ACCIDENTAL SHOT FATAL TO MAN

El Paso Airman and Flying Reporter Missing With Plane

Pilot Escapes in Mid-Town Crash

Here's what happened when an air mail plane went into a spin over the city of Pittsburgh, Pa., and crashed through the roof of the old Exposition Building. But the pilot, Marvin Garlow, right, was uninjured. Thousands of downtown shoppers saw him take to his parachute and land near the wreckage pictured above. The five sacks of mail he carried were found intact.

MAY BE DOWN ON DESERT

Left in Snowstorm to Deliver Papers to Carlsbad

EL PASO, Dec. 3. (UP)—A rescue plane today sought Clarence Robey, commercial pilot, and James W. Sheppard, Herald-Post reporter, who are believed to be forced down by a snowstorm in the desert. The two left El Paso yesterday to deliver papers to Carlsbad, New Mexico, which has been isolated two days by storm.

Skies Clearing Over Three States

All Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico saw skies lose their leaden color some time during the day, and the sun came out to melt snow and warm the cold ground, the U. S. army radio and meteorological station at Sloan field reported. The mercury went down to 29 degrees a few hours before the dawn, but had climbed to 37 just before noon.

Tom Mooney Smiles at Chances

PERSEVERANCE WILL LEAD MIDLAND INTO HIGH RANKS AS OIL CENTER, STANLEY SAYS IN NEWS INTERVIEW

Christmas Cantata At Hi School Soon

The girls' choral club and boys' glee club of the Midland high school started work this week on a Christmas cantata, to be given on the high school literary society program in December. "The Wondrous Step" written by Richard Kountz for the text arranged by Raymond Bellare is a cantata for mixed voices made up of choruses.

"Midland's strategic position in the Permian basin should make it one of the outstanding oil towns of this area of West Texas," Henry W. Stanley, director of the trade extension division of the Dallas chamber of commerce, stated in an interview to the Reporter-Telegram today. The Dallas man who is here conducting a salesmanship course for the Midland chamber travels throughout the Southwest.

He said that if Midland continues to live up to its past reputation as a progressive city and does not let the depression weaken its civic efforts, so that when the "certain returning development of West Texas as oil fields again becomes intensive," this city should realize its ambitions to become one of the chief cities of all this area, because of the fine start Midland already has. Speaking of economic conditions in general, Stanley said:

"We are in the vortex of the most dynamic change that the industrial world has ever known. Not only stores and individual organizations, but in some instances whole towns, are going out of business because they are unable to stem the tide of economic pressure that is breaking about them.

"Into this more or less chaotic condition, the world was plunged by a depression of major proportions. It has affected every nation. It was in part the delayed results of a world war. Thirteen years after the close of the war we are feeling the effects of the folly of war.

"The Southwest has been and is now in better condition than many other sections of the country. "The last decade gave to Texas her greatest progress and a population of 5,284,000 people. Texas, for the last 12 years, has led the states of the union in agricultural production, with only 18.4 per cent of her land in cultivation; her tillable acreage could be doubled and then leave 64 per cent of her land untouched by the plow.

"Texas leads the states of the union in the total number of domestic animals on farms and ranches, and ranks second in total live-stock value.

"Texas is the fourth state in mineral production. Texas gulf ports lie between the world's markets and the world's greatest cotton, wheat and petroleum producing territory.

"This presents briefly, from a business point of view, the remarkable progress Texas has made from the struggling, unsettled frontier she was a century ago to her leadership of today.

DEMANDS OF JAPS INCREASE

Japanese Arrogance Causes World To Wonder

TOKYO, Dec. 3. (UP)—Japan today demanded additional modifications in the League of Nations plan for settlement of the Manchurian dispute.

Despite Japanese objections to certain points, the government considered the way was cleared for adoption of the plans.

Japan rejected the provisions, which considered efforts to establish a time limit for withdrawal of Japanese troops and the principle that neutral observers accompany the troops on police measures to protect lives and property.

"If" Policy Seen In Announcement

MUKDEN, Dec. 3. (UP)—General Shigeru Honjo, commanding Japanese troops in Manchuria, said today that he would refrain from moving his troops southward on Chinchow if the Chinese "behave and refrain from assuming an offensive."

Beginners' Band To Be Organized

A beginners' band is being organized in the junior and senior high schools in Midland. The purpose of this beginners' class is to furnish a "feeder" organization for the regular high school band. The experience of school band organizers has proved that at least 30 per cent of the membership of a high school band is lost every year through graduation and moving to other communities. The only possible way to meet this condition is to maintain every year a beginners' organization so as to have players constantly coming on to take the places of those who leave, it is explained.

The policy of having a beginners' band each year was started in the Midland schools last year. The success of the band this year is due largely to the fact.

There are some 20 students in the high school who have signed up to take advantage of the beginners' band training.

The announcement was made Tuesday in the junior high school and there are some 25 students who are interested and will take part in the group now organizing.

Active class work will begin in a week. The group will meet every afternoon at 3:15 at the high school auditorium for 45 minutes. At 4:30 o'clock special sections will meet in class room with Director Russell E. Shrader for instruction on each particular kind of instrument. After this period, any member of the organization who desires special individual help may meet with Shrader for that purpose.

It is expected that the beginners' band will attain the degree of success that the beginners' band of last year did when it made up over 50 per cent of the high school band that went to the contest in Abilene.

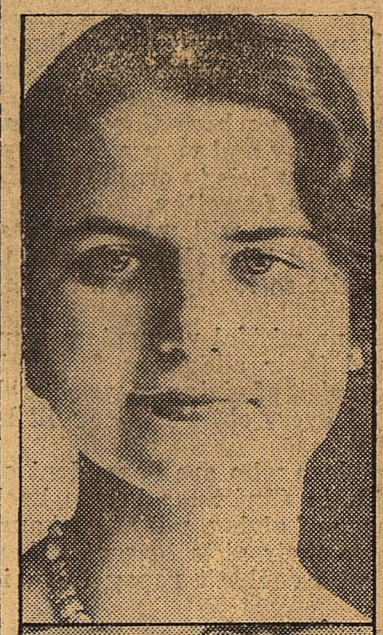

This part of the band has become one of the best-known high schools groups in the state.

Poker Player Is Shot by Bandit

HOUSTON, Dec. 3. (UP)—J. F. Copeland, 30, was shot to death early today by a masked bandit who entered the house apparently to hold up a poker game.

Copeland was shot when he made a threatening move toward the bandit. Twelve persons were held for investigation.

SHERIFF TRIED FOR EXTORTION AT BURLESON

AUSTIN, Dec. 3. (UP)—Sheriff Clint D. Lewis of Burleson county went to trial here today charged with the extortion of $410 alleged to be excess fees.

The state claims that Lewis collected $558 for allegedly traveling 2,400 miles conveying six prisoners from Dallas to Caldwell. It is claimed that Lewis made only one round trip, conveying two prisoners which would entitle him to $148.

HEART IS SHOT OUT ON HUNT

M. C. Williams, Well Known Here, Is Buried Today

Shot through the heart with a small shotgun as he attempted to carry it through a fence while on a duck hunt, M. C. Williams, 52, Courtney farmer, died instantly Wednesday afternoon near his home in the Courtney community.

A son was hunting with him, and had gone around a shallow lake. Hearing the report of the 410 gun carried by his father, the boy looked up to find his father lying on the ground. He was dead when the boy reached him.

Williams was section foreman for the Texas & Pacific railway company for about 15 years, living at various times at Odessa, Germania, Westbrook and Duro. His widow is a former Midland girl, Miss Johnny Baxter. She was his second wife. He was a member of the Baptist church, with membership in Midland while he lived at Germania.

A coroner's inquest resulted in a verdict of death due to accidental discharge of his own gun.

Funeral services were to be conducted this afternoon at 2:30 at the First Baptist church in Stanton. The Reverend Sellers was in charge. The Masonic lodge had charge of the burial rites.

Besides the widow, two children survive.

Football Player Is Naval Recruit

Evans, gunner's mate, said: "Upon completion of 12 weeks of training at the naval training station, San Diego, Calif., Allen will compete with other candidates for a course of instructions at the naval aviation mechanics school at Great Lakes, Ill."

IRELAND'S DOLE IS SHOWING NICE PROFIT AS FREE STATE FORCES ON POPULATION POSITION INSURANCE

By MILTON BRONNER, NEA Service European Manager (Copyright, 1931, NEA Service, Inc.)

DUBLIN, Dec. 3.—The little Irish Free State has accomplished a miracle the bigger nations of Europe have been unable to achieve—a state unemployment insurance scheme which pays its own way—and then some!

The significance of this splendid achievement may be lost upon Americans unless it is recalled to them what "doles" have done to Great Britain and Germany. Part of the financial crisis, which toppled down the second British Labor government last August, was due to the burden of the doles. Far from paying its own way, or anything like it, the unemployment scheme was costing the nation at the enormous rate of five million dollars every week. In other words, every time the second hand on the watch ticked it cost the British taxpayers something over $8.

This it was that helped cause the big gap in the budget. To balance the budget Premier MacDonald proposed a 10 per cent cut in the doles and a tightening up of the methods by which the dole is granted. This was one of the things upon which he and his Labor colleagues parted company and it was then that the National government was formed and the cuts put into effect.

It is the same story in Germany. Part of that country's difficulties have come from the enormous drain on the treasury imposed by paying doles to several million unemployed. Recently the Bruening government cut down the number of weeks people can draw the dole. After that, the municipalities have to care for them and this has put a heavy burden on the towns.

In every way the unemployment insurance scheme adopted by the Irish Free State was geared up more tightly and was less likely to produce a heavy burden for the little state to carry.

The scheme was compulsory. Everybody from the age of 16 up, who was employed, was compelled to come within the insurance scheme. There were, of course, exceptions as in all countries. People working on farms, or in domestic service, and most of the employees of the state were not included in the plan.

Under the law the moment a person got employment he was compelled to procure an unemployment book from the Department of Industry and Commerce, and hand it to his employer. It was also made mandatory that the employer should demand this book when he gave a person employment. If the employer refused to get such a book, it was up to the employer to safeguard himself by getting one for him.

Each week the employer is compelled to affix to the book, in the form of stamps, the amount of contribution the law compels him to make to the unemployment insurance fund and also the amount the employer must make. The employer then deducts the employee's contribution from his wages. The worker who becomes unemployed must lodge his book with a branch of the Department of Industry and Commerce and is given a receipt for it. No benefit is payable for the first six days of unemployment.

In applying for the dole he has to show that he has made at least 12 weekly payments and that he has sought and been unable to obtain work. Once he begins to draw the weekly dole, it does not go on indefinitely as has been the case in Britain and Germany.

In any year the benefit he can draw is limited to one day for each contribution standing to his credit on his book. In other words, if he has made 60 payments he receives 60 days benefit. And in no year can he obtain more than 156 days benefit.

Taking the pound sterling at par, the weekly benefits paid under the scheme are as follows: Men, $3.75; (See IRELAND'S DOLE, Page 4)

DALLAS LEADS AS SITE FOR CELEBRATION

DALLAS, Tex., Dec. 3. (UP)—The colorful history of the Lone Star state, the largest in the union, and the only one that has been under six flags, will be reviewed when the centennial celebration of Texas' independence is held in 1936.

Although Dallas has not definitely been chosen as the site, such a strong movement is under way throughout the state that this city's selection is regarded as a certainty. It is planned to hold the centennial celebration jointly with the golden jubilee celebration of the state fair of Texas.

While Dallas is comparatively young among Texas cities, the fact of its central location is a point stressed by leaders in the movement to hold the celebration here.

They point out that while Dallas has no shrine such as the Alamo, or San Jacinto battlefield, with which to attract the public, it is within reasonable distance of these historic spots.

By holding the celebration in Dallas the state will make a bid for visitors from all parts of the country. Other points of interest, including the Alamo at San Antonio, San Jacinto battlefield near Houston, the Goliad battlefield and the state capitol at Austin, will be centers for minor patriotic celebrations and pilgrimages.

Wilbur C. Hawk, president of the Tex.-State Fair association of Amarillo, has suggested that circular tours of the state be held during the centennial year. These would center at the exposition in Dallas but would include all the historical sites and points of interest.

SETTLES LAND SOLD

BIG SPRING, Dec. 3.—At a trustee's sale held here Tuesday the ranch of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Settles, including royalties and lease rentals held by them, were sold for $75,000 to the Continental Oil company, which holds much of the oil production on the property.

The sale was held following the foreclosure of a mortgage amounting to $118,000 in favor of the Continental company some time ago. The sale had nothing to do with the Settles hotel and other properties of Mr. and Mrs. Settles.

INTERPRETING CHRISTMAS

Most youngsters believe that there is a benevolent old saint somewhere, far to the north, who locks up his toy factory on Christmas Eve and travels around the world with a bottomless pack of toys. Children's eyes hold a little of the glory of the Bethlehem star-shine as they hang up their stockings on the magic night. Maybe they are hungry. Cold, too, perhaps. And disappointed. But Santa Claus won't fail them, they tell themselves.

They remember that he has stood on the corner and asked them exactly what they wanted. He has pocketed their letters. They saw him do it. Secure in their dreams, they go to sleep.

But a great many children are going to have lumps in their throats when they waken on Christmas morning unless we get busy. They are going to be hurt and baffled when they find limp stockings where they had expected them to be so plump and gay and merry. They are going to bury their heads in the blankets to crush the sobs while they wonder why they were forgotten.

And ever after the tinsel gleam will mean nothing. A world in which Santa Claus will take all of his toys to somebody else can never be quite so lovely to a little boy or girl again.

It is up to us to see that no wistful youngsters wonder why Santa Claus crossed their addresses from his calling list. If we interpret the spirit of giving as we should, every stocking will be fat and every child's voice will be as lilting as a Christmas carol.

The large number of children who are dependent on our generosity for their faith in Christmas brings back the thought that this is a season of giving, not of exchanging. The wise men didn't give their gifts to each other. They brought them to one who couldn't repay them in like coin.

It takes such a little to make a child happy. A doll or a horn or spinning top and a candy cane for the top of the stocking. But he won't forget. After a while when he is older and understands that Santa Claus is only the spirit of Christmas, he will remember gratefully that life didn't fail him. He won't be afraid to trust it again.

But if his stocking is bare not all the tinsel glamour of all the evergreen trees in the whole wide world can ever quite bring back the charm.

SCHOOLBOY PRANKS

A Minnesota jury the other day imposed a fine of $750 on a school superintendent for spanking a boy who had put a tack in the seat of the little girl in front of him; and whether the ordinary citizen agrees that the fine was deserved or not, he will at least read of the incident with a good deal of interest. For it indicates that if one old American custom is slipping, another one, equally venerable, is still thriving.

In the old days no jury would have dreamed of fining a schoolmaster for flogging a juvenile culprit. In that respect American schools have changed tremendously. But in the very first of all the little red schoolhouses, no doubt, small boys put tacks in the seats of their feminine schoolmates; and, in a world of change, it is somehow comforting to learn that they are still doing it. It may be tough on the girls, but it is reassuring to us elders.

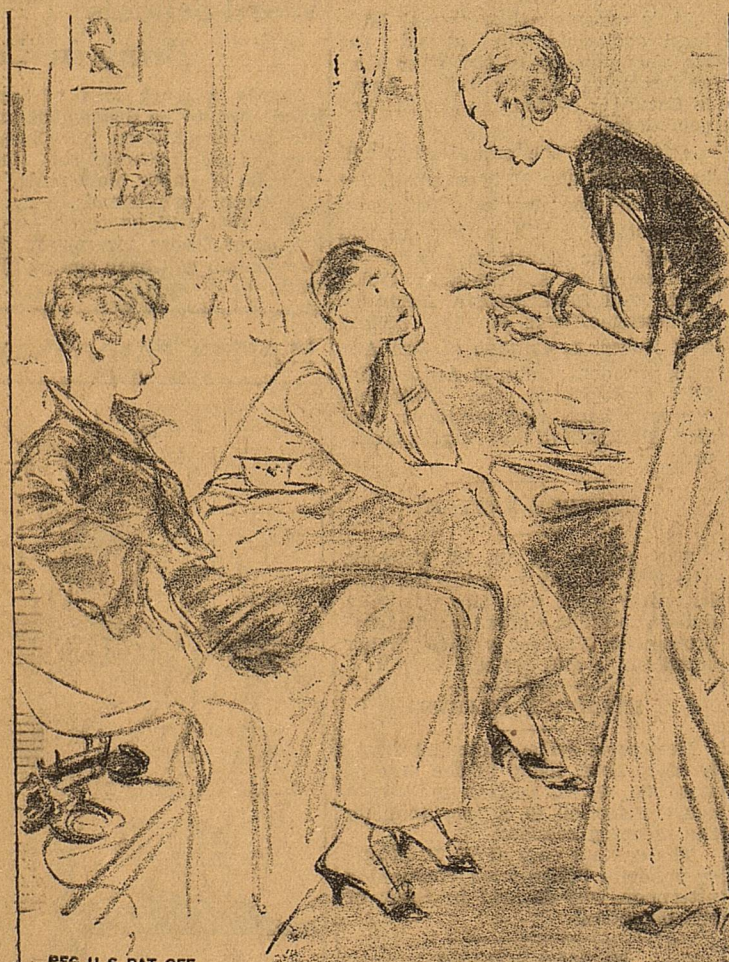

THE BILLBOARD MENACE

Motorists of New Zealand, organized in the South Island Motor Union, have started a campaign against roadside billboard advertising that American motorists might well copy.

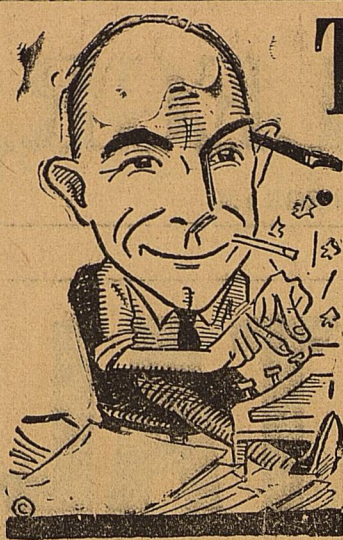

The Union has voted to write to all firms which indulge in roadside advertising urging them to desist from defacing the countryside. If they refuse, the Union "will take action to compel them to do so," it is said.

There, of course, is the weak spot of the campaign, as far as the United States is concerned. If signs are erected on private property, with the owner's consent, there is little the public can do about it. Only an enlightened public opinion can be really effective. Meanwhile, however, a campaign such as this of New Zealand might help to focus public attention on a very annoying problem.

Good Business Men Have Great Interest In Public Health, Said Stanley, Who Spoke to Midland Federation of Clubs

In dollars and cents it is good business for a firm manager to be interested in public health, declared Henry W. Stanley, one of the greatest merchandising authorities in the south, before a group of women representing the Midland Federation of Women's clubs at Hotel Scharbauer Wednesday afternoon.

Stanley's address principally dealt with sound reasons why good business men are interested in health. Listed among these reasons was the loss by preventable diseases, which, according to a recent survey, costs the United States one billion dollars each year. Others were preserving efficiency in business and general public welfare.

He urged the employment of a nurse, doctor and inspector in every county in Texas; adoption of the standard milk ordinance by every town; protection against diseases by the use of serums and sanitary methods be used around the farm homes.

Mrs. John Haley, new district chairman of community service, and president of the federation, presided. The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Paul T. Vickers.

The musical program which was given before the lecture, presented Mary Elizabeth Newman and Mary Louise Cowden in a cowboy song novelty, and Mrs. Roy Parks, soloist. Mrs. O. L. Walton and Mrs. J. Holt Jewell were accompanists.

Business of the federation followed the program. Mrs. T. Paul Barron was elected reporter and Miss Lois Patterson was elected vice president. It was decided that meetings will be held once each three months.

In a slogan contest conducted by Mr. Stanley, winners were Mrs. Winston Borum first, and Mrs. Roy Parks, second.

HE WANTS ARREST

DENVER, Colo.—The title of the "most arrested youth" in this city belongs unquestionably to Sammy Metz, 17. He has been picked up 29 times, the last time on a vagrancy charge after he had stolen a pair of overalls. The judge fined him $100 and upon Sammy's statement that he could not pay it, sentenced him to county jail to work out the fine at $2 per day. During most of his checkered career, Sammy escaped being sent to reformatory, because it was believed he was a diphtheria carrier.
