Young Painter Linked In Western Sections

Twenty-three original paintings by George B. Post, young California artist, are now on display in West Texas Museum, according to an announcement by Prof. R. I. Lockard, assistant professor of architecture and allied arts.

The initiation took place Monday at 5 o'clock in Room 220 of the Administration building. Each new prospect was given a candle, signifying the lamp of knowledge, which was lighted from a larger candle held by Gunter. As each four students came into the initiation room, they were made to repeat the pledge of Alpha Chi with Gunter. Candles furnished the only lights, as the members read the pledge and filed to the back of the room while other members were brought in.

Jail conditions are getting sorry indeed when an offender can't beg or talk himself in!
Protesting a $1 traffic fine, Sid Spear, Towerdore associate editor, demanded to be thrown in jail to "lay out" the fine. Judge B. P. Millsaps refused. "Go out and borrow a dollar from a bellhop friend," he said, "but don't bother us about throwing you in jail."

Tech Grad Finds New Specimen In Santa Claus Land

John Marr Accompanies Minnesota Expedition To Hudson Bay Area

Results of the University of Minnesota expedition to Hudson Bay, of which John Marr, 1936 botany graduate was a member, were published in "Science" for Nov. 17.

Marr collected 250 tree borings and wood specimens from 80 trees for study of tree growth climatic correlations.

Until August 13 the group, composed of Dr. Ernst C. Abbe, professor at the University of Minnesota, his wife and Marr, who is a graduate student there, were in the Richmond Gulf area. A rich location for botanical exploration, flowering plants, ferns, mosses, lichens and hepatics were collected there. The route from there was to the Great Whale river vicinity and along Manitounuk Sound to Belcher Islands where more collections were made.

One thousand, three hundred and thirty-six flowering plants, 400 lower plants and about 8000 herbarium specimens had been collected when the trip ended Sept. 11 with their arrival at the end of the railroad at Moosonee, Ontario. The group returned to Minneapolis Sept. 18.

Marr was student assistant in the biology department while in school here, Dr. Studhalter said.

Amarillo Fish Ill Of Rare Disease

Joe Franklin Langford, freshman arts and science student from Amarillo, is seriously ill with a rare blood stream infection, the first of its kind known in Lubbock according to hospital authorities.

Langford has been in the hospital 15 days and for the past 11 days has been receiving blood transfusions daily.

Osteo myelitis of left humerus, which is a bone infection of the left arm, resulted in staphylococci septicaemia, blood stream infection. Three blood culture examinations given recently showed the germ present. Antitoxin was brought from Dallas.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe C. Langford of Amarillo, have been with Langford for a week. Physicians at the hospital are grateful for the response of a number of Tech boys in volunteering for blood transfusions.

Home Ec Club Is Playing Santa To City Needy

Do you know a little girl or boy need a coat, sweater or shoes?

The Home Economics club is sponsoring a distribution of clothing for the needy. Collection of garments will last until the Christmas holidays begin.

Every student has an opportunity to contribute their cast-off hats, shoes, gloves, sweaters and other articles of clothing toward Lubbock's needy children this Christmas. A large box will be placed in the front hall of the Home economics building where articles may be deposited.

Original Hand Made Gifts Are Vogue For Christmas

By MARTIN

Do you have spare time, want a hobby? Want to make some inexpensive, but attractive Christmas gifts? Need some clever necklace, belt or buttons for a sweater or dress?

Girls in Tech clothing and applied arts classes are making accessories of all kinds which are to be judged for originality and craftsmanship. Any one with ingenuity and a little spare time can work out and execute similar designs for a very small sum.

One example is a necklace made of pink wool thread, with flower centers of all colors, to be worn with a handmade blue sweater. Materials for the necklace include one package of 3-8-inch and two packages of 5-8-inch hollow brass curtain rings, at a nickel a package, one ten-cent ball of wool yarn and a large needle. Cover the rings with the thread using a buttonhole stitch. Tie the small rings together to make a chain and close with a hook, and an eye made of the wool thread. Make a four-petal flower in the centers of the nine large rings and tie the middles with bits of bright-colored wool thread. Then, placing the rings in groups of three, put three of the groups at the front of the necklace. This makes an attractive accessory for sports wooleens.

Materials costing eight cents can be made into a necklace and bracelet. Buy corks of any size desirable at the dime store and string them on bright-colored wool thread fastening with a hook and eye. This takes only a few minutes to make.

If your mind runs to buttons and you have time to do carving, why not try carving buttons of of odd shapes out of bass wood, marking out a design with a soft lead pencil, then burning with a heated ice pick? Variety in size,

Raiders Play Crack East Texas Cagers

Eight Game Road Trip Ahead For Tech Five

Texas Tech's Red Raider cagers, after two games this weekend, leave for East Texas and Louisiana, where they will play eight games in nine days in the next two weeks.

Stephen F. Austin, Texas and Centenary provide the competition. The Lumberjacks meet the Raiders in Nacogdoches Wednesday and Thursday nights, then Friday and Saturday Texas will be played in Austin. The next Monday and Tuesday, the opposition is Centenary, then Louisiana Polytechnic Wednesday and Thursday.

Just after Christmas, a three-day tournament in Oklahoma City occupies the attention of the Tech five, then they come home for a double-header with New Mexico on Jan. 5 and 6.

Texas, last year's southwest conference champion, is already laying claim to the national title. Only one letterman is missing from the conference championship team.

Stephen F. Austin was second in the Lone Star conference last year, and whipped Southwest conference squads consistently.

HE'S THEIR COACHER—

Berl Huffman, coach of the Raider cagers, who says he has the finest team ever to represent Tech in one breath, then says he won't win half a dozen games this season in the next. Wonder if he's right or wrong—or maybe both?

ASCE Will View City Water System

Twenty members of the Tech student chapter of American Society of Civil Engineers will make a field trip to Big Spring today.

A new city water supply there will undergo a four-hour examination by aspiring dam-builders. Motion pictures of the construction of the system will also be viewed.

G. W. Parkhill, former member of the Tech civil engineering faculty and now connected with Lubbock city water department, and Charles G. Decker, instructor in civil engineering, will accompany students on the trip.

Garth Fuquay of Mt. Vernon is president of the club.

Aviation Photographer Marries In Sweetwater

Lieut. W. Austin Davis of Sweetwater, B. S. in M. E. 1939, graduate of Kelly Field and Randolph Field in 1937, was married to Josephine Newman of Sweetwater recently.

Lieut. Davis is an officer in the U. S. Army Air Corps in charge of the photographic section at Brooks Field, San Antonio, Texas.

Tech Prof Gives Talk On Visual Aids At Meeting

Over 300 Delegates Discuss Teaching Problems In Texas

Mrs. Janet McDonald, head of the visual aids department, read a paper on "Administering A Film Library" before the visual education section of the Texas State Teachers association convention in San Antonio.

Mrs. McDonald discussed briefly six problems of film library management selection, publicity, booking, shipping, inspection and accounting. All subjects were discussed from the standpoint of educational films to be serviced in public schools and colleges. She emphasized the importance of careful selection of films by committees on the various levels of education and checking with the list of other film libraries and professional organizations.

J. F. McDonald, director of extension, said that Tech's film library has the reputation of being the largest and one of the best selected educational film libraries in Texas.

First Lady Of Aggie Herd Dies

Timberlina Destroyed After 11 Years Of Use

Marking the first generation in the age of Texas Tech was the death last month of Timberlina, a registered Hereford that was the first to be dropped at the agriculture buildings as the property of the college.

Timberlina would have been eleven years old this month and was destroyed due to the blindness resulting from cancer in one eye and consequent infection in the other.

During her life she produced eight calves, five of which are still in the Tech herd. Her last calf, a bull, Superior Timberline, is being kept as herdshire and, according to W. L. Stangel, is an outstanding individual.

Only one Hereford herdshire, Bright Diamond, has been purchased by the college, and the present herdshire, Good Diamond, Jr., is a great grandson of the original purchase. The present Hereford herd numbers 46 head and is being intensively linebred, a method recognized as the soundest form of breed improvement.

Hereford steers from the Tech herd are exhibited each year at the Southwestern exposition in Fort Worth, and Tech has a record of three successive years winning the dressed carcass contest with steers from the college herd.

Students Give Reasons For Evacuation Of Quarters

By RUTH HENRY

Roaming Tech students find plenty of reasons to move, according to 295 change of residence cards in the dean of men's office. "Too much static, no bull sessions, rotten grub" caused many boys to stray from their original abodes.

Roommates played an important role. Some wanted to move to have a more desirable roommate, others to live with some one in their own division, and still others just couldn't get along with their roommates. Perhaps they ate crackers in bed!

"Cows and chickens are too close to my window," complained one boy who went on to say that he was also getting married!

Food wasn't an uncommon complaint. One boy moved because he found a wad of hair in the potatoes and bugs in the food. Another boy gave as his reason for moving from the dormitory "the bad food and bad studying conditions."

He stated that he had to have a room to himself if he expected to get any studying done. "Many freshmen lived 'too far' and 'two far' from school. One fish gave his reason for moving as, "THEIR is not telephone and did not like sats."

Fallen arches and 8 o'clock classes were given as reasons to move closer to the campus.

One freshman wanted to move to have a private entrance so "I will not disturb no one when I come in and where my privileges will not be greatly curbed."

The nightly congregation of negroes in the alley by his bachelor apartment caused one student to vacate.

"The housemother asked me to move and I don't like her character for several reasons," frankly stated one boy. In other instances housemothers were the determining factors which promoted moves. Many were "crabbed," one went broke and one bought another cat. A few students were "asked to move."

"My parents desired that I should move into the dormitory for convenience, and so that I should be in as studious atmosphere as possible. (But they had a slightly exaggerated opinion of Horn hall's studious atmosphere)," wrote one boy who had recently moved in the dormitory.

In determining chances for employment, Dr. Kent made no distinction as to the possibilities for technically trained students, or those enrolled in the liberal arts division, but stated only that he felt that college students in general had at this time a far better chance of securing work, than at any time since the depression.
