A Second Glance

By Leon Watson

Once there was a woman in a small town who never said anything bad about anyone. There was a very mean man in the community who died and they were going to have his funeral. Several folks knowing the woman always spoke kindly of other people, went to her and asked her if she could think of anything good about the mean man who had died. She smiled and said, "He sure could whistle pretty."

When members of my family find our conversation degrading someone we quickly cover it up with a quick "Yeah, but he sure can whistle." Then we all laugh and the subject is changed.

My dad has a motto which covers the matter. "There is so much good in the worst of us and so much bad in the best of us, it behooves all of us not to talk about the rest of us."

A good New Years Resolution might be to try harder to harness our tongues.

We saved the letters to Santa in case any of the mothers would like to have them to put in a scrap book or something.

In April 1962 Farmer-Stockman magazine ran this definition of Americanism.

"If you want your mother to look after you, that's maternalism. If you want your father to look after you, that's paternalism. If you want your Uncle Sam to look after you, that's socialism. If you want your comrades to look after you, that's communism. But if you want to take care of yourself, that's Americanism."

WTU Conducts Study On Solar Energy Plant

The possibility of using solar energy to generate electricity at one or more of West Texas Utilities Company's power plants will be examined in a study being conducted by the Company's Plant Operation Department in cooperation with the Energy System Group of Rockwell International.

The study will take nine months and will be completed in June or July, 1980.

Targeted for the study is Unit Number Four at WTU's Paint Creek Power Station, which is located on Lake Stamford, between Haskell and Stamford. The unit was completed in 1971 and is the largest and newest of Paint Creek's four generating units. All are presently powered by natural gas, with oil used as a back-up fuel.

If results of the study are favorable, a proposal will be submitted to the Department of Energy for a grant to aid in constructing the equipment needed to repower the unit with solar energy. WTU officials, however, emphasized that the program in its current stage is strictly a research project.

"At best, the project is several steps away from becoming a reality," said Randal Meador, WTU Vice President and Director of Engineering. Meador said six similar studies are being made with United States Department of Energy funding and support, and that only two projects will be granted funds to aid in construction. The cost of constructing the two projects will be shared by DOE and winning utilities.

By funding these demonstration plants, the DOE hopes to lower the cost of the solar equipment by mass production to make solar electric generation economically feasible in the near future. The selection of the projects to be granted construction funds will be based on the percentage of the cost to be shared by the utility and the engineering quality of the repowering system.

Paint Creek Unit Number Four has a generating capacity rated at 110,000 kilowatts. For purposes of the study, the unit would be converted to allow 60,000 kilowatts to be generated at full load on solar power, with the remaining 50,000 kilowatts generated with natural gas or fuel oils. This would allow about 55 percent of the electrical output of the unit to be generated on solar power during the day.

The solar system developed by the Energy Systems Group of Rockwell International consists of a solar collection system, a solar receiver, and a heat exchanger system. The solar collection system consists of more than 9,000 mirrors, or heliostats, which would be installed in an area of 385 acres surrounding a 410-foot solar receiver tower.

The heliostats would be computer controlled to track the sun and reflect the rays of the sun onto the solar receiver located at the top of the 410-foot tower. The reflected sunlight would heat liquid sodium within the solar receiver vessel to a temperature of 1100 degrees Fahrenheit. The hot sodium would be pumped from the solar receiver vessel to the plant, where the sodium would be used in heat exchangers to heat water into steam. The steam would power the existing turbine generators.

After the sodium goes through the heat exchangers, it would be pumped back to the solar receiver to be reheated and used again.

Sodium was chosen for a heat-transfer agent because it has great heat transfer capabilities and because it is readily available. The use of sodium as a heat exchanger fluid will make it possible to store surplus heat throughout the day and to allow the turbine generator to operate at full load during the daylight hours and for up to three hours after sundown.

Another plus for the sodium cycle is that all of the heat exchangers and pumps that would be used in the sodium cycle heat exchange system have already been built and tested. The test work was conducted by Rockwell International in conjunction with the nuclear Clinch River Breeder Reactor Plant Project in Ohio.

The Paint Creek study will be WTU's first in-depth look at solar power generation, although the Company has been involved in other areas of research. For many years WTU has contributed to nuclear fusion research by the Texas Atomic Energy Research Foundation at the University of Texas. With other members of the Central and South West Corporation, its parent company, WTU is involved in a coal gasification project in South Texas, and in geothermal research in West Texas.

All eight of WTU's existing major generating units use natural gas as a primary fuel with oil as a backup fuel. WTU is beginning to diversify its fuel resources as preliminary environmental and engineering work is now being done for Oklahoma Power Station, a proposed coal-fired plant near Vernon, which is scheduled for commercial production in 1987.

Senior Class Entertains At Christmas Program

The senior class presented a Christmas program, Friday, December 21 at 2:30 p.m. at the Motley County High School auditorium.

Randy Hunter, president of the class, gave the welcome and presented Mrs. Earlyne Jameson with a gift of appreciation for helping with the program.

The class started the celebration singing, "Silver Bells" and "Rudolph the Red Nosed Reindeer" followed by the senior girls taking a lilted walk through "Winter Wonderland." Kay Phillips read the scripture of the Christmas Story. With the snapping of fingers and tapping of feet the senior boys sang "Jingle Bell Rock."

Clause's conversations with those lucky enough to be chosen to sit on his knee.

Wayland Moore closed the program with a Merry Christmas to all and a reminder to the students to return to classes, Wednesday, January 2.

Everyone left thinking of the fun they had planned for these welcomed holidays!
