FACTS

The basis of all successful business is facts. The head of one of the world's greatest corporations has a sign over the door of his private office reading: "What are the facts?"

The difference between leaders and followers in this world is that leaders know how to use facts. The way to begin to prepare for leadership is to study facts.

The greatest collection of facts about the United States, our government, industries, business, people and conditions, is in a book published annually by the United States government. It is called "The Statistical Abstract of the United States." Anyone wanting to be able to answer any question of fact about our nation can get them all in this book for one dollar sent to the Public Printer at Washington.

WILLIAMS

The most widely known newspaperman in the world is probably Walter Williams. Williams started life as a printer on a country paper in Missouri. His education, except for a few years in the common schools, came from his newspaper work, travel and reading. He conceived the idea of a college of journalism and in 1908 established the first school of that kind, at the University of Missouri. There are fifty or so colleges of journalism now, in different universities, all founded on the Williams model.

The other day Walter Williams was made president of the University of Missouri. He still retains the title of Dean of the School of Journalism. He is the first newspaper man ever to head a great educational institution.

SUGAR

Straw and cottonseed may soon supply the world with sugar. Xylose, one of the most widely distributed organic compounds in nature, is found in all vegetable fibers. It is a sugar which does not produce fat when eaten. It was first discovered in 1886 and chemists have been working for 44 years to find a cheap way to extract it. Up to recently it cost about a dollar a pound to get it out of the fibers. Under a grant by Congress two years ago the Federal Bureau of Standards has been engaged in chemical research into xylose, and now announce the development of a process which extracts it from cottonseed hulls at a cost of only five cents a pound.

The salvation of the cotton farmer may come through this added by-product of the cotton seed, though it will hurt the sugar grower.

OIL

Oil is the world's most precious commodity. I am not thinking especially of petroleum, which is the first thing we think of when we say "oil." Palm oil from interior Africa, olive oil from the Mediterranean shores, whale oil from the seven seas, were articles of international traffic centuries before Columbus.

Today the animal and vegetable oils are still sought for everywhere and consumed in larger quantities than ever before. America has contributed corn oil, peanut oil and cottonseed oil to the list. We produce more linseed oil from flax grown in the Northwest, than any other nation. Florida is beginning to produce tung oil, extracted from the nut of a tree native to China. The pursuit of whales for their oil has developed in the past twenty years to such an extent that international laws for the protection of these huge

Miss Rachel Graham Becomes Bride Of Hugh Childress, Jr.

Miss Rachel Graham, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Graham, became the bride of Hugh F. Childress, Jr., at a beautiful church wedding here Wednesday evening at 7:30 at the First Methodist Church. Rev. J. H. Meredith, pastor, performed the ceremony in the presence of hundreds of friends of the young couple.

Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Graham, during which the young couple left in their car on a wedding tour to points in the eastern and southern part of the state. They will return to Ozona after the wedding tour to live in the new home erected for them here, the gift of the parents of both.

The church was beautifully decorated with smilax and pink flowers. On each side of the arch was a huge basket of gladiolas, with evergreens and candelabra flanking the outer edges of the chancel rail. The platform was decorated with palms and candelabra against a background of lattice twined with smilax and pink flowers. The choir loft was decorated with three streamer bouquets flowing from above. The young couple stood under a big white wedding bell decorated with pink maline and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. John W. Henderson, Jr., dressed in an egg-shell lace gown, with scarlet slippers, sang, "O, Promise Me," with Mrs. Lee Childress, in a fuchsia gown, with green slippers, playing the piano accompaniment. Mrs. Childress also played the wedding march.

W. T. Childress, Jack Hagelstein, Lowell Littleton and Jim Todd, Jr., the latter of Fort Worth, served as ushers. Marshall Montgomery acted as best man.

Miss Eleanor Ingham, in green chiffon, Miss Beulah Baggett, in blue chiffon, were the bridesmaids. Miss Mary Childress, sister of the groom, maid of honor. She wore a lavender chiffon dress with slippers to match. Mrs. Evert White, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a gown of yellow chiffon with slippers to match. All the bride's attendants carried arm bouquets of pink rosebuds.

Little Barbara White, dressed in pink chiffon, acted as flower girl. The bride came in on the arm of her father. She was dressed in a princess gown of pale peach chiffon, elaborately trimmed with lace, and peach slippers. Her veil was a tight fitting cap of lace and tulle, the training of which was decorated with lilies of the valley. She carried a large bouquet of white rosebuds and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Childress is a graduate of the Ozona High School and attended the University of Texas. Mr. Childress is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Childress, Sr. Mr. Childress, Sr., is a prominent Crockett County ranchman. Young Childress is employed in the Ozona National Bank. The bride's father is an attorney here.

Ralph Jones Weds Angelo Girl Monday In Villa Acuna, Mex.

Coming as a surprise to friends here was the marriage of Miss Bessie Lee Hallmark and Ralph Jones, which took place at 10:20 o'clock Monday morning in Villa Acuna, Mexico. Mr. and Mrs. Jones returned to San Angelo Monday evening and left Tuesday for the Jones ranch near Ozona, where they will make their home.

Miss Hallmark is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Hallmark. Mr. Hallmark is cashier of the First National Bank here. She was graduated from the San Angelo schools, attending S. M. U. in Dallas up to April 1 of this year. She is prominent in the young society set here.

Ozona Lions To Austin Meeting

Jordan Entertains At "Stunt Night" Program Monday

President M. M. Fulmer and Lions George Harrell and Jack Sharp and "Arkansas" Jordan, barber-entertainer de luxe, left Sunday for Austin to attend the State Lions Club convention in session in that city Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week.

The Ozona Lions Club had planned to put on a "model luncheon" at the state meeting Monday noon, but due to a last minute change by the entertainment committee at Austin changing the local club's time from Monday to Wednesday this feature was abandoned. Several other delegates from the local club had planned to attend the meeting if the "model luncheon" had been staged, but abandoned the trip when the change was made which made it impossible for Ozona Lions to put on the luncheon.

President Fulmer, who is also deputy district governor of this district, planned to be at the convention only one day, leaving Austin Monday night for New Orleans where he will attend the Southern Baptist Convention.

The sale here Friday afternoon of 100,000 pounds of eight months' wool at 25 cents a pound by the Wool Growers Central Storage Company was one of the first for short clip this season.

Tom Ritchey bought the clip for the Central Texas Trading Company of Lampasas. The sale was made about 3 o'clock Friday afternoon and the cars were loaded out by 6 o'clock. It was one of the first indications of the price on eight months' clip this year. — S. A. Times.

Lions Secretary And Prospective Bride Receive Club Gift

Hugh Childress, Jr., secretary, and his bride-to-be, Miss Rachel Graham, were presented with silver teaspoons and soup spoons as a gift from the Ozona Lions Club at its regular meeting Monday. Miss Graham was a guest for the day and the young couple bore the brunt of considerable good-natured raillery at the hands of the club.

Miss Ada Word entertained the club with two humorous readings as the entertainment program for the day.

Mrs. Joe Pierce Heads Music Club

Other Officers Named At Meeting Thursday Afternoon

Mrs. Joe Pierce was elected president of the Ozona Music Club for the coming year at the regular meeting of the club last Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Victor Pierce. Mrs. Pierce succeeds Mrs. Bascomb Cox.

These new officers will be installed at the next meeting of the club. Every member of the club is urged to be present at the next meeting to give the new officers a "big push" on next year's work.

The meeting last Thursday afternoon was devoted to a splendid program of Indian Music, followed by an enjoyable social hour, which was featured by a surprise shower of beautiful handkerchiefs for Mrs. Cox, who was serving her last day in office as president.

The next meeting of the club will be held at the home of Mrs. Arthur Hoover on May 22, with Mrs. Hoover, and Mrs. Royce Smith as hostesses. This will be the last meeting of the club for the summer. ## Giants Defeat Del Rio 4 To 1

Locals Pound Visiting Left-Hander For Easy Win

The Ozona Giants took the Del Rio Cowboys in camp on the local diamond last Sunday afternoon and copped an easy 4 to 1 win off the border lads.

The locals started things off in the first inning with one counter when Frank Russell got a base on an error and later scored from second base on Bob Weaver's long two-base hit, after two men were out.

It happened again in the third when Hicks got a base on an error and stretched it to second. Frank Russell singled to advance Hicks to third base and he romped home on Red Greer's sacrifice fly to right field. The next three innings were nothing all, but in the seventh the Giants pushed over two more runs when Frank Russell doubled, Claude Russell singled and then Red Greer cracked one far into the outer gardens, scoring the Russell brothers.

The visitors got their lone tally in the final frame, after a three base hit which was followed by a single that brought the runner in. Pitcher Hicks ended the game, however, without further damage.

Old Timers Lose Tilt To Giants

Has-Beens Put Up Good Fight To Lose In 6 To 3 Bout

A flashy baseball nine of the days of 1912, without a recent workout, trotted out on the field here last Friday afternoon to face a team of 1930, a well seasoned aggregation, and put up a fight that would have been a credit to a team with a half season's workout.

The Old Timers baseball squad, headed by Sam Cox in his stunning crimson uniform of eighteen years ago, gave the Ozona Giants plenty of entertainment in seven innings on the Powell Field, but lost the game by a score of 6 to 3.

Joe Davidson, once a star hurler for the Ozona nine, showed that he hadn't lost all of his old time form and made a baseball do tricks of 1912 that baffled at least seven batters who took three healthy swings at his offerings without so much as tipping a hair. Wind was all that Joe lacked and he was replaced by Walter Augustine, who while still in knee pants, pitched a man's size game of baseball when Sam Cox was in his hey-day. Walter also made some 1930 baseball players grunt with wild heaves at his hot ones.

This was the first of a series of seven games to be played at Powell Field between the Old Timers and the Giants, proceeds from the series to go to a fund being raised for the purpose of building a permanent grandstand at Powell Field, for use in high school football and baseball games, town team games and other entertainments of this nature. A fair sized crowd was on hand for the opening battle last Friday and the next game, Friday afternoon of this week at 5:30 p.m., is expected to draw a capacity crowd. Stores in the city are expected to close at the hour of the game so that all employees may attend.

7 Million Pounds Wool To Be Sold

Sealed Bids To Be Received By Warehouse On May 27

The bulk of the eight months' wool in Texas, approximately 7,000,000 pounds, will be offered at a sealed bid auction sale here at 10 o'clock on the morning of May 27,—the entire accumulation to be sold or none—according to Robert Massie, president of the Wool and Mohair Warehouse Association of Texas, following a meeting here yesterday.

For the first time in the history of the industry, 75 to 80 per cent of the spring clip, which is controlled by the warehouses, will be offered at one time, all of it to be sold or none. The total eight months' wool clip, sheared almost exclusively in Texas, is estimated at 11,000,000 pounds, giving the warehouses, with their 7,000,000 pounds, the control of the market.

The only other accumulation of wool or mohair to compare in size to this eight months' clip is the pool of about 7,000,000 pounds of mohair offered by the National Wool Marketing Association.

The bid opening here May 27 will be at the Central Wool Grow-

ASK BIDS ON COUNTY ROAD BONDS JUNE 30

Sale Date To Be Advertised In New York & Texas Papers

BEING SIGNED UP

Signatures Of Judge, Clerk, Treasurer Being Affixed

Bids will be received by the Commissioners Court of Crockett County up to and including June 30 for sale of the $375,000 issue of road bonds voted by the people of this county on April 12 by a majority of 23 to 1.

Sale date for the issue was set at the regular meeting of the court this week. The bonds were received from the printer Saturday and are being signed up by the county judge, clerk and treasurer, preparatory to sending them to Austin for official signatures there. The attorney general's department has indicated that the issue is in perfect legal form and will be approved. The bonds will be left on deposit in Austin until the sale is completed.

The bonds are backed by an assessed valuation of $5,618,854. The total bonded indebtedness of the county, including this issue, is $460,000, according to the financial statement included with the court's advertisement for bids on the issue. The total of the sinking fund now held for redemption of debts is $49,000. The population of the county, according to the recent census count, is 2,500, and the estimated total wealth of the county is 30 millions of dollars.

A certified check for 2 per cent of the amount must accompany all bids, the commissioners ordered. The court reserves the right to reject any and all bids. The notice of sale will be advertised in the Daily Bond Buyer of New York, the Dallas News, San Antonio Light, San Angelo Times and the Ozona Stockman.

The bonds bear interest at the rate of 5 per cent payable semi-annually, April 10 and October 10. The bonds, in $1,000 denominations, mature May 10, 1960, and the county retains the option to retire any or all bonds after five years from their date on any interest paying date.

Since it was announced that an effort would be made to have the bonds ready for sale on Monday of this week, a number of bond buyers were here Monday morning. The court was not ready to receive bids on the issue, however, and these buyers were informed of the date and conditions under which the court would receive bids.

The issue was voted for the purpose of hard-surfacing approximately 82 miles of roads in Crockett County, including the Old Spanish Trail from the Sutton County line to the Pecos River and the Ozona-Barnhart road.

ers Storage Company warehouses, and right is reserved to reject any or all bids.

"This sale is the outgrowth of the organization of the warehouses of the state at Del Rio last year and is for the protection of the wool grower," it was announced at the meeting here Saturday morning. Fifteen of the 22 members of the association were represented among the 22 men who attended the meeting held in the Central National Bank Building yesterday.

Only a few scattered sales of eight months' wool have been reported this year. The weight of the clip is calculated to demand the best price available in putting 7,000,000 pounds up for sale.

Buyers will make the circuit of warehouses in the state to inspect the various clips before coming here May 27 to the bid opening. The only wool here will be that offered for sale by local members of the association and all sampling will be done at the warehouses of the individual members.—S. A. Times.

A LAND OF OPPORTUNITY

It is the fashion to lament that there are no more opportunities left for the adventurous young men. That has always been the fashion. Every generation has its quota of youngsters who believe that in the "good old days" all a man had to do to gain fame or fortune was to fare forth into the world and take his pick of the golden opportunities which were lying around loose for the first comer to utilize. But in every generation, fortunately, there is a goodly percentage of young men who realize what has always been true, that we make our own opportunities and if we have the spirit, the intelligence and the driving power to succeed there are as many opportunities now as there ever were.

The only difference between one decade and that which preceded it is that the opportunities are of a different kind, and every man must find out for himself what the new kind is. A newspaper man once asked Russell Sage, who died in the early part of this century at the age of 90, whether there were as many opportunities then as when he was a young man. He said there were more, and when questioned as to what they were he answered that he had found there was good money to be made in buying and selling railroads! "But how is the young man of today going to get the opportunity to buy a railroad?" asked the reporter.

"If he ain't smart enough to find 'em, he ain't smart enough to make money out of 'em," said the old man with a grin.

The reporter went away convinced that he had been "kidded." Buy and sell railroads! What an old fogey Russell Sage was, not to realize that the railroads were all so tightly held that nobody but a multi-millionaire could deal in them. But less than twenty years later the Van Sweringen Brothers of Cleveland, starting without a penny, broke into the railroad business and in ten years have become the owners of a railroad system which, if the Interstate Commerce Commission approves their plan, will be the only system in America stretching from Coast to Coast. They did not bewail the lack of opportunity, but went out and found their opportunity.

The other day A. P. Giannini announced that he was retiring from business on his 60th birthday, early in May. He started work in a fruit store in San Francisco at the age of twelve. At 34 he had started the Bank of Italy in that city. At fifty he was the controlling head of the largest chain of banks in the world. Giannini found his opportunity where others, less keen, had declared there were no opportunities left.

America has always been the Land of Opportunity. It is still the Land of Opportunity and, please God, it will always be the Land of Opportunity for every man who is intelligent enough to recognize Opportunity when he sees it and industrious enough to work out his own destiny.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

By JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

DRUG-HABITS

Here is a topic that permits no "beating about the bush." I shall therefore speak plainly with no intent to wound—rather would I warn, with all the vehemence I am able to summon: shun the narcotic drug as you would a rattlesnake! I am told that these poisons are invading even the high schools of our land—chiefly morphin and cocain. I know that the world has had its narcotic problem for ages; the opium fields of Asia have been active in producing "living dead men" and women. Dope-smugglers are coursing the seas everywhere; the profits are fabulous—the demand unceasing. The League of Nations is the hope of the world at large; education in the home is the hope of our own people.

I have seen a morphin addict take enough of the drug in one day to kill sixteen men! The opium habit will invariably make a liar and a thief of an honest man or woman. I could fill a book with experiences in dealing with the devilish cunning of "dope-fiends." Morphinism towers above alcoholism as a demoralizer, as Pike's Peak towers above the low foothill. I do not believe I have ever known a confirmed opium addict to be cured of the habit—a mighty good reason for avoiding the first dose as you would shun a viper.

I have seen young men waste a comfortable fortune on the seductive narcotic, land in jail, forfeit the respect and good-will of both relatives and friends, and for themselves, reap the intolerable suffering that invariably goes with failure to secure an increasing supply of the drug.

For myself, as a physician, I have never given a dose of one of these dangerous things, without acquainting all concerned as to what I did—and warning them that repetition brings a deadly habit. The Harrison Narcotic Law is one of the finest in our Federal statute-books. I believe it is being enforced as far as brave and discerning officers can enforce; but the cunning of the silent victim is unscrupulous—uncanny. Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty!

GUNMAN'S BLUFF

By Edgar Wallace
 COPYRIGHT BY EDGAR WALLACE

She was puzzled as to the arrangements she could make that would be most convenient. She decided ultimately upon leaving the suitcase at a railway cloakroom. The ticket could be sent to Luke as soon as he was discovered. She waited for the night to come to carry this plan into effect.

The night brought its problems for Danty Morell. That afternoon, after Margaret Maddison had left him, he made a discovery which turned him sick with apprehension. He had lost his hold on Margaret; at any moment she might go to the police, and just then he was most anxious not to renew acquaintance with Scotland Yard. Things had gone badly with him; he owed a very large sum of money which had to be paid in the City on the following day; and now, with the added possibility of police intervention, his position was perilous.

Danton Morell was in some ways a careful man. However extravagant he might be, he had reserved for himself a fat nest egg in cash which, in spite of all temptations, he had never touched. He had collected the money that day from two or three accounts which he ran in an assumed name. Nothing was needed now but to follow the line of retreat he had planned. There was a small aerodrome on the outskirts of London, from which exhibition flights were given. Danty had found it expedient to finance the small company which owned the airplanes, and by telephone he arranged his flight. This was facilitated by the fact that the company had recently acquired a big rebuilt monoplane which was capable of making a long flight. Danty who had decided upon Switzerland for his first hop, gave orders for the storage of petrol and necessities for the journey. He certainly did not anticipate taking a companion with him, but he was not the only panic-stricken man in London.

Danty made a very quick search for papers which, left behind, might have awkward consequences, and his first attention was directed to the little box in which he kept the most dangerous of his correspondence. He brought this into the dining room before he discovered that the lock had been forced. With an exclamation he threw up the lid, shook out the contents—The one packet of letters that he had been mad to keep was gone! And the little telephone slip—that also had disappeared.

His hands were shaking so that he could hardly hold the papers he examined. There was no need to speculate upon the identity of the man who had forced that box. The Gunner had been seen in the neighborhood; Pi Coles had told him that, and it had been the Gunner who had made this search and found the documents. Danty Morell saw death grinning at him, hypnotized into sheer inaction. When there came a knock at the door, he leaped up from his chair a shivering wreck of a man, not daring to open to the visitor.

He calmed himself sufficiently to go to the door and demand who was there, and when he heard Connor's voice he could have cried aloud for joy.

"What's the matter with you?" asked Connor, when they were back in the room.

"I've had a bit of a shock, and I'm not particularly well. You know they're after those kites?"

Connor himself was not particularly happy looking.

"I know. They've stopped a check I sent to the bank and half the busies in London are looking for him. They know who it is, too—that's the worst of it. You're in this, Danty."

"We're both in it, aren't we?" snarled the other. "I'm getting out of London tonight."

Connor laughed raucously. "You've got a fine chance of getting out of London unless you take a rattler." And then, suddenly: "How are you going?"

It was on the tip of Danty's tongue to invent a method of escape, but just now he needed the association of Connor. Connor was not above using a gun at a pinch, and, moreover, hated Gunner Haynes.

"I'm going by airplane from Elyford," he said. "We've got the Gunner to thank for this. He squealed."

"He's never stopped squealing," said Connor without heat. "Where do you land in your flying machine?"

Danty told him his destination. "That'll do for me," said Connor. He looked at the papers on the table.

"Having a burn-up?" he asked pleasantly. And then: "How much stuff have you got?"

Here Danty lied. He could not tell the truth about money.

The conference was a brief one. They agreed to visit the aerodrome that evening and make the final preparations for their journey. The journey through the suburbs of London was a silent one; now and again Danty lifted the flap at the back of the hired car in which they were traveling, and peered along the darkening road.

"What's the matter with you?" growled Connor.

"There's a car, a two-seater, following us."

"Why shouldn't it?" demanded the other sarcastically. "Do you want the road to yourself?"

A few minutes later, when Danty looked back the little car had disappeared.

The preparations for the night's journey were not easily made. The pilot had only just been communicated with. He was on a holiday in the Midlands.

"It's a good job we came, or we might have been in Queer Street," said Connor as they were driving back. "What time did you say you'd be here?"

"About midnight."

"What are you looking for?" asked Connor ten minutes later. "The little car?"

He pushed his companion aside and peered.

"There's a motor lorry; has that got anything on us?" he demanded.

Danty said nothing. No man could know the terror that was in his heart. Behind him stalked the grim shadow of vengeance, and every second he expected to see the hawklike face of the Gunner peering into his from the darkness.

Danty did not go near his flat. He telephoned Pi Coles and they met, in the park, Pi bringing with him an overcoat and wrap which were to be Danty's sole luggage. His servant he rewarded liberally. There was nothing to do now but to pass the few hours which intervened before he left England forever.

He telephoned to the hangar and learned to his satisfaction that the pilot had arrived. He would have liked to advance the hour of his departure, but he knew that for once he must keep faith—Connor was a dangerous man, and he had no desire to let two enemies grow in the place of one.

Once or twice, as he loafed about the less frequented streets of Pimlico, he had the impression that he was being shadowed; but when once he walked back in desperate boldness to interview the man who was following him, he found it was a perfectly inoffensive stranger to the neighborhood who was trying to find a street and a number.

He had work to do—vengeful work—and he completed this in a teashop near Vauxhall Bridge. Making a wide detour, he reached the central post office and handed in the telegram addressed to Inspector Bird. It ran:

The man who was concerned in the Taffany robbery was Luke Maddison. He is attempting to leave London tonight. His wife and Gunner Haynes are aware of the double life he has been living. He signed it with his own name.

Late as was the hour, he knew that the telegram would be delivered. He went back to meet his companion in misfortune, feeling more cheerful than he had felt all day.

It was nearly eleven o'clock that night when Margaret had the car brought to the door and Luke's suitcase deposited. Her intention was to drive the car to the lower

WHAT MAKES A JOB GOOD

One morning the elevator started breaking in a new elevator-boy.

At noon the new boy was running the car alone. He had on a new uniform, and was starting and stopping with the confidence of a veteran.

From apprentice to professional in a couple of hours.

What thoughts are in that young fellow's head as he receives a picture of himself twenty years from now.

He is taking up a low-paid job—a job with no future. Twenty years from now he will be just where he is today—only older, with a grasp on the job somewhat less secure. His experience will count for nothing, because it is experience that any other man can gain in a couple of days.

He may from time to time, force an increase in his pay. But the increases will not be large. Why?

Because he learned the job in two days. And in any other two days the company can find plenty of men who will learn just as fast and take the job away from him.

Recently I met in a hotel restaurant a friend of mine who has just come back from England after taking special work in surgery under some of the greatest men in the world.

He is thirty-one years old; it is fourteen years since he entered college.

For ten of those fourteen years he has been in medical schools, in hospitals, and in foreign countries studying.

Fourteen long years of hard, uninterrupted study. Years made more difficult by the necessity for self-support; and filled sometimes with questionings, as he has seen his college class-mates moving forward to their places as well-paid physicians, and he lingering still in school.

Yet, with what result? He has acquired a specialized training such as only a few other men in New York possess.

He will begin life with an income of several thousands; he will pay back his educational debts in a couple of years; in ten years his income will be tens of thousands.

Fourteen years of his life went into the mastery of his profession. But he need have no fear of losing what he has gained. No other man can displace him, except at the cost of fourteen years of work.

And when he said it he epitomized the philosophy of Business.

The job that the gods sell for two hours' training is worth just what it costs.

Only that job is worth much which has tied to it the price tag of constant, unceasing study and work.

OZONA CHURCH OF CHRIST

W. R. Swinney, Minister

At the commencement season of the year, there are two great aspects of life which naturally suggest themselves and which are finely expressed in a verse from Lamentations: "It is good that a man should both hope and quietly wait for the salvation of the Lord."

Young people are naturally hopeful. They look forward with great eagerness and high anticipation toward filling a life work they enjoy, toward earning a comfortable income, toward having a home of their own, and toward making a real contribution to the life of the world.

But hope alone is not enough. The future to which young people look forward will not come all at once. The realization may be long deferred.

Waiting, therefore, is as necessary as hope to an abundant life. When hope's fulfillment is long deferred, patient waiting is needed if one is to hold steady.

We congratulate the class of Nineteen Hundred Thirty and invite you to hear one of the following subjects Sunday: 11 a.m., "The Secret of Co-operation," 8 p.m., "The Ideal Youth." All other services at the usual time.

What we mean by simplicity!

Here is the all-in-one icing unit of the General Electric Refrigerator—completely assembled and sealed as it comes from the factory.

Here is the strong, roomy, gleamingly white cabinet in which we neatly cover the all-in-one icing unit.

GENERAL ELECTRIC Refrigerator

Not a single piece of machinery under the cabinet of the General Electric Refrigerator. Not a single drain pipe or connection inside. Not a bit of mechanism in the basement. Not a fan or a belt or a stuffing box—anywhere. This is what we mean when we say that the General Electric Refrigerator is simplified.

All its machinery is enclosed in an air-tight casing of steel. We merely lower this into the specially built cabinet. There isn't a pipe to solder or a connection to make. It's all in tact—hermetically sealed in the factory, where it is tested and retested.

No one else ever sees the mechanism. General Electric alone is responsible for its performance.

Like all simple things, the General Electric Refrigerator is the result of infinite effort. Fifteen years of research and experiment produced this final revolutionary design.

In addition to making it simple, vast effort was directed toward making it quiet, roomy, economical to run. A minimum of current is used, a maximum of shelf area provided. Come in and study the various models yourself. Time payments can be arranged, if you wish.

Crockett Adds New Producer

Estimated At 400 Barrels Daily; Another Expected In

One producer has been definitely added and another was reported in the making Tuesday in the south end of the Powell pool in Crockett County.

California Oil Company's No. 2 Shannon, which topped the lime at 2440 feet and has an elevation of 2696 feet, flowed Monday and was scheduled to go on the beam last night. Pay was topped at 2,556 feet and oil and gas increased at 2,576 feet, where it shut down.

The oil from the well is light green in color and tested 32 gravity at 72 degrees temperature. Larger production than from any of the other wells was indicated with estimates at 400 barrels daily.

It is in the northwest corner of the northwest quarter of section 42, block BB, E.L.&R.R. Survey, and a south offset to Cushing Gasoline & Refining Company's No. 3 Powell, No. 3 Powell topped the lime at 2,425 feet and has an elevation of 2,660 feet.

Trans-Texas Oil Company's No. 2 Shannon, east offset to Dr. J. D. Young and others' No. 1 Shannon, which last September extended the Powell pool two miles to the south, topped the pay at 2,535 feet and drilled not over one foot. Salt was topped at 1,995 feet and lime at 2,425 feet. Elevation is 2,647 feet.

Oil rose 600 feet in 2 hours Monday night. Two bailers of salt water hourly from 2,438 feet was being carried when the oil was struck and 6 5/8 inch casing will be run to 2,468 feet and cemented. Eight inch was set at 2,235 feet. Running of the pipe is scheduled to begin Wednesday. Location is 600 feet west of No. 1 Shannon and 330 feet south of the north line of the southwest quarter of the southeast quarter of section 42, block BB, E.L.&R.R. Ry. Co. Survey.

Dr. Young is president of the Trans-Texas Oil Co., Inc. His No. 1 Shannon pumps over 100 barrels of oil daily. California No. 1 Shannon, offsetting it on the north pumps around 200 barrels daily, while Empire No. 1 Shannon west offset to the extensioner, pumps about 25 barrels daily.

Missionary Writes Of China As Land Of Make-Believe

Shanghai, China, Jan. 30, 1930.

Dear Editor,

Here comes a letter from this land of "make-believe." This is Chinese New Year, but the government would make believe it is abolished and forbids its celebration. But it is Chinese New Year. Fire-crackers boom as of old. People in their best "go-to-meetin'" greet their friends with "Kong-hai fah-dai"—"Congratulations and abounding wealth." Stores are closed. Nanking's order is ignored. You can't change 1000-year old customs of 450 million people in a night. But this is not the only make-believe. Nanking makes-believe China is unified. It "ain't." China is split into smithereens.

Chang Fa-wei in Kwangai is fighting Nanking. Yen Hsi-shan has Shansi and Chihli and rules well. Chang Hsueh-liang lords it over Manchuria. Tang Seng-chi keeps a hornet's nest buzzing in Honan. Vong Yoh-dziang sways Shensi. Szechuen goes its own way and other rebels keep the Capitol on "pins and needles." Yet Nanking has repeatedly reported each of these discordant ones overcome or won over. But it is only make-believe to hood-wink the world.

Chiang Kai-shek is the "conqueror of the North and the unifier of China." But what he seems to have done was done mostly with Russian brains and capital until he took Nanking. After that the rest was won by squeezing money from the people in the rear of the fighting lines and buying enemy commanders in front. There was hardly one worth-the-name battle fought. It was mostly victory by purchase and buying of victory takes the gloss off the glory. If Nanking had the money now she could purchase all her present enemies. But what's the use? Soon there would be swarms of other enemies. It's profitable to be an enemy of Nanking! China had to humble herself before Russia for Russian officers would not be bought. But in China the "itching-palm" is conspicuous. Remember this and you can understand much about the wars in this "squeeze-greaser" land. China is getting worse and worse. Property-rights are gone. Life is unsafe. Business is paralyzed. Freedom of the press and speech has vanished. Loyalty and obedience are not. Liberty is dead. Bandits abound. But Nanking makes-believe all is "as fine as pie" and issues pious reports. Among officials there are doubtless sincere ones who would put things right but make-believes pre-dominate and block every move for good. But don't judge harshly. Most officials are sons of the laboring class and of the newly-rich. They are young and inexperienced. They pay great attention to trivial things and neglect great things. In our Washington it's said, "He that is without GIN among you let him first eat a stone." Can we condemn heathen China? We hope that some day China strappings will tire of "play house" and will get down to horse sense.

But I'm getting away from the New Year. Gambling is everywhere. Superstition is rife. Money is wasted that might relieve famine suffering. Every temple is crowded with people offering incense, candles, paper-money and prayers to all the gods. They pray most for wealth. That prayer is not make-believe. They want wealth, and they worship the god-of-wealth with all their hearts. Every home has one made of wood, mud, or of paper but he is "Dzai-zen" all the same. When business gets poor in China they say the god-of-wealth has gone to America. The paper Dzai-zen is interesting. The god's throne is a big ingot of gold set with jewels. Mountains of gold are at the god's left and Silver Hill is at his right. In front of him is a great bowl of jewels. On Silver Hill is the money tree a shake of which will shower you untold wealth. Over Dzai-zen's head is "Foh"—blessedness. All around are his servants ready to carry wealth to those whom the god favors. This god is very amenable to flattery and he who flatters best gets most. But he too is make-believe.

part of Villiers Street and send the chauffeur with the suitcase to the cloakroom. She came into the south end of the Strand and the car had some difficulty in making its way through the returning theater-goers, but after a long wait it turned down the steep street toward the Embankment, and at a signal from Margaret the chauffeur stopped the machine.

It was raining heavily; there were few pedestrians in sight, and those were hurrying to reach the shelter of the Underground station. She pulled at the catch of the door to open it, that the chauffeur might more easily take the suitcase at her feet, when, out of the shadows, came a shabby-looking figure. He must have seen her difficulty, for he turned the handle and pulled open the door before the chauffeur could descend.

"Thank you," said Margaret, and handed him the piece of silver she had ready to pay the luggage-room attendant.

As she did so she switched on the light. For a second she stared into the unshaven face and the grimy figure.

"Luke!" she gasped.

He was stricken dumb with amazement, was unable to speak or move.

"Luke!" she said again.

Then, as he shrank back, her hand shot out and gripped him by the coat.

"Come in, for God's sake," she said breathlessly, and half dragged him to her side.

At that moment the chauffeur arrived.

"Drive on," she said hurriedly. "This is a—a friend of mine."

She only hoped that the man could not see the scarecrow who was seated at her side.

"Where shall I go, madam?"

"To—the house," she said.

As the chauffeur climbed back into his seat, a third figure appeared. He came running down the street like a man pursued, and gripping the handle of the door, leaped onto the running board as the car moved. She thought at first it was a policeman, but then a passing street lamp revealed the dark face of Gunner Haynes.

"Don't make a fuss," he said, as he blundered in, slamming the door behind him. "I've chased your car from the Haymarket. Who's this?"

He peered forward and she heard him whistle.

"Is that Mr. Maddison?"

"Yes, it's me," said Luke, speaking for the first time.

His voice sounded pitifully weak. He had been turned out of the police station—where he had been detained on a charge of vagrancy—in the early part of the afternoon and had not eaten since the morning. He made no attempt to explain his need, he was dulled into lethargy by the soft luxury of the padded seats; and was nodding almost before the car reached the Embankment.

"All right, don't wake him," said Gunner Haynes in a low voice.

"He was arrested this morning. I've only just found out; one of my—friends told me. The police are looking for him. Somebody sent a wire to the Sparrow—I suspect it was friend Danty. Where are you taking him?"

"Home," she said.

She was wrapping a rug about the chilled figure in the corner of the car.

"You'll have a policeman waiting on the mat. No, you'll take him to Elford. What's this?"

He kicked against the suitcase and she explained, and heard him chuckle.

"You must be a thought reader. That's the very thing he'll require—not tonight, perhaps, but in the morning. We're going to Elford. Do you know it? It's three-quarters of an hour's run, and if we're lucky we'll reach there before two of the biggest rats that ever climbed out of Thames mud."

She leaned out of the window and gave directions to the chauffeur.

"Couldn't we drive on to Dover and get aboard the boat?" she asked urgently.

"No, that won't work. The Sparrow's a good fellow, but he'd shop his own mother. And if, as I believe, Mr. Morell, or whatever his present name is, has blown—has told the story of Taffany's—every boat will be watched. Besides, there isn't one till daylight that we could possibly catch. There's only one chance, and that is for Mr. Maddison to appear in Spain, where he is supposed to be. I think that can be worked—unless Mr. Danty Morell has got too far ahead of us."

He peered forward again.

"You've got a fur coat on—that is good. You can lend it to your husband. It'll look rather silly, but nobody will see him."

"What are you going to do?" she asked.

"I'm going on an airplane ride tonight and he's going with me." He thought awhile, then: "As for you, Mrs. Maddison, your work is very simple. You'll return to London; you'll lie a little—I hope it won't hurt you very much—and leave for Spain tomorrow. If I can't get him there after I've landed him in France, I'm a Dutchman."

There was a silence, and then:

"I know a better way," she said quietly. "I can go with him."

To her surprise the Gunner did not combat the suggestion.

"Perhaps you're wise," was his comment.

They came at last to a dark and bumpy road, and here the car was stopped by the Gunner's instructions. He got down and pointed into the darkness.

"Pull your car over there and shut off all your lights," he said, and when this was done and with great trouble the car had been maneuvered over the rough ground and the engine had been shut off, he came back to the girl. "We're here first," he said. "I'm banking on Danty being cautious—look!"

Lights were coming along the road from the direction of London. It was a car, which stopped a hundred yards away, and then after awhile turned around.

They're walking the rest of the way," murmured the Gunner with grim satisfaction. "Wait here."

He walked back to the entrance of the untidy little aerodrome and slipped something from his pocket. He had not long to wait; Danty and Connor turned out of the road again.

"Is that you, Higgins," asked Danty. "Is the pilot here?"

"Everybody's here including me," said the Gunner. "Don't try any funny business, Connor; I've got you covered, and there's a silencer on my gun. You'll hear no more than a pop and you'll be in hell!"

Danty said nothing. Haynes could almost hear him shivering with fear.

"Well, what next?" asked Connor.

"The next is a long walk back to town, unless you've had the intelligence to keep your car. If you are clever, you'll run—I'm afraid you haven't a chance," he added, as he saw the red tail light of the car moving rapidly away. "The police are controlling this aerodrome and you've a snowflake's chance of getting away."

"You're being a friendly little fellow and helping us; is that what you're telling us to believe?" sneered Connor.

"Don't talk, walk," said the Gunner sternly. "I'm not in my best temper tonight. I've practically promised I wouldn't kill you, but it won't take a hell of a lot to make me change my mind."

"All right, Gunner, we'll go," Danty found his quaking voice. "Come on, Connor. The Gunner wouldn't put us in bad—"

"I found the letters, Danty," said Haynes softly. "You know just how close to eternal rest you are, don't you?"

Danty said nothing; but he grabbed the arm of his reluctant friend and almost dragged him back to the roadway. They walked rapidly back the way they had come, and must have gone a hundred yards before Connor stopped.

"I'm not going to stand for this bird—" he began, when a voice behind him said: "Walk!" and he obeyed.

When he had seen them well on their way, the Gunner sped back to the car. Luke was awake; they were talking together in a low tone and this strange bride of his, and Gunner Haynes thought it delicate to leave them and interview the pilot.

He found the machine waiting, with two weary mechanics and an impatient pilot, and to the latter he gave new instructions. The other argument he employed was a very effective one, for the airman agreed cheerfully to all conditions.

"I can carry three or ten," he said. "There'll be no difficulty about getting up. I've done this night flying hundreds of times." Satisfied on this score, Gunner Haynes went back to the car and interrupted the more than usually intimate conversation.

"I've a little scrap of paper to give you when it's light enough to read it, Mrs. Maddison. It concerns the death of your brother—I'm sorry to be so brutal, but I think you ought to know that the man who ruined him was Danty, and —"

"I guessed that," she said quietly.

It was still drizzling and the clouds were low, but neither of the three passengers evinced the slightest anxiety as, with a roar of the engines, the big monoplane swept up into the darkness, and through the thick mist of clouds, until they emerged with the moon riding in a clear sky above them and billowing white clouds beneath.

WELCH

"No human being in this country is not his debtor, though millions have never heard his name."

No greater tribute could be paid any man than that phrase which was applied to Dr. William H. Welch of Baltimore, "Dean of American Medicine," on his eightieth birthday.

Dr. Welch's great work has been in starting in this country the methods of medical research into the cause and prevention of disease and in leading in the application of the results of research to the practice of medicine. His special interest has been in preventive medicine. The public health systems of America owe their origin largely to him. It is because he established the principle that it is the physician's chief duty to aid in preventing disease that the world owes him a debt of gratitude.

Will Rogers In Talking Picture

"They Had To See Paris" Comedy Scream Here Next Week

When the best known and most loved American personality is both seen and heard on the screen, it becomes an event. Such it will be in Ozona Wednesday and Thursday when Will Rogers, the quaint philosopher and naive wit who is equally the friend of royalty and the common people comes to the Ozona Theater in his first talking picture "They Had To See Paris."

Millions of people who have expressed a wish to hear the Rogers witticisms from his own lips, but have hitherto been denied the treat, now are having the pleasure "They Had To See Paris" fits Will Rogers like a glove. It starts in his home town, Claremore, Oklahoma, where we find Will happy and contented with his wife (Irene Rich) and his son and daughter (Owen Davis, Jr., and Marguerite Churchill). Oil gushes on their land. They become rich and Will's family gets bitten by the social bug. They want to go to Paris and absorb culture and other things.

Oklahoma oil and French cognac don't mix, however, and the result is highly humorous but, in a way, pathetic. Complication follows complication and they go back to Oklahoma broke only in spirit.

Special mention should be made of Fifi Dorsay, a vivacious and piquant French actress who gives much color to the production. She appears as a cafe entertainer in Paris and sings, "I Could Do It For You," to Rogers with most ingratiating art.

Rogers has been provided by Owen Davis, Sr., the dialogist, with some corking line, and it is evident that he has added a few and interpolate many real Rogers witticisms. Frank Borzage has turned in a fine piece of direction, and some very lavish sets are in evidence.

Now, Folks, Will Rogers Talks In Your Theater

FOX MOVIE TONE CITY, Calif., Sept. 8.—Well, folks, here I am in the talkies. It had to come. If anybody on earth knows anything about talking, it's yours truly. If I wanted to start a fuss with these movie magnates, I'll bet I could claim part of the royalty from all patents that make machines talk. Just goes to show you how careful a fellow ought to be; just because I got along pretty good talking my head off about anything and everything, the films decided there must be something in it. Still I'm ahead of them in a couple of ways. I started first. And then too I ain't seen a talkie yet that knew how to chew gum. You all been pretty patient with me up to now, and laughed in right places. I hope you keep it up.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

Rice Lynn Writes Of Plane Crash

Owner Says Plane Was Licensed, Corrects Erroneous Reports

Stories which were published the first of the week telling of the fatal airplane crash at Fort Stockton in which B. H. Adamson, Mangum Johnson and Jack Thorpe were killed, were in error as to the cause of the accident, according to Rice P. Lynn, owner of the plane, who has written to The Times to correct the reports spread that the plane was not licensed, that the pilot was attempting a wing-over, that his power was on and that the machine crashed in a cemetery.

"In the first place," Lynn said, "the ship bore Department of Commerce license 64649. It was never lower than 600 feet. The plane had circled and apparently started back for the new landing field when the motor sputtered and went dead.

"B. H. Adamson, the pilot, then banked into a turn in order to get back to the old landing field. The turn was made into the wind, which was from the northeast at the time, and as the motor was dead a great deal of flying speed was lost. The ship went from the bank into a spin and made three complete turns of the spin, then came out of the spin (according to the Department of Commerce inspector) and landed in the old flying field, not in a cemetery.

"The landing gear was 'washed out' by the impact, with the resulting deaths. Had the safety belts been fastened properly, the deaths should not have resulted. Had the ship had fifty feet more of altitude the pilot would have been able to make a perfect 'dead stick' landing.

"The motor was not 'full on', as has been stated, but was dead and with the switch cut, as was proper to prevent fire. The plane also had thirty gallons of gasoline in its tanks according to measurements before the crash.

"The Associated Press papers of Monday, May 5, stated that we had been carrying passengers all morning, when as a matter of fact, we left Ozona on Sunday morning at 10:10 o'clock and arrived in Ft. Stockton at 11:50 a.m. We had lunch with my brother-in-law, Bert Kincaid, and did not return to the field until 2:30 p.m. We then took up Perry Crabb, an employe of Bert, and a Ft. Stockton Buick saleman. Then these boys wanted to take a hop and Adamson said he would take them. We were then going to Bert's ranch in his car before returning to Ozona late that afternoon. No charge whatever was made, although Crabb wanted to pay for the gasoline we had used.

"Adamson, although unlicensed, had been piloting ships for two years and I had the utmost confidence in his ability and coolness. He would not and did not lose his head nor the control of his ship.

"Could God grant me the power to take those poor boys' places I would gladly do so, but as that cannot be done, I do not think their names should be slandered with mis-statements as to recklessness."—S. A. Times.

SHIPPING And MUD

Of course, most people realize that it is a very difficult matter sometimes for an Inland Town, without paved roads to a shipping point, to receive freight. There have been instances in Ozona when rains have held up freight for days at a time, causing actual inconvenience to Ozona business men and citizens.

What most people don't realize, perhaps, is how an organization such as the Ozona Truck Company can nullify these conditions. Just as the Army is organized to handle problems collectively instead of in single units, so is the Ozona Truck Company organized to handle the Shipping of Ozona.

See Horace Rogers or call Phone 3 for a satisfactory Shipping Service.
