Freedom of Choice

One of the chief reasons that many Americans in all parts of the country voted November is that they want- New York City (where "all ed the nation's schools to black" schools are demanded proceed with education and at the neighborhood level), no longer be plagued with political demands. In other words, many citizens wanted for not integrating according the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to stop threatening massive retaliation against schools, to abandon unreasonable "guidelines," and to let local schools work out their problems in a common sense way.

For great numbers of citizens who supported Mr. Nixon the common sense way in public education is embodied in "freedom of choice" school plans under which parents decide which school their children will attend. Under such plans, no one is the victim of discrimination, but school systems are not put in the absurd position of setting quotas, each year adding a fixed number of students of a minority group. The law does not require "racial balance" in the schools, as HEW erroneously insisted in the last administration. It simply requires an absence of discrimfairness.

During the election campaign, Mr. Nixon espoused 'freedom of choice." He gave an interview on station WB-TV in Charlotte last September in the course of which he favore dthis plan. "I wouldn't want to see a federal agency punish a local community." he said.
