In a telephone conversation with Dr. Jerry Gleason on Friday morning, the Journal was informed that Jay Gleason was slowly progressing in his recovery from the February 27 auto accident in which he suffered serious injury. Dr. Gleason said that there is a possibility of additional surgery to repair a nerve in the stomach. Further Changes Predicted For '84 Farm Program

Congress Candidate Speaks To A&M Club

In a recent election, members of the 1984 Muleshoe Area A&M Club elected officers for the year. Names as president was Max Crittenden, First VP, Dr. Barry Cowart, Second VP Gary Hooten and Secretary-treasurer Sheryl Kimbrough.

On Thursday, March 15, the Club held its regular third Thursday of the month meeting at the Muleshoe State Bank room at 7:30 p.m. with a special guest Condra, speaker, Gary Democratic candidate for the 19th District Congressional seat being vacated by Kent Hance.

Condra, who was present with his wife and children for the event, told the group that one of the major problems that West Texans face is the 1985 Farm Bill, and said that this bill will have strong indications of the survival or non-survival of rural communities. "In any case, it must be different than it is now," Condra stated. The former Extension Specialist also stated that hatever the structure of throws for 58 percent, hitt- Tgriculture is, so will the ing 29 out of 50 and was construction be of the nation. If current trends continue Condra soon farms will face a reduction of 2.5 million now to 1.8 million, which indicates also indicated his concern for other issues including education and business, relating all of the issues back to agriculture. "If things do not change, if we do not get a farm bill with some mandatory regulations, stability and profitablity, only the big commercial farmers will be able to stay in, - the little ones will be forced out," Condra said. As with all other candidates for the Congressional seat, Condra addressed particularly the farming and agriculture top-

In business items, the A&M Club heard a report Scholarshihp from 1983 winner, Bret Yeary of Morton. Yeary said that he had enjoyed A&M and was grateful for the opportunity to go there.

Final County Signup Near 80 Percent

Just prior to the original farm signup deadline date of February 24, Secretary of Agriculture, John Block announced an extension of that date for three weeks, leaving the sign up to extend through March 16.

At that time, Bailey County had only about 50 percent sign-up of the farms for the program. Since the extension, which ended Friday, March 16 at 5 p.m. an additional 30 percent of Bailey County Farms have been signed into the 1984 Farm Program. The dates for the return of the contracts for all producers who share in the crop to return them to the ASCS office is March 30, which was extended along with the signup date.

On Thursday afternoon, March 15, ASCS Executive Director, Danny Noble told the Journal that he had just received word from the Washington USDA office via the State USDA office that the final sign-up date was still "on" for March 16. However, with this word also came the information that Congress is currently considering a bill to change the 1984 Wheat Program. The changes, if approved, will mean a new sign-up time for wheat producers only, Noble said. If the measure proposed is not approved, the March 16 date deadline will be used. According to sources, the changes now being proposed could include some kind of paid land diversion on wheat, however, nothing is definite at this point and the details are not clear on all the implications.

Another change that has been made and will be applied is this: All advance deficiency payments which were originally due back to the ASCS on cotton and grain sorghum. 1983 crops on October 1, 1984, will not have to be paid back at that time if the producer is enrolled in the current 1984 farm program. That producer will not be required to make repayment until October of 1985 and that year will be interest free, Noble said. If the producer who has advance deficiency pay-ments due to the ASCS office is not enrolled in the 1984 farm program, instructions regarding repayment of these will be issued in the near future. Other changes been made in the 84 farm bill include changes Acreage Conservation Reserve (ACR). ACR land will not be required to have a cover crop if it is being used in a skiprow pattern of at Local celebrations are held there in the township of Hinckley on the following Sunday; and, this vear the Chamber of Commerce there expects about 4,000 people to be attracted to the event. According to local Hinckley folklore, the carrion-eating birds first appeared at Hinckley in 1808 at the hanging of an Indian woman accused of witchcraft.

He also served as National President of Future Farmers of America. He has been described as a very funny and inspirational speaker. Everyone interested in attending is urged to buy tickets early.

Farmers should remember that April 1, 1984 is the final day to return 1983 cotton production cards to the ASCS. If these are not returned, Noble said that a permanent zero will be applied for that year on production records. Noble told the Journal that Bailey County is now 100 percent complete on diversion payments for corn and deficiency payments on wheat. However there is no percentage on cotton, as those final payments are scheduled to start next week in the ASCS.

exhibits, farm - city luncheons or breakfasts, special radio and television programs, special promotions by major agricultural manufacturers and businesses, and demonstrations of grain grinding, cow milking, sheep shearing and similiar events. This year Pioneer Hi-Bred International has also prepared public service announcements for major metropolitan audiences to increase awareness of agriculture's contributions to the economy. Agriculture Day is set aside as a special time to focus on the achievements of the 23 million men and women in U.S. agriculture, notes Tanksley. This is one-fifth of the work force, from suppliers of goods and services on through the food and fiber chain to retail food, clothing and horticultural workers. Altogether, they are responsible for more than 20 percent of the gross national product. In Texas, one out of every 35 persons is a farmer or rancher, yet about 25 percent of the state's retail trade business is directly associated with agricultural production and selling of food and fiber products, Tanksley points out.

Almost anyone can tell you excellent reasons why he, or she, cannot make a contribution.

campaigning for the honor; and some even voted for themselves.

Radio Station KMUL personnel told the Journal that just one minute prior to the 5 p.m. deadline, the local newspaper had their personnel on the line placing votes, hoping to have their candidate elected. This rumor however, was completely unsubstantiated. Some said that there could have been some sort of bribery going on by some of the candidates and their campaign managers.

The important thing is that the one citizen most deserving of the award, did in fact, win, knowing full well that he possessed some of the necessary qualifications for being named as The Old Buzzard of The Year.

That grand prize winner, was Mr. Fred Mardis, principal of the Elizabeth Watson Junior High School, who won by a landslide victory with 172 votes.

Mardis in an interview later attributed his success to his campaign staff, and the fact that he was really

"An Old Buzzard." In second place, with a close race, was Roy Simpson, who in the event Mardis cannot serve, will take his place as the honoree. Third place was Harold Cowan, plant superintendent of Bailey County Electric. Winning fourth place was Five Area Telephone Cooperative, Inc. Manager Hubert Kidd. Fifth place went to Tom Jinks, assistant school superintendent. Sixth place went to local bank auditor, Jay Messanger, who it is said, has a wide spread reputation for having buzzard-like qualities. Holding down seventh place in the official count down, was the illustrious owner of the local newspaper L.B. Hall. Eighth place was captured by Steve Neptune (who has always heretofore been called a turkey.) Ninth in the standings was Brother Darrell Martin, pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church and holding down tenth was Robert Harrelson, administrator of the local hospital.

While the poll was conducted "all in good fun", it actually turned out about as many voters as non-presidential election year.

The winner of the award, was not available for an acceptance of his award, but it will be presented the first of next week. It was said that Mardis left town shortly after the race to rest up for further campaigning.

Several awards from local merchants made the day complete and a talk with the Official Buzzard Spotter in Hinckley, Ohio, who intimated to the Journal that his position was about as illustrious as that of Mr. Mardis.

Congratulations are in order and a lot of fun was had by all who participated. Mardis' Buzzard oath read something like this: pledge loyalty, etc. because not all in a buzzard is bad, it just smells that way."

So, those of you who did not win, don't be disheartened - there just might be a contest again next year and you could be the winner. One can always hope.
