Dusty Files Reveal First Chamber of Commerce A Museum Report

By Marisue Potts

One of the topics at the recent Community Development meetings was starting a Chamber of Commerce, a feat that was successful here sixty-seven years ago under very challenging circumstances.

Today we think of a Chamber of Commerce as an organization which promotes tourism and seeks new business opportunities. However, in 1927 when the original Motley County Chamber of Commerce was organized, the group fulfilled these aims, as well as serving the community's political and social needs.

Members were urged to be aggressively involved with their lawmakers in pending legislation on transportation, cotton reduction, tax measures, immigration, livestock quarantine, and the Federal Reserve Bank.

The Chamber of Commerce was also instrumental in organizing relief for the county's destitute, who were just beginning to feel the sting of the Dustbowl and the bite of the Great Depression.

These and other facts about the county's first chamber were recently unearthed in files found by James Stanley in the old Stanley Pharmacy storage room, preserved by his father Bob Stanley, who was active in the work of the organization.

During the years between 1927-1934 when the county's population peaked at nearly 7,000, the Chamber of Commerce promoted the popular Trade Days, swamping the downtown areas of Matador and Roaring Springs with prospective customers and creating a traffic problem.

Although chamber members unsuccessfully lobbied to keep the Motley County Railway shunt alive, they had more luck with road improvement.

The graveling of Highway 18 from Roaring Springs to Flomot, the promotion of a route through Matador to Carlsbad, N.M., as well as the creation of new roads to the fresh settlement on the C-V Ranch and the Flagg Springs Community through TeePee Flat were accomplished.

In order to provide jobs within the county, the chamber insisted that fifty percent of the highway labor be local. The pay to the eligible 170 out of 340 possible men sometimes only amounted to 24 cents an hour, thirty hours a week. If teams were used, an extra 10 cents an hour per horse was allowed.

Besides road building, another labor intensive county-wide project of the Civilian Workers Association was the Sanitary project, which allowed the improvement of outdoor toilets. fancy two-holers made of cement.

The various chamber secretaries, A.J. Spangler, M.P. Leaming, and J.R. Whitworth, "tooted their horns" about the unique qualities of the county, often employing the the girl's ukelele band, the community band (one-half of its 26 members were high school students), and the American Legion Dug-Out Band for booster radio programs and tours. The chamber hired a band director and sponsored trips.

The chamber was a big supporter of the Interscholastic League, supplying medals, cups, and ribbons, and the school athletic program, providing money for supplies and uniforms. A whopping $1,000 in prizes was made available to the Motley County Fair.

The Ag Farm proudly showed off its orchard, garden, feed, cotton, poultry, hogs, and dairy cows. Student Fred Ratton was tapped by the chamber to receive the special seed for a pure line bred Blackhull Kaffir.

Secretary Spangler bragged that the Matador Land & Cattle Company had won its third grand championship at the National Western Stock Show with its superior car loads of calves.

The chamber, which grew from ten to seventy members by 1929, took credit for organizing the Lions Club and the Matador Golf Club, while pushing for a cottonseed oil mill and an airport for mail service and passenger traffic.

Through its influence, a rural mail service of an incredible three times a week was established east of town. The clean-up and improvement of the Matador City Park provided new tables, ten park benches, and a children's wading pool.

Because of the chamber's surging, West Texas Utilities installed a new 360 H.P. generating plant to provide un-interrupted service to the communities which were once subject to blackouts.

The chamber attempted negotiations as cut-throat competition created a gas war, the price fluctuating from a staggering 19 cents to 16 cents a gallon.

Secretary Leaming urged citizens to clean up the eye-sores created by cast-off automobiles and machinery. (How many cast-off autos could there have been in 1929?)

He explained the bill of Contagious, Infectious, and Communicable Disease of Livestock would quarantine cows with ticks, scabies, tuberculosis and pigs with cholera, and require the burying of the dead animals.

The chamber supported regulatory legislation to cut cotton acreage by half in an effort to increase the price for the crop. Meanwhile, the River Bed Bill promised to quiet the questionable titles relating to navigable streams.

When the grip of the depression tightened its strangle hold in 1931, the Chamber of Commerce, through the Red Cross Relief Fund, distributed $16,000 worth of food and clothing, seed wheat, flour, continued on page 4

Motley County Sheriff Urges Caution While Hunting

Reports were received in the Motley County Sheriff's office last week of a cow being shot on a ranch in the Flomot area.

The owner of the cow felt it was probably an accident while someone was hunting. Motley County Sheriff, Jim Meador, urges hunters to use extreme caution while out hunting, as to avoid such costly accidents.

TIME TO HANG UP THE KEYS?

How do we know when it is time to quit driving and "hang up the keys?"

This is a question many older drivers are faced with. The independence that comes with driving is hard to give up. However, as responsible drivers we must each look for alternative ways to get around when we can no longer drive safely.

As we age, bodily changes occur which can affect our ability to continue driving safely. Aging can affect flexibility, hearing, vision, reaction time, strength, stamina and attention span. An aging adult in good health and good physical condition will have less influence from these changes. Therefore, age alone is not a determining factor on when a person should quit driving.

Another factor to consider is whether one can drive safely under some conditions and not in other conditions. If this is the case, one can make the adjustments and continue to drive with these limitations. An example is to avoid driving at night if you do not see well at night. Select routes that you are familiar with. Limit the duration of your driving time to what you can comfortably endure.

Medications can affect a person's driving ability. This is true of both over-the-counter and prescription medicines. Talk to your doctor or pharmacist and make sure you know about the side effects of all the medications you are taking, whether prescribed or not.

If you have chosen to drink alcohol, don't drive. Driving under the influence of alcohol can be deadly. Combining alcohol with medicines impairs driving skills even more than having either alcohol or medicines alone.

Select vehicles that contribute to your being a safer driver. White vehicles are more visible out on the road. Large side rear mirrors and rear view mirrors give you better vision on what's behind you. Check for adjustable features on the vehicle that can make it "fit" you better. Check vehicle for blind spots before you purchase them.

If you have trouble evaluating your behind-the-wheel skills, a program is available. It requires a physician's referral form. People whose physical abilities are impaired by illness, injury, or age are eligible. A clinical evaluation is provided. Overall strength and body coordination, reaction time, and visual skills are tested by an occupational therapist. A behind-the-wheel evaluation in a car simulator is also provided. Check with your doctor if you or someone you know could benefit from this evaluation.

Kimberly Moore & Steven Jeffers Recite Wedding Vows

Mrs. Steven Jeffers (nee Kimberly Moore)

Kimberly Moore and Steven Jeffers exchanged vows in an afternoon wedding on February 19 at Second Baptist Church in Lubbock. Charles Foster Johnson officiated the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Wayland F. Moore of Matador. The bride's grandmother is Mrs. Foy Moore of Matador. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Jeffers of Wichita, Kansas.

Kani Bynum, of Ransom Canyon, cousin of the bride, registered the guests before the ceremony.

Miss Christa Stephens of Lubbock presented "Household of Faith" and "The Wedding Song" before the wedding service.

Pam Moore and Renee Stevens, both of Lubbock and friends of the bride, were the bride's honor attendants. They wore knee length black dresses and carried bouquets of white roses and carnations.

The bride, escorted by her father and given in marriage by her parents, chose a gown of white peau de soie. The gown featured an open neckline with full length sleeves. Pearling adorned the bodice of the gown and chapel length train. Her finger tip length veil was attached to a seed pearl and sequined tiara headpiece which her mother had worn. She carried a cascading bouquet of white roses atop a white Bible which her mother had also carried.

Upon entering the sanctuary, the bride presented a white long-stemmed rose to her mother and upon departing, she presented an identical rose to the groom's mother.

Serving as the groom's attendants were Tim Bauer of Huston and Felix Hettler of Idalou.

The sanctuary was decorated with lighted candleabras in the background and on each side of the alter a white pedestal held an arrangement of white silk flowers.

A reception followed the ceremony in the parlor of the church.

Presiding at the bride's table were Valerie Moore of Plainview, sister-in-law of the bride, Debi Graham of Lubbock, friend of the bride, and Jeannie Moore of Matador, cousin of the bride.

Serving at the groom's table were Nelda Rollins and Dana Herrington of Lubbock, friends of the couple.

Steve and Kim reside in Lubbock where he is employed with the F.D.I.C. and she is employed by L.I.S.D.

Club Program Explains Butterfly Gardening

Matador Garden Club members enjoyed a unusual program on "Attracting Butterflies" when they met February 21 in the home of Mrs. W.N. Pipkin. The speaker, Mrs. George Seigler brought some interesting information concerning habits and habitats of the exotic insects on the subject of butterfly gardening after she, as president, called the meeting to order for the business portion of the meeting.

Following the secretary's report, plans were discussed regarding the District I Texas Garden Club convention scheduled for March 8, in Lubbock. Mrs. Seigler also reminded the member of the Open House and Container Plant Display to be held by the club in April at the Library.

Also scheduled for April is the club's annual guest day when the program will be given by Michael Clawson, Motley County Extension Agent, an annual event featuring an authoritative speaker. This meeting is set for April 18, at the Senior Citizens' Center.

There are 700 species of butterflies (vagabonds) in this area of North America, Mrs. Seigler said in introducing her subject. She centered on the idea of creating gardens with certain plants to attract the insects, which is done by combining color, shape and smell. "Monarch butterflies will feast on almost any colorful bloom," she said, adding that their young eat only milkweed plants and that their eggs are laid on that plant.

Butterflies see colors and while some are partial to pink and lavender shades, others seem attracted to red flowers. "To draw them from a distance, plant masses of colorful plants. Shapes of plants affect butterflies because they sip nectar, and plants which allow them easiest access to the nectar are desirable." It was noted that most of them sought the nectar of wild flowers, through their ability to smell. Also that since butterflies get thirsty, it is well to sink a shallow pan or plate into the garden soil and fill it with water for them.

According to an article in the February issue of Texas Monthly magazine, "Each winter more than 100 million monarch butterflies (as many as 4 million per acre) gather at over-wintering sites in and around Michoacan, a three-hour drive from Mexico City. By the end of March, the butterflies depart on their journey north, fanning out over the eastern two thirds of the United States and on into Canada... a hundred miles per day is not uncommon; one tagged monarch once covered 286 miles in a 24-hour period."

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess, Opal Pipkin, which included sausage in fruit sauce, and chips, cherry pie, coffee and hot spiced tea. Those present were Sue Seigler, Callie Giesecke, Bailey Elliott, Winifred Lee, Lila Meador and Winifred Darsey.

Tenderness is the greater proof of love than the most passionate of vows. —Marlene Dietrich

Roaring Springs Study Club Hosts Men's Night Out

The Roaring Springs Study Club held their annual "Men's Night" Banquet, February 17, 1994 in the L&L Cafe, in Roaring Springs, celebrating the "Feast of St. Patrick."

Decorations were under the talented hands of Ms. Francis Walters, Mrs. Eugenia Bethard, and Mrs. Noilene Bowden. The tables were decorated with green and white streamers, large and small Shamrock placards and at each place was a "Pot of Gold". Each pot was black ceramic, with gold foil shred stuffing, handles were of green foil Shamrocks, and were filled with candy kisses, wrapped in gold foil. The little pots glistened and shimmered as the light and the air from the fans above caused the gold foil to sway and glimmer, lending the impression of little lights at each setting.

The entertainment was presented by Mrs. Samuel Swinnea and her four children, Patrick, age 15, Katheleen, age 12, Erik, age 10, and Kyle, age 7. Video pictures were taken of the program by Mr. Sam Swinnea. Mrs. Swinnea, (Stephanie Bethard), has lived in Motley County and Whiteflat, at various times, attending school in Matador. She was in the first grade, under the expert teaching of Mrs. Wynona Gilbreath, in the 5th grade and again in the 7th grade. She took expression from Mrs. Randall Whitworth, Voice from Mrs. Maggie Hamilton and Piano from Mrs. Howard Traweck.

Stephanie Swinnea, Miss Molly, is a talented teacher-actor-musician, who can challenge, educate, motivate and entertain her young audiences. She is a 1973 graduate of Texas Women's University with a Bachelor's degree in Music Education and an all level Teaching Certificate. She also received the honor of "Who's Who" of Universities and Colleges. She has lived in four different countries and visited six others and has studied three foreign languages. Mrs. Swinnea has performed in many stage productions and two movies. She has taught in both public and private schools and presented Miss Molly to schools through Texas as an educational consultant.

Mrs. Swinnea and her family, all in Irish Costumes, sang Irish Songs, and in one song the Swinnea children sang in Gaelic. Mrs. Swinnea also gave a few interesting facts about the Irish People and Saint Patrick. Mrs. Swinnea played an Electric Keyboard and an Alto Recorder. Patrick and Kathleen, Soprano Recorders, and Erik and Kyle played the Paddle-Puppets. Each of the children sang a solo.

Each year the talented young Swinnea Family charms the audiences at the North Texas Irish Festival, held each year at the Fair Park, Dallas, with their delightful selection of Irish tunes, tales and trivia. We in the Roaring Springs Study Club, were delighted to have them share this program with us.

At the closing of the entertainment, Mrs. Swinnea was presented a quilted Wall Hanging, with an Irish Cross in the center. The Wall Hanging was arranged in different colors of green, was made and presented to her by the President of the Study Club, Mrs. R.F. Zabielski.

An old violin maker took his apprentice into a forest to cut wood for some instruments.

He passed the tall trees of the valley and chopped down the gnarled trees of the mountain.

"Why?" asked the boy.

"The wood of the sheltered trees will break under pressure," said the old man. "But the trees beaten by the winds produce the best wood and they make the sweetest music."

Have you wondered why you've been torn by trials? God has permitted them to make you sympathetic and strong.

The Bible says, "God strengthens us in our trials so that when others are troubled, we can pass on to them this same help and comfort God has given us."

Tell Us God Is Not Dead

NOTE: The following is an article taken from Ann Landers' Column of December 31, 1988 in the Lubbock Avalanche Journal.

The Rev. C. Galea was assigned to the Guelph Correction Centre for his summer work. While there he developed excellent rapport with many young law breakers.

He asked the boys for clues as to why they had ended up in that institution. He then asked them to draw up a code for parents, zeroing in on specific areas where they had failed. Here is what emerged.

1. Keep Cool. Don't fly off the handle. Keep the lid on when things go wrong. Kids need to see how much better things turn out when people keep their tempers under control.

2. Don't get strung out from too much booze or too many pills. When we see our parents reaching for those crutches we get the idea that nobody gets out there alone and it's perfectly okay to reach for a bottle or capsule when things get heavy. Children are great imitators.

3. Bug us a little. Be strict. Show us who's boss. We need to know we've got some strong supports under us. When you cave in we get scared.

4. Don't blow your class. Stay on that pedestal. Don't try to dress, dance or talk like your kids. You embarrass us and look ridiculous.

5. Light a candle. Show us the way. Tell us God is not dead, or sleeping, or on vacation. We need to believe in something bigger and stronger than ourselves.

6. Scare the hell out of us. If you catch us lying, stealing or being cruel, get tough. Let us know WHY what we did was wrong. Impress on us the importance of know repeating such behavior.

7. When we need punishment, dish it out. But let us know you still love us, even though we have let you down. It will make us think twice before we make that same move again.

8. Call our bluff. Make it clear you mean what you say. Don't compromise. And don't be intimidated by our threats to drop out of school or leave home. Stand up to us and we'll respect you. Kids don't want everything they ask for.

9. Be honest. Tell us the truth no matter what. And be straight-arrow about everything. We can take it. Lukewarm answers make us uneasy.

10. Praise us when we deserve it. Give us a few compliments once in a while and we will be able to accept criticism a lot easier.

WTU Continues Restructuring Process

West Texas Utilities Company is moving into the next phase of the corporate restructuring announced last November. The effort involves the electric operating companies, service companies and other related parts of Central and South West Corporation (CSW).

The reorganization process, which began in May 1993 and will continue over the next six months, means realignment of work groups, consolidation of support functions across the CSW system and within WTU, and fewer levels of management. The restructuring includes the relocation of an number of positions from CSW's four electric operating companies to its centralized services unit, Central and South West Services, Inc. Approximately 600 service company positions will be located in Tulsa, and another 250 will be in Dallas.

Employees reviewed the new structure and the process for staffing the structure during meetings held March 1-2. The result will be about 177 fewer positions at WTU, including about 80 in Abilene. WTU has 1,268 employees.

An early retirement program, announced in January by CSW, has been offered to 113 eligible employees at WTU. The program was offered so that long-service employees, who could be affected by job losses, would have the opportunity to choose an enhanced early retirement package or a lump-sum enhanced severance package.

The number of actual job losses will not be known until mid-summer, when the restaffing process is complete. During that process:

- * Many employees will fill their same or similar jobs;
- * Some will change jobs or relocate within WTU or the CSW System;
- * Some eligible employees will choose the enhanced early retirement or enhanced severance options; and
- * Some will not have jobs.

Throughout the CSW System, the number of positions eliminated is about 10 percent of the system workforce of 8,800, and 726 employees are eligible for early retirement. Enhanced relocation packages and severance benefits are also provided for employees as part of the restaffing process.

WTU is one of four electric operating subsidiaries of CSW, an electric utility holding company based in Dallas, Texas (NYSE: CSR). Other operating companies are Central Power and Light Company, based in Corpus Christi, Texas, Southwestern Electric Power Company, based in Shreveport, La., and Public Service Company of Oklahoma, based in Tulsa, Okla. Other CSW subsidiaries include Central and South West Services, which provides services at cost to the electric operating companies.

CSW Services, located in Dallas, has been divided into CSW Operation Services, which will move to Tulsa, Okla., and CSW Production Services, which will remain in Dallas, along with the CSW corporate headquarters and other non-electric subsidiaries.

The restructuring involves centralization of support functions to gain economies of scale and eliminate duplication among the various companies. For example, many finance, accounting, information services, and transmission and substation engineering functions which had been performed at WTU and the other operating companies will not be performed for the operating companies by employees at CSW Operation Services in Tulsa. The corporation also will gain efficiencies through CSW Production Services; centralization and coordination of planning, fuel purchases and operation of power plants throughout the CSW System. This will help WTU and CSW stay competitive as low-cost energy providers.

The new structure includes fewer levels of management and broader spans of supervision. The organization has been "flattened" to improve internal communication, reduce cost and empower employees, especially those on the front lines dealing with customers.

"This new structure will put our employees in a better position to improve our customers' satisfaction, make faster decisions, be more flexible in their operations and reduce costs," Files said.

With the new structure determined, a systematic process of internal restaffing has begun to place the best available candidates in the new organization. "In our communication with employees throughout this reorganization process, we have emphasized our intent to treat employees fairly, consistently and with dignity during the restaffing stage," Files said.

Most positions will be filled by early June, with most relocations and other changes completed by the end of the summer.

"By remaining competitive, we can help existing businesses grow, attract new industry, and contribute to the growth of our service territory," said Files. WTU serves 180,000 customers in 52 counties of West Texas from the Red River to the Rio Grande.

garden seed, pinto beans, and used clothing.

Representatives from Winnebago, Nebraska, presented a rail car of flour to the local Red Cross Chapter for the relief of drought-stricken farmers. Government shipments of pork and butter were distributed. A public garden planted with one half acre of turnips was implemented to assist destitute families.

Leaming warned that the school tax surplus was almost depleted and if taxes were not paid normally then the county schools would find themselves operating on a deficiency basis.

With Whitworth at the secretary-director's helm in 1932, the dues of $10 per member were reduced by 20%. A year later they were reduced to $1 but attracted 340 members.

By 1934 efforts were underway to promote the Quitaque Canyon Park Association which was expected to help with the completion of Highway 18 which ran through Matador.

State Centennial plans involved the community, "in spite of present adverse conditions" and the fact that over 1,000 folks were on the relief rolls.

Dr. J. F. Hughes of Roaring Springs reported to the chamber members that a new school for Roaring Springs had been approved to the tune of $37,000 in R.F.C. funds which would provide local jobs while improving the community.

County agent Frank Buckley revealed that the Relief Cattle program had paid out $175,000 to county farmers and ranchers. Some area ranchers refused to participate in the program and were forced to ship their cattle to other locations at a great loss.

The government buy-out program for sick or distressed livestock pumped money into the county, but created long time resentments when the animals were shot and buried, while people went hungry.

Perhaps most indicative of the times was the planting of trees along the highways. Federal relief funds of at least $1,500 were funneled into the beautification of the community by the planting of trees and shrubs.

This particular project was selected because "our distressed people in West Texas are of the type that resent direct charity. They want employment not alms."

What a comfort it is to our sad hearts to know that Brown spent his last years where he wanted to be, among those he loved and who loved him and that he found his final resting place on the hill above the home town he loved. All the sympathy shown by you, our kind, understanding friends, is much appreciated. You shared our loss and stood by us with your visits, your telephone calls, food brought to the home and to the church, flowers, memorial gifts to his church and to the cemetery, and in all possible ways.

We thank Rev. Hal Owens, Jim Fullingim, the musicians, and the pallbearers for the comforting funeral service. When your time of sorrow comes, may you be blessed by such friendship as you have shown us.
