Planning the Summer Campaign

BAPTIST MEETING WILL PROBABLY CLOSE SUNDAY

The Baptist revival meeting, which has been in progress at the city tabernacle the past two weeks, will probably come to a close the latter part of the week. Rev. R. E. Smith, of Waco, assisted by singer, Rev. Cowles, and pianist, Miss Smith, have worked hard and faithfully during the progress of the meeting, and although there has been only a few conversions to date, it is evident that their labors have not been in vain. Rev. Smith's plain gospel messages have been received favorably by the people of every denomination, and if there were any church members who were not inspired by his gospel messages and who within their own hearts failed to find a responsive chord, there was something wrong and we are surprised.

The News feels that Tahoka and surrounding territory has been greatly helped by the meeting and much good has been done for the cause of the various churches in the town of Tahoka.

He is known as a clean boxer, and wherever he has staged a battle, he is always asked to return again.

Her aged father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Caton of Stamford, were here at the time of her death, but were unable to attend the funeral at Tahoka, leaving here for their home Friday at noon, the long ride to Tahoka being too much for them to add to their already unbearable grief.

Deceased was forty-seven years of age, and leaves a husband and six children to mourn her loss.—Lubbock Avalanche.

Jesse Key returned Monday from a pleasure trip to Abilene.

Williams has already proven that he is a speaker of the gospel of unusual ability. Large crowds attended both day and night services held last summer.

All the singers of the town and community are invited to take part in the song service. The meeting will continue for two weeks.

Foreign Advertising Representative THE AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

The News is this week printing the primary election results in tabulated form for the benefit of our readers who want to see how each candidate run in the various precincts.

Cotton jumped to $8.50 a bale at New Orleans, Wednesday. The Department of Agriculture report placed the condition of the growing crop at 70.8 per cent of normal.

The old chap, or young, who thinks he is so well known that advertising is not necessary—that chap is a goner, for the public wants and expects advertising, and the better a man or company is known, the more advertising is expected.—Ex.

Give the other fellow a chance. Don't get the idea that you are the only toad in the puddle—the other fellow thinks he ought to have a little elbow room—and he is right. No man is so big but he can be dispensed with—and never be missed in tussle of life.—Higgins News.

The Tahoka High School has been granted 13 credits of affiliation. The Tahoka people secure good instructors, pays them good salaries, and therefore keeps them long enough to work up a good school.—Brownfield Herald.

In spite of the hot dry weather the weed crop on the vacant lots of the city continue to flourish. We are of the opinion that a city ordinance should be passed requiring the owners of property to keep it clean and free from weeds. It can be done, and it ought to be done.

An unknown man was found dead in the outskirts of a small town. A search disclosed $100 in money and a revolver on the person of the unfortunate young man. An inquest was held and $75 was taken for burial expenses after which the police judge fined the corpse $25 for carrying concealed weapons and confiscated the revolver.—Ex. the bulletin board.

Lamesa and Lubbock papers announce that the K. K. K's. have organizations in their towns. At Lubbock the Klan's marched in a church and presented the preacher with a nice donation. We suppose Tahoka will be the next town in this section to bob up with the tribe. At times such an organization could be put to good use here.

Over at Paducah they have organized a retail merchants association, and have adopted a motto that "He cannot owe me until he pays the other fellow." Why not the Tahoka business men organize and adopt this slogan. There would doubtless be a number who would be cut off from credit who otherwise is allowed to "ride for months and even years. The News would like to see such an organization perfected here.

It has been asked what is wrong with the Tahoka Chamber of Commerce. It seems that this body has gone to sleep. We should put our shoulders to the wheel and look after those things that are of vital importance to the welfare and advancement of the town and community. Tahoka has already gained some wide publicity and the wheels of progress should be kept in motion.

You people who like to read the paper, but who borrow it from your neighbor each week, should return the favor. Why not subscribe awhile and loan it to some neighbor who is not now taking it, so as to sort of even things up. It is true your neighbor is kindly and lets you have his paper, sometimes before he has finished reading it himself, but don't you know his family has remarked a hundred times about the way people borrow, and they have wondered why, if the paper is worth borrowing at all isn't it worth subscribing for?

Tahoka should make arrangements to secure Sunday mail. Our sister city—Brownfield, to the west of us has secured this service by automobile to Lubbock and return. Why not the chamber of commerce take the matter under consideration. We are entitled to Sunday mail the same as other towns in this section. Let some enterprising citizen start the ball to rolling. Tahoka has a bunch of business men that can put it over.

The Commissioners court of Lynn county have hired a public health nurse. This is a step in the right direction, for the health of the people is the first step in the happiness and contentment of the people. There are lots of things people need to know, not only in regards to how the sick be nursed, but also how to prevent sickness among the people.—Terry County Herald.

The above article printed by the Herald is correct with the exception that the nurse was not secured by the Commissioners' court, but is sent out by the State, and she will be taken care of by the good citizens of Lynn county during her stay here.

Tahoka should go after the trade in Tahoka trade territory, which rightfully belongs here. It would surprise many local citizens to know just how much trade goes to other nearby towns not in Lynn county. These outside merchants are using every available means to secure this trade that should and would come to Tahoka if the proper inducements were offered. The time has come when merchants have to reach out and offer special inducements to the farmers to make this their trading point and also provide a ready market for their produce. If Tahoka expects to grow and prosper as it should, the business men will be forced to act at once in this matter and bring trade here that belongs in Tahoka.

Lubbock county commissioners still refuse to fix up the highway running south out of Lubbock to the Lynn county line. The News has been reliably informed that the commissioner that has this particular stretch of highway under his jurisdiction resides in Slaton, and it is indeed doubtful if the road will ever receive attention, since he no doubt is not sufficiently interested in our section to care a great deal about the deplorable condition of the road. It is also very probable that this commissioner residing in Slaton would just a little rather traffic would be directed by Slaton than through Tahoka coming south out of Lubbock,—naturally so. There should be some means other than thru this lone commissioner to get action and have this main highway placed in proper condition. It is no uncommon thing for the traveler to remark on the splendid condition of Lynn county roads, but under existing conditions, it is hardly worth while for Lynn county to have first-class pikes when you can't get anywhere after you cross the line.

CUTTING OFF THE ENGINE

While riding on a train recently, William Wrigley was approached by a man who addressed him: "Pardon me, Mr. Wrigley, but do you know you are wasting a lot of money?" Mr. Wrigley, always anxious to learn anything about his own business, asked in return, "How?" "Why, in advertising!" the man replied. "Your product is so well known you do not need to advertise." "My good man," Mr. Wrigley said, "do you know what would happen if we were to cut the engine off this train?"

"The train would coast along for awhile and then stop, I suppose." "Exactly," replied Mr. Wrigley, and that's exactly what my business would do if I would cut off advertising. Advertising is the engine that furnishes the motive power for my business."

WITH OUR EXCHANGES

The Lynn County News at Tahoka last week announced the installation of a linotype, and states that with this improvement it hopes to give still better service to its patrons. The News has had a remarkable growth under the editorship and ownership of R. B. Haynes, and it is reported that much of its success has been due to the efficient assistance of Mrs. Haynes.—Amarillo Daily News.

We received a copy of the Lynn County News, published at Tahoka, this week, and found it a very interesting publication. Tahoka has won the reputation of being one of the very best and most progressive towns anywhere in the country. They recently installed a power and light plant and water works, and now have voted bonds to pave the business section, and yet Tahoka is only a fraction larger than Pampa. Tahoka is a jam-up good town and the Lynn County News, which has just installed a new linotype, is keeping up with the town.—Pampa Weekly News.

The Lynn County News has recently installed a linotype machine to take the place of the old hand set method of type setting. Bob told his readers all about the new arrival in last week's issue of the News, the paper being set on the new machine. He is proud of it and so are his friends. During the several years that he has been editor and owner of the News he has given the people of Tahoka one of the best community papers to be found anywhere in Texas but with the aid of his machine will be able to give them a much better newspaper than he has ever done in the past. We are sure the people of his city appreciate the News and its owner and we wish for them continued success.—Lorenzo Enterprise.

PLAINS HAS "PEP".

Plains towns are enterprising and have so much "pep" that it is astonishing to East and Central Texas people. For instance, the small town of Tahoka is soon to let the contract for paving its streets. It recently installed a modern lighting plant. It is just such a git-up-and-git spirit that is making the Plains the fastest growing section of the Southwest. We Plainsmen believe in our country, and we are willing to back our judgment with money and energy.—Plainview News.

The Panhandle-Plains towns have the enthusiasm. That is something that is commented upon by every one who visits this region. Scores of persons, who were never before in West Texas, were enabled to get an insight of it at the annual convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce in Plainview recently. They learned that the Panhandle is a land that is not barren and that it raises enough grass for cattle, contrary to the belief of some members of the Texas legislature. But its superiority is not alone evident from the point of stock raising and agriculture; it is taking leadership for progressive towns.—Amarillo Daily News.

The more a girl pulls a young man's leg while single the tighter he will draw the purse strings after marriage. It is the only method of evening up the score.

The average young man with a best girl has to cough up lively these days. He has to put up a front in order to outdistance his rivals and remain in the running.

Coughing up is his specialty, and many girls are experts in leading him up to the coughery.

But it don't pay the girl. Pulling his leg for endless treats may be a great sport while it lasts, but it doesn't last long and it leaves a bad impression.

Even a very young man looks beyond the day when the preacher ties the knot.

Maidenhood should do no less.—McLean News.

The Lynn County News, published by R. B. Haynes at Tahoka, and one of the leading newspapers of the great South Plains, announces the installation of a Linotype machine recently. Editor Haynes' paper has taken on an improved appearance since the installation of this wonderful type-casting machine, and he will be in better position to take care of his rapidly growing business. Mr. Haynes is one of the most popular newspaper men in this section, a good business man, a booster for his town and county and holds the esteem of all who know him.—Slaton Slatonite.

The News man appreciates these few words from the pen of our fellow editor, friend and neighbor, William Donald, of the Slatonite, also the other nice things that have been said about us in other papers recently. Flowers for the living is something worth while. It is worth much more to receive words of praise while on this earth, than after one has passed over the river. We naturally take a new hold on life and our burdens are not so hard to bear.

Interesting Powder Horn Map. A map engraved on an old powder horn may lead to the location of the sites of several Cherokee Indian towns in western North Carolina, according to the Bureau of American Ethnology at Washington. The powder horn is a loan from Hugh Kirk, Newtownards, County Down, Ireland, and dates from about 1760 when the English were beginning to open up the Cherokee region. It belonged to James Grant, member of a company of British soldiers stationed near Charlestown and near Fort Gibson and Fort Prince George in the Cherokee country about the time that these forts were besieged. The horn is elaborately engraved with the royal arms of Great Britain and the map showing the ancient town of Ucaassee and other towns in the region in which the soldier saw service.

SENSIBLE BATHING SUITS; MANY QUAIN REVIVALS

THERE are bathing suits and bathing suits, some of them destined by their designers for bathers who "go out to swim," and others apparently for those who "hang their clothes on a hickory limb but don't go near the water." These last are the colorful and interesting beach suits, made to be cool and worth looking at. Between the regulation swimming suits and the beach suits are all those sensible and practical bathing suits of knitted or woven wool, like those shown in the picture, that are worn by the great majority of people.

For all their sports women have come to demand sensible and comfortable clothes, but they insist that the vary and accent their costumes, neckwear just now holds first place, and the guimpe, sleeveless or otherwise, commands most attention. It often usurps the place of the blouse and is shown with round or tuxedo collar, vestee or jabot front, made of net, usually and trimmed with lace and tucks. An example of the popular net guimpe is shown in the group of accessories pictured.

The Peter Pan collar and simple collars longer than the Peter Pan are developed in net, marquisette and scrim also in batiste and a few heavier fabrics. Old fashioned embroidery and little round collars have been resurrected, so that, if one pos-element of style be not forgotten in any of them. Therefore, manufacturers see to it that even bathing suits are attractive as well as practical, and designers have an eye to the several types of figures to be suited. The average figure looks well in a regulation bathing suit. They are made with varied neck lines and arm's-eyes, and many other little details are managed to help out in the matter of becomingness.

The pretty suit at the left of the two pictured is made of dark blue wool jersey and has knee length trunks attached to a form-fitting overgarment that reaches nearly to the knees. It has a round neck line and wide, shaped shoulder straps that butresses an heirloom, now is the time to wear it.

There is an immense variety in fashions. Those for evening include gauze and lace mounted on shell, ivory, and transparent celluloid sticks. Spangles still twinkle and painted flowers still bloom on these gauze and lace fans and they vary greatly in size and shape. Very pretty little affairs are made by palting small palmleaf fans a light color, binding them with narrow satin ribbon shirred on and winding the handles with ribbon. They are further decked out with little nose-gays of gay organdie or millinery flowers.

ton at the front. Black hose and black bathing shoes are worn with this modest suit, and it needs only a close-fitting, rubber cap to insure its wearer complete comfort in the water.

Two colors appear in the youths' suit at the right. The trunks, of the dark color, are shorter than knee length, and the arm's-eye is built out by a band in the overgarment. White stockings rolled down at the top and black bathing shoes are worn with it.

But beads of all kinds, lead by beautiful pearls, remain the most popular of all adornments. The fad just now is for three strands fastened with one clasp.

Curious Fire Engine.

What might be described as a double-tandem bicycle, with four wheels arranged like those of a wagon, and four seats for riders, two in front and two behind, and carrying a hose reel, rotary pump, etc., was exhibited recently in Paris. The machine is intended as a fire engine in small towns. When the scene of fire is reached the pedals are thrown into gear with the pump, the hose is unrolled, and the riders, resuming their seats, work the pump by means of the pedals. It is claimed that this machine can outstrip any fire engine drawn by horses on the way to a conflagration, and that its pump is at least as effective as those of the hand engines used in many towns.

Woman suffragists in Serbia, writes Mrs. Sacko Grouitch, wife of the Jugoslav minister to the United States, interest themselves not only in legislation that give women equality before the law, but are also sponsoring legislation for the protection of child labor. The memory of the soldier Mallet, who was sentenced in 1915 to death in contumacious for having deserted to the enemy, has now definitely been cleared of all stain by the Mourges Military tribunal. Mallet's case was pathetic. He fell in battle and his body was afterward identified among others buried at Auberive on the Marne. On hearing that her husband was a deserter Mallet's wife died of grief and her two orphan boys were taken care of by their grandfather. Think of a great European country, with a population of 40,000,000 persons, in which the telephone is so poorly developed that two telephone directories will contain the names of all the subscribers. Such is the state of affairs in France, where the government, which operates the service, issues one directory for Paris and one for the rest of the country. Both books together contain fewer names than there are in the Chicago telephone directory.

How baldness was cured by doses of thyroid gland is described in the Lancet by Dr. H. W. Barber, physician in charge of the skin department at Guy's hospital. As a result hair is now growing freely over the whole of her scalp.

GRAPE-NUTS is a regular "three bags full" of the best food qualities of whole wheat flour and malted barley, carefully mixed and slowly baked—

- To preserve all their wholesomeness,
- And to provide nature's "broom" that keeps the digestive system quick and span.

There's not a bit of artificial sweetening in Grape-Nuts—it just becomes sweet of its own accord in the long baking.

And that enticing flavor—how good it is with good milk or cream! Fruits, too, fresh or cooked, add to the delight of a dish of Grape-Nuts, morning, noon or sundown.

It is a compact, ready-to-eat food—no cooking needed. Why not try it for tomorrow's breakfast?

Mary Marie

By ELEANOR H. PORTER

of all the topsy-turvy worlds, the topsy-turviest, I am sure, so they want me to do, and they want me to be? Oh, I was just a plain Susie or Rose, not a cross-curve and a countess, with a father that wants one thing and a mother that wants to be another! It was bad before, when Father wanted me to be Mary, and Mother wanted me to be Marie. But now—to begin at the beginning, over—the love story, I mean, now now why it's been so hard to remember to be Mary and everything is different, and all I don't want me to be Mary.

Now I don't know what to do if Mother's going to want me to be Marie, how am I going to what anybody wants, ever? It was getting to be such a love story—Father and Cousin Grace. And now—

But he didn't interrupt at all. He did not even stir until I said how at the last she bought me the homely shoes and the plain dark suit so I could go as Mary, and be Mary when Aunt Jane first saw me get off the train.

When I said that, he dropped his hand and turned around and stared at me. And there was such a funny look in his eyes. Then he got up and began to walk up and down the piazza, muttering: "So you came as Mary, you came as Mary." Then, after a minute, he gave a funny little laugh and sat down.

Mrs. Small came up the front walk then to see Cousin Grace, and Father told her to go right into the library where Cousin Grace was. So we were left alone again, after a minute.

It was "most dark on the piazza, but I could see Father's face in the light from the window; and it looked—well, I'd never seen it look like that before. It was as if something that had been on it for years had dropped off and left it clear where before it had been blurred and indistinct. No, that doesn't exactly describe it either, I can't describe it. But I'll go on and say what he said.

After Mrs. Small had gone into the house, and he saw that she was sitting down with Cousin Grace in the library, he turned to me and said: "And so you came as Mary?"

I said yes, I did. "Well, I—I got ready for Marie." "But then I didn't quite understand, not even when I looked at him and saw the old understanding twinkle in his eyes.

"You mean—you thought I was coming as Marie, of course," I said then. "Yes," he nodded. "But I came as Mary."

"I see now that you did. Well, Mary, you've told me your story, so I suppose I may as well tell you mine—now. You see, I not only got ready for Marie, but I had planned to keep her Marie, and not let her be Mary—at all."

And then he told me. He told me how he'd never forgotten that day in the parlor when I cried and he saw then how hard it was for me to live room and shut the door. I heard it. And he was still there when I went up to bed afterward.

How do you suppose Mother's going to feel when I tell her that after all her pains Father didn't like it at all. He wanted me to be Marie. It's a shame, after all the pains she took. But I won't write it to her, anyway. Maybe I won't have to tell her, unless she asks me.

Oh, dear sus me! Why couldn't Father and Mother have been just the common live-happy-ever-after kind, or else found out before they married that they were unlike?

SEPTEMBER Well, vacation is over, and I go back to Boston tomorrow. It's been very nice and I've had a good time, in spite of being so mixed up as to whether I was Mary or Marie. It wasn't so bad as I was afraid it would be. Very soon after Father and I had that talk on the piazza, Cousin Grace took me down to the store and bought me two new white dresses, and the dearest little pair of shoes I ever saw. She said Father wanted me to have them.

And that's all—every single word that's been said about that Mary-and-Marie business. And even that didn't really say anything—not by name. And Cousin Grace never mentioned it again. And Father never mentioned it at all. Not a word.

Father's been queer. He's been awfully queer. Some days he's talked a lot with me—asked me questions just as he used to, all about what I did in Boston, and Mother, and the people that come there to see her, and every thing. And he spoke of the violinist again, and, of course this time I told him all about him, and that he didn't come any more, nor Mr. Easterbrook, either; and Father was so interested. Why, it seemed sometimes as if he just couldn't hear enough about things. Then, all of a sudden, at times, he'd get right up in the middle of something I was saying and act as if he was just waiting for me to finish my sentence so he could go. And he did go, just as soon as I had finished my sentence. And after that, maybe he wouldn't hardly speak to me again for a whole day.

And so that's why I say he's been so queer since that night on the piazza. But most of the time he's been lovely, perfectly lovely. And so has Cousin Grace. And I've had a beautiful time.

CHAPTER VIII

Which is the Real Love Story.

BOSTON. FOUR DAYS LATER.

Well, here I am again in Boston, Mother and the rest met me at the station, and everybody seemed glad to see me, just as they did before. And I was glad to see them. But I didn't feel anywhere near so excited, and sort of crazy, as I did last year. I tried to, but I couldn't. I don't know why. Maybe it was because I'd been Marie all summer, anyway, so I wasn't so crazy to be Marie now, not needing any rest from being Mary. Maybe it was 'cause I sort of hated to leave Father.

And I did hate to leave him, especially when I found he hated to have me leave him. And he did. He told me so at the junction. He asked me how I had been a little happier there with him this year than last; and he said he hoped I had.

He said I would never know how he missed me after I went last year. He said you never know how you missed things—and people—till they were gone. And I wondered if, by the way he said it, he wasn't thinking of Mother more than he was of me, and of her going long ago. And I told him of my going long ago. And I told him I loved him dearly, and I had loved to be with him this summer, and that I'd stay his whole six months with him next year if he wanted me to.

He shook his head at that; but he did look happy and pleased, and said I'd never know how glad he was that I'd said that, and that he should prize it very highly—the love of his little daughter. He said you never know how to prize love, either, till you've lost it; and he said he'd learned his lesson, and he'd learned it well. I knew then, of course, that he was thinking of Mother and the long ago. And I felt so sorry for him.

(TO BE CONTINUED)

"And So You Came as Mary?"

here, with him so absorbed in his work and Aunt Jane so stern in her black dress. And he said I put it very vividly when I talked about being Marie in Boston, and Mary here, and he saw just how it was. And so he thought and thought about it all winter, and wondered what he could do. And after a time it came to him—he'd let me be Marie here; that is, he'd try to make it so I could be Marie. And he was just wondering how he was going to get Aunt Jane to help him when she was sent for and asked to go to an old friend who was sick.

And he told her to go, by all means to go. Then he got Cousin Grace to come here. He said he knew Cousin Grace, and he was sure she would know how to help him to let me stay Marie. So he talked it over with her—and she would let me laugh, and sing and play the piano all I wanted to, and wear the clothes I brought with me, and be just as near as I could be the way I was in Boston.

"And to think after all my preparation for Marie, you should be Mary!" she said, when I came, she finished, already, when you came." "Father had covered his eyes with his hand, as if thinking and thinking, as hard as he could. And I suppose it did seem queer to him, that he should be trying to make me Marie, and all the while Mother was trying to make me Mary. And it seemed so to me, as I began to think it over.

"And so your mother—did that," Father muttered; and there was the queer little catch in his breath again. He didn't say any more, not a single word. And after a minute he got up and went into the library where Mrs. Small and Cousin Grace were talking. Small and Cousin Grace were talking. He went straight upstairs to his own

Many Wear Purple

All Shades Fashionable for Mid-lady's Outdoor Togs.

Women Must Carefully Consider Complexion in Making Choice of Tint to Be Worn.

All the shades of purple are to be intensely fashionable this summer in outdoor garb. Purples, violets, lavender, orchid and mauve are replacing the strong yellow tones which ran riot a year ago. In the exclusive shops violet silk sweaters pose beside silk gingham and check lavender and white; and these are enchanting pastime hats of purple straw trimmed with bunches of parma violets, for wear with violet homespun suits and with frocks of lavender handkerchief linen.

Now to wear any shade of purple successfully one must be either vivid and dark in coloring—with clear skin and dark hair and eyebrows; or ethereal if the blonde type. Sallow brunettes and faded blondes are at their very worst in any shade of violet, mauve or lavender. So every woman who hankers after a purple outfit is looking to her complexion these days. There is something in the very suggestion of blue or lavender that calls up a thought of unusual daintiness and rather spiritual loveliness. Imagine a ruddy-faced fat woman in mauve or orchid. Or a thin, sallow-faced woman in a hat heaped with violets! To wear violet or any of its shades one must be youngish and fair-skinned and dainty, or of that olderly type which has daintiness and grace combined with silvery hair and a complexion not fine or weather beaten.

If you want to look poetic in lavender this summer, begin now and diet. Avoid butter and gravy and let up a bit on red meats. And never think of chocolate in candy or cake or sundae. Consume plenty of fresh salads and fruit. Drink milk rather than coffee. Take salted nuts instead of dessert—you'll be just as well satisfied. And you'll see your face taking more delicate contours almost immediately—and a sweeter fairness. Try to be in bed by 10 o'clock at least three nights a week—to make your eyes brighter and more soft and liquid as young eyes are.

And give a little personal attention to the skin. Winter with its harsh winds, its late hours and lack of fresh air, its heavy, rich foods, and the lack of perspiration through cold months when one lives mostly in dry, artificial heat, has taken its toll out of the complexion. It needs warm water and cleansing cream every night; and perhaps—if one is over 30—a good tissue cream three times a week. Stroke the cream gently over and under the eyes to remove the puffy, buggy look caused by late hours, and stroke upward from the chin to coax away any tendency toward sagging and resultant "jowls" that spoil the delicacy of contour that becomes violet thin.

Nothing can compete with the gingham frock for morning wear. This is one of lavender and white check.

MUSLIN FOR GIRLS' DRESSES

Unbleached Material Splendid for Play Frocks; Various Embellishments Are Available.

The practicality of unbleached muslin needs no aid, and is therefore easily understandable as a medium for girls' play frocks. This obvious quality—which does not make for handiness—is entirely overcome by the use of delightful embellishments, such as cretonne applications, worsted embroideries and tinted linen applications.

One firm showed a group of these dresses, which lay their origin to Paul Poiret. The dresses included a number that were made for fourteen-year-old girls, and, like the smaller sizes, also showed bloomer attachments.

Large motifs of cretonne patterns, such as birds, flowers and trees, are cut out and applied to the dress, which is of the simplest silk composition, worn with and without white. Worsteds stitching is frequently introduced, forming a line of continuity in the applied figures. One model introduced a motif worked out in painted linen.

Parasol Handles. Parasol handles are as varied and interesting as the covers, some being hand painted, many hand carved and some studded with semiprecious stones.

FEATHERS AND FLOWERS

Feathers are employed in almost unexpected manner in this original parasol. A double ruffling of silk follows the outline, while beautifully blended flowers adorn one corner. The orchid hat is embroidered in wool.

ORGANDIES POPULAR IN FRANCE

Fabric Promise to Have Definite Revival; Picturesque and Smart Designs Hold Over.

It is at Cannes that the really warm weather fashions, originated in Paris, are first seen, and judging from the opening season there, a very good Housekeeping Magazine, one of the most interesting features is that organdie is going to have a very definite revival. In France, organdie has two moods—the picturesque and the smart. In its former mood, we find it in dainty summer dresses in white or colors, with bonnet or "petal" paneled skirts below a simple, short-sleeved corsage. It is girdled with gold or silver ribbon, flower wreaths or beads, and one occasionally sees the white organdie frock with a "sweet blue ribbon" at the waist. Then, again, it becomes a party to the Parisienne's love of the unexpected, and joins forces with black felt and becomes a typically Parisian hat. A very smart costume had a white organdie overblouse, with an undership of green crepe marocain of which the plain wide belt was also of crepe marocain and caught with a large gold buckle. The variations of the organdie mode are many and extend to the entire wardrobe.

Hats made wholly or partly of the same material are worn with these organdie frocks, in either matching or contrasting colors. Many wide picture hats are made of white or colored organdie and a new departure is the black organdie hat, trimmed with great flowers made of soft, brilliant colored quills, clusters of bright quills, or huge, soft artificial flowers. Many have the shirred brim, which is peculiar in that it may be pulled or shaped anew each time it is worn—the stiff shirring holding it in position. Lavin features great flowers of tinted organdie, on hats of crin or crepe de chine, the crisp petals being formed with the greatest precision.

Organdie is also used in the unusual collars, cuffs, vest and sleeves, which one sees on many of the kasha or serge frocks to which the Parisienne is still faithful, and is the inevitable accompaniment of the linen frocks one sees at the resorts.

SUMMER TUB SILK DRESSES

Shirting Material is Being Used; is Also Suitable for Dresses for the Children.

Tub silk dresses are in vogue this summer, and while washable crepes are much to the fore, perhaps the most practical and least expensive of these dresses are made of shirting silks. The same silks that are usually sold for men's shirts are being bought in large quantities by women for their own appareling, and dainty and serviceable dresses for children are also made of these shirting silks. Whether for children or grownups, tub silk dresses are usually made on somewhat plain or tailored lines, with no ruffling or bouffant effects. Pippings or bandings of ribbon or fabric in contrasting color provide the popular trimming touch, if trimming is used at all.

Monarchs in the Main Mere Puppets.

Points Out That Courtiers and Monarchs are Actually Exercised over Accredited to Kings.

In the Prager Tagblatt a correspondent points out that in the past when the glory of a monarch consisted in the number of courtiers who followed him, the year 1918 is sometimes looked upon as the boundary line between the old and the new. But long before this date had developed which no longer depended on the number of courtiers merely because of his "divine right," he writes. Proof of this is that the czar and the special way in which he liked to incorporate the Kaiser idea, were regarded as something exceptional. Even this system really represented a rule in which the will of the monarch alone governed. It is true that nowhere else would be Bismarck, to have been because his dictatorial manner not please a young prince, no most efficient of his successor suffered the same fate but failed to regard the tactics of the ruler as the out Imperial wisdom.

perhaps this personal rule was a rule of one person than was believed. Was it not rather opportunity for a crowd of courtiers to satisfy their power in the shadow of the ruler's majesty; in peace and in war, the army commander.

When we are told that 18 years during the war, the Emperor was not summoned, so to excite the old emperor, France with home politics, it is probable that the real reason was rather the desire for peace a man, who, by pointing out the danger for the monarch's well being for himself uncontrolled and ruled.

Today in countries where the power of ruler still exists the other diminishes than increase natural power of expansion ability. Among the kings in Europe there are some who to possess unusual ability the most humble member of the court with a good pair of lungs influence than they. It is characteristic that the ruler in free states substitute of a monarchy, is made that of the crowned ruler having power but being a figurehead and that a strong Poincare after being president to become prime minister his political vision to see Victor Emmanuel with the usual ceremony, his speech was listened with respect and attention, but incident was over there was interest in what the ruler said to say who really ruled, George, Poincare, the Emperor of the French.

Mr. Merchant!

Whether you buy newspapers and sell them to passersby, or own big mills and dispose of their products, you know that honesty pays; that no sale is a good sale unless both sides profit, and that he profits most who serves best.

These axioms have grown out of the experience of hosts of merchants in every town.

The church is the institution in this town—in every town—which teaches honesty and truth and mercy. Without the church business would revert to the selfish, sharp barter of ancient days.

The churches of this town appeal to every merchant to support them with time, ability and money.

GOOD HUNTING FOR SHARKS

Unfortunate School of Porpoises Helpless in the Power of Their Inveterate Enemies.

Passengers on the Scandinavian liner, Frederik VIII, which arrived at New York a few days ago, told a remarkable tale of a grim battle between occupants of the deep, while off the Grand banks of Newfoundland.

The ship was proceeding swiftly in good weather about dawn when the lookout sighted a large school of porpoises ahead.

Instead of proceeding as usual in one direction in orderly fashion, describing an occasional graceful arc in the air, the fish plunged madly in all directions, leaping straight in the air andashing the water to foam. As they became aware of the presence of the ship they quickly gathered closely about it, as though for protection, swimming rapidly alongside to keep pace with it.

Their number was estimated at 200, the largest school any of the crew had ever seen.

Suddenly a number of huge black shadows were noted stealing up on the school from behind. The sinister dorsal fin occasionally appearing above the water proclaimed them to be sharks. They gained steadily and finally plunged among the porpoises. Instantly the terror of the latter again became apparent as they strove madly to escape in all directions.

In their confusion they dived wildly against the side of the ship. Some were struck by the on-rushing bow. Others were drawn into propellers.

Meanwhile the sharks continued a methodical campaign of extermination. One after another of the frantic porpoises was ripped by the teeth of the pursuing monsters, and left to be consumed later at leisure.

The fight continued until half the school had been killed, when the sharks abandoned the chase.

For an hour after, the porpoises clung to the ship. At last, deciding the danger had passed, they swung off on a course at right angles and disappeared.

Giving Up the Game.

Twenty thousand people committed suicide last year in the United States, which fact seems to be a reflection upon our well-ordered life, writes William Allen White in Judge. It would seem that the great panorama which history is unfolding before us day by day, forever beckoning with its tomorrows and luring us with big events just around the corner from today—it would seem that that gripping panorama ought to hold us all in our seats upon this planet. We may be hungry, we may be forsaken, we may be cold, sick, unloved and unloving, and yet it would seem that the daily story of life about us, the great tragic events that are looming before us in Europe and in Asia, and the great comedy that should cramp our sides with anguished laughter here in America, should hold us tightly upon this planet. Yet 20,000 of us have voluntarily got up and flat and for what? Perhaps they are going to the big show, perhaps they are only going to bed. But they are missing a mighty good thing, nevertheless. The spinning world never before has held so much to charm the eye and engross the soul as it holds today.

Hospital for Plants.

A hospital for plants is the latest device, designed by an ingenious Englishman, for the aid and comfort of lovers of flowers, who are often distressed at sight of their malades plants ailing and dying from maladies for which they know no cure. When a sick plant is brought to the hospital, it is immediately examined and sent to the room prepared for its case. If it is suffering from a cold it is tended with heat; if it has become anemic with heat; if it has become anemic with an excess of solar rays, it goes through a freezing treatment. The through a freezing treatment. The unwholesome branches are removed, while those that are anemic are fed. It seems that certain plants are very nervous. Some easily get nervous, while their neighbors show noticeable symptoms of hysteria. But special managements permit the application to each of them of the treatment it requires.

ONE JOURNAL IN GREENLAND

And the Editor of That One Had to Teach His Subscribers How to Read It.

Journalism in Greenland is in rather a primitive stage, according to the captain of a British bark. The captain makes frequent voyages to Greenland and is held to be an authority on conditions in that country.

The one editor in Greenland is a Dane named Moeller, who conducts the only newspaper and enjoys the singular distinction of printing the paper for the natives and teaching them to read it.

Mr. Moeller is not only the editor and proprietor; he is the reporter, printer, distributor and business manager, and every two weeks he makes a long journey on skates to dispose of his journal.

Originally it contained only a few crude illustrations, but gradually other matter was introduced, until now it contains articles on the affairs of the day.

This man actually taught his subscribers to read his paper, first introducing words, then sentences, until now his subscribers are able to read articles on any topic he cares to write about.

FORMED NEW VOCAL CORD

Tissues, After Operation, Grew Together, and Voice is Said to Be Improved.

In three out of four cases in which Dr. H. Burger resected the vocal cords the tissues grew together to form a new vocal cord. He reports to the Nederlandsch Tijdschrift v. Geneeskunde (Amsterdam) that the more radical the operation on the side wall of the throat the more the new cord approximated normal.

In all these cases the diagnosis of malignant tumor was beyond question, and the operation was done through a slit in the thyroid cartilage. No attempt was made to suture this afterward. The voice is good in all but one, who still is hoarse. The voice is very much better than in other cases in which merely the growth itself was resected and the rest of the vocal cord left. The repair after this is much less perfect. In one of his cases the repair was so perfect that in examining with the laryngoscope a year later there was some doubt as to the operated side.—New York World.

Saw Volcano in Action.

A volcano in action was witnessed about six weeks ago by the captain of the British freighter Bounty, off the West African coast. The skipper said the Bounty was about five miles off shore when he observed smoke pouring high and profusely out of a peak inward from the Bigit of Biafra, near the boundary line between Kamerun and Nigeria. Thinking he might be of assistance in the event of disaster to the villages near the seacoast he put in toward shore and went to the land in a lifeboat. He said the smoking peak was about 11,000 feet above sea level and on its westward side he observed large streams of lava. Finding no signs of human life along the shore he went back to the freighter and proceeded on his course.

Put Out Fires With Glass Balls.

A glass ball, the glass being thin and easily shattered, and about the size of an egg, filled with a standard flame-killing liquid, is now being put on the market.

Most fires can be extinguished with little danger and little loss if proper means are available for prompt use. Experiments have shown that a few of these new glass balls or fire-balls, as they are called, will quickly snuff out a bad blaze.

In the past most fire extinguishers have been rather high-priced. This new extinguisher is a notable exception—the three balls which comprise a set being retailed for only 30 cents per set. A set of three balls comes in an ingenious carton which can be hung from the wall.

FOR BIG "STRIKE"

Aged Mining Prospector Takes One More Chance.

Sam Conger, Eighty-Nine Years Old, Still in the Harness and Confident He Will Win.

Recently news came that the oldest active mining prospector in the world, Sam Conger, eighty-nine years old, was going back to the Rockies, determined to make his last big strike.

"Sam Conger," the story said, "is the 'Grand Old Man of the Mountains'—he has prospected in the Rockies for more than seventy years. In addition to locating many of the best paying gold and silver mines in the state, he discovered tungsten, the rare metal of Colorado. He is known to every old mining man and, despite his eighty-nine years, Sam Conger, game to the backbone, is going to the mountains, laden with pack, pick, pan and shovel, resolute in the faith that he will make one more big strike."

It was in Boulder county that he made his first big strike with his discovery of the Buckeye lead in 1862, while the battle of Antietam was being fought. Since then he prospected in California, Oregon, New Mexico, Arizona, and studied leads and veins and strata in every mining section of Colorado. But it was always to Boulder county that he returned to make the big strike. One time it was the Caribou mine, later sold to capitalists of Holland. Then, after long prospecting in other sections, he came back to Boulder and discovered the Poor Man mine, where the ore ran $10,000 to the ton. There were the Fourth of July and the Diantha and many others.

Near Boulder City in the middle '90s he came on a strange black mineral. Sam Conger did not then know that he had discovered tungsten. In Oregon he learned the great value of the mineral. He hurried back to Colorado and, in the streets of Denver, met his old partner, who in Arizona had also learned that the black ore was tungsten.

Sam Conger's tungsten claim was offered to the Allis company of Milwaukee and turned down. "There is not a great demand for tungsten," an official said, "and if it should be found in such quantities as Conger says, the price will fall to the lowest point." Conger's option expired. Then Andrew Carnegie took over the tungsten claims. Each year since they have produced their millions.

Conger was born in Ohio. As a lad of seventeen he heard that the lead mines of southwestern Wisconsin were the places for big stakes, but in Wisconsin all the talk was of the richness of the lead deposits of Missouri. And in Missouri he heard of the recently discovered gold at the junction of Cherry creek and the Platte river, out where the Ute Indians lived, across the Great American desert.

Sam Conger was one of a party to drive across the Great Plains with "Pike's Peak or Bust" on the wagon canvas and then began his 70 years of prospecting for the precious metals. Later Sam Conger went to New Mexico. He read how mutiny smoldered among the Indians, how they arose, murdered both Spanish conquerors and Franciscans and filled up the mines.

Sam found one of these mines—the St. Lazarus. And until the body of gold ore was worked out it was a good producing mine.

Sam has always wanted riches—not thousands, but millions. Then he could "fix everybody up," and he has notions of "an-dow-ing" something.

Sam is the last of the old prospectors—simple, kindly, brave. And at eighty-nine he is still walking over the mountains in paths he trod when he was a lad.—Milwaukee Journal.

College Receiving.

A disastrous fire in one of the buildings Princeton university recently destroyed a part of the radio equipment. While the loss was amply covered by insurance, it was an unfortunate accident, since the matter of arranging for a broadcasting service was just about completed. The idea of a broadcasting originated with L. S. Gutter (1912) and was taken up at once by those in charge of the station. The University of Wisconsin and the University of Minnesota already have established broadcasting stations for general university news, says Scientific American, as well as for results of athletic contests. The set to be installed will have a sending range of 1,000 miles and will operate on 300-meter wave length.

EVEN CAREFUL CALOMEL USERS ARE SALIVATED

Next Dose of Treacherous Drug May Start Misery for You.

Calomel is dangerous. It may salivate you and make you suffer fearfully from soreness of gums, tenderness of jaws and teeth, swollen tongue and excessive saliva dribbling from the mouth. Don't trust calomel. It is mercury; quicksilver.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tonic for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel today you'll be sick and nauseated tomorrow; besides, it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tonic you will wake up feeling great. No salts necessary. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and can not salivate. —Advertisement.

ENGINE TEASERS HAVE POOR CARS

Certain Type of Drivers Cannot Resist Temptation to Fool With Carburetor.

GRIND VALVES WHEN NEEDED

Compound Must Be Carefully Wiped Out at Finish, Otherwise Cylinder Walls Will Be Worn Out—Plug Up Openings.

There is a certain type of motorcar driver who, whenever the engine doesn't perform properly, immediately begins to adjust the carburetor. Another type files a dollar's worth of metal from the interrupter points, and still another wants to grind the valves every other day.

These fellows are engine teasers and no matter what is wrong with the car they think adjusting the carburetor, grinding the valves or filing the interrupter points will make the engine well again. Consequently they usually have a faulty car—because they persist in teasing it constantly.

Don't Grind Valves.
Don't grind your valves—until they actually need it. Don't be forever fussing with the engine. Don't imagine that every little trouble has its origin in the engine—it will get you into trouble if you do.

I have seen cases where valves have been ground so deep in the casting that the seat was at the bottom of a "well," and when the valve was pushed open there was very little space for the passage of exhaust gases, writes B. W. Cooke, president of the Coyne Trade and Engineering school, in an exchange. A little more grinding would have worn through the castings and left no seat at all.

If the valve sets in the cylinder care should be taken to plug up all openings leading to the cylinder so that no grinding compound may work inside. Also, the grinding compound must be carefully wiped out at the finish—otherwise it will keep on grinding and wear out the cylinder walls.

It is well to check up the push rod clearance before and after valve grinding; before, because there may not be enough clearance to allow the valve to seat, thus causing the leak which appears to make grinding necessary—afterward, because there may be a slight lowering of the valve, making adjustment necessary.

Grinding Is Harmful.
Before grinding make sure that the valve needs it and do not grind any more than is necessary. After you have ground enough to give a tight seat all further effort expended is waste. In addition, it is harmful to the engine.

Therefore grind your valves only when they need it, but do not grind them on general principles or longer than to make a perfect seat. And don't be an engine teaser.

Accidents Will Happen.
Administer first aid to the injured.
Equip the car with a small case of first-aid materials.
Get the names and addresses of all who actually saw the accident.
If the car is covered by insurance, notify the agent as soon as possible.
Clear the road so that traffic, if it is restricted or blocked, can be resumed.
The nearest automobile will volunteer to rush the injured one to the nearby hospital or physician's office.

GIRLS LEARN AUTO-MECHANIC TRADE

How would you like to have your car repaired by a member of the fair sex? That is just what is being done in Milwaukee. Girls from many sections of the city are learning the auto-mechanic trade, so it will not be long before your bus will be cared for by woman herself.

You Auto Know

That some cars have a tendency to leak oil from the right-hand wheel housing, even when no excess of lubricant is apparent anywhere else. This is due to the fact that the right side of the car is usually at a lower level than the left, especially when driving along country roads where macadam is designed to shed water into the ditches on either side. As a result of this leakage, the right-hand brake band is often covered with a thin film of oil which prevents it from functioning properly.

A simple remedy for this is to wrap a long strip of thin felt around the shaft, starting from the wheel end and working in a direction opposite to the forward motion of the wheel, covering the axle for a distance of about eight inches. The felt should then be fastened to the shaft with shellac and held in place by cord, tied around it several times. When the shaft is turned, the effect of this is to force the oil back toward the differential and away from the brakes.

PLAN TO PREVENT SKIDDING

Readjustment of Radius or Torque Rods Will Remedy Defect, Seldom Suspected.

When an automobile skids with the least cause and sometimes apparently without cause, the radius rods or torque tubes which hold the rear axle perpendicular to the center of the car are the reason. A bend or incorrect adjustment of one of these rods throws the center of the axle around and the wheels do not track, but tend to roll

Incorrect Adjustment of the Torque Rods Will Cause Skidding and Should Be Remedied.

In an independent course. The rear end is naturally inclined to follow the wheels and skidding is the result.

This is one of the seldom suspected causes of skidding and the remedy is to take accurate measurements from the yoke-bolts at each side of the front axle to the rear axle and adjust or straighten the rods as required until the measurements are exactly alike.—G. A. Luers in Popular Science Monthly.

LESSON FOR AUGUST 6

THE TEMPLE REBUILT AND DEDICATED

LESSON TEXT—Ezra 3:1-6:22.
GOLDEN TEXT—My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the Lord.—Psalm 84:2.
REFERENCE MATERIAL—Haggai 1:1-2:23; Isaiah 62; Rev. 21:3-22:3.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Joyfully Building God's House.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Rebuilding the Temple.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Love for God's House.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—What God's House Should Mean to a Community.

After becoming settled in the towns surrounding Jerusalem the people were called together for the purpose of reestablishing the worship of the Lord God. The leaders in this movement were Joshua the priest and Zerubbabel the governor. In view of the fact that the clearing away of the debris of the old city and temple and the erection of the new temple would take a long time, an altar was erected where sacrifice might be offered at once unto God.

I. The Foundation of the Temple Laid (3:8-13).

This was an auspicious occasion and was celebrated with most impressive ceremonies. It marked an epoch in the history of the nation. It brought most vividly to them their bitter experiences in the dark past, and yet pointed them forward to the time of blessing when God's favor would be upon them again.

1. The priests in their apparel (v. 10). In Exodus 39 the priestly garments are described. These garments symbolized their consecration to the Lord's service.

2. The priests with trumpets (v. 10). These trumpets were of silver and were used in calling the people together.

3. The Levites with cymbals (v. 10). These were to furnish the instrumental music of the sanctuary. This was according to the arrangement made by David (I Chron. 15:16-21).

4. They sang together by course (v. 11). This means that they sang to one another responsively. The one company sang, "The Lord is Good"; the other responded, "For His mercy endureth forever."

5. Mingled weeping and shouting (vv. 12-13). Some of the older men who had seen the magnificent and glorious temple of Solomon, which had been destroyed, wept much when they saw how far short the present foundation came of the former temple. Others were glad of the favor of God which had brought them back and that a beginning had been made in the new house of worship.

II. The Building of the Temple Hindered (Ch. 4).

The three perils which put back the building of the temple for some fourteen years reveal the persistent methods which the enemy uses to hinder the constructive building programs of God's people in every age.

1. An unintelligent pessimism (3:12). It was no credit to "priests, Levites and chief of the fathers" to mar this glorious occasion with weeping. Under the circumstances this was a glorious beginning and gave promise of great things for the future. God's promises looked to the future when even greater glories should be to the chosen people than ever had been enjoyed in the days of Solomon. Many today, because things are not quite what they should be, do not go forward with a constructive program, and even hinder those who have the helpful outlook.

2. Worldly compromise (4:2, 3). "Let us build with you, for we seek your God." This is Satan's most common and effective method today. May the courageous Zerubbabels declare anew, "Ye have nothing to do with us, to build an house unto our God."

3. Open opposition by the world (4:4-24). When refused a part in the work, open and violent opposition was resorted to. Intimidation and political scheming were used to defeat the building plan of God's people.

III. The Temple Finished (5:1-6:15). Through the ministry of the prophets, Haggai and Zechariah, the people were encouraged to resume the work of building the temple. They wrought with energy and enthusiasm. How necessary are God's prophets to encourage and urge on the workers in the Lord's vineyard!

IV. The Temple Dedicated (6:16-22). The people were united in this building and came together upon its completion and solemnly dedicated it to God. It was a joyous occasion and they united in the observance of the passover with gratitude to God that He had strengthened their hands in their work.
