THE BRAIN'S EXTREMES

It is very seldom, thank heaven, that there is anything in the newspapers quite as horrible as the story of the Akron business man who threw his baby son into the furnace "because the Lord told me to."

One hardly needs to await the report of the psychiatrists to know that the man was deranged. He just had come home from a hospital, after being hurt in an auto accident; he had been "talking strangely"; a friend had asked the man's wife to hide his gun, if he had one, fearing that he might do something desperate.

But no one foresaw, or could have foreseen, the frightful thing that he actually did do.

What a strange and terrifying thing the working of the human brain is, after all! Let a bit of bone press lightly on the brain somewhere—and a kind, intelligent man is turned into a fiend incarnate.

Derange a few brain cells—and all the graces of mind and heart cancel themselves, somehow, and leave only a thing of horror.

Some columnists are making cracks about insult taking a tramp steamer in his flight from Greece. Maybe they are right, I guess they have made a tramp out of him.

Married men get so few compliments that when their wives compliment them they usually reach into their pockets, wondering what is wanted.

The meanest man I ever knew made a fortune here and then moved to another town and spent much of his time poking fun at Midland.

A man who has been working on the highway remarked the other day that this column has been clipping so much stuff that it has will. Even so, she never forgot George, although the subject was, at her demand, never discussed between them. Her heart couldn't help but compare brother with brother. She remembered the ecstasy of George's kiss as compared with the insipid lukewarmness of Andre's. Sometimes she thought she positively hated Andre.

So, one night at a party which she was holding in her apartment, rather the one kept for her by Andre, she smothered, trying to forget. Oh, to forget. Whole days, it seemed to her, were spent in trying to live today, and not to relive yesterday. It was not easy.

When Andre came in and asked to speak to her, she was in an ugly mood. She walked up to him, swaying, flushed from too much champagne. In Andre's eyes, of course, that only increased the physical effect on him.

"Kiss me," he said, and after she did, reluctantly enough, he went on, "I am called to the war office. It looks as if Prussia will not be satisfied with anything but war, and we must prepare; if war is declared I shall have to go away. And so I want all the time I have left with you. All of it! Now, be a good girl and send these people away and wait just a little while for me to come home."

"But we're having such fun," she objected, almost innocently.

"Nana," he pleaded, "won't you for me?"

So she agreed, and he went off promising to return soon. She sent the guests home, most of whom were drunk anyway, and consequently dull, and retired to her room.

She sat brooding about her past life for a while, and in her half-conscious mind, she felt a growing premonition once again that all was not well. Something electric was in the air. She thought, "something is about to happen to me."

Her musings were interrupted by a rising tumult in the street. Absently, she went to the window and looked out. . . and gasped!

All the whole length of the rue . . . as far as she could see . . . was one mass of wildly gesturing, shouting humanity. Men and women were carrying lighted torches, sticks, and a few had guns.

Wondering what the occasion was—she knew of no holiday—she leaned out and called to one of the maids.

"Down there!" she hallooed, "you!" A burly workman looked up, instinctively doffing his grimy cap.

"Yes, Mamselle?"

"What is the reason for this celebration?" she called out.

And from the throat of this man—one of masses . . . came an astonishing, chilling sentence. Over the noise of the crowd the man shouted:

"WAR, Mamselle, WAR! WAR HAS JUST BEEN DECLARED ON PRUSSIA!"

What Has Happened Nana, "gutter snipe" of Paris, just before the Franco-Prussian war, was made into a spectacular stage star by M. Greiner, who insisted she become his companion, which she did. In the meantime she was carrying on an affair with a handsome young officer named George Muffat. But when George's brother Andre, also an officer, heard of the affair he quickly broke it off, and sent his brother to Algeria. Then he told Greiner his mistress was unfaithful and Greiner threw Nana back into the streets, which were her origin. Nana took a hard job for little money, in order to earn her living decently for George.

CHAPTER IX A month later Nana had sent her last letter to George, and after it had been confiscated by Mimi, she sat alone in her apartment late one night. Her mind was a milling chaos. Torn between her great love, and great in the sense of classic loves that have rung down the halls of time and taken their place in all human life—between her great love for George and her past life, there was a fierce, relentless struggle within her now. And Nana somehow felt the cards were stacked against her. Hadn't she met every kind of mistress known? She recalled angrily. Hadn't hers been the bitterest life of all? And for what? For the love of a soldier who very likely never loved her. No, that was untrue. Nana knew enough about men, and love, to know the real thing when she saw it, or . . . felt it.

But one human being can stand only so much . . . and then must break. And Nana was at her breaking point. Her last letter was unanswered. There was only one thing to do. Go back to the streets and the music, the wine and the careless gay life she had known. Chalk up this encounter with Cupid, she sneered at the thought) as just a mistake. Love? There was no such thing. It was a trap set for fools and children. There was no love in this world. There was only lust, and hate . . . and meanness.

A knock on her door interrupted her bitter reverie. Half wonderingly she went to open it. Her mouth grew dry, her heart stopped, she gasped. It was Andre Andre, George's brother, the one man whom she most despised in the world. The man who had torn from her by guile her only happiness, her love for George.

Nana stood at the door, not moving, hate glinting in her eyes. Andre was the first to speak. "May I come in, Mamselle?" he offered.

"Yes, I suppose so." Once he was in, Andre turned to her.

"It's a bit awkward, isn't it?" he parried lamely.

"Is it?" said Nana. Andre took a deep breath. "I'll come straight to the point," he said. "I'm sorry for what I did to you. Not sorry, mind you, for breaking up an affair with George, but sorry that it was through me you lost your position on the stage."

"What good?" Nana said, telly, "does it do to be sorry now?"

"If one is really sorry," said Andre, softly, "one can make amends. . . I can get you your place back in the theatre."

"What," cried Nana, "back in the theatre? With Greiner?"

"No," Andre shook his head, "not with Greiner, but with the Frivolities. I can and I will, happily, if you will let me."

Methodist Young People's Stand on War Expressed In Resolution Sent President

The stand of young people of the San Angelo district of the Shepherd's union on war is expressed in a resolution in the form of a letter which was adopted at a quarterly business meeting of the union held at San Angelo March 18 and sent to President Roosevelt.

The letter, signed by Louise Alagood, president of the union, follows: To the President: In our efforts as a group of Christian young people to understand the world in which we live, one fact has forced itself unmistakably upon our minds; namely, the dangerous imminence of another world destroying war. We remind you of a torn and divided Europe, of a seething South America and of a hostile and nervous situation in the far East only to let you know that we are aware of these menaces to world peace. Believing as we do that war is unchristian, futile, and that it accomplishes nothing of the high aims which it professes to desire, we, the young people of the Shepherd's union of the San Angelo district of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, representing over two hundred young people, take this opportunity to urge upon your already overburdened conscience the necessity for immediate and courageous action—not to prepare for it, but to prevent another war. To that end we wish to commend the recent action giving power to the chief executive to lay an embargo upon the shipment of arms to powers engaged in war, and in the same breath we wish to protest against the Vinson-Naval bill in which our government seems to have forsaken its ideals of courageous, progressive movements, and to have set in motion the same fears and frantic rush to arms in the hearts of peoples of other nations.

If war should come in any part of the world, we as young people who would be called upon to fight, assert now our desire that this country shall not give way to war passions and that you do all in your power to keep us out of situations in which we might be forced to take sides. We want, not war, but peace. We see too clearly what war does, and what war fails to do. We have confidence in your desire for peace and once more assure you of our support in every move, and call upon you, Honorable Sir, to represent us in peace.

Adopted by the Shepherd's union in quarterly business meeting held at San Angelo, Texas, March 18, 1934.

This and That Pertaining to Women's Styles

BY CELESTE HANKINS

Dots dot the fashions for Easter. Pin dots, polka dots, coin dots—the vogue for these is growing bigger every moment. New outfits in Midland stores are ushering in a smart period of dots—small ones for large women and large ones for the small.

Even men are going "dotty." They, occasionally a handkerchief of small dots will be seen this season.

In many families Easter dinner is almost as much an event as the Christmas feast and this year especially the promise of spring fills us with the desire to celebrate with feasting. You may choose lamb, veal or chicken for your Easter dinner. These meats are seasonal and delicious for special occasions.

Vegetables are available in profusion and fruits are inclined to be rather betwixt and between. Strawberries may be afforded merely to garnish grape fruit, oranges and bananas.

Or, if the food budget permits, they may be used in a shortcake, frozen desserts of a sauce for ice cream or a simple chilled pudding.

World's Smallest Transcontinental Automobile in Midland

WILL BE SHOWN HERE TWO DAYS OF THIS WEEK

An automobile so small that it can run under a horse or between the legs of a tall man made its appearance on the streets of Midland Saturday afternoon. It is driven by Roy Arbright, designer of the car, who claims for it the distinction of being the world's smallest transcontinental auto.

It was brought to Midland by the local dealers and the agent of the Sinclair Refining company and will be seen on the streets during Monday and Tuesday. When not engaged in driving between the stations of the local sponsors, the car will be displayed in the windows of the Barrow Furniture company.

Arbright has driven the car more than 100,000 miles and has crossed the continent twice as well as several trips into Canada. It has climbed five major mountain range roads. Although it is so small it makes an Austin look large and cumbersome, it is capable of making 75 miles per hour and will do more than 40 in first gear.

It has four cylinders and a four-speed transmission, and weighs less than 500 pounds. Its wheels are 57 inches and its built along miniature lines of a racer.

Last week the car was given its 420th coat of paint.

The car uses standard equipment.

The car may be seen on the streets, in the various stations of the Sinclair Refining company, or at the firms which supply equipment for the car between the hours of 12 noon and 5 p. m. during the days on which it will be here. At other times during the day, and all day today, it may be seen in the window of the Barrow Furniture company.

HAS LOWEST NUMBER TAG OF ANY VEHICLE

The license tag of the Lilliputian vehicle costs only $1.29 in Texas, while that of a motorcycle costs $3.50.

The motor, rated at 10 horsepower, develops 31 horsepower at 3900 revolutions.

EAGLE ATTACKED MAN

RAINIER, Ore. (U.P.)—When F. Engstrom, of Rainier, heard a commotion in his chicken house, he went to investigate. He was immediately attacked by a large bald eagle. Engstrom killed the bird after a battle, then was taken to a physician for treatment. It was found the eagle had once been a pet of another family in the neighborhood.

Be Careful Where You Step!

Midland people will have to look more sharply than usual during the next four days when they prepare to dash across the street. The reason is shown here. A big policeman is shown with the world's smallest transcontinental automobile preparing to pass between his legs. The car is brought here by the local Sinclair agent and the Sinclair dealers. It is on display in the Barrow Furniture company window.

Mrs. De Lo Douglas, Choir Director

9:45 a. m.—Sunday school.
11 a. m.—Morning worship and preaching by the pastor. Subject: "The Challenge of the Hour."
6:45 p. m.—Group meetings of the Young people's division.
7:45 p. m.—Evening worship and preaching by the pastor. Subject: "The Bible Teaching Concerning Hell." This is the fifth of a series of sermons on the great doctrine of the Bible. This sermon was postponed from last Sunday by special request of several who desired to hear it and couldn't attend last Sunday's service.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

Winston Borum, Pastor

Continuing on the third question of God's Questionnaire, the pastor will preach Sunday morning on "What are you Doing?" Some of the questions turned in for the "Request Service" will be answered then, and special music will be rendered.

At the evening hour, we will have the second of our "Request Programs." The response for special request numbers and questions has been so hearty, that they could not be all taken care of last Sunday. Other questions will be answered Sunday night, relating to the condition of the soul after death, the judgment, Christian Sabbath, marriage and divorce, etc. Several special musical numbers instrumental and vocal will be rendered, by request, and every congregational number will be one requested.

If you have other requests or questions, turn them in, and we will continue this plan for the evening service, as long as it is necessary to handle all requests, if possible.

Sunday school 9:45—a comfortable room, a congenial group, and consecrated leadership for every age from the cradle to the grave.

The Sports Horn

By BILL PARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ray Hill, known as Gus Moreland's caddy, is a likeable 19-year-old youngster who accepts bad breaks with a smile and a stout heart that some day may land him at the top of goldfom.

When Moreland started playing golf Hill started as his caddy. For four years the two trudged over the nation's fairways winning many major tournaments. Hill was a vital part of Moreland's game. Whether Gus has money to pay him never mattered to Hill. They were pals—Hill the bag carrier and chief advisor, Moreland the champion shot-maker.

Moreland states that Hill is uncanny in selecting right clubs for delicate shots and has few equals in judging the breaks of greens.

Hill desired some day to succeed Moreland as Texas' first ranking amateur. A keen student of shot-making he developed a splendid golf game. According to rules of the United States Golf association, when a youngster becomes 18 he must cease caddying or become a professional. When Hill reached that age he bade Moreland farewell and searched unsuccessfully for a job. He returned to caddying and the United States Golf association hearing of it forfeited his amateur standing. While playing in the last National open Moreland told the story to high U. S. G. A. officials. They favored restoring Hill's amateur standing providing such action was approved by certain members of the professional group in Texas. It was frowned upon and that meant the doom of Hill's desire to play as an amateur. He made a last plea which was rejected, so Ray Hill accepted the verdict and made his bow as a professional in the Texas open.

But after playing in the Texas open he sent his clubs home and returned to his first love—caddying for Moreland. He worked for Gus in the Galveston open and Willie McGuire Sr., Houston Country club professional, who has an understanding heart, gave Hill the privilege of caddying for Moreland in the annual invitation.

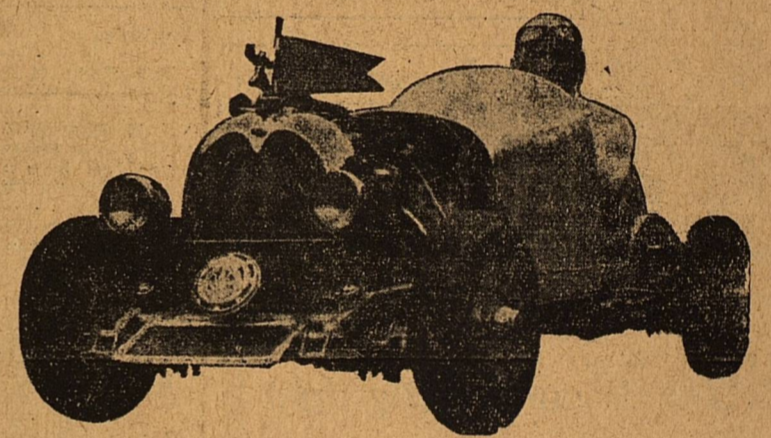

HER THIRD SET OF TWINS

MEDFORD, Ore. (U.P.)—Mrs. Thomas Smith, of Gold Hill, recently gave birth to her third pair of twins, boys weighing 7 1-2 and 7 1-4 pounds. The arrivals brought number of children in the Smith family to 13. The other twins, each with one boy and one girl, are five and seven years old.

There are about 40,000 automobile dealers in the United States.

LOCATION IN ECTOR OFFSETS TURNER-ADDIS

Ector county continues the pace as set last fall. One new location has been made, and the potential test on another well has been taken. E. J. McCurdy Jr. et al. H. C. Foster, No. 1, is to be located in South Ector county, section 36, block 43, T&EP Railway survey, township 2-south. The location is 430 feet east and 330 feet north from the southwest corner of the section and is on the south eighty acres of the southwest one-quarter section. The test is to be carried to 4300 feet, and is to be started immediately. This new test will be an offset to the Fr-1 Turner Jr., F. V. Addis, No. 1-3, which is a 220-barrel well.

In North Ector, the Continental Oil Co. has tested the O. B. Holt, No. 1, section 20, block "A", public school lands, township 1-north. The well flowed 24 hours prior to the 24-hour test. The well flowed 370 barrels not oil, according to production figures. The total depth is 424 feet.

GULF COMPLETES PRODUCER IN WARD

The Gulf Production company has completed the Hutching Stock Ass'n No. 25, section 4, block "F", G&M&B&A survey, North Ward county. The well flowed 663 barrels in 24 hours. The total depth of the hole is 2754 feet. The Gulf has the majority of production in North Ward county, and from present indications will continue to get many more wells in the area.

Dempsey Holder Wins Map Contest

The valuable product map worked by pupils of the sixth and seventh grades under the direction of Mrs. Harry Tolbert has long been remarked. Each year these students make product maps which cause much favorable comment. Interest has become so keen in this art the maps are judged each year. R. V. Lawrence of the school board this year offered a prize of $1 for the best map showing the products and districts of Texas. The maps are made of flour and salt, and 30 such maps, 24 by 24 inches in size, are displayed in one room. Mrs. Percy Mims and Mrs. M. R. Hill served as judges of the maps made this year, awarding Dempsey Holder first place, and Bob Crane and Raymond Robinson second place. Lawrence has now offered a similar prize to the best product map of the United States map to be made by a sixth grade pupil. The prize map is on display at the office of Rockwell Exhibits. The map will be framed and placed on exhibit during the school exhibits this spring. The other maps are on display in the science department of the John M. Cowden junior high school.

Few Days Left for Low Interest Rate

Only a few days remain for paying delinquent taxes before the interest rates advance. It was explained by the tax collector's office Saturday. Under terms of the relief provision now being observed, only 4 per cent interest is charged, and no penalty. The interest rate will advance to 6 per cent on April 1 and so remain until June 30, 1934, after which regular provisions for assessing both penalty and interest will result.

Honolulu Kloth Underreams Pipe

Honolulu's Kloth No. 1 drilling in the NE corner of SE 1-4 section 33, block 44, township 2 south, Ector county, is underreaming casing to the bottom of the hole at 955 feet in red beds. The first water was encountered at 985 feet, which is 54 feet lower than the first water in Broderick & Cabert's Cowden No. 1, located three miles east of the present test in section 25, block 44, township 2, south. The latter well discovered the Harper pool.

Recovery Shown By Several Here

Improvement marks the condition of Midland victims of illness. Mrs. W. C. Cochran is confined to her bed with an attack of influenza. Hal Grady is improving from an attack of tonsillitis. Jerry Roy Hudson, ill for the past week, is improved and has less fever. W. G. Riddle has been confined to his home with a throat ailment, but is improving. Condition of Mrs. Brooks Lee last Saturday evening was unchanged.

Tomcat, Midland Race Horse, Seems Destined for the Show World; "If You Don't Like Him, Just Bring Him Back—We Can Use Him," Ranch Foreman Tells the Buyer

Tomcat, that fleet chestnut gelding which has brought race fans at Cowboy park to their feet while he sprinted under the colors of his owner, Clarence Scharbauer, seems destined for the show world.

E. Pardee, noted roper and rodeo performer of La Junta, Colo., who has been training at Rankin during the winter, bought Tomcat Friday and took him to his training quarters at the Will Nix place, Rankin. Pardee gets in the money consistently. He showed well at the recent rodeos at San Angelo and Fort Worth, was one of the leading money getters at the string of shows in the east last year, including Chicago, New York, Boston, Springfield and others.

Tomcat, a coming six-year-old, has developed into a fast but steady roving horse while being used in the Scharbauer ranges. Pardee plans to school him long and steadily before putting him into too fast company, believing that he has acquired one of the best potential roping horses available. The horse is approximately fifteen hands and one inch high and weighs about 1,550 pounds. His famous quick get-away in short races is expected by his new owner to make him hard to beat as a calf roping horse.

John Dublin, range foreman for the Scharbauer Cattle company, under whose direction Tomcat has been trained, shouted for Pardee as he hauled the horse away in his trailer. "If you don't like him, just bring him back. We can use him."

which is, unfortunately, another patched dress. The play can easily be done by an all-female cast. Pink and Patches was awarded one of the Samuel French prizes in the 1928 Annual little theatre tournament.

"The First Dress Suit"—A comedy, in 1 act. By Russell Medcraft. 2 males, 2 females. 1 interior scene. Modern costumes. Plays 20 minutes.

Here we have all the trials and tribulations of a young boy on the occasion of ordering and wearing his first dress suit. The play is delightful and comedy about young Americans.

"The Violin Maker of Cremona"—A modernization, by Paul Mollat, of the drama by Francois Coppee. 4 m. 1 w. Time 25 min. A gold chain and the hand of the lovely Giannina had been promised to the best violin maker in Cremona. Giannina loves Sandro, she thinks of the crippled Filippo only with affectionate pity. But Sandro warns her that Filippo is a genius, and that his violin is sure to bring the prize. Filippo, realizing that Giannina loves Sandro, secretly changes the violins, putting his own in Sandro's case. Sandro, overcome by love for the girl, again changes the violins, leaving the ending is exquisite. This modernized version presents all that is best in the old without the difficult staging and outmoded stage devices. An excellent contest number.

"Not Quite Such a Goose"—A comedy by Elizabeth Gale. Two men, three women. Twenty minutes. Interior setting. Albert is a "regular" fellow fond of sport but despising the girls and careless of his own appearance. The play shows the remarkable change in his appearance and feelings caused by the advent of his sister's pretty friend. The characterization is good, the dialogue bright and natural and the interest sustained by a series of excellent situations.

"Speaking to Father"—Comedy in 1 act. By George Ade. 3 males, 2 females. 1 interior scene. Plays 20 minutes. A "fable in slang" and a good deal besides. The young man just out of college, the girl he wants to marry, the father, the Pickle King, and plenty of nerve and grit and freshness, are the ingredients of this breezy sketch.

"The Devil Comes to Alcazar"—A fantastic comedy by W. H. Fuhman. The story is based on a charming legend which has been handed down for five hundred years how the devil once came to this peaceful little town to marry a virgin in the market place.

The witty, sophisticated atmosphere and speeches of this play make it one of the most charming little comedies ever written.

Judges of the contest are instructors of Texas Tech and are as follows: Dr. W. B. Gates, Dean of Freshman and Professor English who also teaches drama; Dr. Eunice Gates, professor of Spanish and is well known for her knowledge of drama and acting; and Lloyd Mays, student assistant in speech and has had five years of professional stage work.

Scouts Meet in Spite of Cold

In the face of a stiff north wind Troop 54 and 58 of Midland and Odessa met in the first of a series of inter-troop meetings Friday night at Odessa on the lawn of the Methodist church. In the absence of N. H. Smelser, Odessa scoutmaster, members of both troops joined in games while awaiting the arrival of all members. The scouts were called to attention with boys of the two troops alternating in the line. Patrol leaders led in the opening ceremony, using the scout sign and scout oath. Boys were divided into teams for contests. Teams led by Howard Ford and Robert Campbell tied first place in four attractive races.

The Odessa scoutmaster took charge of the meeting, introduced A. C. Williamson, scout executive of the Buffalo Trails council, who gave a brief talk, and the scouts in group singing. The race of "skin the snake" proved difficult, the team led by Monroe Cassidy winning all three races, being the only team to make a complete race. Curtis Miles and Robert Campbell went to the finals in "Indian leg wrestling" with Campbell eventual victor. An obstacle race was won by a team led by Curtis Miles, Black Panther patrol leader. The meeting was dismissed with the scout benediction, led by patrol leaders. Both scoutmasters expressed their appreciation of meeting of this type and pointed out an unequalled fellowship of them.

Midland Lions on Colorate Program

Three Lions from the Midland club have an extemporaneous program at the Colorado Lions luncheon on Friday.

Marion F. Peters, candidate for district governor of Lions clubs, delivered a key to a new "Key Man" and made a ringing speech. He later responded with an additional brief message. Francis Stabbenman, president of Midland Lions.

Stabbenman spoke of the inspiration received from attending a club as large as the Colorado group, which now has 110 members and receives from one to three new members every session.

Joe D. Chambers won a hearty laugh when he said he had heard much of the inspiration given others by the Colorado club, and that he, too, felt inspired, but not inspired enough to try to make a speech. The secretary of the Midland chapter of Lions, who accompanied the Lions to Colorado, spoke a few words of greeting.

The Midland Lions made the trip to Colorado to "size up" the situation in preparation for the candidacy of Peters for governor. The convention will be held at the district convention April 23 and 24. Colorado Lions were generous in their assistance and cooperation with the Midlanders. The visitors said Colorado has the largest and peppiest club they know of in Texas.

March 31 Deadline For Registration

March 31 is the deadline on obtaining 1934 car license plates, and motorists who have been operating automobiles without new tags since the first of the year will be assessed a penalty of 20 per cent if they continue to operate their vehicles without conforming to the statute by April 1.

A full year will be charged to those buying license plates in April, to which adds a 20 per cent penalty in case the car has been driven between Jan. 1 and April 1. In case one buys a plate as late as May, swearing by affidavit he has not driven his car during 1934 he may pay only for the number of months remaining to 1934.

Midland county is not far behind in automobile registration, the assessor said.

Jean Nash Again Character of the Press' Front Page

By MARY MARGARET McBRIDE
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK.—The American public soon will see Madame Paul Dubonnet, famous for a decade and a half as Jean Nash, "world's best-dressed and most extravagant woman," in a new role—that of a grief-stricken, protecting mother.

Accompanied by her fifth husband, the millionaire French cordial-maker, Madame Dubonnet has left France on a swift ocean liner to hurry here to the side of Andrew Donaldson Kirwan, charged with the murder of Gilliam Sessions of Seattle. The young man is Madame Dubonnet's son by the first of her five marriages.

For one month after his arrest, Kirwan refused to speak his mother's name. Perhaps it was natural since apparently he had never known her very well, anyway. At seventeen, she had eloped from boarding school with his father, John Kirwan, a broker's son. The boy was born and named for Jean's father, but the marriage was annulled. After that, little Andrew was rather lost sight of in the multitude of fascinating things that the young woman who had been Jean Donaldson found to do.

First off, she eloped again, this time with Winfield Sifton, son of Sir Clifford Sifton, Canadian millionaire. While life immediately became just one chin-chin con after another for the indulged bride, she nevertheless found a grievance. Her husband loved her too much, she said. And so she divorced him.

Then she married Captain John Nash of the British Army. Captain Nash's pay was only about $2,000, but the first thing he knew, gown and shoe and fur-coat makers were suing him for thousands of dollars in bills run up by his wife. A sympathetic judge inspected the bag crammed with duns which Captain Nash brought into court and proceeded to say quite caustic things about Mrs. Nash, which, oddly enough, were accepted by her as compliments.

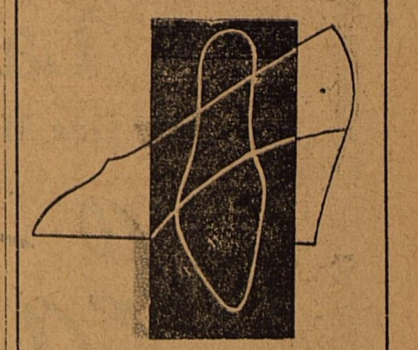

It was this British justice, as a matter of fact, who fastened upon her the title of the best-dressed and most extravagant woman in the world. The nonchalant Jean welcomed the "honor" and gave interviews on her wardrobe, asserting that she needed at least two hundred pairs of stockings (at forty dollars a pair), four fur coats and champagne champoux to keep her appearance up to par.

After divorcing Nash, she was accustomed to wear several hundred thousands dollars worth of jewelry when she visited the smart restaurants of Europe. Diamonds, rubis and emeralds sparkled in her hair, on her fingers, legs and arms. Not one but three ropes of pearls bedecked her neck. Almost the only jeweled effect she never tried was implanting diamonds in her front teeth as a rival of hers for the title of best-dressed woman did at one time.

Added to her extravagance and taste in clothes, must have been some other charm for she was constantly the subject of disputes between men. Her suitors ranged from a German baron of proud lineage to self-made American-millionaires, all ardent.

There were 2,900,000 motor vehicles scrapped in 1932.

A GAS WATER HEATER MUST PASS RIGID TESTS To Meet The Testing Laboratory Blue Star Seal!

In the photograph above a testing expert in A. G. A. testing laboratory is testing a new automatic water heater to see if it meets the Thermal Efficiency requirement.

The automatic gas water heater does its work so quietly and well that its very existence is forgotten days at a time by the entire family. Its principle is, of course, a regular cycle of water temperatures. When the maximum temperature of the water is reached, the thermostat turns off the gas, and automatically turns it on again when the temperature drops to the correct minimum. The very fact that it is automatic, silent, and hidden makes it particularly important when you purchase a new one, that it meets the exacting requirements of the American Gas Association testing laboratories for construction, performance and safety.

These requirements, though, do not necessarily add to the manufacturing and selling cost of the water heater you buy, and hence you can find a wide selection of models possessing the BLUE SEAL, at popular prices. This is likewise true of all other gas appliances, so that you do not need to feel that because you are buying a low priced appliance, you cannot expect to have a model with the BLUE SEAL affixed to the side or back of it.

Sidney, March
Rejoin Forces
In 'Good Dame'

Those two dramatic screen stars, Sylvia Sidney and Fredric March, who gave such good accounts of themselves in "Merrily We Go to Hell," are together again. This time it's another Paramount picture entitled "Good Dame." It comes to the Ritz theatre Tuesday only.

Using a colorful background, the romance of a "good" girl and a "bad" boy was written by William Lipman, Broadway playwright and for years a star columnist on the New York Herald Tribune.

Marion Gering, who directed several of the Sylvia Sidney screen vehicles, also directed "Good Dame." Waiting for her Chicago trail, Sylvia Sidney wanders over to an open-air "girl" show. Standing on the edge of a crowd watching the shrewd antics of Fredric March, grifter, gambler and general "bad" boy, her purse is stolen.

When she squawks to the boss, she is offered a job in the "dame tent." She accepts. In the meantime, she and March have met most informally.

Though he has never met a "good dame" and doesn't "believe" in love, March is drawn to this girl by an attraction he can't explain. What love does to this "good" dame and the "bad" boy brings the picture to an exciting climax. Jack LaRue heads the supporting cast.

SHEERWEAR
PROVES THAT Good things Come in THREES

- 3 lengths
- 3-ply heel
- 3-ply toe
- Triple-feature welt

• Three Lengths—TALL for you who are "five feet eight" and up. AVERAGE for "five feet four" and thereabout. SMALL for little women, five feet small, more or less.

• Three-ply heel—a neat construction that covers all points of heel wear.

• Three-ply toe—An all-around reinforcement that completely encircles the toes.

• Triple-feature welt—consisting of two-layer welt and an additional single-weight "after-welt" with garter-run stop at the base. This allows a full five inches for the safe fastening of hose supporters.

You get all these things in LaFrance Sheerwear, the chifon hosiery that wears!
Ask for it by name! $1
Truly a remarkable value at

A BETTER DEPARTMENT STORE

BEFORE EASTER Sale

We believe there isn't a store in Texas that gives you the values, every day in the year, that this store offers.

Price alone means little; you must see the merchandise, see the real value built in; for regardless of how low a price is, unless you get service, fit, style, wearability, you have nothing.

MEN'S DEPARTMENT
