TRAIL DUST

Lonely faces of clouds looked over the sky transom of red hills, and mocking-birds sang their whispering songs in the distant motte of cottonwoods. Oblivious to the special world created for youth, the boy and girl held hands, and carrying their shoes, walked across the broad river to a white log caught on the trunk of a shady tree. They sat on the cool sand and leaned against the log while time pushed the shadows away from the hills. The girl laughed often and tossed long curls back from her shoulders. Once she wrote three words in the sand with a short stick and then quickly whipped them away. The boy looked at her seriously for an instant, then kissed her without speaking. They did not laugh again; a distant voice was calling their names from the picnic group. Soon the rumbling wagon was climbing out of the valley toward the rising moon. There was singing and laughter, the warm breaths of wind at twilight, the odors of sweating horses and leather; the fragrance of heated grass and sage. The lamp at a window in the distance was like a low star and the boy watched it come closer, the approaching end of their last journey together. At the door he pressed her hand and she was gone.

Free translation of the term "incompatibility" is "one of us has found someone else."

Truth is as constant as the stars which shine through the day and light the boulevards for angels at night.

Life has scarcely a more noble mission than a word of encouragement to a friend, or a greater gift than his confidence.

When experience wears away some of the splinters from the rough timber of youth its true quality becomes evident. The bridges to eventual destiny are built of tested material.

The hermit knows with a vast satisfaction that alone no man is small.

My faith is sufficient to endure the tribulations which my ignorance spawns, but I would welcome a sincere theologian's explanation of the divine law involved when lightning destroys a church whose walls have been steeped in prayer. (Tribune files, June 9, 1955)

Congressman Hightower Says . . .

World Democracies Should Share Support Of Refugees

(Special to the Tribune)

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Congressman Jack Hightower declares he is against the United States' taking hundreds of thousands of South Vietnamese and Cambodian refugees under its wings, particularly during this recessionary period when a high percentage of Americans are unemployed and swell the welfare rolls.

The Congressman noted there have been reports of 600,000 to one million refugees coming to America. "This must not happen," he said.

Hightower said an estimated 50,000 South Vietnamese are considered in special danger of Communist retaliation. "I hope the President will call on the democracies of the world to assist these people," he said.

"The Communist brand of justice has been too often demonstrated to us," the Congressman said. "It would mean torture and probable execution for these people who have in effect laid their lives on the line solely because of their assistance to and friendship with Americans."

Hightower said many of these refugees are close relatives of Americans or resident aliens. "I believe no person with Christian compassion can ignore their tragic plight," he said.

Tornado Season At Hand

COLLEGE STATION — Texas had the dubious honor of leading the nation in the number of tornadoes last year with 116. And another tornado season is at hand.

"Most tornadoes occur during April, May and June during the late afternoon although they can occur at any time of the year or any time during the day," points out Wayne Keese, agricultural engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Most tornadoes occur in the South and between the Rockies and the Appalachians.

"With a total of 94 reported tornadoes in the United States last year and 361 resulting deaths, 1974 was the worst year for tornadoes since 1925," points out the Texas A&M University System specialist.

Although the average annual number of tornadoes reported has quadrupled in the past three decades, the number of tornado fatalities has been decreasing. This is probably due to better methods of sighting tornadoes, warning systems and advance preparation for tornadoes, notes Keese.

Tornadoes usually travel southwest to northeast and stay on the ground about 10 minutes. Their forward speed is about 30 miles per hour but wind speeds in the funnel of a tornado get up to 300 miles per hour.

"Because tornadoes are so erratic, it's hard to tell just where or when they will occur," points out the engineer.

He stresses the importance of having a well rehearsed plan for quick action if a tornado is sighted.

The National Weather Service issues a "tornado watch" when atmospheric conditions are favorable for tornadoes. A "Tornado warning" is issued when a tornado has actually been sighted or detected by radar.

"If a tornado watch is announced, stay tuned to a radio or television for weather advisories. A tornado warning demands action, so you should quickly move to a basement, cellar or civil defense shelter," advises Keese. "Keep a battery-powered radio handy in case power is lost."

If your home doesn't have a basement or cellar, go to the lowest level in the center of the home or get in a closet or small room or under heavy furniture, suggests the engineer. Open a few windows to allow for sudden air pressure changes.

"Stay away from windows and buildings such as gymnasiums and auditoriums with wide free-span roofs. If you live in a mobile home, move to a shelter area. If you are caught in open country, move away from the tornado at a right angle to its path or lie flat in a ditch or ravine," he adds. "Do not stay in your car if you cannot safely evade the tornado by driving away from it or at right angles to its path."

If you sight a tornado, report it promptly to the nearest law enforcement officer, but do not tie up the phone with unnecessary calls.

"After a tornado, always wear thick-soled shoes and gloves in cleanup work and watch for broken gas pipes and downed electrical wires," warns Keese. "Don't light matches or smoke in or near a building that has been hit by a tornado until you are sure there are no gas leaks."

Furthermore, stay away from disaster areas unless you're helping with rescue and cleanup operations."

Hill-Holbrook Vows Pledged in Midland

St. Nicholas Episcopal Church in Midland was the setting at 6 p.m., Saturday, April 26, for the wedding of Miss Florence Winfrey Holbrook and Jesse Mark Hill III with the Rev. Mr. James Considine officiating for the double-ring nuptial event.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a formal gown of ivory satin organza. Venice lace defined the empire bodice featuring a Venice sculptured scoop neck and bishop sleeves. The A-line silhouette was enhanced with a Venice pyramid skirt sweeping back into an attached watteau train. A wide border of scalloped Venice lace trim encircled the entire gown.

Program Given On Art Of Enameling

El Progresso Club met Thursday afternoon, April 24 in the home of Mrs. Robert Darsey for a program on "The Art of Enameling. The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Harold Campbell, 2nd vice-president.

Mrs. Campbell was also program leader for the day, and opened the program with reading from the yearbook, a quotation by Andrew Wyatt: "I think one's art goes as far and as deep as one's love goes. I see no reason for anything but that. If I have anything to offer, it is my emotional contact with the place where I live and the people I do."

Mrs. Campbell presented Mrs. W. N. Pipkin, who introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Wayland Bennett, president of the Municipal Arts & Crafts Association of Lubbock. She had set up a magnificent display of enameled work she had created, and proceeded to explain how enameling is done and the many types of that work that can be done.

"Enameling means many things in America," she said, enameling woodwork, enameling fingernails, and other everyday things you think of when you think of enamel. Enameling is one of the fine art crafts and ranks with painting, sculpting, and jewelry. To artists it means applying glass to metal, heated at high temperatures where it fuses to metal, copper, silver or gold." The art dates back to the era before Christ, she said. "Cloisonne" is the forerunner to all enameling, she added.

Two types of enamel which Mrs. Bennett uses are opaque and transparent. She explained that pieces are fired at a temperature between 1400 and 1500 degrees Fahrenheit, and are fired each time a different color is added. "One way to tell if the enamelware is hand-done is to look for the firing ring around the edge of the piece. Another way is to be sure it has, on the back, a coat of enamel," she said.

Mrs. Bennett also is interested in painting, stichery, and pottery, but always returns to enameling. "Art is a strong motivating force and makes a person appreciate everything more," she declared, adding that she is never bored as "... each day finds something interesting."

The Inspirational Thought was given by Mrs. W. F. Jacobs, with a quote from Albert Einstein, and from the Upper Room a quote from "The Other Side of Tomorrow."

Those in attendance and enjoying refreshments of hot punch, coffee, cookies and mints were, Mesdames John M. Russell, J. L. Woodruff, Raymond Davis, W. D. Lipscomb, Ben Keltz, J. E. Edwards, Ralph Stapleton, Fred Simpson, R. E. Campbell Jr., and Furman Vinson, Miss Mary Keith, and those previously mentioned.

Guests, in addition to Mrs. Bennett, were Mrs. John Barnhill, Matador; Mrs. George Springer and Mrs. Earl Rowan of Floydada; Mrs. Ruth Dunn of Arizona and Mrs. Gerald Pipkin of Omaha, Neb.

FIFTEEN PLAYERS WERE OUT FOR ALL IRONS PLAY ON Thursday in the morning, players were Grace, Rita, Billie, Francine, Pat and Hazel. Playing after lunch were Laverna, Nell, Tommy, Louise, Geneva and Faye. Later afternoon players (the working girls) Norma Nell, Helen and Elaine... Grace had a birdie on No. 3... with a "hole-out." Francine and Grace tied with 36.

It's small consolation to some of us that we need practice with our irons, and it's so hard to do!

BABE ZAHARIAS Tournament Sunday had 12 players entered -- Marvin, Howard, Laverna, Clyde,

Week end visitors in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Green were their son and family, Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Don Green, Bryan and Krista of Jal, N.M., who were accompanied by a niece, Dana Durham of Lubbock, granddaughter of the Jack Greens.

Alfred, Louise, Ricky Turner, Boyce, Bob, Nell, Geneva and Harold Parks. Winner was Clyde (36), with Marvin second (38). For the women, winner was Laverna (38) and second, Nell (39). Geneva and Louise won balls for having "brownies" on No. 3.

The weather was a major factor and a definite additional handicap... winds were gusting 50 miles an hour, at least!

$70.50 was donated to the cancer fund. Tom Yeates was unable to play, but came by and left a donation, as did Francine and Hazel. We hope to add more contributions to this fund. Others wishing to aid in this cause may leave donations at First State Bank.

The gals were most attractive in their chic golf togs -- even lace-trimmed golf socks to match one outfit -- we hear one of the other members also has socks with lace, but hasn't worn hers yet.

The course was freshly mowed and as has been said many times, this is the prettiest course and greener fairways than any around in this area.

The Pipkins were playing as a family group on Wednesday -- celebrating a visit of Gerald and Syd -- from Omaha.

STUDIES ABOUT THE BIBLE

The gospel of Christ divides world population into only two categories. The division is not based on race, nationality, education, nor political power; neither economics. The picture is righteousness against sin, love against hate, God and His Son Jesus Christ against Satan. And we become separated from God by sinning.

Behold, the Lord's hand is not so short That it cannot save; Neither is His ear so dull That it cannot hear. But your iniquities have made a separation between you and your God, And your sins have hid His face from you, so that He does not hear. Isa. 59:1-2.

Note these two clauses. "... your iniquities separate you and your God." "... your sins have hid His face from you." It is a tragedy to be created in the image of God, and then find oneself separated from Him. We do this by loving sin. However, there is a way back.

Metric Charts Are Available

Mrs. Ray Bateman, Afton correspondent has found a source for obtaining charts that will assist in making the metric conversion easy and rapid. She has been notified by Fruehauf Corp., of a free chart that is being sent as a public service.

"Whether you are ready or not, it appears that the time is almost at hand when everything will be converted to metric measurements," Mrs. Bateman said. She pointed out that, "The Seven-Up Company is reported to be going metric this spring. With the change over we are supposed to get more Un-Cola for our money, as the new bottles will hold 33.8 and 16.9 ounces instead of the present 32 and 16 oz. sizes

County Agent Pallmeyer Says

When buying chemicals, don't be caught in a trap by a fast talking salesman. Last year in Colorado, fast talkers tried to sell farmers and ranchers on the idea that the herbicide 2,4-D would make a good fertilizer. Follow the following steps and you may prevent yourself a loss and embarrassment.

1. Buy your agricultural chemicals from an established, reputable dealer.

2. Watch out for fraudulent soil additives, and have your soil tested before buying to make sure there are deficiencies which warrant the purchase.

3. READ the label on any product you buy, looking for use instructions, guarantees, state approval and a manufacturer whose name you recognize.

4. Don't order new or unfamiliar products over the phone unless you know the dealer, or are sure of what you're buying, who you are buying from and when to expect delivery.

5. Check into the cost-benefit ratio - be sure the investment will pay off.

6. Beware of "good deals" on name brand products or unknown "wonder products" that do not carry state label approval - they may be fraudulent or stolen. When in doubt, contact your local extension agent for verification.

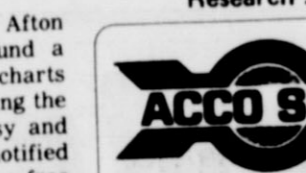

7. Finally, when you do purchase and use a new product, leave an untreated check strip to verify the product's relative efficiency. (This is one reason we run many of the local tests.)

Folks yearning for the return of the "good ole days" may be seeing their wishes come true. Home butchering of livestock, once popular in many areas, is making a comeback.

Demonstrations are being provided by the Texas (about 6 per cent more liquid).

"To help you 'think metric' and assist in making easy and rapid conversion, a free, handy slide chart will be sent if you write: Fruehauf Corp. Public Relations (IF) 10900 Harper Ave., Detroit, Mich. 48230."

Agricultural Extension Service and cover the entire operation from slaughtering to wrapping meat for the home freezer.

A family can slaughter and process an animal on-the-farm in four to six hours. Home slaughtering and processing can save 30 to 50 per cent of the price of a retail beef, and the normal locker plant charges of about $50 for a 600 lb. calf.

As long as the individual is butchering the animal for his own use, he is within the law by doing so. It is illegal to custom slaughter or cut beef for other people unless the operation is properly inspected and meets all legal requirements.

Don't limit 1975 crop production before you plant.

Be sure of the seed you plant. Conditions in 1974 didn't allow all seed to mature properly, so if you caught your cottonseed for planting, have a germination test run. If you buy seed, make sure germination information is available.

You can't produce on a plant that isn't there, and no one wants to spend the time and money trying to get up a seed that won't come up.

LAND USE MEETING AT JAYTON

A meeting to provide information on Land Use Planning is scheduled for Thursday, May 8, at Jayton, according to Extension Agent Bill Pallmeyer. The meeting will be in the First National Bank, Jayton, starting at 2:00 p.m.

The Rolling Plains Economic Program is sponsoring the meeting, and speakers will include Dr. Billy Harris, Extension Land and Water Use Specialist and Kenneth Graeber, Extension Economist-Real Estate.

Topics to be presented include, What is Land Use planning? The historic perspective of land use control and planning; what techniques, tools and authority exist today related to land use planning; proposed state and federal legislation and agency regulations related to land use planning; and land use planning implications for agriculture.

Do you need some reading material on agricultural or home economic subjects? The chances are good that I have bulletins on the subject you are interested in, and if not, maybe I can get them for you. The Extension Service and the Department of Agriculture have hundreds of publications for free distribution, and they are of no value unless someone uses them.

Girls Attend FHA Meeting

"Pass It On, Reach Out and Touch" with emphasis on the positive, worthwhile aspects of young people, was the theme carried out at the 1975 State Meeting of the Future Homemakers of America held April 17, 18 in San Antonio. Speakers on the program spoke on the merits of today's youth and challenged adults to support and work with all students, including slow students as well as excellent ones.

Marian Giesecke, Betty Sue Markham and Miss Carrye Burley, Motley County FHA advisor represented Motley County High School at the State Meeting held at the Convention Center in San Antonio. The group from Motley County went by bus from Estelina with other FHA groups from this area.

In addition to the sessions at the State Meeting, Marian, Betty Sue and Miss Burley visited such places as the Governor's Palace, Tower of the Americas, the Alamo, Brackenridge Park and Zoo, Chinese Sunken Gardens, a wax museum and took a boat tour of San Antonio.

As a highlight of the trip, the group saw Maury Amsterdam, a star in the Dick Van Dyke Show at the El Tropicana Motel where they stayed.

Miss Burley extended her thanks to the community for supporting the girls in the bake sale held earlier in the year, which enabled the girls to go to the meeting.

TEXAS TALK

Demand for quality cotton continues to increase. Not only is the use of natural fiber rebounding, but the by-product market is also expanding. Since average cottonseed meal is at least 41 percent protein, it is becoming increasingly important as a primary feed for cattle, sheep and horses.

Expeller, Hydraulic and Solvent are processes used to produce meal or cake from raw cottonseed. Expeller and Hydraulic processes leave about 5 percent fat content in processed meal while the Solvent process leaves less than 1-1/2 percent.

Research now underway may result in an economically feasible method of limiting Gossypol (a cottonseed toxin) content to low enough levels to make cottonseed meal a primary protein supplement for swine and poultry. Success could significantly increase this by-product demand.
