BARBARA'S BYLINES

Recently my cousin's husband and son came to visit us. The dad, Mike, came to hunt and get a wild hog. He had tried during Christmas and only saw signs. This trip he had good luck. Mike said his luck had to change. His boat was damaged as it was tied to the dock during the July 4th weekend and on Monday morning before he came here on Wednesday his jeep Laredo was stolen out of his driveway, in Chevy Chase, Maryland.

On Friday morning he had stated he sure wished Linda (his wife) would call that they had found his Jeep. This was one of those times when a few minutes later the phone rang and it was Linda and yes they found the Jeep, actually Linda and daughter, Charlotte found it.

The following article was printed with a photo of Linda and the Jeep in the Chevy Chase Gazette Wednesday, Aug. 3, 1994.

ALERT WOMAN RECOVERS HUSBAND'S STOLEN JEEP

When Mike and Linda Cosgrove of Chevy Chase reported their 1988 Jeep Laredo stolen on July 25, they figured it was gone forever.

Little did they know that Linda and their daughter, Charlotte, 13, would spot the Jeep five days later in the McDonald's drive through window in Bethesda.

"We pulled up to McDonald's for breakfast and there was my husband's Jeep. I couldn't believe it!" said Linda Cosgrove yesterday of her encounter just inside the gates of the Naval Medical Center.

Linda said she checked the Jeep's tags to confirm her suspicions and sure enough it was the very same vehicle stolen from outside their home on Park View Road.

Charlotte ran to call the police. Linda parked the family's Volvo station wagon to block the Jeep and its driver from moving forward.

Cosgrove got out of her car and walked up to the Jeep, where a white man in his mid-20's was sitting behind the wheel, bouncing his head to the music and apparently enjoying the ride.

"He didn't see me coming," Cosgrove said. "I got up to him just as they were handing him his bag of food. I looked right at him and said, 'You're in my car, it was stolen. You're not going anywhere, Get out of my car!'"

The man, who said his name was Sean, got out of the Jeep. He claimed to have purchased the car from a friend earlier in the week.

As they talked, the Jeep started rolling toward Cosgrove's station wagon.

"The guy jumped back into the Jeep and stopped it. He was really a nice guy, actually," Cosgrove said.

Cosgrove demanded the man give her the Jeep's keys, which he did, and she said that he would have to wait until the police arrived to settle the matter.

"He told me, 'I'm not waiting for the police.' And then he started walking toward the service road of the Bethesda Navy Center," she said.

Meanwhile, Charlotte had gotten through to a 911 dispatcher who realized the McDonald's was on federal property and summoned the Navy's military police.

"The police started chasing this guy on foot, car and a bicycle. But he got away. He must have known the area because he went right through a hole in the fence, through a few yards and over a wall and he was gone...But he never dropped his McDonald's food bag," Cosgrove said.

Cosgrove said county police took some items from the Jeep, including a radar detector the man had installed and some cassette tapes, to check for fingerprints.

As of last night no arrest had been made.

The man also had left behind an expensive bicycle in the Jeep, which Cosgrove said she failed to convince police that she should keep for all the trouble.

"They didn't like that idea too much. It was probably stolen," she said.

And just in case the man in the Jeep comes back, Cosgrove has placed a small note on the family's garage door: "Sean, Montgomery Police have your Like. We don't have it."

Last I heard Charlotte was hoping for a new CD player as her reward!

Prepare Your Children For Their First Day Of School

A child's first day of school can be an "A+" if parents do a little homework of their own.

"A parent's attitude about school plays a big part in how the child accepts this new responsibility," said Dr. Lou Ann Mock, a child psychologist at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston. "Put aside any anxieties you may have about your own school experience."

Mock encourages parents to build excitement about the first day by emphasizing that school is the beginning of a wonderful adventure.

"If your child has been in day care, make clear that this change is a real accomplishment and that now they are grown up enough to go to 'real' school," she said.

However, children may have concerns about this new experience.

Rather than make assumptions, Mock says, ask if the child has any questions about going to school. "The concerns may be as simple as wondering where the bathroom is or what will happen if they get sick at school," she said.

Parents often make the mistake of trying to fit too many activities in at the end of the summer. It is better to slow down a child's schedule as the start of school approaches.

Mock suggests the following technique to prepare a child for the big day.

— Visit the school during the summer.

— Begin the appropriate bedtime and wake-up schedule a week or two in advance.

— Let your child pick out first-day clothes and lay them out in advance.

— Get up earlier on the first day, so the morning will not be rushed.

"If possible, arrange to go to work a little later that day," Mock said. "This will put less pressure on you."

She encourages parents to make the first-day separation go as quickly as possible. Parents can always call the school later to make sure all is well.

At the end of the day, Mock recommends a family celebration with the child picking a favorite meal or restaurant.

Encouraging and supportive as your child takes this important step into the world," she said.

DIETARY CHANGES AND EFFECTS IN CANCER

The evidence linking diet and heart disease is about 20 years ahead of the studies linking diet and cancer. Diet probably plays a smaller role in cancer, but over a lifetime, it can make a difference. One of the best protectors against a number of chronic diseases, including colon cancer, is fiber. Many studies examine this relationship, but drawing a correlation is difficult due to the complex nature of fiber.

With funding from the National Cancer Institute, research conducted at Michigan State University from 1990 to 1991 examined the ways different types of fiber interact with colon cancer. So far, this work was only done with animals, but as results are gathered and analyzed, some insight into the fiber-cancer relationship in the human body should be evident.

Preliminary results have shown that the insoluble fibers, which include brans and vegetable stems and stalks, offer more protection against colon cancer than the fiber found in fruit skin and vegetable leaf fiber (soluble fiber). This is so because these insoluble fibers increase the bulk and speed of waste and may help to dilute any carcinogens in the lower intestine and colon, giving them less time to become harmful.

This research determined the components of the fibers that offer the cancer protection and how they work in the body, with the hope of inserting these compounds into other foods.

Basic consensus remains that over a lifetime, diet is important but it won't have a strong therapeutic effect immediately. What most people don't realize is that changing their diets for a year won't undo poor nutrition in the past. Diet should be viewed as a preventative measure over the long run, not a short-term therapeutic measure.

Many great explanations about vitamin A and its preventative effect against cancer have been discussed. It is known that vitamin A is necessary for normal physiological functions and growth, and because it is "essential", it must be obtained from dietary sources.

Vitamin A is best noted for its role in prevention of night blindness, but is also a factor in fighting infectious diseases and has been shown to prevent some forms of cancer. Currently, it is believed that the active form of vitamin A, retinoic acid, functions as a critical growth regulatory molecule during all stages of life.

One researcher at Michigan State University investigated the role of vitamin A in the very early stages of embryonic development in birds, i.e., after 24 hours in incubation, particularly with regard to the heart and circulatory system.

Findings were the importance of vitamin A varies in early stages of embryonic development in birds can be extended to human vitamin A requirements during pregnancy. Marginal dietary vitamin A may be reflected in marginal vitamin A supply to the embryo, possibly resulting in abnormal fetal development. Drug abuse or alcohol abuse may interfere with vitamin A function, and only promote some abnormalities, such as those observed in fetal alcohol syndrome.

By consuming recommended servings of orange fruits and vegetables, deep leafy green vegetables, milk group foods and other food sources, you can ensure that you and family members are consuming enough of this important, fat-soluble vitamin.

SNACKS - ARE THEY BAD FOR YOU?

Snacks are not really bad, they just need to be planned into the total calories allowed for the day. Make snacks and meals work together to give you the total balanced meal plan. Snacks, if cooked with sugar, can be bad if you are already overweight. Wisely select snack foods from the basic food groupings that are relatively low in calories but high in nutrients. Avoid snacks that are higher in fat such as fried or greasy foods. Remember, you can snack if you keep it healthful.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY: If you would lift me, you need to be on higher ground.

If You Trade Somewhere Else, We Both Lose...
Come See Us, It's Worth The Drive!

The Year of the Matadors

by Shelby West

The ball is on the 8 yard line, 10 seconds left to play. The score is ten for them, and we have seven. The Matadors have come from their own 10 yard line with determination, grit and drive. The opposing team is unbeaten, bigger, faster and has been picked to win.

One final play will decide the outcome of this game. A field goal ties, a touchdown wins, which will it be. The coaches and player talk it over and discuss all options. They all decide, nothing short of victory, will subside this hunger the Matadors have. Let's go for it is the cry.

Yes, once again it's football time at Motley County, and even before the ball is kicked, the prognosticators of doom are sending their calls of loser's limps.

In football, as well as in life, there are many obstacles to overcome, before the victors banner can be waved.

In this article let's not concentrate on what we don't have, but rather on what we do have.

At the risk of sounding "preachy", I must refer to a story that deals with the overcoming of adversity and obstacles. (II Kings 4-1-7) This story is about a lady whose husband had died, and left her with no money, and two children to raise. A major problem. The debtors were going to take the two children in payment of debts. With no access to welfare or hand-outs, the widow goes to the local preacher seeking advise. The preacher listens, and asks a simple question, "What do you have in your house?" She replies, "Nothing but a small jar of oil." The preacher gives her very specific instruction of what to do with the oil. In very simple words we can assume that he said we're going to start where we're at, and use what we have got.

Last year doesn't count, it's gone, the future belongs to the present group of zealous, determined, young men who will represent Motley County on the football field with honor.

In the realignment of our district this past year we have been given the privilege to defeat some very formidable foes. In this particular article, names of our opponents are not the issue. The issue is overcoming adversity. We shall be victors.

To clarify the term "loser limp" - "the referees cheated, the opponents were larger, stronger, faster, and oh well they were supposed to win anyway."

Have you ever seen a ball player, regardless of what sport, make a mistake on the field, maybe he misjudged a pass, missed the ball, fell to the ground, and then come up limping, that's a loser's limp.

The Motley County Matadors of 1994 are not going to have a loser's limp, they will be known as mountain movers, giant defeaters and winners both on and off the field.

Here's what we have got, a fine group of coaches, who have the knowledge and desire to lead the Matadors to victory, a fine group of young men who are filled to capacity with the desire to become known as the team that wouldn't quit.

This team has grit, this team has determination, this team has drive, and talent, experience and above all this team has the ability and desire to step to the next level.

There is another story of a young man who stepped out on a field of battle, this young man was 16 or 17, about 5'6" or 5'7", his opponent stood over 9 feet tall and weighed over 400 pounds.

The young man started where he was an used what he had, a slingshot and a rock, and brought down this giant called Goliath.

Victory came for this young man, because he dared to do what no other man had the courage to do. You see the Giant stood in his way of where he was wanting to go.

There will be giants that stand in the way of the Matadors this season, there will be adversity along the way, but to the coaching staff and their team, let me say we believe in you and we are behind each and everyone of you as you lead us to our "field of dreams".

How does the game turn out, mentioned in the beginning of this article. I don't know, this game depends upon you, the Matador team of 1994. This game belongs to you all, as do each of the others. You can be winners. It's up to each individual to be the best player he can be.

To play as a team, united as one, to reach deep inside and be dedicated to reach a common goal, simply put, do your best to achieve the ultimate goal, and that is victory, not only on the field, but off the field. Matadors, you can do it, just believe in your ability and try harder and victory will be yours.

The Race Through Life

The life of the Christian is often pictured in the Bible as a race. Our Lord Jesus states the fundamentals of beginning our race unto eternal life in Matthew 22:37-38 where we find "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind." This is the first and great commandment, our Lord said. There is our starting point.

If we have little desire to assemble for worship, if we find that giving of our monies to the Lord seems to deprive us, if the time needed to visit the sick or discouraged just cannot be found, if our knowledge of God and His word is not growing, (and such is of no concern to us) if Christianity means no more than an hour or so on Sunday mornings, (and that with irregularity) then we would do well to look again at our starting point. Until we love God MORE than anyone or anything else, we have missed the starting point. When this happens, we will also miss the finish line and its prize. The crown of life!

Motley, Dickens County 4-H'ers Among State Horse Show Winners

Chad Smith, Kendra Atkinson, and Andy Jones
Second Place Team Penning

Motley and Dickens County 4-H members teamed up to be 2nd place State 4-H Team Penning finishers at the Texas State 4-H Horse Show in Abilene. Chad Smith, Dickens, Kendra Atkinson, Spur, both age 15 and Andy Jones, 12, Roaring Springs, were showing off their belt buckles Tuesday after the event. Chad, Kendra and Andy were one of the three teams of the final round which penned their three head. The field consisted of 140 teams to begin the competition at 11:30 a.m.; by 8 p.m. the dust had settled and three young people were very proud of their accomplishment. When asked how they did it, all three in unison said loudly "PRACTICE"! Both Smith and Atkinson are from Dickens County, but Jones hails from Motley County. Probably the reason for their practicing, as a team, began in May after school let out. Andy helps at the Spur Headquarters Ranch with his dad while both Atkinson and Smith team rope. Andy will be in the 7th grade when school starts this month. He is the son of Mike and Jan Jones of Roaring Springs. The 32nd Annual Texas State 4-H Horse Show is managed and produced by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, a part of the Texas A&M University System. The focus of the show is to showcase youth from third grade to age 19 in their area of expertise with their 4-H project. Recognition of a young person for their accomplishments and reaching their personal goal is the underlying purpose for such events through the 4-H Program in Texas. Along with parents and Extension faculty members the show is conducted with the assistance from many volunteer adult leaders from the twelve Extension districts in the state. Without these valuable volunteers the opportunities youth have in the 4-H program would be far fewer.

O Lord, you are my God; I will exalt you and praise your name, for in perfect faithfulness you have done marvelous things, things planned long ago.

For further information or to R.S.V.P., contact Michael Clawson, Motley County Extension Agent at 347-2733, Scott Strawn, Briscoe County Extension Agent at 823-2131, or Tadd Knight, Hall County Extension Agent at 259-3015. If anyone has a peanut farm which they would like to include on the tour, please notify the Extension Office in Motley, Briscoe, or Hall County as soon as possible. The farm needs to be in the Flomot-Turkey-Quitaque area. Extension programs serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, disability, or national origin.

The 32nd Annual Texas State 4-H Horse Show is managed and produced by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, a part of the Texas A&M University System. The focus of the show is to showcase youth from third grade to age 19 in their area of expertise with their 4-H project. Recognition of a young person for their accomplishments and reaching their personal goal is the underlying purpose for such events through the 4-H Program in Texas. Along with parents and Extension faculty members the show is conducted with the assistance from many volunteer adult leaders from the twelve Extension districts in the state. Without these valuable volunteers the opportunities youth have in the 4-H program would be far fewer.
