Rain Delay Severe weather halts MHS football game out.

Muleshoe qualified for the state football playoffs for the first time since 1983 despite having its game against Friona postponed by a series of thunderstorms that tore through New Mexico and West Texas.

The game was halted with 3:37 left in the second quarter and the game tied 0-0.

Muleshoe earned a playoff berth by virtue of Shallowater's 20-0 win against Lubbock Cooper.

School officials were still deciding when and if to play the game at press time.

Officials tried to restart the game about 9:30 p.m., but another storm forced the teams from the field again and the game was postponed about an hour later. By that time, Benny Douglass Stadium looked like swamp land.

The game was billed as one of the top matchups in the South Plains, with the undefeated Chieftains and the up-and-coming Mules battling for the out-

It wasn't a complete wash- right lead in District 2-3A. The Chieftains (8-0 overall, 3-0 district) dodged a couple bullets early.

On the first play from scrimmage, Noel Grajeda fumble a handoff and Dustin Cleavinger appeared to recover for the Mules. But the officials ruled Friona had retained possession.

The Mules (7-1, 3-0) also had a touchdown called back on their first possession.

Taking over just inside Friona territory, Muleshoe picked up a first down before Matt McClanahan streaked down the left sideline for an apparent 30-yard score. But the touchdown was nullified by a holding penalty.

The Mules finally caught a break midway through the second quarter when Friona's punter couldn't handle a snap and was buried by several Muleshoe defenders at the Chieftain 23.

But on fourth-and-one at the 14, Muleshoe fumbled the snap into the air and Hugo Rivera recovered for the Chieftains.

County clerk race drawing voter interest

Sunday, November 1, 1998

Early voting for Tuesday's General Election has been unusually heavy according to the Bailey County Clerk's office.

More than 400 voters had turned out as of Thursday. The high voter turnout was possibly spurred by a local race for County Clerk between Republican challenger Sherri Bessire Harrison and incumbent Democrat Jan Pierce and several hotly-contested state races. Early voting ended Friday.

Polls are open throughout Bailey County on Tuesday from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Pierce was appointed County Clerk in December to fill the unexpired term of Billie Downing. Pierce previously worked as an office deputy in the Bailey County Sheriff's Office for 15 years.

Harrison is a Certified Legal Assistant and has worked in the law office of Gordon H. Green of Muleshoe for the last 5 1/2 years.

The County Clerk's office keeps official records of documents like deeds, real estate transactions, liens, birth certificates, marriage licenses and juvenile and misdemeanor criminal cases. The position is a four-year term.

Candidates for the remaining local offices in Tuesday's election are running unopposed.

Running on the Democratic ticket are Gordon Houston Green, 287th District Court Judge; Marilyn Cox, County Judge; Elaine Parker, District Clerk; Coy Plott, County Sheriff; Donna Kirk, County Treasurer; C.E. Grant, County Commissioner, Precinct 2; Jerry Damron, County Commissioner; Precinct 4; Jack Bates, Justice of the Peace, Precinct 1; and Todd Ellis, write-in candidate for Justice of the Peace, Precinct 4.

Judge appoints attorney

A district court judge will appoint an attorney to represent Muleshoe capital murder suspect Gilberto "Tito" Reyes.

Appearing in the 287th District Court for the fourth time since his June arrest, the former fugitive told Judge Jack W. Young he has not hired legal representation. Reyes appears unable or unwilling to hire an attorney.

"The main thing is that you are prepared to go to trial whether it is a court-appointed attorney or your own attorney," Judge Young said.

The judge told Reyes he could hire his own attorney at a later date but wouldn't permit him to use a late substitution as an excuse to gain a continuance.

No trial date was set.

Reyes is charged with the April 1997 beating death of his former girlfriend, Yvette Barraz of Muleshoe.

Former Muleshoe police officer Jay Livingston is the new police chief for the City of Hart. He was hired by the Hart City Council Oct. 12.

Livingston worked for the Muleshoe Police Department for 10 years, including a short stint as an interim police chief.

It's time to raise the curtain on the Muleshoe High School fall play again.

ment will present "Meet Me in St. Louis" at 7:30 p.m. on Monday and Tuesday, Nov. 2-3 in the high school auditorium. The Christopher Sergel play deals with teenagers and their problems according to Dr. Kerry Moore, MHS theatre instructor and director of the play. It is about a family whose father is being transferred to New York City due to his job. His son and three daughters do not want to leave their home in St. Louis because it is where their friends and family are located.

"The children start pulling practical jokes on their father's boss," said Moore. "They are The MHS Theatre Depart- trying to make him change his mind about sending their father to New York. When their plan backfires, and he fires their dad, they try to turn it around. The audience doesn't know what's going to happen in the end."

> Moore chose the play for the theater's annual fall production because it teaches the students how to deal with conflict.

"The play is a dramatic comedy. It has superb conflicts in it. I chose it because I want them to figure out how these problems are created and how to solve them," Moore said.

He said that the one thing he finds difficult is "teaching the kids to be creative. They have great ideas, but they have trouble controlling them."

In "Meet Me In St. Louis," every character is important. According to Moore, "if you take any role out, there is no conflict. There is no play. They are all main characters."

The students are working on balancing the experienced actors with the ones that are just starting. "They are learning from each other," said Moore.

Cattle producers seeing red

The color red is dominating the business ledgers of most cattle feeders, resulting in lower feeder cattle prices and combining with lower feedgrain prices to create much lower break-even sale prices for retained ownership programs.

The profit potential of putting cattle into a feedlot, backgrounding or stocker program has increased, although drought conditions may restrict opportunities for producers in Oklahoma and Texas, said Derrel Peel, Oklahoma State University Cooperative Extension livestock marketing specialist.

"Since feedgrains are as cheap or cheaper than forage in many circumstances, some producers may want to consider options not usually looked at in the past," Peel said.

"The economic numbers support a good buying opportunity right now in terms of stocker cattle, "he explained. "Producers may want to look at the feasibility of buying stocker cattle and putting them on a high-concentrate diet.

"Producers who are considering this option need to look at the key elements: increased management requirements, available fiscal capital and the likelihood of having wheat pasture available," Peel said." It's time to put pencil to paper. Opportunities exist, but not every producer realistically will be in a position to take advantage of them."

Livestock Marketing Information Center data indicate feeder steers places into a feedlot at 750 pounds and closed out in August lost an estimated $87 per head, assuming average performance and if they were sold on the cash market. Estimated average feeding returns have been in the red for 16 consecutive months.

Returns on cattle closed out in September and October also are projected to be negative.

PLAY

Six of the actors have never participated in a play.

According to the director, the best part of the play is "the end result." Moore understands that it is important to give an "opportunity to the kids and the knowledge to do their best."

It has taken the group several weeks to prepare for the fall show. "A lot of work goes into putting a play together, " said Moore. "You can't put it together in a week and expect it to be good." He said that the actors are working hard to perfect their performances.

"The idea is to know that you've done your best," encourages Moore. "Walk off the stage and know that you did a good show."

Blackwater Valley Soil and Water Conservation District

ANNUAL REPORT 1997-1998

The Blackwater Valley Soil and Water Conservation District has completed their 57th year in Bailey County. E.L. Smith and N.C. Moore, County Directors at that time, submitted a petition requesting that a District be formed and approved by the State of Texas. On March 20th, 1941, the Secretary of State for the State of Texas certified the formation of Blackwater Valley Soil and Water Conservation District. It was number 111 and included all of Bailey County. As a legal sub-division of State Government, they requested the assistance for the District. The Soil Conservation Service is now renamed Natural Resources Conservation Service, but still provides the technical assistance on soil and water erosion problems. Today, there are over 200 Districts state wide working toward the same goal of wise

Buck Campbell watched in amusement as a dozen or so children from a early-childhood class at Dillman Elementary scoured the patch for the perfect pumpkin.

As always, the smallest students headed straight for the biggest pumpkins.

Surveying the ocean of orange in a field west of Muleshoe, Campbell said it was the best harvest in the 20 years he's grown pumpkins.

Bailey County farmers are reporting yields of 15 tons an acre. The bumper crop helped offset a poor corn harvest, said Campbell, who planted 120 acres of pumpkins.

"It's been an extraordinary year," Campbell said. He said the pumpkins are good size, with good color.

The hot, dry weather was good for the pumpkins because it limited crop diseases.

After more than a month of harvesting, Campbell said he shipped the last of his crop Wednesday, just in time for Halloween.

Dear Fellow Texans

Very soon, we will return to the polls and cast our ballots in what will be, I believe, a very important election. I hope and pray our citizens will weigh the issues very carefully.

When I first ran for Congress, back in 1984, I promised the people of this. District I would faithfully try to uphold the Constitution, and represent, to the best of my abilities, the people who live and work here in West Texas. I have tried to do that. I have tried to make you proud of my service on your behalf.

You have expressed your confidence in my service by sending me back to Congress to continue that service. I am most grateful for your support, and ask for it again. I promise you now only what I promised you in the beginning, that I will continue doing my best to fulfill the trust you have placed in me. Trust, truthfulness and the rule of law are, to me, the bedrock of our system of representative government.

Although much remains to be done, we have managed to make some much needed changes in our government. We have balanced the budget, we have overhauled the IRS, we have reduced some, but by no means all, of the burdensome taxes and regulations enacted by previous Congresses and Administrations. We have tried, and are still trying, to make the rule of law apply more fairly to all our citizens, no matter what their station in life is.

I want you to know that I am deeply honored to be your Congressman. If you see fit to keep me as your Congressman, I will do my best to honor the trust between us.

Local students attend workshop

Lazbuddie FHA hosted a leadership workshop conducted by regional and state officers.

Area FHA chapters from surrounding schools learned skills to help them become better leaders.

Tod Mayfield, an Amarillo lawyer, addressed the approximately 40 students and adults who attended. He gave a speech on leadership that can open a doorway for many students to realize that leadership is not just in major businesses and corporations, but all around in every day things.

One of the things Mayfield pointed out was that, "what you do today can affect the rest of your life." People notice every little thing so make a good impression. If one feels like no one looks to them, they must re-evaluate their attitude and think about what they do before they do it. One would be amazed how much "what you do today can affect the rest of your life." Not only their life but the lives of everyone around them.

A major focus of the afternoon was to make teens aware of their actions and help them improve their skills. Mayfield told the students that to do their job they have to work at something they believe in and work to make it happen. Setting goals

Individual workshops were conducted by regional and state officers. Amy Crunk, Region I vice president of HERO from Levelland, presented a workshop on Career Connections. Shena Seaton, Region I president from Lazbuddie, presented a workshop on Team Building. Paula Burnette, state recording secretary from Morton, did a workshop on Flag Etiquette. The front page headline on Sunday's newspaper screamed out the news: "Abortion Provider Shot Down." The article went on to explain that a shot fired through a window by a sniper had felled Dr. Barnet Slepian, 51, in the kitchen of his Amherst, New York home as he and his wife and their four sons had just returned from synagogue services. So far, the article mentioned, no one has taken

I don't understand why a person, even one completely opposed to a homosexual lifestyle, could rationalize cruel mistreatment of homosexuals. (And why shouldn't Christians opposed to homosexual behavior be the first to compassionately wipe the fevered brow of a gay AIDS patient and show him God's love?)

I hate abortion. I hate what it says about our society's cheap view of life. I hate what it does to the unborn. I hate the fact that a mother's womb has become, in our nation, a very dangerous place to be. I hate what abortion does emotionally to the women who are also its victims. For this "freedom," our nation has paid a very dear price in the devaluing of its own soul.

"credit" for the shooting, though the doctor's name, listed on an Internet Web site with links to "the Army of God," had a line through it—which evidently showed up even before the shooting.

It seems increasingly obvious that terrorism and its tactics are not limited to Middle Eastern fanatics.

I don't understand.

I don't understand why fanatics of all sorts seem to think that whatever end they want to achieve justifies any means.

I don't understand why terrorists with bombs blow up innocent people in buildings and airplanes and think such actions advance their causes.

I don't understand why a Ku Klux Klansman would possibly use a burning cross, of all symbols, to justify his ignorant racism and his vitriolic hatred. who are also its victims. For this "freedom," our nation has paid a very dear price in the devaluing of its own soul. But if I understand the One I call my Lord, don't I have to understand that even though I may hate what someone stands for and disagree completely with his attitudes and his actions, I cannot hate the person? Not a homosexual. Not a greedy materialist. Not an abortionist. Not anyone else. I do not begin to understand why a person claiming to stand for the sanctity of life would shoot a man dead in his kitchen.

I hope the shooter is caught. He should be tried and prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law.

And I guess I hope he's an atheist. Maybe then the media and others will just call the man a misguided fanatic. Not a "Christian" fanatic.

If we love life, we should find ways to show that love to those with whom we disagree. Bullets won't do it.
