Calvin Coolidge

The greatness of a great man begins at his death. In the death of Calvin Coolidge, the nation has lost a truly great man at a time when it needs men of his abilities more than ever before.

Sales Tax

Write this on something more permanent than your cuff. We will have the sales tax. Nor will we have long to wait. It is a tax that can be collected and the lawmakers will not let its possibilities pass untouched.

Lost At Sea

Pacific Coast naturalists, says the Star-Telegram, are puzzled by a strange object, with some appearance of a fish, washed up from the ocean.

Landers Store Has Successful Opening

Despite the heavy rainfall Friday night, the Grand Opening of Landers Store, No. 4, in Roaring Springs last Saturday proved exceedingly successful and satisfactory to Mr. Dalton Johnston, its manager.

People of Roaring Springs and of this trade territory began thronging the newly established food emporium early Saturday and continued with increased momentum throughout the day.

The generous portions of sandwiches, hot biscuits, coffee and cakes served visitors proved a popular innovation, keeping representatives of the various food manufacturing companies busy during the entire day.

Sales receipts, according to manager Johnston, exceeding his expectations, after making allowance for the inclement weather which prevented many people from visiting Roaring Springs, and Landers store, Saturday.

Mr. Johnston and Mr. Benson, manager of the market department of Landers store, wish to express appreciation for the general interest and welcome tendered them during the opening.

Church of Christ

"If Christ is not Lord of all, He won't be Lord at all." Many church members are like the old game, "Pussy Wants a Corner," and "Off again, on again, Flannagin." If your religion hasn't changed you, change your religion.

The Bible School 10 a. m. Lords Supper 10:40. Preaching 10:45. The Tree Groups or "Lord is it I" - Matthew 26. At 7 p. m. the young people will give a program and at 7:30 the Minister will talk on "The Great Salvation," Heb. 2:3.

Instead of "land me safe on Caanan's shore," many sing it "Land my safe on Caanan's shore."

Starting 1933 many people will return to church and go other places in wagons and do it from necessity and will do it willingly. Let's go. Welcome here.

Baptist Pastor to Make Home In Roaring Springs

Rev. L. A. Smith, who has served as pastor several times here, will move from plainview to Roaring Springs in the near future to make his home. He will preach regularly at the First Baptist Church here on the first and third Sundays of each month, the other two Sundays he will devote his time as pastor for the Center community near Floydada.

Rev. Smith will hold services here next Sunday, January 8, 11 a. m.

Missionary Society Meets And Elects 1933 Officers

The Women's Missionary Society met Monday, Jan. 2, at the church for the purpose of re-organizing and electing officers for the year of 1933, which are the following:

President - Mrs. C. B. Cargile. Vice-President - Mrs. H. M. Costolow.

Corresponding Secy. and Treasurer - Mrs. Birdie Gipson. Recording Secy. - Mrs. Guy Braselton.

Study Supt. and publicity - Mrs. Marvin McBrayer. Supt. of Supplies - Mrs. W. M. Vaughn.

Supt. Social Relations - Mrs. A. J. Hodges.

Supt. of local work and local Treas. - Mrs. D. S. (Mother) Cargile.

Chairman of Program Committee - Mrs. W. A. Campbell. Chairman of Membership Committee - Mrs. Andy Hurst.

World Out Agent - Mrs. Costalow.

Each one is taking their place in the work with a new zeal and high hopes are being built for the coming year.

May God richly bless those that put forth an effort.

Mr. Long left immediately to be at the bed side of his father.

Chapel Program

Miss Traweek will have charge of the chapel program Wednesday morning, January 18, and the public is not only invited, but is urged to be present on this occasion.

This program will constitute Miss Traweek's recital. Every pupil she has will take part in the program and although not a long program we can assure you that it will be a very entertaining one.

Remember the date - January 18 at 9 o'clock, in the high school auditorium.

Senior Class Play Well Attended Friday Night

The Senior class play, "High Flyers," presented in the school auditorium Friday night was well attended by an enthusiastic audience.

Many of the characters displayed exceptional talent and reflected careful selection in casting.

Methodist Church

Last Sunday was the high day for church attendance since this pastor has been here. Not only the pastor but the church as well were greatly inspired and encouraged. The Sunday school attendance was not quite up to what it was before the cold weather in December, but had a good Sunday school at that.

Next Sunday the pastor will be at Dickens City for the regular services there, so we will not have preaching at our church here. I'm urging my folk to attend church at one of the other churches in town.

We have provided two new classes in Sunday school, and also divided the group for the young people's meeting in the evening. We have done this in order to properly classify the young people, thus enabling the church to better instruct them and help them to develop spiritually. We extend a hearty invitation to all the young people of the church, and those of the town and surrounding community if not already in some other church, to come and join with us.

The pastor calls upon every member of the church for his support and influence in making this church of real help to the community. Can he count on you? Remember this - "There are two classes of church members, those that go ahead and do whatever called upon to do, and those who do nothing themselves and then criticize those who have gone ahead". To which class do you belong?

If not worshipping elsewhere then we invite you to worship with us at "The Friendly church."

T. MARVIN McBRAYER, Pastor.

Urge Registration of Motor Vehicles Before Final Rush Is Made

The state highway department has called the attention of all county tax collectors to a Texas law which makes it a misdemeanor punishable by fine for any citizen to purchase an automobile or truck license outside of the county of his residence, according to Sheriff J. E. Skinner, local county and state tax collector.

Sheriff Skinner also urges all Motley county citizens to purchase their license before the rush starts the last of January. New licenses must be on all motor vehicles by Feb. 1.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Ferguson spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ferguson.

Immediate Action Urged By The School Board To Avert Crisis

AFFILIATION DOOMED IF TAXES ARE NOT PAID

Less Than Twenty Per Cent Received As Teachers Go Unpaid

Over three hundred students of Roaring Springs school face a shortened school term, and as a result, the loss of affiliation gained after fourteen years of intense work, if property owners of this district do not respond with payment of school taxes. Drastic appeals of the school board have been futile in awakening tax payers to the impending crisis.

TEACHERS UNPAID

The Roaring Springs school district should collect $9,844.00 in school taxes, yet to date less than $1,600 has been paid. The entire faculty, continuing faithfully with their work, receive only vouchers instead of cashable checks at the end of each month. The student body and the faculty look hopefully to the property owners to pay their taxes before it is too late.

AFFILIATION THREATENED

Besides the loss of rank as an affiliated school which will result with less than a nine months term, the complete cessation looms in the background as the inevitable outcome. The sincere consideration of every property owner with unpaid taxes is urged by the school board, the faculty and the entire student body.

First Grey Fox Seen In This Section For Several Years Killed By Hunters

A grey fox, rarely seen in this section of Texas, was killed by a party of hunters, consisting of George Gabriel, Mr. Malouf of Rottan, Texas, and others, on Tongue river south of Roaring Springs Friday.

The grey fox, which resembles the plentiful coyote, is not a native of this country. Several, familiar with hunting and trapping, say this is the first specimen seen here in several years.

'There is glory enough for any man to live and die a Texan.'

It used to be thought that only vastly changing conditions called for the necessity of making new laws, but the puzzling part of the law-making business is that every time a State legislature meets it grinds out new laws by the hundreds. Why this is necessary nobody knows. The trouble with Texas today is there are too many laws on the statute books now which no one knows anything of, and which they can not obey. It seems the chief cause of the meeting of legislatures is to give the members a job, and to enable them to get in on the pay roll. At any rate it does not look reasonable that every year the people need so much guidance, a la legislators, to keep them in the paths of right and rectitude. Is Texas so sick every year that it needs the personal attention of all these political doctors to get it back in line once more? Seemingly what this State needs is not so much politics, but some sane economic remedying. It needs folks who will take over government jobs who think more of the welfare of the State

Texas Wool Industry

By W. E. TELBOT

Edison's Note.—This is the fourth of a series of articles dealing with the possibilities of the wool industry in Texas. Colonel Talbot, managing director of the Southwest Industrial Development Bureau, is an acknowledged authority on the subject of industrialization for Texas.

STORY No. 4.

Copyright, 1932, Southland Life Insurance Co.
 The first step in the development of our wool industry would be the creation of scouring plants. The first requisite is, of course, nearness to the base of supply; second, an ample supply of water, and third, the capital required to put it over.

The city of New Braunfels has made the initial effort along this line under the able direction of Harry Wagenfuhr, president of the chamber of commerce; Bailey Jones, general manager of the chamber of commerce, and James McDowell, an expert on textile manufacture. A group of buildings located on a stream where 2,000,000 gallons of water pass daily is being offered by the city of New Braunfels for the purpose of developing this new industry. San Marcos has also shown some activity along the line of a wool-scouring plant. Great interest is evidenced from San Angelo, Brownwood and Del Rio. There is ample room for all of these cities to develop their own industries along this line, because if we will do what we should in connection with the development into the finished product, the wool industry can grow to be one of the greatest, if not the greatest, industries we have in Texas.

It means we are going to have to quit dreaming and actually go to doing something about it. By doing our own scouring we could save in freight $200,000 to our people alone. The freight for the wool in its raw state is $1.66 per 100 pounds to the Eastern point, but scoured it is only $2.35. So by shipping only the scoured wool you can see the great amount of saving that can be effected for our own people.

Monday: Advantages of Scouring Plants in Texas.

than they do of their pay day. Of course finding men like that in this peculiar age is somewhat of a difficulty. Selfishness appears to be seated enthroned along all lines of endeavor. And so long as there is but one idea in mind, and that to serve one's special interests, it will be more than an uphill piece of business to remove the barrier from real progress and contentment. It is true that in the main no one would care to go back twenty-five or fifty years and live as the people of that day had to exist, but here is one feature of that time which would do well to come back in 1933. That is the rugged honesty of that time. People did not have to bar their doors every time they went out into their back yard, and a man's word was as good as his bond. It was upon such a foundation as this the State was enabled to build up to the splendid attainments it now enjoys, but unless the lax morals of the men in high places, and those of the general citizenship change, it will be many years before things get back to where they were in those days called days of prosperity and contentment. Too many laws are detrimental. Too much legislation can do no good.

The Higginbotham-Bailey-Logan Company, of Dallas, is another example of the evolution of a wholesaler into a manufacturer. And the great influence this company has had on the rise and growth of the men's and women's apparel manufacturing industry in the State clearly illustrates the part which the Texas wholesaler has played, and is playing, in our industrialization. The manufacturing of line after line has been pioneered by this company, and all over Texas today thousands of busy machines are operating thereby giving employment to thousands of Texas workers, because the Higginbotham-Bailey-Logan Company has demonstrated that the garments those machines are making can be successfully manufactured and sold in Texas. On the list of Texas apparel manufacturers the name of Higginbotham-Bailey-Logan, like Ben Adhem's, leads all the rest, and the growth of the manufacturing end of this leading Texas dry goods wholesaler's business is interesting.

The company was organized in 1914, by the late R. W. Higginbotham, A. H. Bailey, W. L. Logan and others to engage in the business of wholesaling a general line of dry goods, notions, ladies' ready-to-wear, and men's wear. The first move of the new company was the purchase of the business of the firm of the Harris Lipsitz Company. Business was conducted in the Harris Lipsitz building until October, 1914, when the company moved into its own building then just completed at the corner of Jackson and Lamar streets. The original building was 75 by 210 feet with seven stories and basement. Increase of business made the addition of a seven story and basement annex, 50 by 310 feet, necessary by 1918, and in 1922 the building was enlarged to its present size of 200 by 210 feet with seven stories and basement throughout.

The first manufacturing venture came in 1919 with the opening of the "Paymaster" work clothing factory, occupying one entire floor of the new annex, 50 by 310 feet. This factory began, in that year, the production of men's overalls, work pants, and work-piece work suits, with about 150 machines operating. In order to supply the increasing demand for these Texas-made work garments, continual expansion of the "Paymaster" factory has followed. It now occupies a space of 75 by 310 feet and contains 240 machines. Normal production is now 1,400 dozen garments per week, and this factory gives employment to about 270 workers. In addition to the "Paymaster" line, a new lower-priced overall is also being manufactured now, and sold under the name "Everyday."

All of the materials used in this factory, with the exception of a few numbers of fancy pant materials, are woven in Texas from Texas cotton. It is interesting to note in this connection that, whereas only a few years ago we depended almost entirely on outside States to furnish us with our work clothing, at least 90 per cent of the work garments sold in the State today are made here—every operation from the spinning of the cotton to the making of the finished garment being performed in the State.

Along about 1922, using a few machines in the "Paymaster" factory, the making of men's work shirts was begun as a sort of experiment. Within a year's time, more machines were needed to supply the demand and a new factory was equipped to run exclusively on work shirts. This factory has continued to grow and now contains one hundred machines which normally produce 600 dozen "Paymaster" and "Everyday" work shirts, weekly. This production requires about 115 workers.

Due to the success of the work shirt line, the manufacturing of men's dress shirts was started in 1924 in a small factory with eighteen machines. The growth of this factory has been phenomenal, and its 115 machines and 130 workers now produce normally 700 dozen "Warwick" and "Diplomat" men's shirts, and "Jimmie Dugan" boys' shirts weekly. In addition to shirts, this factory also makes a varied line of men's pajamas and night shirts.

In 1921 the "Texland" underwear factory was opened to make men's and boys' athletic nainsook underwear. This factory, with twenty machines, employs twenty workers who produce about 600 dozen garments weekly. Besides union suits, men's and boys' knickers are also made there.

The "Cunard" necktie factory was opened in 1928 and now produces about 200 dozen men's ties weekly. This factory also makes about 300 dozen women's rayon neckties a week, and sixteen workers are employed in making these neckties and underwear.

For the year 1921 may be said to mark the birth of the men's wash dress industry in Texas, for it was in this year that the Higginbotham-Bailey-Logan Company opened its "Virginia Hart" dress factory. There had been a few sporadic attempts to make women's wash dresses in Texas before that year, but the rise of the industry here really started with the great success of this company in the manufacturing of them, for the "Virginia Hart" was the first wash dress line to be produced and sold in volume in the State. The enthusiastic reception of this Texas-made dress by the trade was the influencing factor in the establishment of many other dress factories over the State and thus has been the inspiration behind the building of a large new Texas industry.

The original "Virginia Hart" factory was a comparatively small affair with twenty-four machines and a weekly production of about 120 dozen dresses. Expansion was necessary every year so that the original twenty-four machines had been increased to seventy-two by 1925, but still orders were running ahead of production. Accordingly, in 1925 the factory was moved to the third unit of the company's building, where it now occupies an entire floor 75 by 210 feet, and 250 machines were installed. The normal production of this factory is now 1,500 dozen dresses a week which production requires 275 workers.

"Virginia Hart" dresses are sold not only in Texas, but in twenty other States as well and a New York sales office is necessary to handle the Eastern business.

In 1923 a new factory was opened to manufacture a line of women's silk, woolen, and better linen dresses. Fifty machines are now operating in this factory and sixty-five workers are normally employed in producing about 1,100 garments a week.

In the space originally occupied by the "Virginia Hart" factory, the manufacturing of children's wash dresses was started in 1930, with twenty machines. This factory has now grown to seventy-two machines, and its eighty-five employees produce 500 dozen children's dresses weekly.

Branching out along an entirely new line, a modern curtain factory was opened by the company in 1929 to produce the large quantity of ruffled-curtains and panels which it had been buying in the East and wholesaling. This factory, like all the preceding ones, was a success from the start, and its output has been tripled since its opening. Fifteen girls are now employed in turning out 800 dozen pairs of criss-cross ruffled curtains and panels a week. These are put up and sold under the company's own "Plymouth" label. Since the success of this factory, four other curtain factories have been opened in the State, and the making of curtains bids fair to develop into another large industry in Texas.

Perhaps the most revolutionary step, and one that promises the establishing of a very valuable industry in Texas, was taken by the Higginbotham-Bailey-Logan Company in 1928 with the opening of its modern new "Dartmouth" men's and boys' clothing factory. The making of men's and boys' woolen pants had been started in a small way during the previous year with a weekly production of about 300 pairs. The excellence of the products of this small factory convinced the company that it could manufacture the full suit and top coat as well as pants, and accordingly an experienced clothing manufacturer was brought down from New York to install and take charge of a factory for that purpose. Production of woolen suits and top coats was begun in the latter part of 1928 and has steadily grown since then. The factory has operated at full capacity continuously and now, with sixty workers, turns out about 600 garments weekly. The original pants factory now employs forty workers and produces 1,000 pairs weekly, while the new pants factory, just opened to make suit pants only, employs eighteen workers who turn out about 500 pairs a week.

The making of men's and boys' woolen suits and coats is an entirely new undertaking in Texas, and it is to be hoped that the company's success in this field will lead to the expansion of the industry in the State, as was the case with the manufacturing of women's dresses. It is an industry which requires highly skilled and therefore well paid labor, and one in which a great amount of value is added to the raw materials used in manufacturing. For these reasons, its expansion here would materially add to the prosperity of the State.

No doubt one of the reasons we have continued to import all of the men's and boys' woolen clothing we buy is because of a belief that Texas workers are not capable of performing the skilled tailoring necessary to its production. But in the "Dartmouth" factory, all operators are Texas workers, and anyone who has worn a "Dartmouth" suit or top coat as the writer has, cannot but appreciate the excellency of their tailoring.

A trip through the dozen or more factories of the Higginbotham-Bailey-Logan Company is an inspiration to any Texan who realizes the benefits and blessings that will come through the growth of manufacturing in the State. The whirl of flying wheels, the steady throb and hum of countless rows of speeding machines, and the busy bustle of the place seem to tell of a new Texas, prosperous and independent—of an industrial Texas, supplying its own needs through the utilization of the energy and ability of its people.

But still more inspiring is the sight of the more than one thousand workers pouring out of the factory doors, after the day's work, hurrying to a thousand homes supported by this one Texas manufacturer. If every Texan could but see that scene, and then realize how many other thousands of Texas homes might be relieved of poverty and want by the expansion of manufacturing in the State, that expansion would be greatly hastened, for then we would not so lightly pass up Texas-made goods for those of other sections.—C. M. Hammond, in Texas Weekly.

Poor Manchuria seems to be the country without a protector. Russia wants to gain control of it, and Japan is already acting as though she had the right to take her over. And where is Manchuria? That is the discovery she is daily attempting to make. Never before in the history of the world has there been such a total disregard of the rights of others. The stronger are trying to overcome the weaker, and take from them the little they possess. It is as the Biblical prophecy of "From him who hath shall be given, and to him who hath not the little which he has shall be taken away." It has been a favorite pastime with thousands of folks from time immemorial to prophecy the coming of the end of the world. Most all this has been piffle in the strongest sense of the word. However, there is at present such a vast amount of prophecy being fulfilled so rapidly it looks as though the present generation will be consumed by its own greed and graft. It may not be that the world itself will be destroyed. There is a possibility that the folks who consume the population of this mundane sphere at this time will be annihilated, and a new set of citizenship be placed here to see if things shall be any fairer. The situation has about reached the point where the present social and business fabric will fall apart of its own corruptness. Any time selfishness sits enthroned in the midst of life's activities, something will likely snap. This statement refers to our national and international life. There are as many good individuals today as ever lived, and their fairness, personal consideration of their neighbor's rights, belief in God and the teachings of the Bible are what have kept the world from hitting the rocks long ago. Corruptness in high places is the thing which is endangering the life of the entire world. Nations have crumbled in past decades because of this. They will do so again. History only repeats itself.

SINCLAIR Pennsylvania Motor Oil is refined 100% from Bradford-Allegany crude oil of the Pennsylvania field—Pennsylvania's costliest crude. This remarkable crude owes much of its superior lubricating quality to the fact that it was formed in the Devonian Age—that wonderful age in the earth's history when conditions were nearest perfect for the forming of crude oil. Much of its quality, too, is due to this hundred million years of filtering and mellowing—years which ran their course while monster dinosaurs lumbered over the earth. SENIOR SIGNALS

The staff wants to compliment the Seniors on their successful presentation of their class play "High Flyers". It was well received by the audience present that night and some expressed the opinion that "High Flyers" was the best Senior class play they had seen staged here. Power to you, Seniors, and may your work continue to be as successful.

JUNIOR HIGHLIGHTS

Last Tuesday night the Senior boys and girls met McAdoo here in our gym and gave to the spectators two very colorful and interesting basket ball games.

Earlier in the week it was agreed that the boys needed a basketball Queen, so plans were made to elect her Tuesday night by a popular vote of those attending the game. The following girls were selected as candidates: Nida Basham, Addele Smith, Ann Hughes, Clara Hall, Dorothy Shirley, Jaunita Thacker and Walterina Russell.

Clara Hall was the lucky girl and was introduced to the audience that night as the successful candidate. We think the selection a wise one and we know that Clara is capable of leading and inspiring the boys. It has been rumored that R. J. Harmon was electioneering too near the polls on the night of Clara's election. To this fact we can't testify, but we do know that Clara had an ardent supporter in her campaign.

YELLOW JACKET BUZZING

Both, the boys and girls basketball clubs have had a pretty full week. They played McAdoo Tuesday night. The senior games were evenly divided. The girls won theirs by a long margin and the boys lost theirs to a fast, well oiled club. However, in passing we think it wise and correct to explain the boys' game. The McAdoo team consisted largely of ineligible men. Our boys and our coach knew it at the time they played, but since it was not a conference game and would not count in the League, they played the McAdoo club for needed practice.

We understand that our girls were successful in eliminating a fast team from Jayton at the Dickens tournament last Saturday and, consequently, reached the semi-finals to lose to the tournament victor, Roby. We think the girls gave a good account of their athletic ability and we are proud of them for the fighting spirit they always display.

Saturday night our Senior boys played the Dickens five. Our boys lost, but we want them to bear in mind that Rome wasn't built in a day, neither does the seed bear fruit immediately after planting. It takes time in all things and especially is the time element important in basket ball. So boys we want you to keep on fighting. Don't be down hearted because of your defeats. If you'll do this we'll continue to stay in there and fight for you, and like it, even though you lose more than your share of the games. Keep your head up, stick your chest out and let's go.

McAdoo Tuesday night. If you didn't see them play you missed a treat, for they were in there every minute, on their toes, and displayed lots of pep throughout the entire game. They won the game by one point.

The junior boys were not quite as successful as the girls in eliminating their opponents. The McAdoo boys stood head and shoulders above our small representatives and we couldn't see a chance for them to win from the beginning, but not those boys. They knew they had lots of fight in them and they kept on till the end, fighting and hoping that their luck might change.

SCHOOL JESTERS

Bill Hollingshead: "It's all wrong about the Irish being good fighters."
Addele: "Why so?"
Bill: "My brother and I and two other fellows licked one last night."

The United States may be noted for its large number of institutions and the vast population within those institutions, known as reformatories and prison, yet other countries also are confronted with an equally increasing number, which may have some soothing effect over here. Our country has far too many criminals, and regardless of what reformers may say as to crime in other countries, the commissioners of Great Britain have filed their report for that country, in which it shows an increase over the previous report. This shows then, that the crime wave is not confined to the United States, but extends across the ocean. More criminals, longer sentences, over-crowded reformatories and full prisons were the main facts contained in the report. The daily average population of the prisons and reformatories during the year was 10,860, compared with 10,590 during the previous year. The report remarks, sentences of male. The daily average of men detained was 9,972, compared with a total daily average of 888 women.
