IN MY OPINION

Medicare - Friend or Foe

by Mary Meason

It seems that Medicare is getting to be of less and less help to elderly people.

This was brought to light locally in recent days. A local resident had surgery in Lubbock a short time ago, and was so pleased by the surgery, that a friend who needed the same surgery was told to go to the same doctor. When the doctor was contacted he said he was sorry, but he was not taking any new patients.

When the doctor was questioned as to why he refused to accept a new patient he said it was because of the paperwork.

If Medicare patients don't have a doctor now they should find one immediately or they may not have any help from Medicare later.

After this fact came to light it was discovered that a number of doctors in Lubbock are not taking any new Medicare patients.

The local resident who was concerned about this called Congressman Sarpalus' Washington office about this problem of paperwork.

A letter from Sarpalus said that there has been no increase in paperwork, that doctors were probably refusing to accept new Medicare patients because of the "low reimbursement rates that Medicare pays."

A nurse who works for the doctor in question wrote to Sarpalus with quite a bit more proving the amount of paperwork. The following are excerpts from the letter written to Sarpalus.

"I feel that the Health Care Financing Administration has given you some erroneous information on new billing supposed to go into effect on July 1, 1994.

Currently we bill all of our claims, including the supplies, to Dallas for processing. When these changes are implemented, we will bill office visits, x-rays, and injections to Dallas, and all supplies to South Carolina. Our physician treats innumerable fractures which require many types of casts, casting materials, 3D ankle walkers, finger splints, leg splints, long arm splints, strapping, etc. This is not inclusive of union shoes used after foot surgery, shoulder pulleys, heel cups, slings, heel lifts, shoulder immobilizers, ace bandages, etc.

When we are required to bill these supplies to South Carolina, we will be submitting two separate claims per each Medicare patient who receives supplies, a portion will go to South Carolina. This will require that another account be set up for each Medicare patient who receives a supply to insure that the billing will be separated to go to Medicare in Dallas, TX, and Palmetto GBA in South Carolina. This also means that we will have two explanations of benefit coming from each of these organizations at separate times.

Congressman Sarpalus, if you have any question regarding the "paperwork" generated by the government, please "come to the trenches." I have been working with Medicare, Worker's Compensation, Medicaid, Crippled children, Champlus and innumerable private insurance carriers for the past six years, and have seen many changes. NONE of them have required less paperwork.

I have seen literally hundreds of interviews by the media with a multitude of people from almost every medical and private sector but one. I have NEVER seen any government official walk into a physician's office to talk with the person who handles the insurance. Pick any office and walk in on any day, go to the insurance department and see for yourself what is involved in getting remuneration to a claim which has to be filed with any government entity. I think you would definitely have a different perspective."

So those who are of or approaching Medicare age, find a doctor now. You will definitely need a good doctor a number of times in your later years.

In the newspaper business we all trade papers to keep up with each other, other communities, etc. In the March 31 edition of the Tribune we ran a story, "Whiteflat Country Greetings" by Earlyne Jameson. This article has been printed in several papers around the State. We have always enjoyed Earlyne's writings, seems like others like them, too! Thanks Earlyne (and please do some more).

From "Out On A Limb" by Cherry Hamilton, Editor of The Eagle Press of Fritch, "Boiled In Our Own Indifference"..... "All that is necessary for the triumph of evil is that good men do nothing."

Seems like the government bureaucrats are now staying awake nights trying to figure out more ways to save us from ourselves. The latest in a long line of control that make my independent blood boil is the religious harassment scheme.

When some enforcement agency comes to take the Bible off my desk, remove the angel pin from my blouse or tries to muzzle my religious opinion, they will have to carry me off to the guillotine screaming and kicking, calling God's wrath down on their heads. True, I may not be God's model person, but my territory, my jewelry and my faith are MINE and the government has no business telling me what I can or can't do as long as I am not endangering someone else. Yet they do it everyday. And it's getting worse.

Hats Off To The Motley County Ambulance Service

by Shelby West

It's red and white, has emergency lights and a funny sounding siren. On the sides, you see the words, "Motley County Ambulance". Motley County is very fortunate to have an ambulance service, such as we have.

In the seventies and eighties, many small communities saw a decline in their health care facilities. Hospitals began to close in many small towns. With their closing, brought about a great need for more up to date methods of ambulance service.

When every small county had an emergency room and hospital, the ambulance services' main concern, was one of transporting emergency patients to the nearest emergency facility. Speed was essential in this type of environment.

Once a county loses one service, it becomes of the utmost importance to replace it, especially when the loss is concerning health care.

Motley County saw this need, and met it. As usual expertise in any field cannot be obtained overnight. Thanks to the foresight of the Motley County Hospital board, (who funds the Ambulance Service) after a few years of training, and after many tedious hours of study, the crew of the Ambulance Service have obtained expertise.

At the time of this writing, the crew of the Ambulance Service has three Emergency Care Attendants (ECA's), which requires forty hours of study; two Emergency Medical Technicians (EMT's), which requires one hundred and twenty hours of training; and two Paramedics, which requires five hundred and sixty hours of training.

The ECA's are Kenny Rose, Sherry Rose, and Jo Ann Durham. The EMT's are Tony Rose and Bob Davis. The Paraedics are Lisa Rose and Tom Bowman. These people are very proficient in their Ambulance duties.

The requirements for a paramedic are very strenuous. It is a very diversified field of training, hospital emergency room training, training in a Lubbock Ambulance and many classroom hours.

Lisa and Tom both have been trained by the Texas Tech Medical University, whose requirements exceed those mandated by the Texas Dept. of Health.

When Lisa and Tom are on board the Ambulance becomes a mobile intensive care facility. Paramedics are certified to give the same emergency care as an emergency room in a hospital. Although they aren't doctors or nurses, they have been specifically trained to handle on the scene crisis.

Many cardiac arrest victims will attest to this fact. Lives have been saved by the crew that operates the Motley County Ambulance Service.

From the initial phone call the service receives, to the time of arrival at the scene is quite remarkable in itself. For these attendants, hours are not spent sitting in the Ambulance waiting on a call, as they do in larger cities. They have no office in which to wait. These are ordinary folks that we probably come in contact with several times a week or month.

While they are professionals on the ambulance, they also have other duties to fulfill. They are business men and women, housewives, beauticians, insurance men, carpenters, and telephone employees.

When the Ambulance phone rings, these folks don't step into a phone booth and don magical powers. Their appearance doesn't change, they don't become something they're not. They simply respond to the job of being professional ambulance personnel on the way to render aid to the best of their abilities.

The main concern of these professionals is care to the patient in the quickest amount of time. The sooner they arrive, the sooner they can begin treatment.

If you see or hear the ambulance coming, please get out of its path.

Prayerfully, you are not, or any member of your family going to need this service.

If you should, try to remember to speak in a calm, clear voice (panic some other time); state name and address or location if an accident; state problem, if you know what it is; and be sure your door is unlocked if at night.

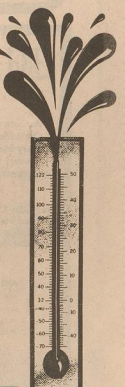

Yes, Motley County Ambulance Service should be commended and congratulated for their dedication to serve their county.

If you happen to pass one of the crew on the street, just say thanks, they deserve it.

Thanks, Kenny, Lisa, Tom, Sherry, Tony, Bob, and JoAnn. Thanks for caring.

FOOD SAFETY TIPS FOR THE SUMMER

Consumers should be very aware of food safety precautions during the summer when outdoor activities such as picnics, campouts and cookouts are popular.

Often these activities involve food. Unfortunately, the incidence of foodborne illness also seems to rise during these months. Bacteria that cause foodborne illness grow best at warm weather temperatures, specifically at "danger zone temperatures" between 40 degrees Fahrenheit and 140 degrees Fahrenheit.

Foods that are most perishable are called "red flag" foods. They are moist protein-containing foods such as poultry, meats, eggs, milk products, seafood, cream pies and custards. Red flag items also include such foods as fried chicken and hard-cooked or deviled eggs -- foods that are sometimes misunderstood as being non-perishable.

It's important to follow the "hot food-cold food rule" for perishable foods. "Keep hot foods hot (over 140 degrees) and cold foods cold (below 40 degrees)." The combination of these foods plus temperatures in the danger zone spell trouble.

Prevention of foodborne illness starts with the planning of the menu. Do not include "red flag" food unless you can keep them "hot" or "cold". If refrigeration is needed, but not available, foods can be packed in an ice chest. "It's important not to pack the ice chest too full and use adequate ice or ice packs to keep the foods at 40 degrees. Use shallow containers so food will stay chilled throughout. Also, keep the ice chest in the shade.

Some foods do not require refrigeration until opened and may be better items to take on a picnic. These include canned meats, peanut butter and jelly, breads, crackers, cereal and nut mixes. Dried fresh fruits are another option.

Plan to eat as soon as possible after you arrive at the picnic site. Store any leftovers promptly and properly, or throw them away. It is best to carry only what you plan to eat. Don't leave foods out for more than two hours. In hot summer temperatures, one hour is a better rule to follow.

If you pick up deli or fast food items, either pick them up immediately before the event and eat as soon as you arrive, or buy them the night before and refrigerate.

Cleanliness is very important to prevent the spread of bacteria. Avoid handling foods more than necessary. Never handle raw foods and cooked foods together. Do not reuse any utensils that touched raw foods without washing them.

Spread a clean tablecloth on the table before serving the food. Use disposables since adequate hand-washing or dishwashing facilities may not be available. Use these items only once, then throw them away.

Educational programs of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service are open to all citizens without regard to race, color, sex, disability, religion, age, or national origin.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY: It's good to have money and the things money can buy, but it's good, too, to check once in a while and make sure you haven't lost the things money can't buy.

Keeping Your Garden Harvest Fresh

Nothing announces the coming of summer better than the arrival of fresh vegetables in your garden. Delicious cucumbers, peppers, beans and squashes decorate backyards, tempting you with a spectrum of tastes and textures.

As you harvest the bounty from your backyard garden, you'll find that there will be days when you have more carrots, tomatoes and broccoli than one family can eat. By knowing proper vegetable storage techniques, it's easy to prevent garden-fresh vegetables from spoiling before you've had a chance to enjoy them.

First, unless you plan to serve vegetables immediately, store them just as you picked them from the garden — unwashed and uncut — in Ziploc® vegetable bags. Designed specifically to keep vegetables fresher longer, vegetable bags have hundreds of tiny microholes called Freshness Vents, which control the amount of moisture leaving the bag. The vents maintain the right moisture balance, ensuring that vegetables stay fresh and crisp.

There's no end to how vegetables can add freshness to your summer menu. They live up hot and cold pasta dishes, create colorful, mouth-watering stir-frys and are terrific skewered with meats on the grill. You can even get a start on your 5 A Day by adding tomatoes, mushrooms, onion, broccoli and green pepper to your next breakfast omelette.

When you have an abundance of fresh vegetables, here's a way to make use of your garden favorites. The following recipe for a quick, refreshing summer salad is the perfect dish for picnics in the park, backyard barbecues and outdoor concerts. Easy to make-ahead and take with you on-the-go, this marinated vegetable salad will complement all your summer entertaining, from hamburgers and grilled chicken to fish and steak.

Marinated Summer Vegetable Salad

- 2 cups halved Brussels sprouts
- 6 cups mixed vegetables, such as cauliflower and broccoli florets, asparagus pieces and julienne carrots

- 1/2 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
- 1/2 cup olive oil

- 2 tablespoons mixed chopped fresh herbs such as thyme, tarragon, dill and mint
- 2 tablespoons chopped fresh chives or green onion tops
- 1 cup cherry tomatoes, halved if large
- Lettuce leaves

1. Bring a large saucepan of salted water to boil. Add Brussels sprouts; cook 2 minutes.
2. Add mixed vegetables; return to a boil. Boil 2 minutes. Add pea pods; continue to boil 1 minute.
3. Drain in colander; rinse with cold water and drain well.
4. In a Ziploc jumbo storage bag, combine bell peppers, mushrooms and drained vegetables.

5. In a small bowl, combine vinegar, mustard, garlic, sugar, salt and pepper; mix well. Add oil in a stream, mixing until thickened.

Lots of boll weevils survived the Southern High Plains' fourth mild winter in a row and according to Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers (PCG) boll weevils may be significant problem in some areas this year.

With most of the cotton acreage in the Southern High Plains now squaring, some cotton fields in Gaines and Dawson Counties have already received boll weevil treatments. PCG officials say the possibility of weevil control should be foremost on everyone's mind.

"Early treatment decisions should be based on the 'trap index' using pheromone traps," says PCG Boll Weevil Program Coordinator Roger Haldenby. "At this time we are advising producers to talk to their crop consultant, entomologist or Extension personnel for advice on weevil treatments."

Haldenby adds that producers in the following counties should be especially watchful: Andrews, Borden, Briscoe, Crosby, Dawson, Dickens, Floyd, Gaines, Hall, Howard, Kent, Lynn, Martin, Midland, Motley, Scurry, and Terry.

"The Fall Diapause Boll Weevil Control Program is going to have a hard time addressing widespread weevil infestations in this newly infested area with the limited funds that are available," says Dr. James F. Leser, Extension Entomologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "This program needs your help. If weevil numbers run two to four per trap the week prior to the appearance of match-head sized squares, definitely consider spraying."

The PCG run boll weevil program has been very successful for 30 years because of help from the environment, mainly in the form of cold winters which compliment the programs goal of reducing the number of weevils entering overwintering habitat. Without this help the last few years, the weevil has made a major push into normally weevil-free areas of the High Plains.

Producers in these areas are also being encouraged to look further down the road in order to manage this year's crop so that the highest level of weevil control possible is achieved.

"It may seem a long time to harvest when we haven't even seen blooms, but producers in high weevil areas need to give some thought now to early termination of this crop," says Dr. Don Rummel, Research Scientist and boll weevil expert from the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, in Lubbock. "Regulating growth later in the season, knocking off squares and terminating a mature crop can possibly do as much good (for boll weevil control) as a pesticide application."

For more information about the status of weevil populations producers can contact their county Extension personnel or look for the "High Plains Boll Weevil Report" in the Cotton/Rice Segment of the DTN system.

Young Texans Take The Lead In Preventing Drug Use Among Peers

NOTE: Attending from Motley County are Joe Gonzalez, Scott Smith, Chad Lawrence, and their sponsor Chelsea Read.

LUBBOCK — Over 350 area junior high and high school students will gather at Texas Tech University for the Tenth Annual Texans' War on Drugs Youth Leadership Conference, July 6-9, 1994.

Sponsored by Texans' War on Drugs, the four-day conference brings together groups of young people who are concerned about their future in a world filled with drugs. Many of them have seen first hand the devastating effects of drugs on their peers and family. These youth leaders come together over the summer for a week of comprehensive training on preventing alcohol and other drug use in their schools and communities. They share the pressures they face daily and publicly reaffirm their commitment to lead drug-free lives and help their peers do the same.

"This is an amazing group of young people, who are committed to making their schools and communities a better place by helping their families and friends who are involved with alcohol and other drugs," said Conference Coordinator Bobby Heard of Austin. According to Bill Whitehead, of Region 17 Education Service Center and local contact for the Conference, "Region 17's Drug Free Schools and Communities program has awarded over 30 scholarships for area youth and adult sponsors to attend this year's conference." Over 100 youth from Lubbock and rural schools will be at the Conference.

These young leaders participate in a variety of workshops and activities that provide information and training in the areas of drug prevention education, helping those with alcohol and other drug problems, starting drug-free youth groups, community action planning, decision-making speakers and experts from across the country will be speaking, as well as many local speakers and performing groups.

Texans' War on Drugs Youth Leadership program has been recognized by many national organizations as a model for the country, such as the National Crime Prevention Council, National Association of State Alcohol and Drug Abuse Agency Directors, Center for Substance Abuse Prevention, Southwest Regional Center for Drug Free Schools and Communities, and Commission on National and Community Service. The program began in 1984 with only 40 young people from across Texas. This summer, approximately 1,800 junior and senior high students are expected to participate in several sessions throughout the state. As Mr. Heard says, "More than anything, these young people need to see they have their communities support. They need to be recognized for their efforts, as they are changing community attitudes toward drug use."

THANK YOU

Once again we are indebted to the people of Motley County. Aren't we lucky to live among the world's finest? Thanks to Tony and Sherry Rose and Bob Davis for their quick response to our call and for the calming care during the transport to Crosbyton and then to Lubbock. Thanks to all our neighbors for lending support that evening, and to Donnie, Kelli, and Dusty for taking care of Quinn again! And to all of you who have called, who have come to see us, sent cards, gifts, balloons and food, and who said special prayers on our family's behalf, we can only say "Thank You". We could never have made it through these past two weeks without you.

Love,
Vaden, Carrol, Courtney & Quinn Hays

Many thanks to my family and friends who extended your love to me through cards, letters, flowers, and prayers following my hip surgery. Your expressions of concern were a source of comfort.

Josephine Hamilton

The family of Lucille Gaines would like to thank all of the friends and neighbors for their prayers, cards, food, flowers, and visits during our recent bereavement. A special thanks goes to Rev. Gaylon Cox of First Baptist Church and Rev. Combs of Assembly of God.

The family of Lucille Gaines

A big thanks to those who came to Allsup's Sunday to help get my car open after I locked the keys inside. A special thanks to Sheriff Jim Meador and the other men who helped open the door, and to the clerk in Allsup's. It's great to know there are still such nice people in this world who will come to the aid of a stranger. Thank you.

Social Security Tips

by Terry Richardson

YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY NUMBER: SOME BASICS ABOUT ITS USE AND PROTECTION

Your Social Security number is the one number that belongs to you for the rest of your life. Phone numbers and license plates may change, and your age is only good for a year. But your Social Security number? It always stays the same.

The reason you need a Social Security number is simple: by knowing how much you've contributed to the system during your working years, we can determine the amount of your benefits when you retire or if you become disabled.

But it's no longer just employers who ask for your Social Security number. The law now requires parents or guardians to list the Social Security number of dependents on federal income tax returns. At the blood bank, you are asked to recite your number when you donate, and you may be asked for it when paying for groceries or buying clothes or other merchandise by check.

However, while other organizations may use your number for their own record-keeping purposes, they don't have access to your Social Security records. Your files are held in the strictest confidence.

Even so, it's important to protect your Social Security number and make sure your earnings record is accurate and not confused with another "account holder." Here's what you can do:

— Protect your Social Security card by keeping it with your other important papers and documents.

— When a private business or organization requests your number, ask why they need it. You're not required to give it out, but you may not get their product or service if you don't.

— Make sure your earnings record is accurate and up-to-date by sending for a free record of your earnings every three years.

Two free Social Security publications offer more help. Your Social Security Number includes information on protecting your number and reporting misuse. And the Request for Earnings and Benefit Estimate Statement lets you check your earnings history and gives you an estimate of future benefits. To order these publications, send your name and address to: Consumer Information Center, Department 22, Pueblo, CO 81009.

If you tell the truth, you don't have to remember anything.

Mental Health

by Ron Trusler, M.Ed., L.P.C.

Assistant Executive Director Central Plains Center for Mental Health, Mental Retardation and Substance Abuse.

SOME DECISIONS HAVE PAINFUL CONSEQUENCES

I wish I could take back some decisions that I've made and get another chance at it. Decisions have varying consequences.

1. Decisions without apparent consequences - e.g. speeding and not getting caught. One big problem here is we're more tempted to keep making these types of decisions which leads to severe consequences.

2. Decisions that are harmful to others mostly - an employer decides to be too hard on employees - they feel it directly while the employee loses respect/support but may not feel it as much.

Deciding to drink and drive, then hit another car, killing people. The driver is charged/sentenced but the other is dead!

3. Decisions with immediate, short-lived consequences -

ASE Car Talk from the Pros

(DM)—Good communications can help make your next visit to the auto repair shop go smoothly, say the experts at the National Institute for

Automotive Service Excellence (ASE), a non-profit group that tests and certifies automotive technicians. Among ASE's advice:

- Read the owner's manual, follow the recommended service schedules, and keep a log of repairs and service.

- Inspect your car frequently for unusual sounds, odors, drips, leaks, smoke, warning lights, gauge readings. Also look for changes in acceleration, engine performance, gas mileage, fluid levels; worn tires, belts, hoses; and problems in handling, braking, and steering.

- If you suspect a problem ask yourself, When did the problem first start? Is it constant or periodic? When the vehicle is cold or after the engine has warmed? At all speeds? Only under acceleration? During braking? When shifting?

- At the repair establishment, communicate your findings. Be prepared to describe the symptoms. Carry a written list of the symptoms for the technician or service manager. Do not be embarrassed to request everyday definitions of technical terms. Resist the temptation to suggest a specific course of repair, and don't force the shop to make an on-the-spot diagnosis.

- You decide to drive near a construction site and get a flat tire. 4. Decisions with consequences that seem to last forever - e.g.

- A person decides to abuse substances like alcohol/drugs - brain damage; addiction that rule their life; great losses.

- Not pursuing as much education as possible - limited jobs and earning potential.

Examples are plentiful, the problem is that many of our decisions are made with lots of available information for us to consider. It's unfortunate that we discount the advice and the experience of others and most often we snub our noses at good common sense.

If our decisions are made with the consideration of all available information and it turns out wrong, there's little room for guilt. It's another story though when we reject information though - ouch - that hurts inside and out.

- Before you leave, be sure you understand shop policies regarding labor rates, guarantees, and acceptable methods of payment. Leave a telephone number where you can be called and apprised of the problem, course of action, and costs before work begins.

FRIENDSHIP

Friendship. Such a word describes those that are close to us. Sure we may speak of people that we know as friends, but when we speak of a close friend we speak of so much more than an acquaintance. A friend is someone we have grown close to due to some common bond or interests. Somehow we find people that become very special to us. David had such a friend. During the turbulent years in which King Saul was threatening David's life, David became close friends with the most unlikely of people. David's friend was Jonathan, Saul's son. In spite of the fact that David's selection by God as the next king would replace Jonathan as heir to the throne, Jonathan loved David as his own life.

Jonathan risked his own life to save David from his father's life. Sometime during a quiet moment in your busy week, read of the covenant or pact that David and Jonathan made (1 Samuel 20). Read how David mourned the death of his friend, in spite of the fact that such an event guaranteed his ascension as King of Israel (1 Samuel 31; 2 Samuel 1) Read how David cares for Jonathan's son as he had promised (1 Samuel 20: 14-17; 2 Samuel 9).

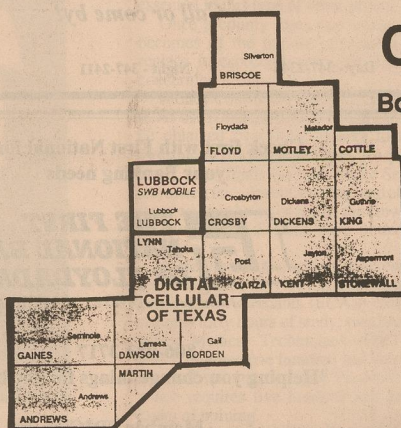

If nobody smiled, and nobody cheered,
And nobody helped us along;
If every man looked after himself
And good things went to the strong;
If nobody cared just a little for you,
And nobody thought about me;
And we all stood alone in the battle of life;
What a dreary old world it would be.

John 15:13 - "Greater love has no one than this, that one lay down his life for his friends". What a friend we have in Jesus!
