

The Peripatetic View by CEC

Speaking of bravery! I read last week where a heckler hit the Mayor of Moscow with an egg. This alone is somewhat of a startling feat, but he did it with Wyatt Earp standing next to the mayor. Wyatt didn't have his guns but joined the posse in a foot race which led to the arrest of the culprit.

A new angle on the presidential race: I heard a woman say she absolutely could not vote for Lyndon Johnson because she could not feature a president's wife by the name of "Ladybird."

I'll never understand why there exists a popular vote for president. The fact that a popular vote has nothing whatsoever to do with the election of the President seems to make no difference. Persons go to the polls and vote for a president and the vote is counted and all it amounts to is that we know who the people by popular vote would LIKE to have.

The president is elected by the Electoral College alone. Electors must not be federal office holders and are nominated in each state according to its own laws. There are as many electors in each state as the state has senators and representatives.

Electors cast their ballots in December of the election year at the state capitals. Should no candidate receive a majority of electoral votes the House of Representatives must choose a president from among the candidates who receive the highest number of electoral votes. The same goes for vice president. The electoral college is made up strictly through party machinery.

In other words, if a candidate receives an overwhelming majority of the popular votes and is not elected by the electoral college, then he has been defeated.

DID YOU KNOW that 1930 was the last year that federal receipts equaled expenditures?

Also, since 1930 the public debt has risen from $16,185,309,831 to $201,003,387,221.

So, when you buy a government bond, you're investing in a company that has lost money consecutively for thirty years. Would you invest in any other company with the same record?

Deficits are partially made up every January when you start paying taxes.

H. G. Wells made a stunningly true statement when he said: "There is no way around, or under or through." The question is how long after it's too late will people realize it?

Gray County Soil Conservation News

Crop Residue Use

Have you ever taken your shirt off on a hot summer day and tried to work all day outside without it? Probably not, because you realize what the results would be; but have you stopped to realize what the results would be to your crop land when you cut the grain off your fields and then turn the stubble under? The same situation exists when this is carried out.

Crop residues can be properly used by tilling the soil in such a manner so as to leave the residue on the surface, or incorporate it into the top two to four inches. Crop residues allow more water to enter the soil, reduce the amount of water evaporation, help prevent the blowing or washing off of the soil and at the same time improve the soil structure.

A cover on top of the soil will protect it from the bad effects of hard rains or winds. The straw or stubble will break up the force of the raindrops and keep the wind from coming in direct contact with the soil. Without residue for protection, there is a tendency for the soil to pack from the force of the raindrops or for the soil particles to be moved by the force of the wind.

A good crop residue cover of approximately 1,000 pounds per acre will do much to increase the water intake of the soil. With a cover to break up the raindrops, they will enter a more open soil. During heavy rains, two to four times as much water runs off a bare surface in comparison to one protected by crop residues.

Water evaporation is another factor that can be controlled by the use of crop residues. These residues will reduce the temperature of the soil, thereby allowing more water to be retained over a longer period of time.

Wind erosion is always less on soils where residues are present, due to the fact that they reduce the velocity at ground level. A cover will keep the wind from coming in direct contact with the soil.

It is a recognized fact that the organic matter is the life and body of our soil. This organic matter must be replaced or it is not too long before our soils will become dead and unproductive. By leaving crop residues on the surface, vital organic matter is added to the top inches of our soils. This organic matter doesn't decay all at once, thereby giving soil benefits over a longer period of time.

When crop residues of small grain and grain sorghums are grown, it is always best to plan to leave enough residue to protect the soil until the time for planting the next crop. The method of plowing determines how rapid their residues will decay. Where the residue is light it is best to use a chisel or sweeps. If they are heavier, then they can be plowed in such a manner that part of them will be incorporated in the topsoil.

Crop residues in the Gray County Soil Conservation District are one of the main problems of conservation. The personnel of the Soil Conservation Service at Pampa assisting the Gray County Soil Conservation District are always ready to assist you in the planning and proper utilization of your crop residues.

New stationery for the association will be printed in the near future by the Donley County Leader and furnished through the courtesy of the Farmers State Bank of Clarendon. The board of directors will meet again in August to start all publicity and start on assignment of bulls for the sale.

Teen Town

Teen Town will be held Friday night, beginning at 8:30, at the Legion Hall.

Well over one million dollars in construction work in McLean will be carried out during the first nine months of 1960. Constituting the main projects under construction, or to begin soon, are Warren Petroleum Company, First Baptist Church auditorium, McLean post office, and the federal low rent housing project.

The most massive money-wise of projects in the McLean area is Warren Petroleum, with an approximated $900,000 going into the expansion. The work calls for the installation of major items of equipment that will increase the capacity of the plant by 15,000 gallons of light hydrocarbons daily.

Scheduled to begin soon will be the new and modern post office building, which will be built on the northwest corner of the block where the present post office is located. Designed to include nearly 4,000 square feet of floor space, the new structure will be built at a cost of $117,000. The post office will be on the lease system to the government, and will be owned by the low bidder, William C. Nill of Fort Worth.

A new auditorium for the First Baptist Church is presently going up, at a cost of nearly $100,000. The new structure will be erected on the lots west of the present building. The old auditorium will be remodeled and used for other facilities by the church. Contractor for the auditorium is Barker Construction Co. of Quanah.

Final on the list of major building projects is the 12-unit low rent housing development. Cost of the units is near $130,000. Also being built by Barker Construction Co. of Quanah, the units should be completed within 60 days, well within the period called for in the contract.

In addition to the above major construction, an estimated $100,000 has been spent on individual home building and remodeling. Including all expenditures construction, an estimated $1,800,000 will be spent in McLean during 1960.

PAVING TO START HERE SOON

Paving in McLean for the year should begin about July 10 to 12, according to City Manager B. J. McCartney.

Approximately 5,000 feet of paving, curb and gutter has been signed for to date, and will be done during the summer.

McCartney stated, however, that persons still desiring to have paving done may sign up at the City Hall during the next few days. Information on any future paving is needed immediately, however, so arrangements may be made.

Prices this year will be $2.75 per running foot for the property owner's 1/3 of the street and the curb and gutter.

CROCKETT TO PLAY FOR WEST IN ANNUAL GREENBELT BOWL

Vernon Eubanks, chairman of the selection committee for the Greenbelt Bowl football classic and veteran Greenbelt Bowl worker, has announced the committee's selection of the East and West teams to meet in the 11th annual classic on Saturday, August 13.

David Crockett, McLean's entry to the game, will play on the West squad.

More than a hundred towns submitted players for consideration, and the task of matching and cross matching the players became a very difficult task. The committee has to select the same number of boys to play on each team from each classification of school boy football played in the two states.

The limited time that the two teams have to practice makes it imperative that they be as evenly matched as possible before they report for practice. Selected players will be expected to report on Monday morning and they will draw their uniforms and equipment and report to the coaches to have their pictures made for the souvenir program and will start two-day workouts on Tuesday morning.

The boys have been divided into the West and East teams. The committee still has one selection to make, but expects to make it before the week is out.

The two teams will be coached by the same coaches as last year, J. V. "Siki" Sikes coaching the East team and Bennie Williams coaching the West team. Last year's game ended in a 14-14 tie. These two coaches will have an opportunity this year of again trying to defeat each other.

Ticket sales for the classic will go on sale early next week and members of the Greenbelt committee are expecting a complete sell out this year.

Each of the schools that has a player has been requested to send a senior cheerleader to the Greenbelt Bowl this year, which will give the classic the spirit of a college game. Each player selected to play in the Greenbelt classic is a high school graduate and is expected to enter some college or university in the fall. Several will go from Childress to play in the Oil Bowl in Wichita Falls.

Request for additional information or purchase of tickets should be sent to the Childress Chamber of Commerce.

Teams for the game are as follows:

BURIED IN BAPTISM

"Know ye not, that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death? Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death: that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life. For if we have been planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall be also in the likeness of his resurrection." (Rom. 6:3-5)

The greatest argument for a thing in religion is the teaching of the scripture itself. In the above scripture we have clearly set before us the fact that baptism is a burial. All the endeavors by man to get around the plain teaching of this scripture do not change at all its meaning or significance. To disagree with God will get man nowhere.

That water is essential in baptism is clearly set forth in the scripture, John 3:23; Acts 8:36; Acts 10:47. Everyone who baptizes at all uses water in that baptism, and for a justifiable reason, it was so taught and practiced by our Lord. See also Matt. 3:13-16.

Now the apostle Paul tells us there is one baptism in force today. "There is one body, and one Spirit, even as ye are called in one hope of your calling; one Lord, one faith, ONE BAPTISM, one God and Father of all, who is above all, and through all, and in you all." Eph. 4:4-6

Scholars almost universally agree that in New Testament times baptism was a burial, and tell us that the meaning of the Greek word from which baptism comes means to immerse. If God intended anything else why did He not so designate in His word?

Hence if baptism is to be done in water as we have shown the scriptures to teach, and it is a burial as the scriptures also teach, from whence comes the authority to sprinkle or pour water upon anyone and call it baptism? Is it from heaven or from men?

GETTING THE STORY ACROSS

One of the principal problems faced by many an enterprise is the difficulty of getting its story—its plain, factual story—across to the public.

Meat packing is in much that position—as the top officer of the American Meat Institute has pointed out.

To begin with, the packer has no direct contact with the housewife. The sole source of meat, so far as she is concerned, is the retailer. If she thinks of the packers at all, as the AMI spokesman puts it, "She has a mental image of a large, gigantic industry that operates at a high profit and contributes little or nothing to the finished product she gets at the meat counter."

Now, the true picture is very different. There are large packing companies, of course, just as there are small and middle-sized ones. But packers, on the average, earn a profit that works out to only a fraction of a cent a pound of the retail price of meat. In sum, they earned no profit at all, the housewife would never know the difference.

Moreover, the packers' services are as big as their profits are small. Most of the livestock in this country is produced west of the Mississippi, and most of the meat is consumed in the east. Meat buying habits and preferences vary widely from section to section. It's the meat industry's job to make available to everyone the kind of meat they want at precisely the time they want it. It's also its job to offer the livestock producer a day-in-and-day-out cash market for his animals. These are huge and necessary jobs by any standard.

THE QUESTION

Each session of Congress sees the introduction of new valley authority bills, for the Columbia, the Mississippi, and so on. While they may differ widely in detail, in principle they always are based on the Tennessee Valley Authority idea. That idea holds that only a federal body is capable of administering the river basins in the public interest.

This old argument has brought an important comment in a newsletter issued by the Mississippi Valley Association. In part, it says, "... there is still another common ingredient in all such proposals: control of a basin's electric energy sources. The Tennessee Valley Authority quickly outgrew its original multi-purpose concept, which included some hydro-electric power, until today more than two-thirds of its power is created by coal—and if you live in the Tennessee Valley or its constantly expanding 'service area,' you can buy electricity only from the Authority.

Control of a river basin's energy sources means deciding where industry shall locate, deciding which cities shall prosper, deciding which raw materials shall be extracted and processed—and where; controlling agriculture—both dry land and irrigated; setting power rates—both rural and urban; controlling transportation and sewage disposal and recreation development; yes, control over nearly every facet of a river valley's economy.

The question is simply whether a monopolistic, almost all-powerful federal body shall decide what shall and shall not be done in our great river basins—or whether development and the solving of problems shall remain in the hands of local government, local taxpaying enterprise, local people.

GRASSROOTS OPINION

Franklin, Ind., Republican: "... the federal government's massive, 12.5 billion dollar deficit for the fiscal year just closed deals us all a stiff right cross.

For one thing, it's nearly three times the previous peacetime peak deficit of 4.4 billion dollars, recorded in the depression year 1936, when Franklin D. Roosevelt was laying out what was then considered vast sums to shore up the business structure and ease the burdens of distress.

Humbolt, Iowa, Independent: "A man's right to work at his chosen occupation is one of the most fundamental American rights. That right is being violated constantly by compulsory union membership. Men are being forced, against their will, to become members of labor organizations and pay tribute for the right to earn a living. Many union members are against this but are powerless to stop the big labor bosses."

Norwalk, Conn., Hour: "There is inherent in a $70 to $80 billion annual spending program much duplication."

WALTER ROGERS REPORTS

Almost any youngster will vouch for the fact that "if" is a mighty big word. That one syllable can pack more meaning and importance than the most ponderous and lengthy words in our language. And this lesson has not lost its meaning on Americans, for we have saved ourselves a great deal of unnecessary difficulty by refusing—as one of our proverbs has it—to "cross that bridge until we come to it."

But in the field of foreign policy, it is becoming more and more clear that a greater willingness to consider "if" has enabled the Soviet Union to reap large dividends. Our dislike for ambiguity has found us unprepared for a number of the world crises which the USSR has exploited successfully. And the most unpleasant feature of this tendency in our diplomacy is the fact that many of these crucial international events could have been anticipated.

At this very moment, even the most unpracticed eye can find several potential trouble spots in the world, and yet we offer little or no indication that we have any sort of plan to deal with them and to counter Communist influence. Here are a few of the more obvious indications of future trouble, designed as a quiz for the Department of State:

1. Do we have any plan of diplomatic action if ties between the Soviet Union and Cuba become closer after the visit of Khrush-

Seeing a car rolling down the street without a driver, a man dashed from the sidewalk, clambered into the car, and slammed on the brakes.

A second man appeared from the back of the car, puffing and complaining. "What's the big idea? I'm outta gas, I'm pushing my car to a gas station, and you're the third quick thinker I've met in the last two blocks!"

Quick thinking on your part will mean bringing that car to us for a tankful of good Chevron gas. Let us check your oil and tires, too.

their opportunities for the bluff and bluster technique. A firm, tough-minded policy would, in my opinion, be much more effective than the policy of midness which has been pursued in an apparent effort to try to please all men in all things.

TELEPHONE TALK

by Joe McDonald, Manager

Well, we've done it. After many years of telephones looking alike, we have decided to change up the style and offer you the most modern telephone instrument we know how to design. It even has a new name... the Princess telephone! To me, this set has all the advantages you could ask for. It's so compact that the entire set can easily be held in your outstretched hand. The base is low and streamlined with exact contour for the receiver to rest upon. The dial is in the middle of the set and it's even illuminated for night time calling convenience. It sure is a real eye catcher and it blends into the decor of any room in your house. Oh yes, Ladies... we even have that new color which you have all been asking for... turquoise.

Why don't you call the Business Office at MO 4-7491 in Pampa and we will see to it that you are one of the first to have the Princess of telephones in your home.

ONE MINUTE OF COURTESY

It's been my experience that most folks in McLean try to answer their phones promptly. But in the summertime so many are busy outside—with gardening, yard work, or just relaxing in the sun or under the stars—that it takes a little longer to get to the phone.

If you've ever just missed a call after running in from outside to answer the phone, you know how disappointing it is. Most folks can get to their telephones within a minute, even when they aren't in the house. One minute is about the time it takes for the phone to ring 10 times.

By waiting at least 10 rings before you hang up, you have a much better chance of getting your call through, especially when the person you're calling is not near the phone. In the long run, you'll save yourself the time and trouble of calling again, and your friends will certainly appreciate your courtesy and patience. So please remember to wait 10 rings—it takes just a minute.

VACATION TRAVEL TIPS

If you plan to go out of town on vacation, there are a couple of things you can do to make your trip more enjoyable and carefree.

First, call ahead for reservations. Second, make arrangements with a relative or neighbor to keep an eye on your house while you're away. Give them your vacation address and phone number so they can reach you in an emergency.

Remember, too, Long Distance rates are lower on Sundays and weekdays after 6 p. m. And you save more than one-third when you call station-to-station.

Call by number. It's twice as fast.

IT ONLY FEELS LIKE POWER STEERING

(Corvair doesn't need it)

Corvair's ingenious design simply places the engine in the rear. That means less weight on the front wheels and a lighter, happier feel in the curve of your hands. No power assist is needed in a car that's naturally nimble. See what a fresh engineering approach can do? From handling and parking ease right on, there just isn't anything ordinary or conventional about Corvair. Look at its practically flat floor, four-wheel independent suspension, fold-down rear seat. Its air-cooled rear engine that never needs water or anti-freeze or radiator repairs... and leaves engine heat and noise back where you've been. All these special advantages are standard in every Corvair. Just wait till you see how much they add to your driving pleasure. But why wait!

Area Observations

Cecil O. Waggoner in Claude News:

An Old Book
In our complicated, electronic, atomized, sophisticated society of today we have those who consider the Bible outmoded and slightly archaic. Their ignorance stems from "hearsay" information, rather than knowledge from actual study of the Book.

If they could forego their subliminal fear of studying the Book they would be surprised to find it a Taj Mahal of scientific information, some of which has not yet been discovered, i. e., the flying "wheel within a wheel."

We must first learn between "science in the state of hypothesis and science in the state of fact" before we apply science to the Bible.

In Genesis 2:7 we find "The Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground." Chemists now tell us the human body contains exactly the same elements as the ground, a fact discovered only in the last few centuries.

Copernicus was the first scientist to teach that the earth is round and hangs in space. Old Columbus had trouble convincing people of his enlightened age that he could circumnavigate the globe. During these ages of history the Bible always said: "It is he (God) that sitteth upon the circle of the earth." Isa. 40:22.

"He stretcheth out the north over the empty place, and hangeth the earth upon nothing." Job 26:7. Lord Rosse invented a powerful telescope, then discovered a great part of the northern sky is void of stars. How did the Bible know of this over 3,500 years before man discovered it?

Until Galileo's time man did not know that air had weight, that winds had regular circuits, and that rain clouds were evaporated water. Job says: "To make the weight for the winds; and he weighed the waters by measure." Job, 28:25.

"The wind goeth toward the south, and hurneth about unto the north; it whirleth about continually; and the wind returneth again according to his circuits. All the rivers run into the sea; yet the sea is not full; unto the place from whence the rivers come, thither they return again" (by evaporation). Ecc. 1:6-7.

Before Galileo, man thought the stars could be counted and Hipparchus said there were 1,022; Ptolemy 1,026. Yet we read: "... multiplying I will multiply thy seed as the stars of the heaven, and as the sand which is upon the sea shore." Gen. 22:17.

Odd, too, when we recently learned "When the morning stars sang together" (Job 38:7) was a scientific fact rather than poetic license. Dr. Lee DeForest discovered light produces musical sound and starlight is now being subject to intensive study of its "radio waves."

How about the radio and TV? In Job 38:35 we read "Canst thou send lightnings (electricity), that they may go, and say unto thee, Here we are?"

Matthew Fontaine Maury, the father of oceanography, first discovered the great sea currents mentioned in the Bible. One day his son was reading to him from the 8th Psalm and came across the verse, "The fowls of the air, and the fish of the sea, and whatsoever passeth through the paths of the sea." The scientist said, "If the word of God says there are paths in the sea, they must be there and I'm going to find them!" Find them he did and only within the past 30 years have we been tracing the "paths followed by the fowls of the air."

The Apostle Paul tells us: "... The spirit of a town is determined by many things—all individuals. The chronic griper is a part of that spirit. He earmarks the community as definitely as does the town booster.

Let's not fool ourselves. As Tullians, it is impossible to sit on the sidelines and watch what "they" are doing. All of us are members of the cast, none is a part of the audience. All of us are on the stage. When we criticize "Tulia" and what we call "they" we are criticizing ourselves.

Need we say more?

From Thoughts for Thursday in Tullia Herald:

A Plainview organization once used the slogan, "If a town is good enough to live in, it is good enough to trade in." There is much food for thought in this slogan.

About the most useless thing around a town is the self-appointed critic who seldom misses an opportunity to point out what is wrong with a town. Sometimes the town is accused of being "unfriendly," "not progressive," "small townish," "lacking in culture," or being guilty of these and many other civic crimes.

It must be admitted that every community has its deficiencies. Every town has its unfriendly people. Every town is lacking in progress, to a certain extent. Every town has its share of merchants who are heels.

We might as well admit these municipal faults—then adjust ourselves to the situation. If we can't adjust, then we owe it to ourselves and to the town to move before sundown to a place more to our liking.

We believe that anyone who accepts the conveniences and comforts of a town, who wears out its streets, who calls its fire department and police when they are needed, is honor bound to support that town or move to a town which can conscientiously support.

What determines the soul of a community? We can't put our

Comment from the Capital

CRACKER BARREL COMMENTS ON THE CURRENT COMMUNIST CRISIS

by Vant Neff

Nikita Khrushchev says that he has known all along about many flights by U-2 or similar planes which photographed the USSR from high altitudes. If that's so, why the big beef about this one? Could it be internal pressure back in Moscow or a calculated change of policy?

A great army of second guessers maintain that the U-2 incident was "inappropriately" timed before the summit meeting. Lest we forget, we were "meeting" and negotiating with the Japanese envoys when they leveled military installations and much of our Navy at Pearl Harbor.

If the other fellow is out to "bury you", the time to relax is never.

It is a pretty sorry turn of events when the world wonders whether Mr. Khrushchev feels buoyant or blue. . . . Can you imagine thinking that history depends on Mr. K's degree of well being!

Has anybody thought about making a proposal to Khrushchev? We'll call off all our reconnaissance planes and he'll call off his army of spies. And perhaps have the "workers" in the embassies behave as honorably as the representatives from free nations.

From where I sit, it appears that marchers in free countries who demonstrate at the drop of a suggestion would do well to try to march in Moscow.

Funny that in the "people's paradise" there are no labor demonstrations. The "conditioned" folks just work and do without the things, including the rights and freedoms that demonstrators take for granted.

If Mr. K. feels mad about our taking pictures from the air, how should we feel about his stealing atomic bomb secrets from us and the British? . . . and the Russian Colonel who was captured posing as a photographer? . . . to mention only two examples.

If a neighboring country looks cross-eyed at Mr. K's politics, he has threatened them with the atomic bomb. Wonder what the world would say if Mr. Eisenhower threatened some of our blustering neighbors with our missiles.

Have you noticed how "pink" people would have us sever our relations with dictators like Franco who grant us military air base rights, and yet the same "liberals" are constantly working towards the seating of Red China at the UN?

According to Russian codes, it is perfectly all right to spy from embassies and consular offices throughout the world, but flying way up over a country must be different. . . . Guess ground rules are different from air space.

Look who is squawking. An atheist who has lied habitually, and has been caught at it, blatantly says, at the Summit Meeting, "Before God I swear my heart is pure and my hands are clean. . . ."

Russia has trained trouble makers, rabble rousers and spies snooping throughout the world. On top of that, it is bad enough to have the Russians trying to bluff us, but it is far worse to have them treat our President with contempt and abuse.

The surprise about Berlin is not that Khrushchev wants to break this signed agreement, but rather that he kept it this long. Consider how few agreements the Russians keep and not one day beyond the day they are expedient, to Russia.

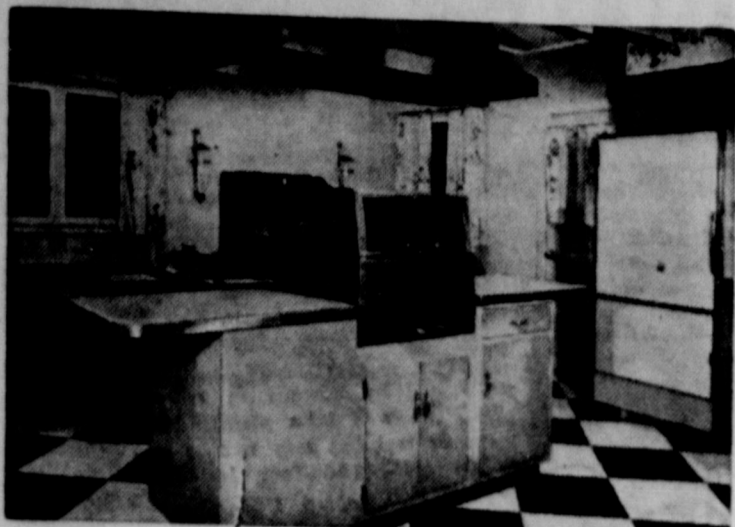

One thought has emerged from the Summit Meeting which failed to meet. You can only negotiate with Mr. Khrushchev one way. . . . on what you give up — never on any concessions from him.

Sometimes it seems that summit conferences make two kinds of people — the hopeful innocents who expect something, and the initiates, who know better. From Yalta to Paris — when you get right down to results — nothing much good has come from any of them.

THE BAPTIST YOUTH SPEAK

By Teena McMurry

Traveling the roads many years ago appeared a man who called himself a doctor. He mixed sugar and vinegar together, poured it into a bottle and slapped a label across it, which read, "To Cure All Ills." People bought the mixture and after taking it, they actually felt better.

With the knowledge of medicine that man has today, we know such a cure has not been found. But there is a prescription that can help us, which has marvelous properties. If taken every day: "A sure guarantee to bring relief in case of self-consciousness and to make a person happier, more popular with his friends, and even more Christian." The medicine is simply "thinking of something and someone outside oneself."

Jesus gave a wonderful prescription a long time ago:

"For whoever would save his life will lose it; and whoever loses his life for my sake and the gospel's will save it." (Mark 9:35)

Down Memory and IT HAPPENED HERE

40 Years Ago—

Taken from the Files of The McLean News, 1930
Mrs. O. K. Murphree Dies
Mrs. Chloe S. Murphree, 59, wife of O. K. Murphree of this city, died Sunday morning at 7 o'clock, after having suffered for several years with cancer.

Rev. B. J. Osborn, pastor of the Methodist church, of which she was a consecrated member, says of Mrs. Murphree: "Every person who visited her during her sickness felt most keenly a pity for her, yet each was conscious in a peculiar way that the visit was a benediction to his own life. One's faith in God and confidence in the Christian religion was strengthened."

The funeral service was held in the Methodist church, as she had requested, Sunday afternoon, and was conducted by the pastor.

Mrs. Murphree is survived by her husband, three sons, five daughters and one brother, Rev. C. B. Ingram of Clarendon.

Put Your Office on the Table

A NEW IDEA for busy modern families: a "home office" by Underwood that sets up in seconds right on a table top or desk. Here's a new way, using a decorator-styled portable typewriter and a compact electric adding-subtracting machine no larger than a telephone, to get the efficiency and accuracy of big business at home for bank statements, household accounts, and other figure work. Here, a young homemaker, "retired" from regular business, uses her office technique to dash off a few end-of-the-month letters on her new portable typewriter. And when she's finished, the kids will be next, using the typewriter for neater homework and better marks.

Our congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Mrs. Kenneth Hambright on completion of their new home, and we are happy for our part in furnishing lumber and supplies.

says Mrs. Harlan F. Gibbs, OF ROSWELL, NEW MEXICO

"Cheaper by the dozen," says Mrs. Gibbs. To explain her statement, she continues, "By buying in large quantities, I am able to save considerably on our food budget. In addition to dollar savings, I practically have a super market in my freezer, open 24 hours a day. And that means wholesome and delicious food because we have garden-fresh fruits and vegetables all year 'round."
