WPA Projects Get Underway As Work Begins

Workmen Start Paving Drives On Campus; Outline Plans

PAVING of the streets leading north from the central circle to the Textile building was started Monday as the first of the beautification projects on the campus under the direction of Works Progress Administration.

The entire project includes landscaping, street paving, curb and gutter improvements, construction of sidewalks, and improvement of irrigation facilities.

Work Outlined

Wheelbarrows will be used instead of teams in order to furnish work for more men. More than one hundred men will be employed while the work is in progress. Plans for the entire project include: 40,000 square yards of paving, 9,840 feet of curb and gutter work, 2,400 square feet of sidewalk, and 16,000 yards of excavation for the irrigation ditches. The street in front of the athletic field will also be improved.

The street leading south from the Administration building to Nineteenth street will be paved after the completion of the streets in front of the Engineering building. Curb and gutter work will be done on these streets as well as the one leading south from the Agricultural building.

Plan Sidewalks

Sidewalks across the central circle, connecting the Engineering and Textile buildings, and around the two dormitories are included in the plans.

Plans call for the digging of ditches from the two new irrigation wells on the campus to points where irrigation water is needed. Leveling of the campus, and landscaping around the buildings, especially the new ones, complete the plans.

Total cost of the improvements is $60,820. The Federal funds to be furnished by WPA total $58,080, while the college furnishes $2,760. The work is the continuation of CWA projects started here two years ago.

Geology Group To Make Trip

Stainbrook Accompanies Students To Coast; Leave Tomorrow

Dr. M. A. Stainbrook, associate professor of geology, William Thomas, Kenneth Davis, Powell Miller, and Avin Attaway, geology students, will leave tomorrow for Los Angeles, Cal. to attend the National convention of Sigma Gamma Epsilon, National geological fraternity.

The University of California and U. C. L. A. will be hosts at the meeting. Problems and alterations of the national constitution are to be discussed. William Thomas of Tech is to submit a report of Alpha Beta chapter activities.

Dr. Stainbrook and his group will visit various points of geological interest on the trip, and spend some time in lower California. The itinerary includes a visit to La Brea Asphalt Pits, a tour of Santa Monica mountains, a visit to U. S. C. and U. C. L. A. campuses, and the Los Angeles County Museum. The party is to attend the Rose Bowl football classic between Stanford university and the Southern Methodist university Mustangs.

Jury Convicts Bradley In Shooting Of Vaughn

Tech District Court Jury Sentences Junior Student To State Penitentiary For Year And Day In Pre-Law Club Mock Trial; Moore Sobbs

JACK Bradley, Tech junior, was found guilty of shooting Voyle Vaughn and sentenced to one year and a day in the state penitentiary, in the Texas Tech District Court Tuesday night. Chief Justice Paul Eubank read the sentence after the jury returned a verdict of guilty without malice aforethought.

Julia Moore, the beautiful blonde who was the cause of the shooting, sat with downcast eyes during the entire trial. She broke only once. When Jack Bradley gave his account of the shooting, the tiny Tech beauty sobbed.

Vaughn Testifies

Voyle Vaughn, victim of the shooting, was the first witness called to the stand by the prosecution. When asked about his relation to Jack Bradley he replied, "We were friends up to the present, that is until I started going with Julia a few times."

Jack Bradley, the defendant, was the first witness the defense sent to the stand. "I have known Miss Moore quite a while," he said. "We

Wire From Knapp Says Headquarters Still Considering Plan

CANCELLATION of the $67,000 grant for a stadium at Tech was announced Saturday in Washington by the Public Works Administration, according to an Associated Press report from the national capital.

An AP story yesterday quoted Knapp as saying that "officials assured him that they are still considering the project at the college." Although he planned to remain in Washington until the matter was closed, Knapp said he would probably leave the capital last night. The college president denied the Associated Press report concerning the cancellation Monday in a wire to W. T. Gaston, college business manager.

Cawthon Optimistic

P. W. Cawthon, head football coach and director of athletics, stated that, although nothing was definite at this time, there was still a "long-shot" possibility of the other plans being considered to materialize.

"We do not know anything except what the Associated Press said, and will have to wait until Dr. Knapp gets home to learn the complete details of the meeting in Washington," Cawthon said.

Gaston stated late Tuesday evening that he had not received word from Dr. Knapp since Monday. Gaston said that he would not attempt to predict how the situation would be but stated that Dr. Knapp's stay in Washington for other conferences was encouraging.

Students Catch True Christmas Spirit In Giving Gifts To Needy

THE Christmas holiday period is significant in the life of a college student. It is the one time during the year when he can make an extended visit at home. It affords respite from pressing academic and social obligations on the campus. In general, it is that period of the year which all collegians anticipate from registration day and memories of which stay with them always.

No less exciting are days immediately preceding Christmas vacation. Students are preparing for homeward journeys, rushing downtown to take part in "Shop Early" movements, regretting necessity of being serene long enough to sit through classes. No doubt through these actions students gain a feeling of abandoned celebration, but often collegians as well as older people overlook the true Christmas spirit of benevolence and good will in the excitement of freedom realized.

As an example of manifestation of real Christmas feeling The Toreador calls attention of its readers to the numerous benefit affairs sponsored by campus organizations during the pre-holiday season.

THERE is no better way to observe the birthday of the Great Giver than in giving to those who are in need. The hearty response of students is a commendation for the college. They have contributed generously and willingly to support of charity as sponsored by college clubs. In addition to enjoying the affairs to the utmost, those who have attended the benefit dances and parties have been allowed at least a glimpse of the true meaning of Christmas, over-shadowed as it is by the noisier and less generous celebration.

Students are having an opportunity throughout this week to participate in another form of real Christmas activity by singing carols in corridors of the Administration building between classes. This practice is a tradition on the campus, and student response is commendable.

One regrettable overstepping of decency bounds, coming as an unpleasant contrast to charitable activities, is indiscriminate on the

ANSWERS LETTER WRITTEN BY HOWELL

To the Editor: The letter from James P. Howell printed in the last edition of The Toreador was evidently written without sufficient consideration of its subject. Although I am not familiar with all the space problems of your publication, I do realize that a four-page paper, which is trying to pay its expenses without great cost to the college, is not able to carry all the features the editor would like to include.

It is my belief that the editor of The Toreador has not been unfair in his treatment of the president (not capitalized, Mr. Howell), because I have been informed on good authority that you told Dr. Knapp at the first of school that you would run a few paragraphs each week under the title of "Prexy's Paragraphs." I have also been informed that those few paragraphs turned out to be three or four pages of typewritten copy so tied together that to omit any of it was to destroy the value of the whole. The president has also been known to send copy to your office hours past deadlines, as well as copy of doubtful news importance, marked for front page publication.

The president, because of his office, has been given every consideration by you and your staff, according to my information, and he has failed to respond to such courtesies, if I am to believe your editorial and editor's notes in Saturday's issue. He seems to wish to make The Toreador not a student newspaper, but an Administration organ, if he expected you to print three typed pages of editorial comment from him. The dangers of such a practice were pointed out in the quoted statement of an Eastern educator in one of your editorial features, "From Other Campuses," a few weeks ago. The Chicago university president stated that when the Administration of any institution dickers with the student publication it ceases to be a student organ but is an Administration newspaper.

The student body might like to read one or two important bulletins from the president's office in each issue, but it does not read long sermons in any form. Yes, Mr. Howell, "after all, it is the more important news that we, as college students, want in our paper." That is why I wrote this letter. If Administration and faculty members would have a closer contact with students, they should practice the Tech tradition of speaking to everybody they meet and allow the publishing of a "free press" newspaper.

part of some students as to the correct place for fireworks. Certainly a library reading room should be secure from such trespassing, and even corridors of classroom buildings are hardly appropriate settings for firecracker displays.

If each student remembers that this is the season at which we should be most charitable and considerate of the rights of others, then you will have what The Toreador wishes for you—A MUCH MERRIER CHRISTMAS and A HAPPY NEW YEAR.

From Other Campuses

By FRED GRIFFIN THE student paper at the University of British Columbia has defined its student body as follows: "A comfortable body of nondescript spineless morons."

The editors of Waynesburg College Yellow Jackets have started a class of their own to train members of the staff. ACP suggests that this is one of the better answers of how staff members should be instructed in the duties and responsibilities of working on the college newspaper.

President Angell of Yale says that in 70 percent of American colleges it is the crowd, the winners, and receipts that count above everything else connected with football games.

Compared to his wall tent with its kerosene lamp and sturdy army cot, John Clendenin, Penn State freshman, doesn't think too much of the room in town that snow and colder weather have forced him to move into.—ACP.

Princeton students can now cut as much as they like, so long as their "standing remains unimpaired."

Yale undergraduates can now own and operate cars—providing they get written consent from family and dean.

One Minute Interviews

QUESTION: Do you think The Toreador as the student publication should carry "Prexy's Paragraphs" in the form in which they have appeared before in the college newspaper?

Casey Kunkel: I have always enjoyed "Prexy's Paragraphs" in the past, and think they should be carried in the future.

Gish Houston: Yes, I think that "Prexy's Paragraphs" should be continued as in the past.

Donald Henry: I am perfectly satisfied with the policy of The Toreador as it is now.

Harry Jordan: I believe "Prexy's Paragraphs" should be carried.

Alfred Riley: "Prexy's Paragraphs" would be swell if they were in more condensed form.

Edwin Boggs: I don't care.

James Alexander: Scratch the back that scratches yours, Cleve Jones: "Prexy's Paragraphs" were fine with me.

Jack Carr: I always enjoyed "Prexy's Paragraphs" and think that they should be continued.

Alton Farr: I think we ought to have it.

George Carrithers: Yes, I believe they should.

Dorothy Vandagriff: I do think the president should have a paragraph in the paper, but I don't think it should be very long.

Mary Byrum Cobb: I didn't read enough of them to be a good judge.

Matador Cagers Play Cosden Oilers Tomorrow Night

By JIM LINDSEY
Toreador Editor

WHILE six nurses—more or less—busy themselves answering the requests of Sports Editor Bob Cannon, the task of carrying on this feature falls upon the shoulders of the editor. Our right hand assistant is confined to his bed in the West Texas hospital because of illness—not too serious but enough to force the department head to stay under sheets for several days. So we've picked up the bat and strode to the plate to pinch hit for the "rosy-cheeked and curly-haired scribe" from Abilene.

Tomorrow night at 7 o'clock the Scarlet cagers "take off" on their basketball campaign. Huffman makes his debut as "director" of local activities on the painted rectangle when the thirty-clads "of form" around Curly Wilkinson to start the opening game against the talented court artists from Big Spring. The southern city charges travel under the moniker of the Cosden Refining company Oilers.

Advance reports give the tale of a classy invader. Found on the roster of the "openers" are several stars that have earned laurels in college casaba circuits. Tommy Hutto, who formerly tossed goals for the Texas A. and M. Aggies to gain an all-Southwestern conference berth, holds down a forward slot for the Oilers. "Lefty" Smith, rangy basketballer of Hardin-Simmons floor history, is included among the galaxy of visiting basketball standouts.

Huffman Pits Charges Against Semi-Pro Team In Initial Game Of Year

Opening Contest Begins At 7 O'Clock; First Strings Play Last

THE Matadors lift the lid off their current basketball schedule tomorrow night at the gymnasium in a double bill with the strong Cosden Refining Company Oilers, semi-pro team from Big Spring.

Bringing with them the reputation of being the fastest semi-pro club in West Texas with a roster studded with former college stars and a record second to none in this section, the Oilers first team will tangle with Tech's topnotchers at 8 o'clock. A set-to between the B teams of the scheduled opponents precedes the feature as a curtain raiser for the evening's performance. The junior basketballers begin playing at 7 o'clock.

Lineup Given
Coach Berl Huffman, starting his first year as holder of the cage reins, stated that Hugh Snodgrass, tricky shot artist, and Judge Garrett, passer deluxe, are to start at the forward slots. "Curly" Wilkinson is slated for center with Clyde Corbin and Burris going to the guard posts.

Either Wilkinson or Snodgrass, only returning lettermen on the squad, will act as captain during the opening contest, Huffman states. Both boys showed lots of ability last year and are due for a banner campaign in which Tech is to defend its Border conference crown. The title has been won by the locals for three straight years. Garrett, a squadman, from last year's troupe, has been showing nice form in practice sessions this week, earning a starting position tomorrow evening.

Corbin and Burris are newcomers to local circles. Corbin played with Lon Morris Junior college last season while Burris hooped baskets for Schreiner Institute.

On All-Star Team

OCCUPYING a terminal post on the Associated Press "Little All-American" team for 1935 is Herschel "Red" Ramsey. The scrapping Raider end, shown above, hails from Chillicothe where he gained his high school football knowledge. He was outstanding in the Matador forward wall throughout the season.

With the acquisition of Leroy Parmalee, former New York Giant pitcher, the St. Louis Cards have boosted their stock for the championship next year.

A survey of the 34 men who have captained University of Vermont football teams reveals most of them are outstanding successes.

College Club Holds Social Loop Lead; Los Ratos Retain Perfect Percentage

Centaurus Take Second Place As Wranglers Lose To Leaders

With upsets featuring the Social club games and the uninterrupted march of Los Ratos in the Independent league championship stealing the show in this circuit, the intramural football season swung into the final lap Sunday.

In the first half of their game with the Ramblers, Los Ratos were unable to score and were held at bay until the third quarter when Tracy Watson passed to Jerry Strickling for a touchdown. The Rats' final marker came late in the fourth stanza when a Rambler punt was blocked and the ball rolled into the end zone, making the final score 8 to 0.

Engineers Win
The Engineers salvaged some glory from a mediocre campaign by defeating the Aggies 19 to 0. Palmer, Ince, and Quinlan scored touchdowns for the victors. The Engineers held the North Plains club to a scoreless tie Friday.

With Rufus Ryan installing new life into the downtrodden Centaurus, they defeated both the Kemas and Silver Keys to retain a slight chance for the championship. College Club trounced the Wranglers 7 to 0 Sunday by virtue of a long pass from Bill Davis to Jack Down. Davis converted from placement for the extra point.

Texas university and Arkansas university will not meet on the gridiron next year for the first time in several years.

All seats to the Rose Bowl game ($7,000 of 'em) have been sold out.

Coach Cawthon Plans To Attend Rules Committee Gathering In Michigan

After returning from Dallas Sunday, where he attended the Southwestern conference winter meeting, Head Coach Pete Cawthon was a little dubious about next year's football schedule.

"Advance publicity didn't do our chances to card a couple of teams any good," Cawthon said; "although I can't give any information as yet, we will have one of the

Teams Play Final Games Today; Ratos Tangle With North Plains

FINAL games in the intramural touch football campaign will be played today with the playoffs between the three champions of the respective leagues scheduled to be unreeled tomorrow and Friday.

The Centaurus by virtue of victories over Kemas and Silver Keys are firmly entrenched in second place. The game with the Keys wound up the schedule for the Centaurus and they have a chance at the Social club championship only if the Kemas defeat College club this afternoon.

Finals Today
College Club at the top of the ladder in the Social league will annex the championship if they tie the Kemas today. Should the Kemas win this game the Social club league will be thrown into a three way tie between the Kemas, College Club, and Centaurus.

Cy LaMaster's Los Ratos seem well on their way to the championship in the Independent league and like the College Club can win by virtue of a tie game in their next encounter today with the North Plains entry.

The Southwestern conference has caused quite a furor in collegiate football circles by their "pay the athlete plan."

toughest schedules next year we've ever had."

Coach Cawthon will attend the annual National Football Rules committee meeting in Detroit December 27 and 28. He is a member of the Public Relations Board of which Gus Dorais of Detroit university is chairman.
