Burial Site Excavated

by Joanne Eaton

When the call came to the office, from Ernest Newcomb at the museum, I could not miss the excitement in his voice. The archaeologists were back in town and John Peterson had brought him a 500-600 year old buffalo skull, to put with the Plains Village Indian Hearth on display at the museum. Ernie told me, "We now have something older than me here."

I found that John was there with him. I asked if I could talk to him, to find out a little more about the skull, and also, why the archaeologists were back in town, as I thought they were gone until fall.

John told me they were here excavating a burial site, most possibly that of an Indian woman and her child, 500 to 600 years old. "In fact," John said, "you might enjoy seeing this and getting pictures."

Would I? Now my biggest problem was figuring a way to get there, as my job usually keeps me in the office while someone else gets to do the fun jobs. I had to figure a way to convince the editor that this story needed me.

Being new in town the editor, Mike, does not know his way around our countryside. He had been to the dam site once, but with Johnnie Lee, manager of the Palo Duro River Authority, so I found my angle. He needed me to go along as a guide. (We ended up following John to the diggings, which was certainly a blessing as I never would have found it.)

As we drove across the dam we had to dodge big green gravel trucks, water trucks, road graders, and pickups. Then we wound around on little narrow roads, through a wet sand ditch, up hills, over rocks, and finally we were at the top of a cliff. I was so thankful we took Mike's pickup and not my car.

As we stepped out of the pickup I felt as if I had stepped back in time. I walked over to the grave site. A reverence passed over me as I looked down at the bones of the woman and child. They were very close to the surface. Rocks, now removed, had been piled on top of them to mark their grave.

Robin Benson, an archaeologist, began to show me the outline of the bones. "The woman was buried in the fetal position," she told me. She pointed out leg bones, collar bones, and the bones of a hand. She then showed me the outlines of two ribs and a vertebrae of a child buried by the "mother." The bones were very brittle, broken into many little pieces, and had turned to a brownish tan shade in color.

Robin went on to tell me, "The grave has been disturbed at sometime, as the skull is missing. Also, Indians usually buried clay pots with their people. We found none of these."

About this time Johnnie Lee drove up with J.C. Harris and Kenneth Evans, River Authority members.

"Well, Joanne, I see you finally made it up here," Johnnie Lee exclaimed. He knew I had been wanting to tour the area for several months. (I still haven't figured how his car made it up to where we were.)

When we asked if there were other burial sites around, John Arthur, another archaeologist explained to us, "This is probably an isolated case as there is no evidence of any of these type of Indians living in this area permanently. She was probably part of the Wolf Creek area Indians. They may have been traveling through here when the two died, so they buried them here."

The archaeology group will take the bones from the ground, wrap them in foil, put them in air bags, and take them to the Texas Archaeology Research Lab in Austin. It has a controlled environment. They will be studied further there.

John Arthur also stated, "The bones will eventually be reburied." When I told him that I had seen remains such as these on display in museums, he told me, "Complaints have put a stop to that for the most part."

After much picture taking, it was time to go. Hank, their dog, (named for Hank the Cowdog) moved lazily out of the way. I viewed the terrific view from the cliff one more time, a calm peaceful place, part of the Steele Ranch. (I felt as if I was in a scene from one of Louis L'Amour's books).

As we drove back to town, I wondered what this Indian woman would have been like and who she was. She was part of our history, a part that will always have some mystery to it.

J. C. Harris, of Gruver, Johnnie Lee, and Kenneth Evans view the Indian remains at a burial site found on the Steele Ranch.

Back at his desk, Sheriff McFarlin talks about the award he received from the Sheriff's Association of Texas.

Sheriff Receives Highest Award

Sheriff R. L. McFarlin received the Tom Tellepsen Award at the Sheriffs' Association of Texas, 111th, Annual Banquet. The banquet took place in Austin on July 25th.

The Tellepsen Award is given in honor of the late Tom Tellepsen, who was a native of Norway but became a staunch and patriotic American. While he was living, he supported law enforcement in every way possible. The Tellepsen Foundation makes the Award possible in honor of Tom Tellepsen.

This Award, which is the highest honor afforded law enforcement personnel by the Association, was established in 1975 by unanimous approval of the Foundation's trustees.

The Award consists of $1,000 and an engraved plaque. It is the highest of tributes for an officer to be selected as the recipient. It is presented annually to that person selected in recognition of outstanding contributions to the advancement of law enforcement and criminal justice. The Award is a touch of excellence honoring more than performance and more than an outstanding peace officer. The recipient of the Tom Tellepsen Award is a combination of all these outstanding qualities with still another, a human element that engraves his name in the hearts of all his fellow officers. That element is a love for his profession.

"The highlight for me was that, besides my wife (Kaye), my two daughters (Kelly Cator and Robbie Lynn McFarlin) and my grandson (Casey Cator) were there to see me receive the award," said Sheriff McFarlin. When the family heard that Sheriff McFarlin was receiving the award, they made a rushed trip to Austin to be at the banquet for the presentation.

Sheriff McFarlin would like to express his appreciation to all the citizens of Hansford County who wrote letters of appreciation to Austin on his behalf. He would especially like to thank his fellow officers for their letters and support.

Local Actress Receives Supporting Award

"My family is very supportive and proud," said Candy Boxwell, as she talked about winning the Best Supporting Actress award at the Amarillo Little Theater Awards Gala Banquet. Mrs. Boxwell accepted the award, for her role in "Equus" in March, at the Tascosa Country Club in Amarillo, on July 11th.

professionalism and quality of their productions. Mrs. Boxwell auditioned and got the role of Fairy Godmother in "Cinderella," in April of 1988. This was the start that led to her winning the Best Supporting Actress Award for the "Equus" production in March of 1989.

Mrs. Boxwell became interested in acting when she was in high school. After graduation, she let that interest wane. Participating in the Spearman "Fruit Cake Review," to raise money for the Chamber of Commerce and the Activity Center, rekindled that interest.

Mrs. Boxwell gave three reasons why she was able to rehearse and perform in a city 90 miles from her home. The director was very sensitive to the distance she had to drive, and did not schedule her for rehearsals every night. Second, she said, "I am a stay at home mother and can spend the day with the kids." Finally, Mrs. Boxwell said, "Fortunately, I'm a night person and don't mind driving home at 2 a.m."

This rekindling led her to the Amarillo Little Theater group. They impressed her with the Maxine Banister returned Sunday after a few days in Colorado. Her grandson, Brent Banister, and his mother, Janice Black, of Brady, came by on Wednesday and they drove up Thursday.

The occasion was a three-day celebration of the 50th wedding anniversary of some old friends. It started with a bar-b-que at the ranch near Steamboat Springs and ended with a reception in Steamboat Springs.

Maxine was pleased that her nephew, Mike Crawford, of Rangely, Colorado, could also attend.

Darlene Pierce is enjoying every day for a couple of weeks since her son, James is here. James is pursuing a musical career in New York City.

To add to their pleasure, her daughter, Darlita and Danny Ellis, with sons, Daniel and Dustin, will be coming this weekend. Midland is the home of the Ellis family.

June and Earl Spencer are back in Spearman after a few days in Kansas City. They visited his brother and other relatives.

They were accompanied by their son, Jeff, and a new boss, grandson Andrew Theron. He lives at Fort Worth with his mother, Earla, but shared the vacation with his grandparents.

Far off Hahn, West Germany was the arrival point for the first grandchild of Trudie and Terry Schneider. On July 26 at the Hahn Air Force Base, Marly Rene made her appearance, weighing 9 lbs.

Her parents are Sheila and Steve Loveless, and her other grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. James Loveless of Elgin, Illinois. Her great-grandmother is Mrs. Alta Faye Harrelson of Mesa, Arizona.

Being as thrilled as any grandparent in her first role as aunt is, Kari Schneider, sister of Sheila.

Steve and Sheila are both serving in the U.S. Air Force and Sheila's tour of duty will be over in October.

Lucile Allen spent several days this week enjoying the peace and quiet at Bula, Colorado. She accompanied her sisters, Louise Vaught and Edna Bassel, of Amarillo.

About three vacations combined into one is that just concluded by Albert and Sheila LaRoche and family. They returned the latter part of the week from a trip of three weeks and through 23 states. Children, Alisha, Amber, and Albert III will certainly have a good knowledge of U.S. geography when the pieces all fall into place. Not to be ignored on the trip is Lucy, the family dog. She took an interest in all the sights and sounds and importantly acted as guard.

First stopping at Oklahoma City, they drove on to Memphis, Tennessee touring Graceland there, and the Hermitage at Nashville. Then through several states until they reached Niagara Falls, New York. Al and the children, took a boat trip that took them under the Falls of Canada.

They stopped in Deerfield, New Hampshire where Albert's mom and step-dad and two sisters live. Then it was back on the road for their ultimate destination, Groveton, New Hampshire, where Albert was reared and near where his brother still lives. The children would have gladly remained there - in his lively, rural period home on the banks of a river where wildlife abound. On the return trip to Deerfield, a stop was made at the Canterbury Shaker's Village which Alisha had studied in her APT class in school.

After that they went down the east coast to New York City, right through the middle. Albert had driven in New York City before, but since he has been driving in the Panhandle so long, it was indeed an ordeal - as was the New Jersey Turnpike.

Through the Chesapeake Bay Bridge and Tunnel, they went to Virginia Beach, Virginia and on to Ft. Walton Beach, Florida, where Sheila has a sister.

The last leg of the journey was through Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and back to Texas, and finally Spearman.

Bivens To Discuss Session At I.V.'s

State Senator Teel Bivins, R-Amarillo, will discuss the recently concluded special session and the worker's compensation reform effort at a luncheon Monday at I.V.'s Hungry Cowboy in Spearman.

The meeting will begin at 11:30 a.m. and the public is encouraged to attend.

Senator Bivins worked diligently during the 71st Legislature and the special session for the positive worker's compensation reform measures contained in House Bill 1.

"I believe that the elimination of trial de novo, allowing self-insurance, strengthening the Industrial Accident Board and renewing a commitment to safety all must be in the final bill that we adopt," said Bivins. "It is essential that we solve this problem in order to restore a positive economic climate to Texas."

Because the legislature failed to pass a worker's compensation reform bill, Governor Clements has indicated he will call lawmakers back to Austin for a second special session in November.

Bivins will be discussing the effort to produce a viable worker's compensation reform bill as he visits with constituents in Dumas, Stratford, Spearman and Perryton.

Hansford County was well represented at the District I Fashion Show this past Monday, July 24. Seven 4-H'ers modeled before several different judges in order to receive special awards at the evening's activities. The theme this year was Mardi Gras and it was a big celebration to the 4-H'ers who participated because they had finished a project and were proud to show it off.

There are several categories, age groups, and divisions in this contest. Those entered in the junior group were Kathy Slough. She made a short outfit in the Active Playwear category. She received a blue award and placed in the Top 4 of her category. Mika is the daughter of Vernon and Marsha Pipkin of Spearman.

In the Intermediate age group was Shariet Slough. She made a dress for church or 8th grade graduation in a floral print for the Dressy Daywear category. She received a blue award and placed in the Top 4 of her category. Mika is the daughter of Kenneth and Alice Slough of Gruver.

Several entered the Senior division. Cinda Turner made an earth tone shorts set that she entered in the Daytime Non-tailored category. She received a blue and was chosen for her group to compete for the best cotton award. Cinda is the daughter of Phillip and Molly Turner of Spearman. Karla Kunselman made a red and white check top and skirt with the added touch of latex biking shorts for the Active Sportswear category. She received a blue award and was asked from this category to compete for Best Model and placed in the Top 4 of her category. Karla is the daughter of Carl and Janie Kunselman of Spearman. Bonnie Jarvis designed a green sequin formal for the Evening Wear category. She received a blue award and was asked to compete for Best Model in this category. She placed in the Top 4 of her category. Bonnie went on to win the Evening Wear category and Best Model of the Seniors. Bonnie is the daughter of Britt and Linda Jarvis of Spearman.

The past several years a buying division has been added to the contest. Michelle Cook purchased a blouse and shorts to mix and match with her current wardrobe. It was entered in the Daytime Non-tailored category. She received a blue award and placed in the Top 4 of this category. Michelle is the daughter of Ron and Loretto Cook of Spearman.

The Seniors can advance on to State competition. Bonnie won in Evening Wear, so she will be traveling to Tyler for the State 4-H Fashion Show. It will be held on August 17, 18, 19. She has an excellent chance of winning this category.

We wish Bonnie excellence at State and are very proud of each 4-H'er who took the time to sew or purchase an outfit in order to compete at the District level. Their rewards are many, but their skills and knowledge are for ever.

amount of $127,500. from various anonymous donors.

Mayor Pearson explained that the main reason why the City is involved with the donations for the Community Building, "is that we are qualified under the IRS Code in being a tax deductible entity." Mayor Pearson also stated that, "In order to accept the donations for the purpose, it must be approved by the City Council."

The Community Building will have to be under a construction contract within one year or the gifts, including interest, will be refunded to the donors. Also, the Spearhead Foundation may oversee the construction and operations of the Community Building.

A motion was made by Boxwell to approve the form of the escrow agreement for a limited purpose of building a Community Building, and to accept the donations in the amount of $127,500. It was seconded by Cudd, and unanimously carried.

Next was a status report from the City Council's Committee reviewing the Spearman Volunteer Fire Department's Organization.

Bill Porter, Fire Chief, reported that he had visited with several old members that may be interested in returning to the Department and had several prospects of new members.

A workshop on the 1989-90 proposed annual budget was the third bit of business. The 1989-90 proposed budget was presented to the Mayor and City Council. Discussion of the budget was held, with no action being taken.

Fourth order of business was consideration of the monthly fire report. A motion was made by Boxwell to approve the monthly fire report for June as presented. With a second by Buchanan, the motion was unanimously carried.

Consideration of the monthly bills payable and current cash position was fifth order of business. A motion was made by Cudd to approve the monthly bills paid in the amount of $322,851.66. It was seconded by Reed, and was unanimously carried.

The last order of business was setting the meeting dates for August. The dates of August 8th and the 22nd were agreed on. The meeting was then adjourned.

A hearth dating from AD 1200 to AD 1400 is on display at the Station Master's House Museum. Also with the hearth is part of a buffalo skull that is 600 years old. Both were found by archaeologists at the Palo Duro Creek area project.

Discoveries At Palo Duro

Editor's Note: John Peterson, one of the Archaeologists studying the Palo Duro Creek area wrote the following description of what Indian life was like at the time a found hearth was constructed. The hearth is on display at the Station Master's House Museum.

Plains Village Indians lived in the Southern Plains from AD 1200 to AD 1400. These Indians are called the Antelope Creek people in the Texas Panhandle because of their distinctive villages that were first studied along Antelope Creek near Fritch, Texas.

The Antelope Creek settlements along Palo Duro Creek are different than those near the Canadian River to the south, at Wolf Creek to the east, or at Optima Reservoir to the north. There are no foundations of Plains Village house ruins along Palo Duro Creek. Instead, what archaeolo-gists have found there are scatters of fire burned rock from simple hearths along with the debris of flint chips from the manufacture of arrow points, cutting flakes, and scraping tools.

We know there were many bison along Palo Duro Creek. Early European explorers always reported them at or near Palo Duro Creek even when they were sparse on the rest of the Plains. Some of the bison bone that is now eroding from the banks of Palo Duro Creek is from animals that died during the Antelope Creek phase. They were hunted for meat, hides, and bone.

Because of their local abundance where the Ogallala Aquifer created an oasis in a dry region, we now think that the Antelope Creek people came to Palo Duro in the spring and fall to hunt the bison. They stayed long enough to kill and butcher their game, and then returned to their permanent homes.

Indeed, when Coronado visited the Southern Plains in 1542, his chroniclers report that he encountered just such a group of hunting Teya Indians in the area of Adobe Walls who then directed him to their villages to the east.

This hearth was built by the Antelope Creek people in the period from AD 1200 to AD 1400. They may have used the slab construction to make an efficient oven for roasting meat or the roots of yucca. The central rock would have "stored" the heat for a longer time for thorough cooking. Only a few of these hearths have been found on the Southern Plains. Those that have been found date from the same period and they are found isolated from Antelope Creek villages. They may have been part of the hunting settlement of these prehistoric Indians.
