primary. So there is no reason why it should not be taken in every county.

Inclusion of resubmission in the primary is due, also, to aid Governor Sterling's candidacy. For after all is said and done, Mr. Ferguson is a wet in the eyes of most non-dry voters.

One reason for that no doubt is that Tom is playing for the Bohemian and German vote which usually goes to Ferguson. His active supporters will tell you that Hunter will get practically all the vote.

It is our prediction that the difference between the Ferguson and Sterling vote is going to be slight. If Hunter could get in the run-off with either of the other candidates he'd win. But Tom isn't liable to make it although he is going to poll a nice-sized vote.

Whoever gets into the run-off with Ferguson will win.

LEAP YEAR BRIDE

by Laura Lou BROOKMAN

CHAPTER XXXV

Dixie Shannon looked a vividly ruddy color about her head and neck as she exclaimed: "Come in, darling. Why didn't you say it was you?"

It was a week after Brenda Vail's arrival in Wellington. Dixie had returned from her vacation only three days before.

Cherry said, "I came up to see if you could loan me a lemon. We're having salmon and Dan doesn't like it without lemon. I hate to make a special trip."

"Of course you can have it. They're on the shelf behind the screen. Help yourself. I bought six last night because I wanted to stamp up my hair. Take two—take all of them if you want to."

"One is plenty," Cherry assured her.

Dixie had returned to the day before which she had read. She wore turquoise blue mules on her feet and the cooie coat fell back to reveal flesh-tinted lingerie. Her hair was unpinned and hung in a tangled mass.

"Just taking my beauty rest," she apologized. "Sit down, won't you? I've nearly seen you since I came home."

Cherry dropped into a chair. "I guess I can stay a few minutes," she said. "Dan won't be home for half an hour. Are you going out to dinner, Dixie?"

The other shook her head negatively. "No. I've got a date at 2 but I'm not eating. Orange juice diet this week. Have to get rid of those extra pounds I picked up on my trip. Let's see—I've had six glasses of orange juice today and I can have two more!"

"And nothing else? But do you think that's good for you?"

"Best thing in the world," Dixie assured her. "I've tried it before. You don't need it, though. To tell the truth I believe you're looking thinner, Cherry!"

"Oh a little maybe. I guess it was the heat. Tell me about that good-looking ship officer?"

Dixie shrugged her shoulders. "Nothing to tell," she said. "By this time he's dancing with some other girl and holding her hand in the moonlight. I never let myself get serious over these summer playmates. No—when the vacation's over Dixie takes off her hat and puts her hair back in storage. But I want to hear the news around here. What's been happening?"

"Nothing. Everything's been just as it always is."

Dixie swung one foot idly. The blue satin mule flopped away from her heel. She did not look at it. "They tell me we have a celebrity in town—Brenda Vail, the magazine writer."

"Oh, I forgot—that is news. Yes, she's been here for several days. But have you heard the latest, Dixie? Really, it's wonderful! Miss Vail asked Dan to help her with a play."

"Really?"

"Yes, Dan interviewed her the day she came and she read a story he'd written. Right away she said he had talent and that he should be doing serious writing. Then she asked him about his work and he told her some of the cases he worked on. Criminal cases, you know. Murders and kidnaping and robberies. Right away Miss Vail said she had an idea for a play for a long while but she'd never had time to work up the material. It's a play about a girl of the un-forward to meet them.

"Ah! At last you have brought Mrs. Phillips!" she exclaimed. "Such a little girl—with such brown eyes I'm glad to know you, my dear. Do sit down. And Dan, you like that chair, don't you? So this is the little girl who has such a talented husband. But you didn't tell me your wife was so pretty, Dan!"

Cherry sat down in the low black chair. She felt as though she were a child at her first party—bewildered and a bit confused. Brenda Vail's words rushed on but Cherry scarcely heard them. She was looking at the gorgeous creature who turned such a melting glance on Dan. Miss Vail wore a costume unlike anything Cherry had ever seen. It was made of silvery green chiffon. There were long, very full trousers and a low cut bodice like a frock. About her waist Miss Vail wore a broad, deep green sash with long, fringed ends reaching to the floor.

Her hair was like burnished copper, waving and surprisingly abundant. Cherry noticed that the author had rich white skin and that her lip rouge was brilliant.

Miss Vail turned her gray-green eyes on the girl. "Tell me," she said smoothly, "are you, too, interested in literature?"

"Why, yes, I'm interested in everything Dan is."

"To be sure. But individually! I mean do you write, Mrs. Phillips? Poetry, perhaps?"

"Oh, no," Dan said easily. "Cherry doesn't try to write. She has all she can do keeping house."

"I see," Miss Vail's tone had the gentleness of a cat about to pounce on its prey. "A little bird in the home nest. How sweet! But of course, Mrs. Phillips, you know your husband has great talent. He will be a famous writer. Oh, yes! He is my discovery and I am proud of him. This play we are writing together is the most stimulating work I have ever undertaken. But here, I am talking and forgetting my guests!"

She touched a bell and the maid appeared with the tea tray. There were caviar sandwiches, dainty circles of toast and marmalade, miniature cakes.

"Cream or lemon, Mrs. Phillips?" Cherry said she preferred the tea without either. Why did everything Brenda Vail said or did have the effect of making Cherry feel like a runaway school girl? Why should she feel out of the conversation when Miss Vail turned to

TODAY and TOMORROW

By WALTER LIPPMANN
The Nomination Of Roosevelt

CHICAGO, July 2—The anti-Roosevelt coalition broke up at the appropriate point when California and Texas went over to the majority. The Garner candidacy never had any vitality and the Garner delegates had no good reason for separating themselves from the other Roosevelt states in the South and West. That Mr. McAdoo was able to make the announcement which prevented a deadlock must have seemed to him dramatically just for in 1924 he was himself the victim of the kind of a deadlock which the opposition was trying to organize. It was also fitting that he should proclaim the victory of the Roosevelt forces: they were the same forces which supported him eight years ago and Bryan thirty-six years ago. These forces had a decisive majority at all times and they control the Democratic party in the nation. The minority could try to argue with them. It had no power to prevent them from imposing their will in the convention.

It is just as well that the decision was reached quickly. For just underneath the surface an appalling amount of bitterness had developed. The Roosevelt delegates were being persuaded that the opposition to Governor Roosevelt's nomination arose entirely from sectional or economic interests, and the Roosevelt managers encouraged this belief. As passions were aroused the conviction grew that there was no such thing as a disinterested and liberal objection to the Governor on the ground of his qualifications. This conviction was reinforced by the brutal intolerance of the galleries and by the pressure exerted by men connected with public utilities and banks. Had the convention been deadlocked for a few more ballots there would have been an explosion of resentment which would have produced the utmost confusion and fury throughout the country. The temper of the opposition was also reaching a point where the fires of 1928 were again blazing and there was extreme danger that wounds would have been inflicted that could not soon have been healed.

Governor Roosevelt is the nominee of a majority which imputes to him an attitude of mind which is not normally his own. They have read into his phrases, and have assumed from the bitterness of some of the eastern opposition, that like Bryan he is their champion and that he has no other allegiances. There is bound to ensue a continual pushing and pulling among his advisers. Thus Governor Roosevelt owes his platform to the Wilson liberals but he owes his nomination to the descendants of Bryan and to the living influence of William Randolph Hearst. At the moment of his triumphant nomination on Friday night it was Mr. McAdoo, who has a promise of Hearst support for the Senate in California, who took the center of the stage and it was former Senator Reed of Missouri, the bitterest of all Wilson's enemies, who delivered a keynote address in which he denounced Wilson's ideas. Franklin D. Roosevelt will need all of his strength to manage his friends. There are deep antagonisms among them and he will not find it easy to satisfy them all or to keep the peace among them.

Perhaps the most important thing to be said at this moment is Hahn one day last week.

The Home Demonstration Club will meet with Mrs. Phillips Friday afternoon, a demonstration in canning at this time.

BETTER NOT DANCE WITH BOB, MARY. HE SMELLS JUST LIKE A HOSPITAL. MUST BE THE SOAP HE USES

SURE IT'S THE SOAP. I WISH NED WOULD TELL HIM ABOUT KIRK'S COCO CASTILE. IT'S UNSCENTED YOU KNOW. ENDS BODY ODOR INSTANTLY

Why do the girls avoid him—WHY?

Certainly it's unpleasant—the odor of perspiration! But why disguise it with a highly scented soap? Get rid of it with coco castile! Kirk's Coco Castile makes oceans of lather—even in hard, cold water. It makes a fuller, more penetrating lather than ordinary soaps, because it is made from 100% pure coconat oil. It goes deep into the pores, removes every trace of oily, dirty film, then rinses off in a flash. It is mild and agreeable to the skin, yet against several very common bacteria* laboratory tests prove it 5 to 10 times as germicidal as carbolic acid. Best of all, it's unscented. You step out of your bath—without any chemical or heavy perfume odor—as fresh and clean-smelling as a woodland breeze. Try it—for hands, for bath, for a wonderful shampoo. You'll be amazed at the difference. Avoid imitations. Look for the arrows. Always ask for Kirk's by name.

SPORTS ON PARADE
By CURTIS BISHOP

The 1933 book of rules, put out by Spaulding, dwells to some extent upon the careers of various Texas high school grid stars during the 1932 year. Among those mentioned we find Itasca Dennis, the Big Spring marvel, George Delker of San Angelo, and Homer Barnett of McCombe. The latter two were added after the writer ran out of adjectives and ceased to write about Texas.

Baseball seems to have come in for a revival of interest in West Texas, especially from the amateur angle. Abilene and Lorraine clash today, with Sam "Slick" Moor, the spital heaver, tossing 'em up for the Abilene nine. Tex Gressett will be playing third for Lorraine, so the press dispatches inform us, but we'll wager that it is center field instead. Sam Baugh of Sweetwater has been recruited to strengthen the Lorraine nine, and when Big Munn takes his club to the Denver tournament Ed Henning will be one of the pitchers. Blackie Adams plays one of the outfield posts and the Coffee brothers, both of 'em hard-hitting infielders or catchers, strengthen the offensive considerably.

One of the busiest nines in this part of the country is the Tigers, undisputed Mexican champs of West Texas. Skipper Julian Vega and his cohorts returned Tuesday from an invasion of Marfa, where they were successful both times, and have immediately challenged the winner of the Carnival of Values baseball meet, the Forsan Oilers.

Heading the Tiger hitters is A. Garcia, the third baseman, with an average of .429, and Juan, the first sacker, is far behind with .323. Vega himself is clouting for a mark of .328. Hernandez is hitting .308, Payne .291, Fierro .290, Martin .280, and Cruz .277. A Garcia also leads in runs scored, home runs, triples, and doubles. Quite a handy lad.

Harry Taylor, the San Angelo coach, avers that the new gridiron rules will with one exception make little change in the game itself. Mr. Taylor considers the rule about use of the hands almost meaningless. "It has always been illegal to slug. The only bother in the shifts," this interesting interviewer is of course coming from Blundy Crum's column, "comes on the order that if a ball carrier's knee or any part of his body below the hips touch the ground he can be called down by an official." Taylor fears this will slow up the game no little and will lower the scoring considerably on a dry turf as well as a wet one.

A busy program is being planned for the Big Spring meeters, West Texas champs. Abilene is the probable opponent for the week end on their own courts and San Angelo will be visited the week after if Messrs. Clinton, Williams, and Pettus act anything like half-way cordial about it. These visits will be returned, of course, provided that is, they are made. Joe Davis is on top of the local ladder with H. B. Dunagan and George Dabney disputing for second place.

Obie Bristow qualified for the championship flight in the Santa Fe course tourney in San Angelo but defaulted in the first round. The Texas Tech coaching school will open within a week or so at Lubbock. It is probably the biggest affair of its kind in the country, and Bristow, using a month old quotation as reference, will be out hand.

Hennig, the Sweetwater men's coach, has Bristow beaten as the all-around athletic ace even though we hate to admit it. During the holidays he is a champion flight golfer and one of the best pitchers in this part of the state.

Semi-official averages for the baseball tournament shows that the most valuable player to his club was Leonard Rose, who started out for Ackerly but who played two games for Forsan. Rose was the leading individual hitter with an average of .555, tied for the lead in home runs, and won one game and lost two in the pitching average. Both of his defeats were close affairs.

Rookie Rowe Allows 2 hits

San Antonio Beats Buffs; Dallas Wins; Sports Good At Night

GALVESTON—Schoolboy Rowe, Beaumont's giant fast ball artist, let the Galveston Buccaneers down with two lone singles to score a 5-0 shutout here Thursday night in the second game of the series between the teams. The two men who singled were the only ones to reach first off the ball follow as he was accorded perfect support and had excellent control.

Ed Carroll turned in a creditable eight hit pitching performance on his own record, but his infield blew up behind him to donate the Ex-ports three unearned runs. Home runs by Reiber and Rowe, coming in succession in the second inning, scored the other two runs. PITTSBURGH—Waite Hoyt, one of the game's most prominent cast-offs, came back in a New York Giants uniform Thursday to pitch flowery relief ball for three innings and make possible a 4-3 victory over the league leading Pirates.

Hoyt yielded only one hit during his tenure and struck out three men, including Floyd Vaughan twice. There were to have been two games today, but a hail and rain storm caused the second to be called off after 45 minutes wait. AUSTIN—Speaker Garner can keep his seniority in the house unbroken so as to remain speaker if the democrats fall to win the national election.

He will continue in office the rest of this term, expiring March 4, the date he is to be sworn in as vice president if the ticket wins. That leaves the question of the next term.

He will be nominated unopposed June 23 as member of congress from the Uvalde district. Then he has two courses open to him.

Legally and ethically, he may go on the general election ballot and be elected to congress in November. Then in case of his election to the vice presidency, he can resign the election and a successor can be chosen.

Or, if he sought to avoid the opposition's cry that he was trying to "ride two horses," he could resign the nomination, upon which the New York, 000 003 200 0-5 10 3 state committee would select a nominee. Then, if the democratic party should lose in November, anybody from his district who might be chosen, in order to preserve his unbroken service in the house, and the seniority that makes him speaker, would resign and step aside. Then a special election—before March 4—would restore Mr. Garner to his present job without a break.

It was announced from Washington that he unquestionably will not resign from his present term; since congress soon will adjourn, he would be given ample time in which to take part in the national campaign.

R. W. Barry, chief of the Associated Press bureau at the state capitol, undoubtedly will draw the assignment to accompany Speaker Garner in the national campaign to write the news of Garner's part in the campaign. He has been a personal friend of Speaker Garner for years, and has been a guest in Garner's home on numerous occasions. He knows the spirit of the plain-spoken Texan, and holds both the friendship and the confidence of "Cactus Jack" Garner.

Here's another straw ballot that proves just what the Crusaders' straw vote in Austin proved: that the "outs" will vote in a test of this kind, those who want to overturn the probabilities, or get a change of present status; but not those who are satisfied with things as they are.

A Palestine newspaper's poll of its first 300 voters showed Mrs. Ferguson with over half the total number cast, with Tom E. Hunter of Wichita Falls leading Gov. Sterling more than two to one, and thus with Gov. Sterling only about 18 per cent of the vote.

This result is visibly so lopsided as to prove its unreliability. There is no point in their program that the repeal organizations emphasize often than that they are for temperance and desire by repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment to encourage temperance principles in the young people. We do not recall, however, in any of their reported utterances that they declare for instruction of youth in the nature and effect of alcoholic beverages and the injury that may result from such use. On the contrary, every now and then one hears of their definite antagonism to the teaching of those scientific principles in accordance with the laws of the various states. On another page is given a reproduction of a news story in a Connecticut newspaper, telling of the protest by members of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Repeal against such teaching.

How do they expect to safeguard the young people even for what they call "temperance" (which we suppose is their term for moderate drinking) if they are not instructed in the scientific truths as to alcohol.

The heart of the wet and dry question is the youth of the world. On the one side are those who would protect them from the drink evil and on the other are the heartless interests that are willing to sacrifice them for greed of gain.

"Unless the drink trade can get control of the raw material—the youth of the world," declared Sir George Foster of Canada, "the liquor traffic will become extinct." The Brewers' Guardian of England in its issue of June, 1928, put it bluntly when it urged, "a never ceasing pressure and persuasion to capture the younger generation." Even more baldly does the Brew-

Journal of Great Britain deal with the subject when it says, "It is not so much a question as to whether existing beer drinkers can be made to drink more beer, but as to whether their sons and daughters will take customarily to this beverage."

Even the very conservative Royal Commission of England came to the conclusion, "There seems to be reason to think that considerable numbers of liquor advertisements are designed to attract the rising generation."

What use has the United States for a business that, with utter lack of conscience, depends for its future upkeep upon the creation of alcoholic appetites in the rising generation? Do we want to place ourselves in the same class with wine-producing, wine-drinking France which has acceded to the wine interests' demand that there shall be no teaching in the schools, on the danger of wine.

Shall we surrender a law that has done more for the protection and safeguarding of the health and character of the young people and children, according to the National Education association, than any other law on our statute books? No, a thousand times no.

The city celebrated appropriately with a big basket picnic and Y. M. C. A. field day, on the Fourth. Between 1500 and 2500 attended the affair. No accidents or disorders were reported.

The T. and P. concert band furnished music. T. W. Chawick, master of ceremonies, introduced Postmaster G. H. Sparenberg, who in a short talk bid a hearty welcome and "made them feel as if they were thrice welcome."

S. E. Thompson delivered an oration on principles of American citizenship.

Winners in the races were W. M. Ross, Miss Emma Helfritsch, John

Tucker, Albert Wright, A. C. Hayden, Wilma Houser and Charles Deata.

Bashfulness of the heavyweights prevented the fat men's race. J. B. Cherry and the Hon. G. H. Sparenberg tied in their featured clash. Dr. W. C. Barnett, with both "hind legs" tied, won his race.

Stokes-Wolcott company defeated J. and W. Fisher in the head-line attraction on the diamond. Stars of the game were E. Fisher, P. G. Stokes, Grover Cunningham, J. Q. Kirby, Lester Fisher, J. F. Wolcott, W. J. Crawford, John Pike, J. E. Moon and C. W. Jones. The entire celebration was held at the H. C. Read grove.

A large crowd turned out to welcome the first of the "Cannon Ball" limfeds in Big Spring. The band, and the W. C. W. lodge, added color to the occasion. Better passer-service for Big Spring.

The meat market of J. D. Short was extinguished shortly after a blaze was discovered. Good work by firemen and witnesses prevented what would probably been a "dangerous conflagration."

The dam, imprisoning waters from the spring, was reconditioned in time to catch eleven feet of water caused by recent rains. The first dam washed away in part, but J. P. Hughes and a force of men put it in good shape once more. The T. and P. was somewhat dubious about rebuilding the dam.

The spring has been cleaned out and the railroad company is pumping water again. Pipeline is being
