Recently I was asked if I knew any accurate ways to calibrate a grain drill. We had to do some research on this one, but we did come up with some information that might prove helpful to you in setting your small grain drill.

Follow these steps: 1. Remove four spouts from the boots of your grain drill. 2. Place a plastic bag over each of these spouts. Rubber bands will help in this matter. 3. Set your drill at the approximate setting as given by your chart. 4. Add enough grain to cover the outlets real well. 5. Using the chart below, pull the drill (engaged) the distance indicated for different row spacing. 7 in. width, 187 feet; 8 in. width, 164 feet; 10 in. width, 131 feet; 12 in. width, 109 feet; 14 in. width, 94 feet; 6. Weigh the grain caught from the four spouts. 7. Multiply this times 100 and this will give you the pounds per acre your drill will put out.

You could use the same principle to determine the amount of fertilizer to put out per acre.

CATTLE PRICE
Don't tell anyone I let you in on a secret, but watch out for a drastic price rise in cattle within the near future. All the statistics that come across my desk point to one thing—higher prices. Usually higher stocker prices follow a sharp rise in slaughter cattle prices. This one will be in reverse. The stocker market will jump first and it will be substantial. I'm talking of 28-30 cent calves and maybe higher. Why? The drought has been broken over a large area of the U. S. The future market on finished cattle now has a tremendous influence on feeder buyers and stocker buyers. The future market has climbed steadily in trading for early 1967. We can temporarily depress the slaughter market by placing too many on feed. But the big plus in the next 2-5 year outlook in cattle market is the fact we are actually eating up our cattle population. Cattle numbers were down drastically last Jan. 1. Some market analysts say we will deplete our cow and heifer herd an additional 2 million head by Jan. 1, 1967. There are too many plus factors for the cattle market to go any way but up.

T. B. Still Health Problem in U. S.

Tuberculosis still is a serious health problem in the United States.

One hundred thousand Americans are walking the streets today with active infectious tuberculosis who don't know they have it, says Today's Health, the magazine of the American Medical Association.

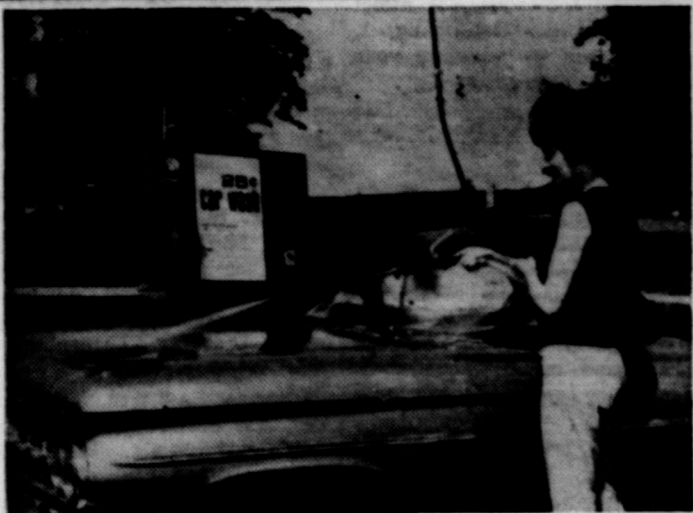

By the time symptoms appear—fever, weight loss, coughing, and perhaps blood spitting—the disease has reached a point at which control is difficult. Some won't recover; 10,000 victims died from tuberculosis in a recent year.

Everyone is susceptible. TB is contracted from someone who has it, mainly by breathing air contaminated with TB germs. These are spread by coughing, sneezing, and spitting. Sometimes a person becomes infected when germs enter his mouth from contaminated fingers, food or eating utensils, or from kissing an infected person.

If active tuberculosis is diagnosed, your physician has a choice of a variety of drugs, such as streptomycin and isoniazid, which effectively suppress the germs while the body builds up its own immunity.

Children under five are a "high risk" group because of the frequent and close associations with their parents, relatives, household help and baby sitters, any of whom may be carriers.

Everyone should have an annual check-up in the form of a skin test or chest X-ray. These tests are available free in most areas any time of the year. Local public health officers and the local chapters of the National Tuberculosis Association will direct you to TB detection centers in your area. The skin tests are simple and painless. If one of these indicates TB germs are present, it doesn't necessarily mean the germs are doing damage. It takes an X-ray and sputum test, along with blood and urine studies, to determine accurately whether the bacilli are active.

Proposed CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT NUMBER FIFTEEN ON THE BALLOT

PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT TO BE VOTED ON AT AN ELECTION TO BE HELD ON NOVEMBER 8, 1966.

YOUR NEED FOR CALCIUM

Among the needs of the human body for mineral elements, one of the most important is calcium. Calcium is a metallic element which occurs in nature generally in combination with other chemicals. Calcium is particularly abundant in the soil overlying limestone formations. It is utilized by plants, and these plants are eaten by animals, some of which provide man with milk. In this way milk becomes a rich source of calcium; it is, indeed, the only really good source among natural foodstuffs.

Why It's Important
It is common knowledge that calcium is important in the normal development of teeth and bones. It is not so commonly realized that calcium is important also in the blood and in the functioning of the nerves, and through them, of the muscles. Calcium utilization in the body is governed by two pairs of tiny glands situated in or near the thyroid gland, and called parathyroids.

Must Be Replaced
Calcium, like other nutrients, is used in the body, and then discarded either through the bowels or the kidney. It must be replaced with a new supply. This is true at all times of life. The need for calcium is continuous throughout life, but varies from time to time.

Before birth, when the tooth buds are being formed in the gums, the need for calcium is great, especially since bones are being formed too. The need continues heavy during childhood, when bones and teeth are developing. The pregnant woman and nursing mother also need extra calcium.

Contrary to popular belief, even the aged and aging have a continuous calcium requirement. They tend to suffer from a bone disease known as osteoporosis, in which calcium is lost and the bones are thinned and weakened. The condition may be due to a prolonged inadequate intake of calcium.

While calcium is a major factor in this problem, deficiencies in protein foods also may play a part, thus emphasizing again the importance of maintaining the basic food group structure of the healthful diet. Vitamin D, necessary for calcium metabolism, is furnished for adults by vitamin D fortified milk. Fish liver oils are also a good source.

Youth Need High
Another time when calcium demands are heavy is during the growth spurt of the adolescent, when bones, muscles and glands are undergoing active changes. In populations where calcium intake is inadequate, there may be a slowing of growth and a limitation of average stature.

Dairy Foods Excellent
In practical terms, the calcium needs of the body are best met through whole milk and non-fat milk products. Two cups of whole fresh milk supply about three fourths of the body's daily needs in adult life. Adolescents, pregnant women and nursing mothers need more. Cheddar and Swiss cheese are good sources of calcium; cottage cheese, though lower in calcium, contributes an important amount. A serving of ice cream in addition to two cups of milk will bring the calcium intake up to the average adult recommendation.

Next to milk products, vegetables are the best sources of calcium. The best of these are kale, broccoli, collards, dandelion and mustard greens.

Proposed CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT NUMBER FOURTEEN ON THE BALLOT

PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT TO BE VOTED ON AT AN ELECTION TO BE HELD ON NOVEMBER 8, 1966.
HOUSE JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 38 proposing an amendment to Section 2, Article VI, Constitution of the State of Texas, to omit the requirement that members of the armed services vote only in the county in which they resided at the time of entering the service.
BE IT RESOLVED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF TEXAS:

Section 1. That Section 2, Article VI, Constitution of the State of Texas, be amended by deleting the following language:

"Any member of the Armed Forces of the United States or component branches thereof, or in the military service of the United States, may vote only in the county in which he or she resided at the time of entering such service so long as he or she is a member of the Armed Forces."

The text of this Section is shown below, with a broken line through the sentence which is to be deleted:

"Section 2. Every person subject to none of the foregoing disqualifications who shall have attained the age of twenty-one (21) years and who shall be a citizen of the United States and who shall have resided in this State one (1) year next preceding an election and the last six (6) months within the district or county in which such person offers to vote, shall be deemed a qualified elector; and provided further, that any voter who is subject to pay a poll tax under the laws of the State of Texas shall have paid said tax before offering to vote at any election in this State and hold a receipt showing that said poll tax was paid before the first day of February next preceding such election. Or if said voter shall have lost or misplaced said tax receipt, he or she, as the case may be, shall be entitled to vote upon making affidavit before any officer authorized to administer oaths that such tax receipt has been lost. Such affidavit shall be made in writing and left with the judge of the election. The husband may pay the poll tax of his wife and receive the receipt therefor. In like manner, the wife may pay the poll tax of her husband and receive the receipt therefor. The Legislature may authorize absentee voting. And this provision of the Constitution shall be self-enacting without the necessity of further legislation. The Things

We Say

By RUBY SHANNON

The parents of one of my Navajo students came into my classroom to see their daughter one day just before Christmas. They could not speak English, so we had to converse in sign language or let the daughter act as interpreter.

Wanting to seem friendly, I motioned to the father's turquoise jewelry and said, "That's a pretty tie clasp you are wearing."

His knowing laughter could mean only one thing: "Don't flatter me, ole girl, I'm not going to give it to you!"

Some Indians have strange ideas about gifts. When one member of the tribe receives a high honor such as being chosen princess, her relatives provide her with presents and she has a "giveaway" in which the presents are handed out to various friends that have helped her in some way.

Indians made friends with the white man through the exchange of gifts. When the Indian was not pleased with the exchange, he would take his gift back. To the white man, an "Indian giver" was someone who gave you gifts and then took them back.

The Navajo parent who laughed at me so knowingly had probably been tricked into giving away presents to people who were not sincere and who did not reciprocate with a gift in return.

turned to her home at Cut Off, La., during the weekend.

Mrs. LaJune Blackshear, Debbie, Sandy and Royce visited our Sunday School last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Rippey and Mrs. Estelle Roach of Shamrock visited in the homes of K. S. Rippey and Mrs. Nida Rippey Green on Thursday of last week.

SHE HOLDS 50 YEARS OF TRANSPORTATION PROGRESS IN HER HAND. It is a model of the Golden Pacemaker tractor-trailer, which on August 23 is to depart the Space Needle in Seattle to commemorate the 1916 pioneering first round-trip transcontinental shipment of freight by truck. The re-run will seek to establish a new truck record for the trip while scrupulously complying with all safety, speed and courtesy rules of the road. Pre-Labor Day reminders on driving safety will be relayed over mobile telephone by drivers of the modern Golden Pacemaker along the route from Seattle to New York City to Los Angeles. Shown in the artist's drawing is the GMC 1 1/2 ton truck which in the original trip hauled a cargo of Carnation evaporated milk.

Sprinkler Systems Best for Irrigation

By JOHN JACKSON

Farmers in the Gray County Soil Conservation District will be using more sprinkler type irrigation systems in the future.

The Gray County Soil Conservation Service estimates that roughly 2,500 acres now are irrigated by sprinkler systems in the county compared with 1,600 acres two years ago.

There are several reasons why sprinkler systems will continue to increase and in some cases replace some of the furrow type flooding methods.

The sprinkler system is especially desirable on sandy soils, on uneven land when leveling would be too costly or the soil is too shallow, and in areas where wells produce small quantities of water.

It is much easier to apply the desired amount of water without unnecessary waste that often occurs in furrow irrigation.

A proper design is essential for proper irrigation with any method, but it is especially important with the sprinkler system. Pipe sizes, lengths, and nozzle sizes should be chosen which will give the desired results and avoid excessive friction losses and pumping costs.

Spacing of the nozzles on the laterals and the distance that laterals are moved after each setting are also very important. Due to the windy conditions in this area, nozzles should be spaced 30 feet apart and the laterals should not be moved more than 50 feet.

A properly designed sprinkler system will apply water no faster than the soil will absorb it so that there is no puddling or runoff and no erosion. Also, it will apply water evenly throughout the irrigation length, avoiding excessive loss of water on one end and a lack of water at the other end.

It must be emphasized, however, that the best designed system is of no value unless the irrigator uses it accordingly. He can, with a properly designed system, apply the exact amount of water that he wants by using one variable—"Time."

It then can be said that sprinkler system give better control over the amount of water applied.
