

Korean Boasts Of 70 Seductions

SEOUL (AP)—A Korean Don Juan boasted today that he seduced more than 70 women in 12 months. He is lanky, handsome Pak In Soo, 25, who was dishonorably discharged last August for being AWOL from the South Korean Marine Corps.

Six women 20 or 21 years old sue him charging false promises of marriage. Pak denied that.

"There was mutual consent," he told a courtroom jammed with women.

Pak, whose trial is in recess, told reporters he used the routine on more than 70 women, mainly college girls.

Spreading Chestnut Tree Is Car Shade

CHICAGO (AP)—The automobile age has caught up with Frank J. Hauser, suburban Hinsdale's blacksmith, and the shop he has operated for 54 years.

Hauser, 74, announced yesterday he is hanging up his leather apron for good and will spend his time tilling his truck garden and traveling.

Hinsdale's horse set kept him in the horseshoeing business until 1948 and since then he has capitalized on the demand for wrought iron gadgets.

The smithy Hauser took over in 1901 will be razed to make way for an automobile parking lot.

GOVERNMENT Information Flow Controversial Point

By ED CREAUGH
WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP)—Are the American people getting all the information to which they are entitled about the activities of their government?

Generally, officials of the Eisenhower administration say yes — that nothing is withheld except data which would help a potential enemy. Generally, newsmen covering the Washington scene say no—that all sorts of information is withheld and without valid reason.

This is an old, old argument, perhaps as old as the historic struggle of Congress to get all the information it wants about the operations of the executive branch. But the argument has taken on new significance in recent months because of several developments:

1. A partial blackout of news from the Pentagon. Officials say this involves nothing but "technical military secrets" whose release could hurt the United States. Reporters covering the news say the curtain has been lowered on other, far-from-secret information.
 2. A growing belief by many correspondents that officials are following "out the window" directives of President Eisenhower. One, a 1953 executive order, lets 17 federal agencies restrict information on "security" grounds. The other, issued during last year's McCarthy-Army row, shields conversations and communications between government officials from public disclosure.
 3. The slow, long-after-the-event disclosure of what happened, and what was learned, in the March, 1954, nuclear weapon test in the Marshall Islands. Many critics have charged the government with withholding from the American people facts well known to the Russians.
 4. Congressional uneasiness over the information picture. Rep. Frank E. Smith (D-Miss.) said recently there is "rising concern" lest secrecy be used to cover up "mistakes and shortcomings" of government. A special House subcommittee headed by Rep. Moss D-Calif. has started an investigation to see whether "pertinent and timely information" is being withheld.
- Chairman Dawson (D-Ill.) of the Government Operations Committee, who appointed the investigation group, said it has "been charged that pressures of various sorts have been applied by government officials to restrict the flow of information and the exchange of opinion outside the government."
- The focus currently is on the Pentagon.
- Last March, Secretary of Defense Wilson began issuing tighter security directives which have had the effect of choking off much information normally available to the public and of slowing the release of much other information.
- At first the Navy, in particular, "clammed up" so thoroughly that reporters had trouble getting a biographical sketch of an admiral, while a district naval office refused to give details of a destroyer-freighter collision until the news had been cleared with Washington. Wilson said he never intended to cut off information of this kind, and he urged all hands to use common sense in interpreting his directives. Since then there's been a relaxation, but Pentagon newsmen report the directives still are a barrier between them and the news.
- As part of his new policy Wilson told the services March 29 to get rid of their military chiefs of information and turn the jobs over to civilians. So far none of the services has done so.
- Wilson himself installed a new deputy assistant secretary of defense for public affairs and the appointee, R. Carl Honaman, has spent a good deal of time denying he is in effect a super-censor.
- At the Pentagon, Honaman says his chief concern is to restrict the publication of technical data which "will help the enemy more than it will help us." He said at one point that the government alone couldn't always judge what information fell into this category, adding he hoped writers and editors would voluntarily refrain from publishing such material.
- Here he came into conflict with J. R. Wiggins, chairman of the American Society of Newspaper Editors' Freedom of Information Committee, who wrote him that newspapers aren't going to set themselves up as censors of material the government itself gives out.
- The editors' group has shown concern from the outset as Wilson's insistence that news given out should make "a constructive contribution to the primary mission of the Department of Defense."
- Elaborating on that philosophy, Honaman said recently that the press sometimes takes up the time of officials with questions which "do not meet the requirements of being useful, valuable nor yet very interesting." Wiggins, managing editor of the Washington Post and Times Herald, challenged him on this, too, in a letter that said: "An official of the Defense Department is not likely to regard as constructive information which discloses his own errors. Persons on the outside... may well regard these disclosures as constructive and public-serving."
- The White House stands behind Wilson's announced general policy. President Eisenhower has backed it at news conferences. His press secretary, James C. Hagerty, has summed it up this way:
- "The President never has believed in censorship of legitimate news. At his press conference and in his 1953 executive order he has expressed that belief and has translated it into action.
- "However, he has also always believed there is no reason to make available to the enemy technical military secrets which by their issuance could do nothing but hurt the interests of the United States.
- "To that extent, and only to that extent, would we ask that that sort of information be withheld from general circulation."
- What, then, is "legitimate news" in the opinion of the administration?
- The first week in June, as it developed later, Robert T. Stevens submitted his resignation to Secretary of Defense Wilson.
- Last Tuesday the Washington Star reported Stevens had resigned. Newsmen asked Hagerty about the report. He said the White House had received no resignation. Newsmen asked if a resignation was expected. "I know of none," Hagerty replied.
- The next morning he announced Stevens' resignation.
- Availability of information varies in the different branches of the executive branch. Some departments answer questions about their current activities readily, others restrict their news to carefully prepared handouts.

Douglas Thinks Asia Improved

TOKYO (AP)—U.S. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas, embarking on a tour that will include Soviet Russia, said today Americans should be optimistic about Asia.

"The picture is much more cheerful than we often get reading American newspapers," he told the Japan-America Society. "Asia has come a long way in the 10 years since World War II."

Royal Head Thins

LONDON (AP)—The Duke of Edinburgh, thinning on top at 34, is trying out a new hair grower. Barber Charles Topper, who has clipped royal locks at Buckingham Palace most of this century, said the lotion is "light and non-greasy, specially blended with a little oil."

'Dirty' Bone Back In Leg

CHICAGO (AP)—A dirty three-inch piece of bone found 300 feet from an accident scene may enable Harold Walat, 19, to recover completely from a serious leg injury in a motorcycle-truck collision.

A policeman found the bone and it was taken to a hospital along with Walat. Doctors identified it as a fragment of the bone's left tibia, cleaned it and replaced it in his leg.

Today, five days after the accident, doctors said Walat's leg is mending well. Had not the bone fragment been found, they said, the leg might have been shortened or Walat would have faced an expensive bone graft.

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY

Stress Individuality, Is Colleen's Advice

By LYDIA LANE
HOLLYWOOD—Colleen Miller's home studio, Universal-International, is very excited about her star potential and they are keeping their fingers crossed that her marriage to Ted Brisson will not interfere with her promising career.

When I lunched with her at the studio recently, the return of the long bob was discussed and Colleen remarked that she was determined to keep her hair short, regardless of the trend.

"My hair was always a problem until I cut it short. Now it's no trouble at all. I wash it every night and never have to worry about curling or drying it. Even the studio suggested that I forget about long hair but I didn't really need their advice. I'm sold. The studio hairdressers always had trouble with me because my hair is so fine it wouldn't hold a line."

"Fashion, whether it involves hair or clothes, is worth paying attention to only when it's practical or becoming. You should insist on individuality no matter what."

Colleen was a dancer before she came to Hollywood.

"Professional dancing gives you training that is invaluable even if you don't plan a career of it," Colleen remarked, echoing the sentiments of many actresses I've talked to with this same background.

"Once you are used to a limber body and free muscles, you don't feel well without this type of exercise. Anyone who has had dancing lessons moves with more grace on the screen, in a room, anywhere."

Colleen insists she had no beauty secrets.

"Beauty is hardly a secret," she said. "I think being natural and happy is all a woman needs to be attractive."

"I've never wanted anything I haven't been able to attain," was this young girl's surprising statement.

"When you fall, usually the one to blame is yourself. It's a temptation to alibi but if you are really honest you'll admit the responsibility is entirely your own."

As we finished lunch Colleen took a flacon of perfume from her handbag and dabbed some on her finger tips.

"I'm a pushover for anything that smells sweet," she admitted. "Perfumed bath oil and a spray of cologne after my showers are part of my regular routine."

"I like to change perfumes because when I'm going to work I'm not in the mood for the same scent I like to wear for an evening out on the town. I get a real lift from perfume, just as it's a boost to my morale to know that I'm fresh and well-dressed and looking my best," she concluded.

Just Be Natural

Colleen Miller insists she has no beauty secrets. "Naturalness is all a woman needs to be attractive," she tells Lydia Lane. Colleen soon may be seen in Universal-International's "The Purple Mask."

MRS. EVERETT WAYNE TRUXAL (Photo by Barr)

Miss Nall, Lt. Truxal Repeat Vows Sunday

In a semi-formal double ring ceremony at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon Sue Nell Nall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Nall, 1305 Scurry, became the bride of Lt. Everett Wayne Truxal, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Truxal of Barnsdall, Okla.

Lyle Price, minister of the Main Street Church of God, performed the ceremony in the home of the bride's parents.

Traditional wedding music was played by Mrs. Omar Pittman at the piano.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown, waist length, of white imported lace. The strapless bodice, cutaway bolero and full skirt were lined with tulle over ice blue taffeta. The bolero's sleeves were shirred just below the elbows and its stand up collar and bodice were outlined with tiny seed pearls. A shoulder length veil was attached to a small hat covered with rhinestones and seed pearls. She carried a white Testament topped with a white orchid and a shower of lily of the valley.

For something old, the bride carried a lace handkerchief belonging to Mrs. Tom Harris; something new, her dress; something borrowed, the white Testament from Frances Walker; something blue was a garter. She also had a penny in her shoe.

Mrs. Norman Taylor, matron of honor from San Antonio, wore a pale lavender dress of crystalite with a straight-cut skirt. The bolero at the shoulders. The bodice came to a point in front over a full skirt. Her flowers were in a bandeau of pink shirred carnations and a colonial bouquet of matching flowers.

The mother of the bride was attired in a navy blue shantung dress, and Mrs. Truxal wore a pink lace dress. Both had white carnation corsages.

Best man was Lt. Terry Smith of Sweetwater.

At the reception held in the home of the bride's parents, the bride, bridegroom, attendants and their parents greeted the guests in the receiving line.

The bride's table was covered with a white organdy cloth. A huge crystal ball with floating white asters topped with satin and maline bow was the centerpiece. To complement the color of the bride's dress, the three-tiered cake was decorated with pale blue roses and was placed on pale blue maline to reflect in a mirror. Party mints, mixed nuts and punch were also served.

Mrs. Dick Clifton, sister of the bride served the cake and Lou Ann Nall, sister of the bride, was at the punch bowl. Cousin of the bride, Frances Walker, was in charge of the register. Jean Robinson displayed the gifts.

When the couple left on a wedding trip to Mexico City, the bride was wearing a black and white cotton dress with a white organdy overskirt. Her accessories included white shoes, bag and gloves and a black hat. Her corsage was the white orchid from her bridal bouquet.

The Truxals will make their home at 1612 Lark St.

A graduate of Big Spring High School, the bride attended Howard County Junior College where she was elected "Best All Around Girl." She received her degree from Abilene Christian College where she was vice president of the Ko Jo Kai Social Club, and a member of the Future Teachers of America and the West Texas Club.

Lt. Truxal is a graduate of Barnsdall High School and attended Northeastern Oklahoma A&M College. He is now a jet instructor at Webb Air Force Base.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding included Mrs. Nan Salyer, Sweetwater, Mrs. J. C. Rhoades, Bartlesville, Okla.; Silas Flournoy, Fluvanna; Mr. and Mrs. Toke Duke and Polly, Little Rock, Ark.; and Norman Taylor, San Antonio.

Engagement Told Of Lamesa Couple

LAMESA — Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Middleton of Route C are announcing the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Linda, to Delton Bailey.

The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Bailey, Lamesa.

Ceremonies will be held at the Sunset Baptist parsonage at 4 p. m. Saturday with the Rev. William Moore officiating. The bride-elect is a 1955 graduate of Lamesa High School, and Bailey also completed his schooling here. The couple will make their home in Lamesa.

Methodist Circle Elects Officers

LAMESA — New leader of the Bykota Circle of the First Methodist Church is Mrs. Milton Smart.

Other officers who have been installed are Mrs. Jim Grammar, assistant leader; Mrs. Ed Kinsey, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Bob Adcock, supply; Mrs. Ed Shamblin, mission education chairman; Mrs. John Flache, assistant missionary education chairman; Mrs. Art Ayres, literature and publications; Mrs. M. S. Sellers, publicity chairman.

Truett Johnsons To Be Honored

Honoring Mr. and Mrs. Truett Johnson, who are leaving soon for Wiley, members of Junior High School will hold open house this evening from 8-10 p. m. in the home of Agnes Currie, 501 Hillside.

All members of the Texas State Teachers' Association are invited to the affair.

Mr. Johnson, who has served as principal of Junior High, has accepted the principalship of the Wiley schools.

Courses For Adults Will Be Offered

LAMESA—The Home Economics department of the Lamesa High School will offer a furniture refinishing course for adults in July.

Glenna Deen Holman and Carol Busch, HE instructors, will instruct and also will receive registrations. Dates are July 11 to July 28, and the hours 8 a. m. to 11 a. m. Monday through Friday.

There will be tips on refinishing and upholstering furniture.

Girl In The Window Is Whistle Bait

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass. — Few, if any, girls draw as many whistles as "the girl in the window."

Most Boston and Maine trains passing the home of crippled Lorraine Tatro sound their whistles as a salute to the girl who has been an invalid since birth.

She was given a special ovation on her 19th birthday, when all trains blew a few blasts as she sat at her window.

Her days are brightened by waving to train crews to whom she has become known as "the girl in the window."

Luther HD Club Meets

Coppercraft was the work of the afternoon for the Luther Home Demonstration Club meeting in the home of Mrs. Ruby Simpson recently. Seven members attended. Guests were Mrs. W. A. Rawlings, Mrs. Bob Simpson, Mrs. Akin M. Simpson and Janice Williamson. The next meeting is scheduled for July 14 in the home of Mrs. Jim Zike.

Barbecue Fetes Settlers Of Borden County Sunday

Greeting friends and recalling old times were the order of the day at the Borden County Old Settlers Reunion Sunday. Held in the school at Gail, the gathering was attended by about 800.

The Sheriff's posse and the Auxiliary acted as hosts for the day, doing the registering and serving barbecue, salads, beans, relishes, tea and desserts. Women of the community furnished all the food with the exception of the barbecue.

After the meal, a program was presented in the gymnasium of the school, where the stage was decorated with a "chuckwagon scene. Dutch ovens and large coffee pots over a campfire, saddles and bedding rolls gave realism to the background.

Mrs. Charlie Miller of Snyder spoke to the group on "Our Heriage." A quartette from Big Spring, "The Mighty Knights," sang "Son of the Sea," "I Only Want a Buddies," and "Lonesome, That's All." Members of the quartette are Edward Johnson, Jack Wise, Terry Kicklighter and Bob Clark.

Mrs. Adella Shaw Drew of Plainview, dressed in an early day fashion, gave highlights of the development of this section of the West. She chose as her subject "Our Western Heritage." Accompanying her talk was a trio of cowboy singers, composed of Bud Minick, Johnny Thurman and Bill Moore. Attending from Big Spring were Mr. and Mrs. Bob Middleton, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hurt, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Sullivan, Joe Fisher, Mrs. A. J. Cantrell and Mary, Mr. and Mrs. Claud Miller and Mrs. B. L. LeFever.

Big 4 Considering Disarming Proposal

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States, Britain and France probably will propose at next month's Big Four summit talks that Russia consider a formula for reversing the arms race in Europe.

Minister Eden and French Premier Faure to meet at Geneva July 18.

The idea is one which Secretary of State Dulles considered with British Foreign Secretary Harold Macmillan and French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay during the past 20 days at New York and Paris.

Dulles returned yesterday from the United Nations 10th anniversary ceremonies at San Francisco. He said he was gratified at Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov's response to American demands for compensation in the case of a U.S. Navy patrol plane shot down by Soviet jet fighters between Alaska and Siberia last Wednesday.

2 Boys Are Buried Alive

NEW YORK (AP)—Two boys were buried alive last night when the dirt wall of an excavation in a Queens housing project collapsed on them.

Two others were pulled to safety before they sank into the wet earth.

Police emergency and rescue units sped to the scene, where a group of passers-by, actuated by the screams of one of the boys, were digging with bare hands.

Saved from the mucky dirt were Billy Cotton, 5, who was buried up to his neck, and Nathaniel Brown, 11.

Rescuers reached too late Billy's brother John, 11, and Angel Matos, 7.

The mother of the Cotton boys, Mrs. Evelyn Cotton, who was at the scene, collapsed when the bodies were pulled out.

Except for Matos, all the boys were Negroes.

Harris Cafe Prepares All Meals Carefully

The Harris Cafe, 208 Gregg, specializes in preparing your meals just the way you would prepare them yourself. Careful attention is given to each order turned in by the friendly waitresses to see that every expectation of the customer is fulfilled.

Meals at the Harris Cafe are prepared from only the best meats and fresh vegetables obtainable, which assures you that each bite you take is jam-packed with the vitamins that nature has placed in them. Then, in the Harris Cafe kitchen, the meats and vegetables are given special care to see that all the flavor and natural goodness is preserved for you at one of the many dinner tables.

The cooks are careful to follow any directions you may have concerning the preparation of your particular order. Just tell the waitress and she will pass the word along to the cook and the special order will be followed to the letter.

Three full meals are served every day except Sunday.

For breakfast, there is a choice of eggs, cooked exactly to your tastes. To go with them, there is a breakfast steak, or ham, bacon, or sausage. Crisp toast, dry or buttered as you like, and plenty of steaming delicious coffee with all the natural flavor that coffee must have to be really good.

At lunch, the Harris Cafe makes a special plate lunch which gives you a choice of several delicious and generous meat portions, with a choice of perfectly prepared vegetables to round it out. Iced tea and coffee or your choice of soft drinks and milk are available.

Pastry is another specialty of the Harris Cafe. Delicious pies of all flavors are instantly ready to be served.

Dinner meals vary from steaks prepared a la carte to a complete Mexican dinner. Selection of sea foods or chop orders are prepared with a minimum of waiting.

The Harris Cafe serves your meals with promptness and the utmost in courtesy. There is no three-hour waiting while your appetite gets more and more on edge. It will seem only a minute after the waitress takes your order that she is back with the delicious meal ready for you to eat.

Be sure and try the Harris Cafe the next time you eat out.

Odell's Has Wide Choice Of Meats

If your stomach craves a change, try this:

Drop by Odell's, 802 W. 3rd, for a complete barbecue picnic lunch. Then drive out to the City Park, the State Park, or some other picnic grounds and enjoy the treat of your life.

W. T. Odell, owner and operator of Odell's Pit Bar-B-Q, is confident one such excursion will bring you back to his establishment on West Third Street for more of that delicious barbecue — and the trimmings.

Odell has operated his barbecue stand at 802 W. 3rd for just about five years, ever since he went into business for himself here. That five years doesn't represent the extent of Odell's experience in the barbecue business, though. Prior to opening his own establishment, he gained knowledge and finesse while working for others in the same business.

You can get just about every kind of barbecue imaginable at Odell's Pit Bar-B-Q. That includes beef, pork, chicken and sausage. Or, if you prefer, you can take your own meat to Odell's to have it prepared over the wood fires by a master of the barbecue art.

Either way — whether you order meat Odell has provided or furnish your own — you get a generous side order of barbecue sauce prepared according to Odell's private formula.

The custom cooking is offered at anytime, and any quantity of meat will be prepared. Odell also will prepare beans and other items to round out the meal of any group, large or small.

When you drive by to get the barbecue for an outing, Odell also can supply you with fresh bread or buns, pickles, peppers and the other makins' of a picnic dinner.

Assisting W. T. Odell in operation of the business is his son, Gene Odell. One or both are present at all times the stand is open — from 10:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily except Sunday when the closing hour is advanced to 7 p.m.

Winter Clothing Cleaning Urged

Such winter clothes as fur coats and suits have, of course, been retired for the summer.

Before they are put away, however, they should be cleaned and treated for moths that invariably get to them, causing costly repairs or near-total destruction.

A concern which specializes in the treatment of such togery is the Gregg Street Dry Cleaners, owned and operated by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rutherford.

Gregg Street Cleaners is located at 1700 Gregg St. Its spacious building has been so constructed that motorists can bring orders to the establishment and leave them without leaving their vehicles.

Gregg Street Cleaners has built its reputation on long and successful service to local people. Rutherford has spent practically his entire adult life in the cleaning and pressing business in Big Spring.

The establishment gives prompt service at all times and will "rush up" an order, if such a request is made, even though the customer is relatively new to the management.

The establishment is operating with a larger group of employees than ever before and those employees have ample equipment to keep in stride with the orders.

Enlargement of the building and increase in the personnel, of course, reflect an increase in business, which is exactly the case with the Gregg Street Dry Cleaners.

The concern maintains a pick-up and delivery service to any point within the city.

First Flood In 25 Years Hits Wyoming Area

SCOTTSBLUFF, Neb. (AP)—The first flood in 25 years in the upper North Platte Valley late yesterday followed cloudbursts which dumped an estimated 20 inches of rain at Guernsey, Wyo.

The rains came in two or three cloudbursts, isolating towns, cutting off communications and downing power lines.

Initial reports from the area indicated there were no injuries among the evacuees.

Torrington, Wyo., a town of about 3,000 near the Wyoming-Nebraska border, reported 10 inches of rain. The southeast third of the town was under water early today.

Traffic was reported possible only north from the town, with roads to the south, west and east under water. Power lines were down over a wide area.

The National Guard was called out at Torrington to evacuate the flooded area and give other assistance.

Fort Laramie, a town of about 100 farther north in the valley, was reported completely isolated.

The storm moved in over western Nebraska about midnight. At Morrill, north of Scottsbluff, a small twister uprooted trees and caused some property damage. Heavy hail also was reported.

The Scottsbluff Weather Bureau said the flood was the first such in the valley in 25 years. Crop damage was reported running high throughout the fertile valley.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

that the two halves of that ball were held together strongly by outside air pressure.

Further work was done with the vacuum idea by later scientists. New kinds of pumps were made, and better vacuums were produced. It is common today to produce a vacuum which is more than 99 and nine-tenths per cent complete.

A successful vacuum cleaner was made at the start of the present century. H. C. Booth, a British engineer, built a cleaner which was taken from door to door. A workman carried a long hose with a nozzle into each house, store or other building. The vacuum "plant" was operated outdoors by the action of a gasoline or electric motor.

Eight years later an American patent was granted to two Philadelphia men, Wiedemann and Temple. Their machine took dust and dirt from rugs, and soon the idea of a vacuum cleaner spread to various cities. Such cleaners are employed today in the vast majority of homes in Canada and the United States.

With the help of a fast-moving fan, above or behind the nozzle, a partial vacuum is created. Along with the turning brush, the partial vacuum leads dust and dirt into the bag.

Several additional features have been added. Some cleaners beat the rugs as they clean, and others draw the dust-laden air through water.

Tomorrow: Lightning.

Perhaps you have heard someone speak these words: "Nature hates a vacuum."

The words are quoted from the writings of Benedict Spinoza, a Dutch thinker who lived three centuries ago. Often the second word is translated "abhors" instead of "hates."

The meaning of the statement is this: if there is space with nothing in it, that space tends to draw something toward it.

If space, or any part of space, is empty, it is without air or gas of any kind. There is a theory that most of the space between planets and between stars can be called empty, but it is possible that this space is filled with extremely thin gas.

Otto von Guericke, a German scientist, was a pioneer in making vacuums. Three centuries ago he displayed a hollow copper ball from which almost all the air had been pumped. In public tests he proved

Cool Weather For Most Of U. S.

Pleasant and cool weather continued today over much of the central and eastern United States while western Nebraska and eastern Wyoming mopped up after cloudbursts of as much as 20 inches of rain yesterday.

The rain areas today were in the South, along the south Atlantic Coast, the Great Plains, the northern Rockies and the northern Pacific Coast. Six-hour falls ranged up to 1.8 inches at Dickinson, N.D.; 1.42 at Lemmon, S.D.; .95 and .80 at Tallahassee and Daytona Beach, Fla.

Torrential rains dumped an estimated 20 inches of rain at Guernsey, Wyo., yesterday, cutting off communications and power lines. Torrington, Wyo., near the Nebraska border, reported 10 inches of rain had flooded one third of the town of 3,000 population.

Aerial Daredevil In Serious Condition

SHREWSBURY, Mass. (AP)—Aerial daredevil Herman Heger, 32, of New York, was in serious condition today with injuries he suffered when the 65-foot pole on which he performs broke and toppled him onto a crowd.

He suffered two fractured feet and possible spine injuries.

Four spectators at White City amusement park were injured, none seriously.

Working without a net, Heger was attempting to perform a headstand on a unicycle on a three-foot-square platform atop the swaying pole.

From his hospital bed, he said: "I felt the pole sway more than usual. I went to the center of the pole but it kept swaying. I tried to slide down the pole. When I was about 10 feet down, the top 50 feet bent like a sapling."

The pole crashed into the crowd and Heger fell about 55 feet. His wife, who assists him, stood helpless on the ground holding a useless pull rope.

Pope Okays 'Morally Permissible' Unions

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Pius XII told Roman railroad workers yesterday that no true Christian could oppose their union in strong organizations to defend their rights and improve their conditions of life.

"You are therefore acting fully in conformity with the church's social teaching when, by all means morally permissible, you vindicate your just rights," the pontiff said.
