TRAIL DUST

By DOUGLAS MEADOR

During a recent electrical storm I wondered why I had never seen a windmill struck by lightning. Almost every verticle object has become a victim of the mighty force out of the skies. Perhaps windmills have been struck but I have yet to see one. On the other hand it is probable that the metal pipe going into the well provides a ground that protects the wheel and tower. As a young boy I used to cover up my head with quilts on the bed during an electrical storm and some of the old fear has remained throughout the years. It is the knowledge that death may be in one blinding flash out of the tossing sky, but the wings of the dark angel may be closer many times when the sun is shining.

When the pioneers settled this country they had to blaze roads and always there must have been one wagon that went ahead. As modern engineers they followed the ridges between the canyons and rivers and they avoided, when possible, the steep grades. It is a tribute to their skill and knowledge of the country that many modern highways follow the same routes. The early routes of the railroads have also been followed in many instances, but the railroads had engineers. The pioneers blazed their roads alone, solving their problems as they came to them. It is that attitude which conquered a country that was a challenge to the fortitude, the determination and the dreams of the early settlers.

Almost everyone has two natures that are constantly at war with each other. It is the surprise attacks from the evil in us that frequently upset the balance of strength and make it necessary to retake territory that was once in our domain.

My friend set the last line on the Linotype, turned off the switch and the machine ground to a stop as he rose from the chair. We did not know that destiny had parted our paths and that he would never return to the familiar place and that we would never meet again. We shook hands and he went through the door.

When we destroy something in others, we also destroy something in ourselves.

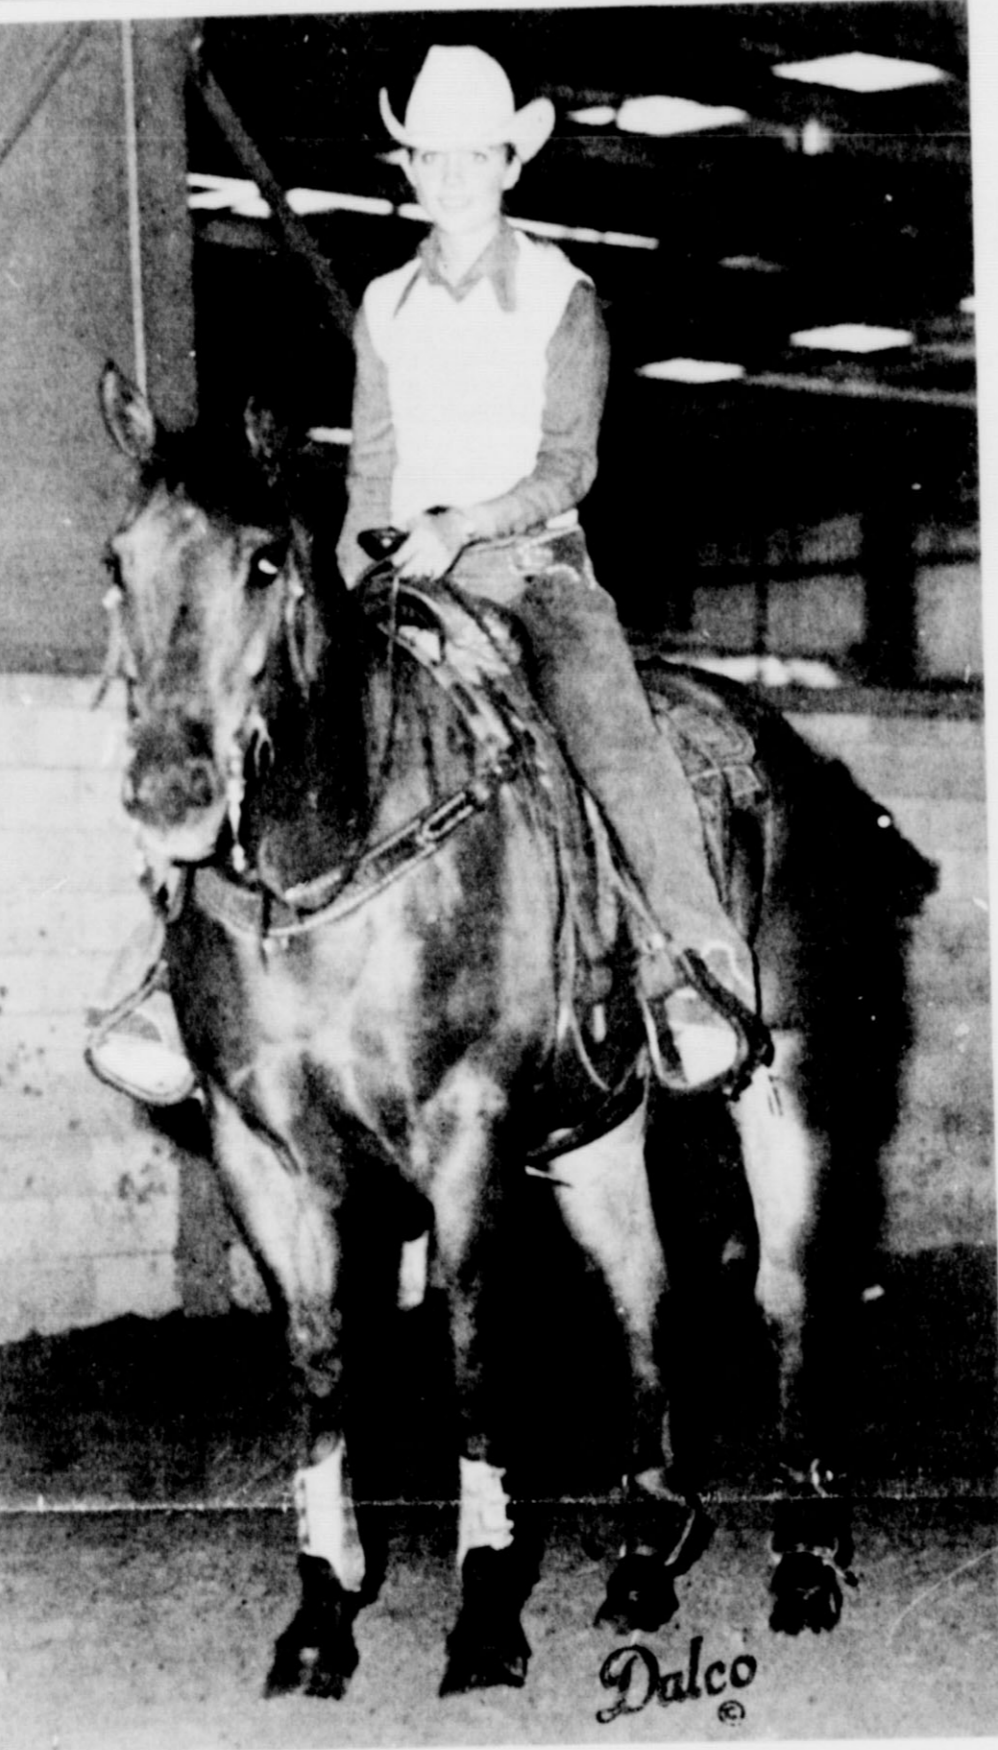

Pharmacy Observes 28th Anniversary

FREE coffee and doughnuts will be served Tuesday at the Bob Stanley Pharmacy. The occasion is the 28th anniversary of the firm.

Bob Stanley purchased the former City Drug Store from G. S. Craven 28 years ago and started operation of the Bob Stanley Pharmacy. The store at that time was located across the street in the former National Bank Building, and operated there for a number of years. Later it was moved to the Jackson Estate Building at the corner of Main and Dundee Streets.

At that time the store adopted the slogan: "One of the Largest and Finest Pharmacies in West Texas," which it has continued to retain.

An interesting feature of the firm is the number of years of service by personnel. Mr. and Mrs. Stanley have each been engaged in the store for 28 years. Their son, registered pharmacist James Stanley, has almost grown up in a store with approximately 20 years of

Degree Conferred On Dan E. Solomon

(Special to the Tribune)

The Doctor of Ministry Degree was conferred on Dan E. Solomon, senior minister of St. John's United Methodist Church of Corpus Christi, in morning worship service there Sunday, September 23.

Presentation was by Dean Newell Wert of United Theological Seminary, Dayton, Ohio, joined by Bishop O. Eugene Slater, Bishop of the Southwest Texas Conference and Dr. Barcus Moore, Corpus Christi District Superintendent.

Rev. Solomon is in his fifth year as pastor of St. John's, having previously served St. Stephen United Methodist Church, Amarillo, for seven years. He has the Master of Theology, With Honors, from Perkins School of Theology, SMU, and the B.A. Degree, Summa Cum Laude, from McMurtry College.

DONATE CALVES

First United Methodist Church is collecting calves and receiving cash donations for the Methodist Home at Waco.

Those wishing to donate calves are asked to take them to the dipping vat north of town, any time Thursday (today), as the truck will leave Friday morning, taking them to Waco.

The annual drive for calves is being conducted by laymen of the church, headed by L. B. Campbell.

For many years the late John C. Russell transported the calves to the home.

First Bale

FIRST BALE of 1973 cotton reported to the Tribune, was ginned Monday by the Flomot Gin. It was grown in the Whitlatat community by Roy Grundy.

Joe Degan, manager of the gin for 47 years, said the 2600 pounds of bolls produced a 542-pound bale, with 840 pounds of seed. Ginning of 1st bales, with tagging and ties, were given by the gin. The Turkey Compress gave a $100 premium.

Mr. Degan said the cotton was from a field which had been struck by a hail storm, removing most of the leaves. It had caused the cotton to ripen a little earlier, but had also damaged the quality of the lint.

Asked about the market value of the bale, Mr. Degan said he would class it as low middling, and that the market value was about 56c per pound. Thus the bale of hail-damaged cotton would bring in the neighborhood of $300. Seed is selling for $100 per ton.

Mr. Degan said the county has a "fair crop" while not as good as last year, it should average in the neighborhood of half bale per acre.

The first bale of 1972 cotton was ginned here September 21, and grown by Wayland Moore and his brother Glynard.

Community Alarmed By Storm and Fire

THERE WAS COMMO-TION in Matador Wednesday night after a severe electrical storm approached from the west. Many residents said they had never seen more lightning, which was almost a continuous wall of flashes.

At the height of the storm, the tornado alert alarm was sounded. At the fire hall the tornado alarm had been pressed instead of the fire alarm.

A barn at the city jail was burning, presumably set by lightning. The barn was filled with 48 bales of hay. Flames leaped high in the storm-swept darkness. Almost immediately the north part of the business area was filled with automobiles and pickups, while the Matador Volunteer Fire Department struggled to bring the flames under control. There was a traffic jam in the area north of the courthouse. Many people were convinced a tornado had been sighted since the tornado alarm had been sounded.

Jailer Ray Webb had just purchased the hay Wednesday. In addition to the hay he lost three saddles and about 20 bushels of oats. There was no insurance. About one inch of rain was recorded from the storm in the wake of a fast moving cold front.

Mr. Webb said the Commissioners Court has ordered the rebuilding of the hay barn.

Ed Wilkes, Master of Ceremonies, declared, "that is a hard act to follow."

A bicentennial flag was presented to the City of Lubbock, "one of the first cities to complete bicentennial plans," a big part of which is the ranch museum representing the west in restored ranch buildings.

The Matador Ranch office, one of the restored buildings, slated to tell the ranching story, was dedicated.

Parents may receive forms and instruction at the office of Principal J. E. Edwards, in the Grade School building.

"You are invited to drop by Friday, if convenient, for this purpose," Edwards said. "We need this information as soon as possible, and will appreciate very much, receiving it at the earliest convenience of the parents."

A number of children have been registered. "But," said the Principal, "we have no way of knowing how many more in the county are eligible to attend Kindergarten, until they are all registered."

COLLECTING IRIS ARTIFACTS IS HOBBY OF LOCAL COUPLE

Mr. and Mrs. Keith Patton of Matador find that collecting iris artifacts is an interesting hobby. An iris enthusiast, and grower since early boyhood, Mr. Patton has made an extensive study of the plant, and is a qualified iris judge. Both he and his wife are members of South Plains Iris Society and the National Iris Society.

The fall issue of Region 17 Newsletter of the AIS featured the following article by Mrs. Patton (Joan) on Iris Artifacts:

COLLECTORS ITEMS - Iris and Herringbone Depression Glass. Shown are dessert dishes, fluted bowl and sugar bowl owned by Mr. and Mrs. Keith Patton.

TRY IT, YOU'LL LIKE IT

By Joan Patton

Have you ever heard that irisarians are collectors, not gardeners? Well, in Matador two collectors (or pack rats) are married and are living among their varied collections. We are slowly collecting irises and iris artifacts. Come join us, get a new hobby and gain many friends and acquaintances in the bargain.

Oriental art shows us much decorating with irises, both tall bearded and Japanese - lacquered pieces, papier-mache and of course, many kinds of pottery and china. I have a collection of hand fans and many times have found silk painted fans and paper advertising ones using irises to decorate them.

JAPANESE Porcelain saucer with Japanese irises, papier-mache cordials with gold lacquer Japanese irises, Mexican tin case with iris medals, and vase of green glass with pewter base and hand painted tall bearded irises. From the collection of iris artifacts owned by Mr. and Mrs. Keith Patton.

Galle was a designer and the producer of cameo glass in the Art Nouveau period. This period used flower forms almost exclusively and the iris seems to have been the favorite motif of Galle. In the same period, Beardsley used the iris in his famous black and white drawings.

Many of us were around during the depression and now we find that depression glass is collectable. The iris and herringbone pattern of this time is most widespread.

Last year at the Regional Meeting in Fort Worth, Peggy Williams displayed a collection of iris articles (including needlework) used in home decorating. In Lubbock (I have to plug my home club) members of the South Plains Iris Society have for two or three years had a division for iris artifacts at our annual show. The entries have been many and truly diverse. Also in Lubbock, Loydell Knight, lover of the "little ones" in the iris gardens and an antique club member, has a collection of fleur de lis jewelry. In Matador, we Pattons have a collection of antique irises in the yard and in the house are vases, dishes and lacquered pieces featuring irises.

In the course of our iris junkets throughout the state, we try to visit the local museums and antique shops. We have found irises everywhere. Check your local museum and see just what you can find.

If we irisarians promote the iris use in our varied hobbies, imagine how we can beautify our surroundings. Don't you think it might interest others in our hobbies, especially our gardening one? Start in a small way. Become a collector of irises and/or iris artifacts.

Lost or Found?

"For whoever desires to save his life shall lose it, but whoever may lose his life for my sake shall find it."

Your Savior,
Jesus

We are here to help you lose your life and find Jesus' life.

Assembly of God

Rev. Lewis Savage
Matador, Texas

Our basis for fellowship is Christ and Him Crucified.

THE PROPHET OF DUNE

Go placidly amid the noise and haste and remember what peace there may be in silence. As far as possible without surrender be on good terms with all persons. Speak your truth quietly and clearly; and listen to others, even the dull and ignorant; they too have their story.

Avoid loud and aggressive persons, they are vexation to the spirit. If you compare yourself with others, you may become vain and bitter; for always there will be greater and lesser persons than yourself. Enjoy your achievements as well as your plans.

Keep interested in your career, however humble; it is a real possession in the changing fortunes of time. Exercise caution in your business affairs; for the world is full of trickery. But let this not blind you to what virtue there is; many persons strive for high ideals; and everywhere life is full of heroism.

Be yourself. Especially do not feign affection. Neither be cynical about love; for in the face of all aridity and disenchantment it is perennial as the grass.

Take kindly the counsel of the years, gracefully surrendering the things of youth. Nurture strength of spirit to shield you in sudden misfortune. But do not distress yourself with imaginings. Many fears are born of fatigue and loneliness. Beyond a wholesome discipline, be gentle with yourself.

You are a child of the universe, no less than the trees and the stars; you have a right to be here. And whether or not it is clear to you, no doubt the universe is unfolding as it should.

Therefore be at peace with God, whatever you conceive Him to be, and whatever your labors and aspirations, in the noisy confusion of life keep peace with your soul.

With all its sham, drudgery and broken dreams, it is still a beautiful world. Strive to be happy.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks to every friend who expressed sympathy for us in the loss of our loved one. The beautiful plant from the Ex-Students Association and others who sent flowers, telephoned or sent telegrams or cards. All of these brought comfort to us in remembering our happy associations the 17 years we lived there.

May each of you be blessed with understanding friends in your hour of need. May God's blessings be upon you.
