Methodist Church

Some of our regulars were absent last Sunday and they were greatly missed, both in the Sunday school and the preaching services. Then some who have not been regular the whole year were absent last Sunday. We miss each one when absent. The last Sabbath was really a great day. Good attendance at all services.

The Senior Epworth League that was organized last week had its first meeting Sunday evening with a good number present. Prof. W. A. Lewis talked to them on the subject—"We Are The Government". His talk was timely, interesting and helpful. The young people enjoyed it very much. We give to each young person a cordial invitation to meet with this group each Sunday evening. We also have a fine group of Intermediate Leaguers, and we will welcome each intermediate to meet with them. Then the Boys and Girls World Club is a live going concern. Bring your children to that meeting.

The pastor will fill the pulpit at both hours next Sunday. Shall I expect you there?

If you are not in Sunday school, League or preaching services elsewhere we will be happy to have you worship with us.

Come with the crowd to the Methodist Church.

Pastor.

J. D. CHALK, PIONEER COWBOY IS CALLED BY DEATH SUNDAY, OCT. 1

SOUTH TEXAS COWMAN WAS PIONEER OF KING COUNTY

Death closed the chapter on another of the cattle country's passing characters last Sunday when the spirit of J. D. Chalk moved on to the round-up grounds of eternity. Mr. Chalk had spent a large part of his life in the saddle on ranches in south Texas.

J. D. Chalk was born February 11, 1858, in Bell county, Texas. He was married November 30, 1881, to Miss Allie Hobbs. To this union nine children were born, five boys and four girls. With the exception of one boy, all are living.

Mr. Chalk was a pioneer of King county, having moved there in 1901, where he made his home for many years.

Interment was made in the Roaring Springs Cemetery Monday afternoon.

Movie Chatter

By a Rogue
At last it's here folks. "Sign of The Cross"—Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Here's a "real" show folks, the cast consists of 7500 people besides Frederic March, Elissa Landi, Charles Laughton, Claudette Colbert and Ian Keith. The picture was made at a cost of $3,000,000.

We hear our pastors describe the persecutions of the early Christians but to truly appreciate the meaning of the word, we should see this picture. Imagine a Christian meeting, persons listening to the Word of God, suddenly Roman soldiers appear from nowhere and mercilessly slaughter the group.

Imagine a Roman holiday. Hundreds of Roman Nobles in the coliseum for entertainment such as: Christians being fed to the lions, gladiators fight to death, Amazon women matched in a death contest with negro pigmies. The show is great—its another "Ben Hur", "Ten Commandments", "King of Kings". I could rave for a week about the "Sign of The Cross". Just see it for yourself Thursday, Friday or Saturday.

Sunday and Monday we have Kate Smith in "Hello Everybody". Now listen you will get tired of my telling you they are all good because anybody must show some bum ones—but I'm telling you this picture will please everybody. Its good.

As our Sunday guests we wish to invite Miss Jerry Tudor and Mr. J. K. Crews. Watch it folks you may be next to get a free ticket.

A "Turkey Trot" will be one of the features of the All-World Turkey Show which will be held in connection with the 1933 Poultry Show at the State Fair of Texas, it has been announced here by J. J. Eckford, director in charge. The "turkey trot" will be held on Sunday, Oct. 22.

Let Your Light So Shine

Add a candle to a room full of candles and the light is not appreciable increased but bring in a 200-watt tungsten and the candles become dull and yellow

The world is full of people who give out only a candle glow, and that is why the opportunities for those of the electric light type are so promising. There is a great shortage of students in schools of all kinds. This means that the uneducated boy or girl will be just another candle added to a world
 already full of candles; it also means that those who have the good judgment to equip themselves
 with the proper type of education will be comparable to the electric light in the room filled with candles.

For more than thirty years our school has been bending its efforts to convert the human candle into the human electric light bulb—taking youngsters out of the mediocre class and raising their earning power and placing them on the road to a successful business career. How well we have succeeded is testified to by more than fifty thousand office workers distributed
 all over the English speaking world
 many of whom are at the head of large business enterprises. What we have assisted others to do we will be glad to do for you.

May we send you our annual describing the work we are doing? Its free.

ago I interviewed if not the first, stars—Miss Florence unknown to the son, but a name to in the past. Miss in May, 1907, with graph Company of that Niobe who lost her illustrious Talmadge, Clara Flora Finch, Johnayne Gordon and—the greatest of those distant two whole days to make, when before only a few hours had sufficed. Francesca in order to be correctly habited required three costumes—the one in which she first meets her lover, Paolo, her bridal dress and the one in which she dies. "But, can't you die in one of your other dresses?"—the boss wanted to know. "It'll save me five dollars if you can." But Miss Turner remained adamant on this point she would not die in anything but black velvet with ruching at the neck. After some verbal altercations her boss relented and squandered his five dollars so that Miss Turner could be a ravishing corpse in black velvet with ruching at the neck.

On another occasion Miss Turner was to represent a dead mother clutching a still live baby in her stiff cold arms. Both mother and child had been shipwrecked and were floating about on a waste of water lashed to a tiny raft. As the actress was late in getting to the studio that morning she did not stop to eat her breakfast. When the cold water dashed over her she was shivering but the scene was prolonged for hours and she made known her plight. A man standing nearby conceived the brilliant idea of giving her a few drinks from his brandy flask, to stimulate her and warm her up. But Miss Turner was a teetotaler, but the man pooted all that, and her will power was at that moment at its nadir so she took several generous swallows of the brandy. The raft was then pushed from the shore and the scene was resumed. Shortly thereafter Miss Turner began to feel warm, mellow and sleepy. After the scene was finally shot and the raft drawn to the shore, the director called out "O. K. Miss Turner, you can get up now", but Miss Turner neither got up nor did she open her eyes. She seemed to lay in a trance. "Great Scott, maybe she's dead", shrieked the director, "let's get her to the hospital as quickly as we can". When Miss Turner finally opened her eyes in a hospital room, she beheld a row of men all looking alike standing over her bed, and they all looked like her director.

When Tennyson's immortal story of unrequited love—"Lancelot and Elaine" was being filmed, Miss Turner had another amusing experience. The scene being filmed represented the heart-broken Elaine dead on her flower-adorned barge floating down the river. Miss Turner reposed upon her floral bier with her arms crossed over her chest, a white lily in her hand all was in readiness for the trip down the river. The men were just about to give a push to start the barge, when the president of the film company came running up. "Hold on a minute—say Miss Turner I'm short of money, loan me some until this afternoon. The "corpse" got up went to get her pocketbook and handed the gentleman a roll of bills. "O. K., thanks sorry to interrupt", smiled the president.

A BANK REFLECTS THE LIFE ABOUT IT

Loans and Investments on Which Condition of a Bank Depends Determined by the Kind of Business
Surrounding It

POLITICAL and popular misapprehensions toward banking are due to little else than failure to realize that it is what the people themselves do that the condition of banking reflects, and that banking cannot of itself reflect events and conditions other than those that actually originate from surrounding circumstances. Francis H. Sisson, President of the American Bankers Association, says in an article in Forum Magazine.

The character of an institution's notes and investments indicates whether it is in the farm regions, a manufacturing center, a mercantile neighborhood or a great financial district, he says, and furthermore, besides identifying the institution as to its locality, a study of its notes will equally clearly indicate the economic conditions surrounding it.

"If a farm district bank's note history shows that its loans rise and fall with the normal cycle of production and marketing of the products of the region, it may be taken as an index of economic good health for the locality," he says. "But if, over a period, the loan volume shows a dwindling trend it may mean a region that is losing ground,—becoming exhausted or being robbed of business by another community. Or if a large proportion of the loans are not paid at maturity but are chronically renewed, or if stocks or bonds or real estate have to be taken as additional security, these too have economic significances, reflecting perhaps crop failures, over-production or inefficient, high cost farming methods in a highly competitive national or world market, such as wheat. Inevitably all these facts are reflected in the condition of the local banks.

The largest portable ride ever built for the road, "The Twister", will be seen at the 1933 State Fair of Texas, on the Beckman and Gerety Midway. This gigantic ride weighs more than fifty tons and is said to be one of the most popular rides ever carried by a travelling company.
