Now what you don't understand is that people have got to be thinking about something, and you ought to be thankful that we women are concerned with these trivialities 'cause just think what a nuisance we would be if we were sticking our noses in really important things."

"Teuche," I said.

one good term . . .

Then there was this newspaper article written by a reporter who was traveling with the Strategic Air Force to some remote South Pacific Island where SAC is also guarding us.

But what interested me most about this article was the picture. It was a picture of the reporter standing on this lonely and rocky beach, and he was looking down at a couple of little birds which the caption explained were called "terns."

I wish some paper would send me the caption to this picture so I can see the terns.

"Certainly one reason is because it is trouble-free. I've had mine for over 2 years with no trouble—just delight. There's no fading of colors either and I dry delicate things, too, just by turning the dial for delicate fabric."

MERIL WORD

SUCCESSOR TO CONTRACT?

It is probably inevitable, according to card experts, that some day a "Super" Bridge game will be developed to threaten Contract's position as the world's most universally played card game. They point out that before Contract Bridge swept to popularity in the mid-Twenties, Auction Bridge reigned supreme and Auction in turn was a successor of Bridge or Whist which was first developed in England in the late 19th century. The grandfather of all these trump games of the partnership family is, of course, Whist, which was first played in 1742 and whose most famous teacher was Edmond Hoyle.

Rex Bridge, a new version of the game from Sweden is the latest candidate for the honor of succeeding Contract. While it has won many followers in Europe, so far only a few expert Bridge players in this country have gotten around to trying their hand at it. Taking its name from the Latin word for king which it elevates above the Ace, Rex Bridge is an additional denomination which ranks between spades and no-trumps. Rex is a no-trump declaration in which the king is highest card in each suit and the ace is the lowest. Otherwise the cards rank as usual. This tends to neutralize the tremendous advantage that a side now has in holding most of the aces.

In bidding, three rex will overcall three spades but three no-trump will overcall three rex. Three rex is enough for game, since it scores as no-trump.

Although Rex bridge scoring requires study, the principle can be stated rather briefly. At a part-score contract, each odd trick counts 50. A game bid and made in any denomination is worth 600. For each level bid and made above game, declarer's side scores another 600, plus 50 for each overtrick. Thus, seven spades, three levels above game, scores 2,400 plus 150 for the three additional tricks, for a total of 2,550. A pair that goes down one scores the value of its contract minus 1,250, except that it never "goes in the hole."

Nonvulnerable undertricks are 100 each for the first three tricks and 150 each thereafter. Vulnerable undertricks are 150 each. These scores can be doubled or redoubled.

Actually, the rex idea is separated from the regular contract bridge scoring can be utilized.

ARE YOU FAITHFUL TO CHRIST?

There are two things which are necessary to save our souls and win others to Christ. First, one must teach only the truth, and the second thing is that he must live faithfully the Christian life.

The truth of the Bible will have little effect on others when we teach it if we are not faithful to the Lord ourselves. We may tell others that they should study the Bible and do what it says, but if we remain away from Bible study on Lord's day morning and do not attend the regularly scheduled meetings of the church what we say will have little effect upon them. The person who contends that we should partake of the Lord's supper upon the first day of the week (Acts 20:7) and should not forsake the assembly (Heb. 10:25) will not have much effect upon those whom he teaches if he fails to practice, and does not assemble.

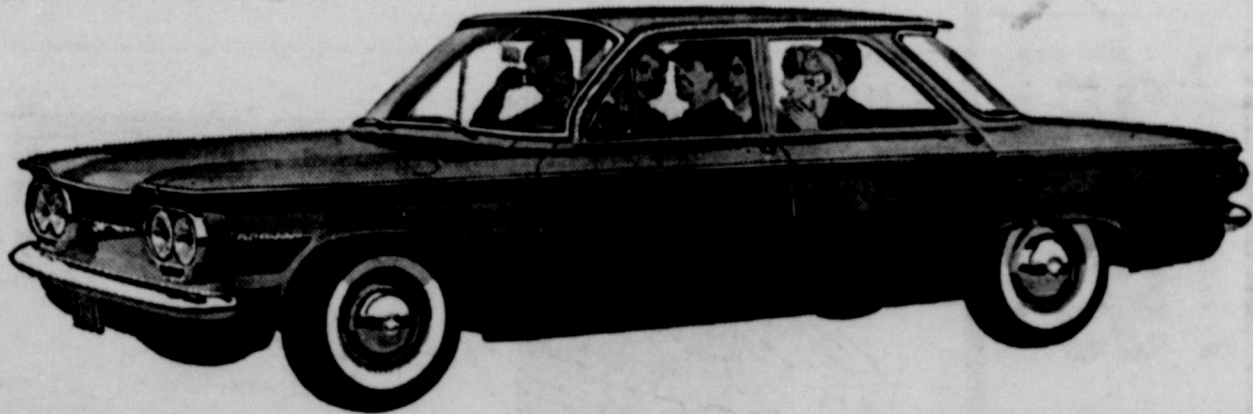

The husband or wife will never win his or her companion to the Lord when he or she is unfaithful. Sunday morning only is not enough to show that we are faithful to Christ. We must show it all the time, and when other meetings of the church are scheduled, if we are really converted to Christ, we will meet with Him (Matt. 18:20).

Our friends will be more impressed with a faithful and godly life than by all the words we may speak. The word of God is the sword of the spirit (Heb. 4:12). It should be used by every soldier of the cross, but let us make sure we are in the way ourselves before we endeavor to persuade others.

The sham of an unfaithful life is easy to see through. Matt. 7:15-23)

Comment from the Capital — WHAT IS IT? by Van Neff

Is it good . . . or is it bad? Does it do the job . . . or does it fall far short?

We're talking, of course, about the Kennedy-Ervin "Labor Reform" bill that the Senate has just passed and that the House of Representatives is now considering. Senator Kennedy, a well-intentioned man who sponsored the bill to reform the evils uncovered by the McClellan Committee, calls his draft "a solid, responsible labor-management reform bill."

Some important people, however, are in disagreement with his appraisal. Senator Hickenlooper says of the bill, "It has a fairly small amount of good in it."

Senator McClellan, who has been deep in the investigation and knows what is necessary, says "very deficient."

Senator Goldwater sums it up with "A flea bite to a bull elephant!"

President Eisenhower recently stated that the bill was seriously deficient and he expressed dissatisfaction with it.

Even Secretary of Labor Mitchell is unhappy with it. Here are upstanding, good, reliable leaders of our country. They have all studied the bill — and have taken issue with it. They disagree on its merits.

They are not pleased with it. Yet it has been passed by the Senate.

We all realize that the McClellan Committee uncovered vicious racketeering in unions, crooks who hid behind the Fifth Amendment, amazing stories of union gangsters who will stop at nothing to achieve their goal of unionism at any price! Under this guise, unionism at any price, unscrupulous unionists are building their own evil power, feathering their own nests.

Obviously, there is a need for strong, effective labor reform. The answer, unfortunately, is not the Kennedy-Ervin bill.

There is not one fully effective measure of reform in this bill that actually would put a stop to the evils disclosed by the investigations. Instead, there is a long list of concessions that serve to strengthen unions, not reform them.

There is no provision for the protection of the small business-man who has given his employees every possible benefit, and based on the whim of some union official, overnight finds himself facing economic ruin from an unfair picket line thrown around his shop.

Unions still are allowed to propagandize without limitation. They can still use union dues to back candidates who will, in turn, back their measures! But what about the small business man? He can hardly do a thing, for in the eyes of union bosses, it will be construed as constituting an "influence" on his employees' right to unionize. According to the new bill, the employer must report any costs, even of activities wholly legal and permissible.

The bill does nothing about such serious evils as secondary boycotts and blackmail picketing. These, they leave for some future bill — someday! — maybe!

We cannot settle for half-way reform. The people need — and demand! — strong legislation. The Senate, we realize, has passed the bill. Now it goes to the House of Representatives — men who are very close to our problems! It is up to the House to see that this bill is revised to provide real protection for workers, employers and the community against union racketeering.

The Senate failed, now we look to the House to do the job.

FARMING AROUND

By Mark Welsh

STOCKMEN have to know the darnest things! For example, they have to know about vitamins, mineral supplements, antibiotics and everything else that goes into livestock rations like proteins, fats, carbohydrates and trace elements. This new information comes out so fast and is so hard to keep up with that more and more livestock producers are relying on their feed men to keep them advised. The feed manufacturers, in turn, depend on the big commercial companies which do the research to keep them posted on rapid-fire developments in the use of antibiotics and other ingredients. On this fast-moving treadmill, you have to run hard just to stay in the same place.

Buying or selling a farm is not a "yes" or "no" business but more a case of fitting together numerous jigsaw pieces to complete a sale. The prospective buyer is important, of course, but very often his wife, their children and maybe some other relatives also have a say in the matter. Once all these people are "sold," the seller, his wife and kids and maybe others also have to be assured the terms are in their best interest. And finally, there's the problem of finding someone to finance the deal. If you are thinking of buying or selling a farm, you can protect yourself against unexpected pitfalls by seeing your local broker first.

Research Pays
Ever stop to think that plant and animal breeders and geneticists have virtually changed the varieties of plants and animals grown on farms and ranches in the United States today? The majority of crops grown this year are from varieties which did not exist 10 or 15 years ago. The type and production of poultry and livestock today are of an entirely different order than they were a decade ago. To the city dweller, research may bring visions of atomic energy and television sets, but to the farmer it means plant hybrids, better control of insects, more productive soils, more efficient planting, handling, storing and even marketing of farm products.

(Editors Note: Dr. Mark Welsh is a former university instructor and state livestock sanitary service director who has spent a lifetime in agriculture. He now is agricultural consultant to American Cyanamid Company.)

PARENTS, WHAT IS GOD LIKE?

By Jack Riley, Methodist Pastor

Professor Will Durant used to tell the story of his little girl who came to her mother one day with the age-old question, "Mother, what is God like?" The mother hesitated in the presence of so great a question and finally said, "Dear, ask your Daddy." So the little girl went to her father with her search after God. "Daddy, what is God like?" And he too hesitated. Later on, among her childish possessions they found a slip of paper with a bit of free verse inscribed on it. It went something like this:

"I asked my mother what God was like, She did not know. I asked my teacher what God was like. She did not know. Then I asked my father, who knows more than anyone else in the world, what God was like. He did not know. I think if I had lived as long as my mother, or my father, I would know something about God."

Parents, if your children are "scriptural illiterates" today perhaps it is because we have been living in "contented ignorance" in our homes. How long has it been since we told our children the story of God as shown to us in Jesus Christ? How long has it been since they have seen us act Christ-like in our home? Far too many parents have had for their benediction in the home the one used by the mountaineer, "Lord bless us who are ignorant and make us ignorant," when something like this should have been our prayer: "O God, our heavenly Father, giver of life; we pray thee, make this home an abode of light and love. May all that is pure, tender, and true grow up under its shelter. May all that hinders godly union and concord be driven far from it. Make it the center of fresh, sweet, and holy influence. Give wisdom for life, and discretion in the guidance of affairs. That we may have the courage to live in the light and love of Jesus Christ, our Lord." Amen

Family worship is the KEY—to a home, not a house.

Down Memory Lane IT HAPPENED HERE

40 Years Ago—

Taken from the Files of The McLean News, 1920

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Overton and Mr. and Mrs. Homer Crabtree went to Amarillo Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. Bill Harlan were in from the ranch Saturday. Carl Hefner and Burette Kinard motored to Wellington Sunday.

There's a reason. Rev. Sam Erwin of Alanreed will preach at the Nazarene church Sunday morning. Mrs. Stanfield, Misses Lorene and Ruth Stanfield, Robbie Ashby and Lettie Bogan motored to Shamrock Friday. Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Quattlebaum and Mrs. John Quattlebaum and Miss Lillian motored to Clarendon Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Crabtree of Hereford came in last week to visit relatives. C. S. Rice, J. E. Kirby and W. R. Wise returned Friday from Fort Worth. O. N. Perryman of Amarillo, fireman on the Rock Island, is moving here. Mrs. J. L. Crabtree left Tuesday for a visit with her daughters, Mrs. Orr of Wellington and Mrs. Stubbs of Erick, Okla. Dick Cooke of Amarillo visited relatives here Sunday. Mrs. S. R. Loftin and daughter, Miss Laftue, were over from Alanreed last Thursday afternoon on business. J. B. Paschall returned from Breckenridge Monday. Mesdames Faulkner and Hedge, Harry Faulkner and Misses Mabel Faulkner and Ruth Jordan of Canyon visited relatives and friends here the first of the week. J. F. Thomas of Kansas City is moving to our city this week. He is telegraph lineman for the C. R. I. & P., this division. Mr. and Mrs. John Williams of Amarillo came Monday to visit Mrs. A. Stanfield and girls. Mr. and Mrs. J. R. G. Bird and son of Pampa were in town Saturday. William Henry of Tulsa, Okla., came in Sunday to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Henry, and family. Pervey Cooke of White Deer was here Sunday. Mrs. Watson returned to Fort Worth Monday after visiting Mrs. J. W. Wilkins. Mesdames Noel and Morse and children motored to Clarendon Monday. Mrs. A. W. Willard's father, Mr. Roark of Graham, died last Friday. Born to Mr. and Mrs. John Welch on Sunday, a girl. The News got in bad with one subscriber last week. Through negligence, a press day rush, and other causes, we failed to mention the arrival of a boy in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. (Bunk) Wilson of west of town. This is the first addition to Bunk's family since it was established, and the News has taken quite a drop in its estimation through its failure to chronicle this important event. Pvt. and Mrs. Cecil Ferguson expect to leave today (Thursday) for Fort Sul, Okla., where they will be stationed for the present.

Camels, Look to Your Laurels— There's a Long Dry Spell Ahead

Joan Roberts drew a puzzled expression from Sheba, a Bactrian (two humps) camel, when she pointed to the Corvair aluminum engine as the undisputed champion of machine or beast operating forever without water. Sheba, though passive, was content to relinquish the camel's historic endurance laurels to the new compact car's newly installed air-cooled engine which never needs water. At any rate, the camel can hold the "water" record until 1559 BC (before Corvair).

Meet Mrs. Nelson Rockefeller

Mrs. Nelson Rockefeller was political necessity to meet the press and discuss some details of the Rockefeller family life. Some of the family philosophies and her adjustment to life as a politician's wife are described in the November Ladies' Home Journal.

Tod Rockefeller is five times a mother and five times a grandmother, but she is far too busy these days for much grandmotherly fussing. As New York's Governor's Lady—and a woman who could become the nation's First Lady—she finds her days are a round of answering mail, presiding at teas and receptions, and planning menus. Author Margaret Farlow says, "She assumes complete direction of the Governor's Mansion as well as necessary long-distance handling of the various Rockefeller homes (five of these, too)."

Menu-planning is the extent of Tod Rockefeller's culinary activities. She never cooks if she can help it! "Nels makes a good steak, but I'm just not talented that way," she says. "I'm the best hot-dog roaster in the family though." Although she has help with cooking, Mrs. Rockefeller is the first

A First Look At How They Live

Governor's Lady in the memory of the staff not to have a personal maid.

Adapting to her explosion into public life was not easy for Mrs. Rockefeller, "a woman to whom a skirt-and-sweater life comes more easily than a high-heel and silk-gown one." She's never happier than when she is digging in her garden of unusual tropical plants, the article says. And if her husband ascends to the presidency, she will be the first First Lady who could qualify for the crew of a racing sailboat!

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Mac Stewart and children of Houston spent the week end of the 12th with their parents. Mr. and Mrs. Leon Crockett and Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Stewart.

Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Switzer and son, John, left Sunday for St. Joseph, Mo., to attend the women's national AAU basketball tournament. Laura Switzer, a freshman student at Wayland Baptist College, played in the tournament with Dowell's Dolls. The Dolls won their first game by a score of 51-48 against the Omaha, Nebr., Wrights, but were eliminated in their second game.
