A Second Glance

By Leon Watson

The students holding the Americans hostage must really be smart to be able to continue to be called "students". They would have to be smart to skip as many classes as they do to stand guard at the U.S. Embassy, and still make good enough grades to be called students. Maybe it's time we called them terrorists.

In a way you can't blame the terrorists for what they are doing. They really blame the U.S. for helping the Shah steal from their country. Only recently investigating reporters have uncovered papers which confirm what numerous international sources have been saying for a long time: that David Rockefeller collaborated with the deposed shah to get tens of billions of dollars diverted, misappropriated, or privately converted out of Iran.

You will not, probably, see any of this on national TV news. Only the Spotlight, Liberty Lobby, Paul Harvey and the Matador Tribune are brave enough to publish this.

The Spotlight magazine also says George Bush's sound thrashing of Ronald Reagan in the Iowa caucus was trumpeted as a "stunning upset" by the Establishment. But it was no surprise to Spotlight readers, who learned more than two months ago that David Rockefeller was backing Bush and Jimmy Carter so he would be sure to ride the winner in a two-horse race next November.

Question: What is the information on the new apartments being built in Matador?

Answer: Construction has begun on the new apartments. There are no reservations being made at this time, but persons interested in information about rental rates, etc., may contact the local housing director Kenneth Marshall.

File Copy A, W-2 With Social Security Adm.

Employers should file Copy A of Form W-2, "Wage and Tax Statement," furnished to their employees with the Social Security Administration (SSA) and not with the Internal Revenue Service. Texas employers should send these copies of the wage statements by first class mail to Social Security Administration, Albuquerque, Data Operations Center, Albuquerque, N.M. 87180.

Form W-3 should accompany all mailings of Form W-2 to the SSA. Both Forms W-2 and W-3 are available from local IRS offices and should be filed by February 29, 1980 for wages paid in 1979.

If an employer's payroll includes several individual business establishments, the copies of Form W-2 should be grouped separately for each establishment. Each group should then be sent to the SSA with its own Form W-3.

An employer may use several packages if the number of forms to be mailed is unwieldy. The number of packages being sent should be written below the title on Form W-3 and placed in the first package. The employer's name should be put on each package which should also be numbered in order.

Employers who wish to learn more about Federal employment tax responsibilities can attend Small Business Tax Workshops sponsored by IRS and area colleges. Call IRS toll-free for further information about the Small Business Tax Workshops.

RANGER ACTION -- Sharlene Smith tries to block a shot from a Patton Springs Ranger girl last Friday. The Matadors won the game 71-29. High pointers for the Rangers were Aaronda Mayo with 14, Florida Martinez 7, and DeAnne Parker 6. The Motley County Boys also won over Patton Friday night by a score of 80-34. (Photo by Leon Watson)

Outlaws Hit Isolated Barns

An estimated $1600 worth of farm and ranch equipment was stolen in two separate thefts in Motley County sometime during the night of Thursday, January 24.

The first was reported to Motley County Sheriff Alton Marshall at 9:30 a.m. last Friday by Mike Barton, who said several shop items were missing from the farm he rents from Mrs. Tom Edwards north of Whiteflat.

Later in the afternoon Billy Meyer reported saddles and other tack missing from a barn northeast of Flomot.

Missing from the Barton place were one

Gebo air compressor, a one-half inch Craftsman drill, an 180 forney electric welder, and a set of three-quarters inch socket wrenches (foreign made).

Items taken from the Meyer place were five bridles; two with hackmore bits, one with Bow Saw bits, two with regular riding bits (one aluminum and one steel).

A Sweitzer kid saddle with Capper's farm stamp 11 C.P., one L. Hubber adult saddle, one Bob Meyer saddle with MEYER stamped on the roll, four saddle blankets (one green plaid, and three cooler pads -- brown and white), and one shoe last also were reported missing.

Large matching bootprints were found at both sites along with tire tracks. Marshall is asking residents in those neighborhoods to report any suspicious activity they may have witnessed last Thursday and also to report any suspicious persons or vehicles in the area.

Marshall also is asking the county residents to watch for any of the items listed above.

Solar Demonstration Held At Crosbyton

More than 100 of the nation's leading solar energy experts at Crosbyton, Wednesday (Jan. 23) saw the sun provide the power to make steam which could be converted to electricity and eventually lead to cutting fossil fuel usage for a public utility system.

The scientists and engineers from 19 states, Washington, D.C., and Sweden are attending the Jan. 22-24 first semi-annual Distributed Receiver Systems Program Review for U.S. Department of Energy solar energy projects.

The meeting was located in Lubbock so participants could travel to see progress on the Crosbyton Solar Energy Project. Texas Tech University holds the primary DOE contract for that research.

The sun shone, and the Analog Design Verification System (ADVS) worked. Steam was produced for an enthusiastic audience of review participants, Crosbyton and area residents and members of the research team.

The ADVS uses the world's largest mirror -- 65 feet in diameter -- and an 18-foot receiver which tracks the sun and gathers heat to make steam from water flowing into it. When ADVS results are completed this year the DOE can decide whether or not to fund a multi-million dollar prototype of ten 200-foot mirrors with receivers 58 feet long. Such a system could provide 28 percent of Crosbyton's electrical needs.

The ADVS mirror consists of 430 mirror panels, and the 200-foot mirrors would have 2,000 panels, already tested to withstand the impact of inch-and-a-half hail stones striking the mirror at 114 miles per hour.

The Crosbyton Solar Energy Project was begun about five years ago when Crosbyton city officials approached Texas Tech engineers seeking some way to keep utility bills down.

Project director is Dr. John D. Reichert of the Texas Tech Department of Electrical Engineering. Dr. Herbert J. Carper Jr. of the mechanical engineering faculty is project manager. E-Systems of Dallas is the principal subcontractor. About 30 members of the Texas Tech faculty have participated in the research, along with graduate students.

Several other subcontractors have assisted with special equipment. Attending the demonstration was James E. Rannels, DOE acting chief, Distributed Receiver Section, Division of Central Solar Technology. He said the Lubbock meeting is exceeding expectations.

The purpose of the meeting is to permit experts in the field of solar energy to exchange knowledge gained through research and to critique one another's projects, contributing new ideas as well as questions.

The review is sponsored by the DOE, the Jet Propulsion Laboratory of Pasadena, Sandia Laboratories of Albuquerque, and Texas Tech. Meetings are in the South Park Inn.

The emphasis is on parabolic dish technology and applications and trough-bowl applications. The Crosbyton project does not use a parabolic dish but a hemisphere shaped dish. It is, within the United States, a unique approach to the problem of harnessing solar energy to generate electricity.

AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY TO HAVE REGULAR MEETING

The American Legion and Auxiliary will meet for regular meeting on February 4 at 6:30 p.m. at the American Legion Building.

Dr. Charles Overstreet DVM of Dougherty and Morris Stephens of Whiteflat will bring a musical program.

We urge all members to come and bring a covered dish for the dinner. We know you will enjoy the program.

Cold Weather, Ice Hamper Motorists

The mercury dropped to the middle 20's for the fourth day in a row Wednesday, and travelers advisories were out for all motorists traveling in the Foothill and South Plains counties.

Motley County School set its beginning period back to 10:00 a.m. to accommodate for the slick roads, and the basketball game with Guthrie was called off Tuesday.

On January 13, the temperature in Matador hit a record 80 degrees for that day. Children played in the park, short sleeves came out of storage and cars were washed. Last Saturday the temperature began dropping, and by Monday everything was frozen. Streets were slippery on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Mr. Martin added "I seek this office on my own initiative. There is no individual or group that has caused me to run. I come to you as a father of a good family, a proud and devoted citizen of Motley County. ## A. M. BOURLAND FAMILY

By the late Mrs. Scott Bolton

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Bourland were both born and reared in Mississippi and were married December 2, 1886. She was the former Miss Dora Armstrong born in Smithville, Miss., March 27, 1867. The newly weds left by train for Texas settling in Kaufman County where they lived for three years. The first child Edwin was born in Kaufman County and the second son, Fred was born in Coleman, where they lived for two years.

In 1891 the Bourlands journeyed to Floyd County where Mr. Bourland served as first commissioner of that county. Among other occupations, he carried the mail between Matador and Floydada in a two wheel cart, driven by some of the wildest horses and mules in West Texas. The first three years of their residence in Floyd County were the dryest years on record, and the Bourlands had to haul water for six miles until a well was dug. When they finally erected a windmill, it was the only one from six miles east of Floydada to the old Lyman post office near the caprock.

During their stay in Floyd County, Clyde and Addie were born. The Bourland home consisted of a large half dug out and one large room connected. One morning Addie was in the room while her mother was in the dug out. She found some matches and caught her clothes on fire burning them off and also all of her blond curls. Her brothers heard her cry and ran to her putting out the fire and laid her on the bed before her mother found out about it. Mr. Bourland was working about six miles away, so a neighbor who was milking the cows for Mrs. Bourland hurriedly went for him. Since no doctors were near another neighbor on hearing of the accident came and told them to use linseed oil and cotton, which they did. It was very painful when it was dressed. One neighbor lady walked a mile and carried a rocking chair to Mrs. Bourland to use.

Often when Mr. Bourland was gone from home Mrs. Bourland had to tie the boys to the bed post to keep them in the house during snowstorms. Once when their Grandmother Armstrong was visiting there Clyde wanted some light bread. Since there wasn't any his grandmother gave him a cold biscuit, after smelling it he threw it away, but his mother made him get and eat it.

There was no church house near while the Bourlands lived 12 miles east of Floydada. Often a few people met in their home bringing what they had to eat along and had services since they had the big half dug out and a large room and plenty of prairie wood (cow chips) to burn.

In September of 1897 the family homesteaded three miles east of the springs called Roaring Springs. Since lumber was precious in those days, they razed their house on the plains and brought the lumber here with them. During those years good crops were made especially corn. Mr. Bourland made a contract with the Matador Land and Cattle Co. to furnish corn to them at 50 cents a bushel shelled.

The Bourlands, Stearns, and Duff Greens were good neighbors. Usually in the winter and spring there was a great deal of sickness. Mrs. Bourland would go far and near horse back on a side saddle and help out the sick. Mr. Bourland made a number of coffins for people. Once Mrs. Bourland took her riding skirt to line a casket.

Supplies had to be purchased at Childress or Quanah. Mr. Stearns and Mr. Bourland would freight together. Once as Mr. Bourland was leaving for Quanah he asked the children what they wanted him to bring them. Addie asked for a tree of bananas and Florence asked for a barrel of pickles, so he brought a big banana stalk with 7 bananas on it and a two and a half gallon barrel of pickles. He would buy flour by the 100 pounds and sugar by the 100 pounds, also cases of canned goods, enough to last about six months. The first bale of cotton raised in 1899 was taken to a Childress gin and there wasn't a telephone this side of Quanah. Once a snowstorm caught Mr. Bourland and Mrs. Stearns and they were gone 16 days.

Later Mr. Bourland and the boys farmed and Mrs. Bourland would ride after the cattle. By this time they kept a span of good mules or horses to work to the buggy. When any of the family or neighbors were sick, they would send a rider for Dr. Traweck, then meet him on the way with a fresh team and let his team rest until he returned. In those days people held Camp Meetings at the springs (Roaring Springs) in the summer time. People would go for miles and camp for two weeks. Preachers would also go for miles away and take turns preaching. The Bourlands would go in the wagon taking their food and children and spend the day as they lived close enough to go back and forth. People in those days really enjoyed religion and visiting.

The two eldest boys attended the old Dutchman rock school at first. Carroll, Florence and Cecil were born at Dutchman. As the other children came of school age the family bought a home in Matador, where Mrs. Bourland and the children stayed during the school term.

Holidays and summers were spent at the farm. All of the children had to work. The girls would often have company from town. Once Hattie Williams (Mrs. P. Y. Springer) was visiting Florence and they were hoeing cotton. Hattie's hoe was real sharp and she cut her big toe, all being bare footed, she hoed for some time before noticing her toe bleeding. That ended Florence and Hattie's field work for a while.

The Bourland's attended all the revivals held at Old Dutchman, Roaring Springs and Matador during the summers. After placing their letters in the Matador Church all the children joined as they became old enough and were active in the church. Mrs. Bourland was very active in the Missionary Society. Being a good nurse she always visited and helped with the sick.

They bought the place where Mr. Belvin's now lives from Dr. Thomas in North Matador. It was new then and after living there a number of years about 1913 they bought the Edd Lisenby place. It produced some wonderful crops so they wrecked the house and rebuilt it adding many attractive features. In 1917 they bought a place in Roswell, N.M. and lived several years but returned to Matador. In 1926 they visited Carroll in Tampa, Florida and liked it so well they bought a home and stayed four years. Mrs. Bourland's health failed so they returned to Matador and set up farming again raising cattle and hogs. He put out a good orchard and vineyard. Many town people recieved lots of good fruit and vegetables just for coming after them.

In 1945 Mrs. Bourland's health became so poor they bought a lovely home on 20th St. Lubbock and moved there. Her health grew worse and she was confined to her home or the hospital for the next three years with her daughters taking turns caring for her. She passed away in 1948.

Mr. Bourland sold his Lubbock home and bought a farm in the Acuff Community. He lived with Florence (Mrs. P. L. Marshall), until 1951 when he went to Quitaque, Texas to live with Addie (Mrs. Scott Bolton). His health failed in January, 1956 and he was in the hospital most of the time until his death, November 25, 1956. He was 92 years old and had lived a long and useful life and was ready to go.

The children are Edwin, of Elk Grove, Calif., who married Blanch Collett. They have eight children, 22 grandchildren and 2 or 3 great-grandchildren. Fred of Matador married Kate Hamilton. They have three children and five grandchildren.

Clyde of Alvin, Texas married Edna Pintch. Addie (Mrs. Scott Bolton) of Quitaque, Texas Carroll of Orlando, Florida, married Evelyn Die. They have three children and one grandchild. Florence, (Mrs. P. L. Marshall) of Harlingen, Texas has four children and four grandchildren. Perry Lee died Dec. 15, 1955. Cecil (Mrs. D. P. Keith) Matador Texas has three children and three grandchildren.

Fred Bourland now lives in Lubbock in a retirement home.

Coyotes Put Bite On Consumers

Coyotes in Texas have cheated consumers out of an estimated 259 million pounds of choice beef through the slaughter of cattle and calves on the range in the last 12 years, Don C. King, secretary-general manager of Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association, said last week. Citing figures from the "1978 Agriculture Statistics for Texas Counties," prepared by the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, King noted losses to Texas cattle producers from livestock predation during the same period were $186 million. When added to the losses suffered by sheep and goat producers from predators, the cost was a staggering $438 million for the same period. The coyote and other predators, he concluded, are of serious concern not only to ranchers, but to all consumers. King was one of several livestock industry representatives participating in the Predator Control Summit in Austin, Texas, Tuesday, Jan. 15. The meeting, sponsored by the Texas Department of Agriculture, brought together more than 150 ranchers, environmentalists and government

Cattlemen Registering For Self-Help Program

"Cattle producers can do something to help themselves and assure a better future for their industry," says O. J. Barron, Spur, Texas rancher and co-chairman of the Texas Beferendum. "They can vote on a self-help program of beef research, information and market development." To vote, Feb. 29--22, cattlemen must register at their ASCS office before Feb. 6. They may register and vote absentee, however, by requesting both forms from the ASCS office. Any person who owned cattle during 1979 is entitled to vote. "Beferendum is a national movement by cattlemen, seeking to help themselves," says Barron. "It's a cattlemen's program all the way -- initiated by cattlemen, to be financed by cattlemen and run by cattlemen -- all aimed at helping cattlemen." "If approved by a majority of those voting, 20¢ out of each $100 value added to an animal will be deducted at sale time," explains Barron, "but those not wishing to participate may request a refund and get it immediately." The funds raised, estimated at $40 million per year, says Barron, will be used to fight anti-beef propaganda ... promote the nutritional value of beef ... combat beef substitutes ... counter extremes in the cattle cycle ... expand foreign markets ... and increase demand for beef. "We are disappointed," he said, "that some self-serving leaders are opposing the self-help program by cattlemen. They either are misinformed about the program or are intentionally and maliciously attempting to mislead cattlemen." Contrary to their misleading claims, he continued, "this program will be run by cattlemen and cattlemen only -- through a Beef Board of 60 cattlemen nominated by existing cattlemen's organizations." The Secretary of Agriculture will have only an oversight role, he added, to assure that producer funds are used to improve beef markets in accordance with the law. Refunds will be made promptly -- within 60 days after a valid request is made, Barron said, no extra records will be required, no fines will be levied unless there is fraud or other violation of the law. "Cattlemen need this program," concludes Barron, "our current efforts, through the National Live Stock & Meat Board, are not adequate to fight the claims, by activists and government, are eroding our markets. If cattlemen don't respond, if we cattlemen aren't willing to help ourselves, nobody else is going to." regulatory agencies to develop satisfactory predator control programs protective of livestock and wildlife. TSCRA, representing 14,000 livestock producers in Texas, Oklahoma, and other states, issued a joint statement with Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers Association and other livestock groups detailing the agricultural viewpoint on predator control. Bill Sims, TS&GRA executive secretary, presented the testimony. U.S. Secretary of the Interior Cecil Andrus, criticized by the livestock groups for his non-lethal, non-capture control policy issued last November, was the keynote speaker of the summit. Andrus advised the ranchers that the revised Federal policy ends research on Compound 1080, redirecting efforts to find another toxic substance that would be lethal without secondary poisoning effects of 1080. The policy also outlaws denning -- the practice of killing coyote pups in dens. The long-term goal of the policy will do away with lethal controls, proposing instead to expand availability of extension services to ranchers, develop improved husbandry techniques segregating livestock from predators, accelerate and redirect research towards controls which are environmentally sound. Although the policy has significant effects on federal lands, the Secretary explained that there will be no immediate changes in the use of other current animal damage control techniques on private lands as long as state and federal law is not violated. "We will use animal damage control specialists, traps, M-44 devices, aerial hunting and other methods that have proven to be effective in reducing the offending animals where substantial losses of livestock have been sustained," Andrus said. Dr. Guy Connolly, wildlife research biologist with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Center in Denver, contradicted Andrus' statement on Compound 1080's secondary poisoning effects. In research he has supervised, even "over-kill" doses of 1080 in coyote carcasses failed to poison scavengers. Steven D. Jelinek, assistant administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency's pesticide program and toxic substances, offered virtually no hope to ranchers for future reinstatement of 1080 or other poisonous chemicals for emergency use in predator control. King, in response to Andrus' statements, reaffirmed recent comments made by O.J. (Jim) Barron III, TSCRA member, West Texas rancher and chairman of the National Cattlemen's Association predator control committee. "There is no practical way to keep livestock out of the way of predators," he said. "The Secretary's non-lethal, non-capture control policy treats coyotes as if they were an endangered species -- which is certainly not true. We don't propose to kill all the species as Secretary Andrus implies. We just want to keep their numbers under control to prevent massive livestock damages." King also reiterated that "allowing coyotes and other predator populations to overrun the countryside will create a serious human health hazard. Coyotes spread rabies, bubonic plague and other serious diseases and their numbers have multiplied so rapidly they are even showing up in Eastern urban areas." Dr. Wallace Klussman, head of the wildlife and fisheries department of Texas A&M University, warned government officials that focusing the control program solely on the offending animal through non-lethal means was not practical in Texas at this time. In 1978, Texas Department of Agriculture statistics show predators accounted for 58 per cent of all death losses in sheep and lambs and 72 per cent of all deaths in goat and kid losses. Sheep and goat numbers in Texas have declined 30 per cent in the last six years and 75 per cent since the 1940s. Among the recommendations made by the agricultural contingent were requests for adequate research funds for developing additional control methods, the transfer of animal damage control and research back to the U.S. Department of Agriculture from the Department of the Interior, that the toxicant 1080 be approved for use in toxic collars worn by sheep, and the executive order limiting the use of toxicants on federal lands like Fort Hood and the North Concho Reservoir be rescinded. Other TSCRA participants were Charles R. Rollins, administrative assistant, and Steve Munday, news director.

Energy Saving tips on Electric Heating.

Check your thermostat setting. Recommended temperature setting for winter heating is 68°. Remember, the lower you set the thermostat in the winter the lower your energy cost.

Have your heating system checked regularly! Proper servicing is good preventive maintenance.

Keep filters clean. Check the filter every 30 days on forced-air systems. If filter is permanent, clean it by manufacturer's directions, if it's disposable, replace when dirty.

Use the warmth of the sunshine! On sunny days open the drapes. The sun shining through the glass will supply additional heat at no cost.

Have your home properly insulated! Adequate home insulation keeps the warmth in, cuts energy use... can pay for itself by lowering heating (and cooling) costs.

Remember, Reddy Supplies the Energy, only you can use it wisely!
