

'Generation without war'—Nixon's goal for '70s

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon told the country yesterday a generation without war should be its great goal — and the prospects for peace are far greater today than they were a year ago.

He gave second place, in his nationally broadcast State of the Union address, to "clean air, clean water, open spaces," promising "the most comprehensive and costly program in this field ever in the nation's history."

His proposals will include, he said, "a $10-billion nationwide clean-waters program."

And, while he re-emphasized his determination to pare spending and achieve an inflation-fighting surplus, he exempted outlays for the fight against crime.

Nixon promised "1971 federal spending for aiding local law enforcement will double that budgeted for 1970."

His live audience of senators, representatives, Supreme Court justices, diplomats, civil and military officials interrupted him 28 times with applause.

But on his statements on domestic issues, other than pollution, the applause came mainly from the Republican side.

The House Democratic leader, Rep. Carl Albert of Oklahoma, said the message lacked "imaginative recommendations to deal with inflation, tight money, the chaotic housing industry and our sagging economy."

But Rep. John W. Byrnes of Wisconsin, senior Republican member of the Ways and Means Committee, said Nixon made his point clearly—that what the economy needs is a government living within its means.

For details, he suggested, the Democrats might await the forthcoming budget message. Judging from the applause, Congress liked best the thanks Nixon gave the lawmakers for what he termed bipartisan support of efforts for a just peace.

"By this action," Nixon said, "you have completely demolished the enemy's hopes that they can gain in Washington the victory our fighting men deny it in Vietnam."

"We are making progress," he said of the war.

The road to peace is difficult and dangerous, he said, but "I believe our new policies have contributed to the prospect that America may have the best chance since World War II to enjoy a generation of uninterrupted peace."

He drew repeated applause when he went on: "Neither the defense nor the development of other nations can be exclusively or primarily an American undertaking."

"The nations of each part of the world should assume the primary responsibility for their own well being."

"We shall be faithful to our treaty commitments, but we shall reduce our involvement and our presence in other nation affairs."

Congress clapped when he said arms-limitations talks are best approached from "mutual self-interest rather than naive sentimentality."

Nixon devoted nearly half the body of his speech to the problems of environment, asking whether a president in 1980 "will look back on a decade in which 70 per cent of our people lived in metropolitan areas choked by traffic, suffocated by smog, poisoned by water, deafened by noise and terrified by crime."

Apparently looking to a system under which industry would have major responsibility for curbing the fouling of air, water and land, he said "The price of goods should be made to include the costs of producing and disposing of them without damage to the environment."

For automobiles, he said, there will be "set increasingly strict standards and enforcement procedures — and we shall do it now."

He promised "innovative financing methods for purchasing open space and park lands, now, before they are lost to us."

Telling Congress to expect at least a dozen major programs this year, Nixon emphasized reform of the welfare system, reform of government at all levels in the direction of his "new federalism" with more power to local governments.

And he promised proposals expanding the range of opportunities, including those for expanded ownership "because in order to secure in their human rights, people need access to property rights."

Democrats were most silent when Nixon said the blame for inflation is clear:

"In the decade of the 60s the federal government spent $57 billion more than it took in in taxes... the American people paid the bill for that deficit in price increases which raised the cost of living for the average family of four by $200 a month." He said he realizes the appeal of spending programs in an election year, but "it is time to quit putting good money into bad programs, otherwise we will end up with bad money as well as bad programs."

'Coach' Huffman heads Exes' public relations

By JAMES BOYETT
Staff Writer

Bert Huffman, a fixture in the Tech coaching department for more than 20 years, was named director of public relations for the Ex-Students Association yesterday morning.

Huffman, more commonly referred to as "Coach," was named to the position by Glenn Barnett, Tech executive vice president, and Wayne James, executive director of the ex-students organization.

Huffman in the past has been a goodwill emissary for Tech on a small scale by addressing civic and social organizations.

"Needless to say, I am most grateful for this great opportunity that has been afforded me by the administration of the University and the Ex-Students Association. An opportunity that will not only enable me, but encourages me in doing what I have always enjoyed so much — selling Texas Tech. Speaking of the values of Texas Tech has become as easy and natural as breathing."

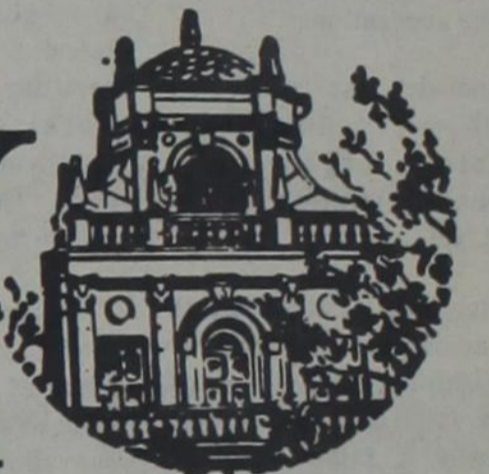

The move, first voiced last week, was cleared through the office of Glenn Barnett with full approval of the Athletic Department.

J T King, athletic director, who was reportedly in conference all day Thursday concerning the new synthetic turf which will adorn Jones Stadium, could not be reached for comment on Huffman's move.

BARNETT, WHO made the announcement Thursday, said Huffman will be on the road selling Tech most of the time.

Huffman, in a short speech after the announcement ceremonies Thursday, said it is the spirit and attitude of the students and faculty at Tech which have kept him here.

Eggers will run

AUSTIN—Republican Paul Eggers announced his candidacy for governor yesterday, setting up a probable rematch with Gov. Preston Smith in the November election.

Smith, a Democrat, announced for re-election Wednesday and has no opponent in the Democratic primary.

Roger Martin of Gainesville, a political unknown, has also announced for the GOP nomination for governor, and John Trice of Dallas has indicated he will run on the Republican ticket for that office.

Eggers, 50, lost to Smith by 407,000 votes out of almost 3 million cast in 1968.

Asked why he thought he had a better chance against Smith this time, Eggers replied, "when I announced before nobody knew who I was, and today you all know me."

Eggers, a resident of Wichita Falls for 20 years, has been general counsel for the U.S. Treasury Department since April 1, 1969.

Man taken into custody

AUSTIN—An unemployed Mexican-American laborer was taken into custody yesterday in the slaying of a Southwest Texas State University coed whose body was found in the Blanco River Dec. 11.

Sheriff Bobby Kinzer of San Marcos said the 19-year-old man would be charged with murder with malice in San Marcos later yesterday.

Kinzer brought the man to Department of Public Safety headquarters here after he was spotted on a San Marcos street about 1:40 p.m. yesterday. Kinzer said the man came to Austin voluntarily, but he refused to say whether he took a lie detector test.

The coed, Martha Sue Thompson, 21, of Port Lavaca was raped before she was killed and dumped into the Blanco River near the Interstate 35 bridge north of San Marcos, an autopsy report said.

The autopsy indicated she had been dead four or five days before her body was found. She was stabbed in the neck 26 times.

Texans honored

LONGVIEW—Texans distinguished in space exploration, business and industry were named yesterday to be honored by the Texas Press Association at its mid-winter convention in Longview today and tomorrow.

Alan L. Bean, the first Texan to walk on the moon, will receive the Texan of the Year Award, presented annually for outstanding achievement in some special field of endeavor.

Richard A. Goodson, native of East Texas and president of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., St. Louis, will be given TPA's Distinguished Service Award for his contributions to Texas development and progress.

The awards will be presented at the banquet at 7 p.m. tomorrow, with TPA President George W. Hawkes of Arlington presiding.

Reports on economy

EL PASO—A state industrial officer said yesterday a report on employment in Texas during the past 10 years shows that manufacturing has become the key to Texas' economy.

William Davis, assistant executive director of the Texas Industrial Commission, said 56.1 per cent of jobs in Texas last year were direct, dependent of manufacturing, compared to 43 per cent 10 years ago.

"Manufacturing employment increased 49.2 per cent in the last decade while oil and gas, mining and agriculture also showed declines ranging from 11 to 24 per cent."

'To facilitate communication'

Advisory Council greets students with closed doors

The first meeting of the Student Affairs Advisory Council, set up to "facilitate communication between administrative and student groups in non-academic areas," was closed to the public yesterday.

Dr. Owen L. Caskey, vice president of student affairs, said yesterday that the meeting was closed and that they would probably continue to be closed because the council is functioning as an advisory council.

"Later on we may invite people in at times to discuss problems in their areas and to give their recommendations," Caskey said.

DOUG WILLIAMS, president of the Men's Residence Council and a member of the council, said the meeting was strictly organizational.

"We were really just getting set up," Williams said. "Dr. Caskey brought up several areas we might be looking into but I'd rather not mention them because I don't think he intended them to get out."

Guy Moore, director of residence halls and also on the council, agreed that the meeting was strictly organizational.

"There was no agenda for the meeting and we did not discuss any specific areas,"

Moore said. "The function of the group is really to be just sort of a sounding board for students."

MOORE ADDED THAT the council might "kick around" administrative problems or issues.

Caskey said the council discussed the residence hall situation, off-campus housing regulations, Union expansion, expansion of the code of student affairs, the health and counseling services, and the recently passed Tort Claims Act and how it will affect the university.

"Right now the act has not been given a full interpretation by the state attorney general, so we are holding all statements until we know more details concerning the act," said Caskey.

He also added that members of the council discussed problems in their areas and current and future activities.

Barnett states views on ban of underground newspaper

The objections of Tech's administration to the sixth issue of The Catalyst, Tech's underground newspaper, became slightly clearer yesterday with the release of a letter from Dr. Glenn Barnett, Tech's executive vice president, to representatives of The Catalyst and their legal advisor, Tom Griffith.

The letter stated that Barnett was backing Dr. Owen Caskey's banning of the paper's campus sales. He said he favored the move for basically the same reasons stated earlier by Caskey in The University Daily.

BARNETT STATED in his letter, "There are no major differences in the substantive issues on which either Dr. Caskey's or my decision is made. I concur with the opinion of Dr. Caskey that this issue of The Catalyst not be sold or distributed on campus. My opinion is based on the paper's inclusion of certain vulgar words (words identified by you in our conference), coded messages, and a cartoon which, in my judgment, are not compatible with the program for which the officers of this institution are charged by the taxpayers of this state."

Professor to conduct new course

Visiting author and professor, Garland Downum, will teach a course in African history at Tech it was announced yesterday.

Downum, who has a bachelor's and a master's degree from Kansas and a Ph.D. from the University of Texas, will teach on the Tech faculty for the second time. He taught a course in modern European history last summer.

Downum's course in African history will trace the development of Africa from 1500 to the present. Also he will again teach a course in modern European history.

He is a member of academic organizations including the American Association of University Professors, the American Historical Association, the Southwest African Studies Association and the Society for French Historical Studies.

Downum has taught at Park College in Missouri, Howard College in Alabama and Mercer University in Georgia.

His writing has been published in the Southwestern Social Science Quarterly, History of Education Journal and the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Senate to halt action on business post change

By JULIE MCCABE
Staff Writer

The bill proposing to abolish the office of business manager of the Student Senate has been tabled in committee, Jim Boynton, parliamentarian of the Student Senate said yesterday.

The bill was introduced last spring by senators Robert Mansker and Allan Soffar. Since the authors of the bill are no longer in the senate, Boynton has taken up its sponsorship.

The bill was tabled, said Boynton, because the senate showed no interest in it. He plans to find out the attitudes of the senators toward the bill before bringing it up for a vote.

"IF WE DO BRING THE BILL committee," said Boynton, "I will propose certain amendments to it. The office of secretary for business affairs is a cabinet position under the office of the president and is now automatically filled by the business manager."

Boynton plans to amend the bill to give the business manager's job of keeping the books to the secretary for business affairs. The duty of signing vouchers for the transfer of funds would be assigned to the vice president.

The removal of the office of business manager would require a constitutional amendment. If passed by the senate, the bill would then have to be passed by the Student Association before going into effect.

THE PRESENT BUSINESS MANAGER, Bill Cornett, said, "It would be foolish to do away with the office of business manager." He said, "The business manager can only function as well as the person holding the office and students should take time and care in choosing him."

Cornett explained that he sits on committees handling $740,000. If the duties now assumed by the business manager were split up between the vice president and a secretary for business affairs, there may be conflicts, he said.

"The business manager has a voice with the administration almost as much as the president and vice president," Boynton said, "and can represent students on anything, not just money matters."

Don't register, don't vote!

Since very few of the Tech students who are eligible to vote know that the registration deadline is Jan. 31, we'd like to encourage the rest of you to keep it quiet. For those of you who did apply for your voter registration certificate, we don't know why you bothered. Not all of you who registered will bother to vote, and most of you who will vote, won't have sense enough to cast your vote intelligently. And even better is the fact that those who do vote will accept whatever gimmick politicians offer.

Why do people bother to register when they spend so little time considering the issues concerning their own money, welfare, security and families.

We're proud of the fact that voter registration is down in Lubbock County, because it will make it that much easier for a small minority to run the affairs of the public.

Another nice thing about it is that we can make it very easy for the politicians to resort merely to advertising campaigns.

Wouldn't it be terrible if politicians ever had to run for office on the basis of their own merits and potential? After all, once the people are elected, we don't really want them to listen to our opinions—we'd much rather they just control the public as they wish.

Since none of us have the time after elections to be concerned with government, we are satisfied to let someone else do our thinking for us.

Therefore, as we are about a week from the deadline, we hope no more of you will register.

Just because you are about 21 or older and meet the residence requirements for registration, don't flatter yourself — you're probably too ignorant to vote anyway.

Burket's Comment:

Campus must have unity

Tech is a growing university faced with countless problems, not the least of which are the lack of unity and the absence of a sense of campus community.

By campus community I mean an abstract quality, not a physical property. Here at Tech there is no concept of belonging to the student body, no pride or feeling of unification in a university-wide bond.

Physical factors interfere with the development of a sense of community. Tech's large enrollment will undoubtedly be listed as a reason, but it is not an insurmountable obstacle. Many universities as large or larger have an air of confidence and unity that is not present here.

THE CITY of Lubbock and West Texas in general are detrimental to college life. The Hub may be a great place to raise a family, but it's a terrible place to have a college. Fun City, U.S.A., it's not.

Students almost to a man will say they like Tech but hate

Lubbock. Maybe this is just a popular thing to say, but the opinion is expressed repeatedly.

A college located in a culturally deprived area such as this one suffers academically and socially, but the point here is that students are unable to identify with the city, and this inhibits the development of the college community.

There must be interaction between the scholastic world and the local community, but that interaction is at a minimum here. As soon as students are treated like people rather than raw materials this situation should change.

Right now, Lubbock is too big and diversified to be a college town, yet too small to offer the advantages of a city.

As I see it, there are two psychological factors which, more than physical causes, keep the college community from developing. They are individualism and cooperation.

ALL GROUPS need both in a balanced proportion. Tech does not have the formula yet. There is not enough individualism, yet, paradoxically, there is too much, and the same thing is true of cooperation.

This statement is not as strange as it may seem at first. It should be clear that individualism is a trait to be admired. It is when individualism becomes an egocentrism that the danger arises.

Here at Tech there are too many factions, too many interest groups. Greeks, independents, faculty and so forth, all have the capability of uniting to work for the school.

These groups have nothing to unite them, mainly because they have never really tried to communicate with each other. They have been satisfied to isolate themselves from the university as a whole.

It would be possible to continue in this manner and everyone could live in his own private world. Why bother about reality, why be concerned with the whole? It's a hell of a lot easier to be one of the Silent Majority.

THE OTHER SIDE of the coin, the lack of cooperation, stems from excess individualism. We MUST work together.

The machinery exists. Again, Greeks, independents, faculty and so forth, all have the capability of uniting to work for the school.

The reason these groups have never fulfilled their potential is that there has not been any effective leadership. This is what I mean by not enough individualism. There has never been a core of activists who exerted influence on the campus as a whole.

Granted, many fine men and women have been great leaders within their clubs or departments or fraternities, but no one, no group of people, has been able to move this campus!

The obvious question is why haven't the students and faculty at Tech coalesced into an effective force, a campus community?

I think the answer is there is an air of servility here — too MUCH cooperation and not enough thought. Excess cooperation is nothing but blind obedience.

The administration, some of the faculty and students and the very culture of today stress this mental conformity. Rules strangle us and keep us in our "place." We are thought of as children, as a source of wealth or in the case of the faculty, a mere tool for the dissemination of knowledge.

Tech does not have a sense of community because we, the faculty and students, have not learned to be real people. We keep to ourselves and we don't cooperate. We are not strong enough individuals to lead, to break out of the bonds of servile conformity. Tech will never be a great university until a sense of community and unity is present.

Physical things, such as having a good football team, can unite us temporarily, but that will not bring us to the final solution.

Tech must advance its policies. It must liberalize the education we receive.

Perhaps we need vocational schools like Tech, but it will never be a first-rate university until its horizons are expanded, and a sense of university-wide community exists.

Senator defends facts behind UD accusations

That time of the year is here again, when the campus editor discovers the ineptness of the Student Senate and blasts it for the days in The University Daily. So once again, we rally to its defense to explain the facts behind the accusations.

Mr. Snowden says the Senate accomplishes very little and is a do-nothing organization. Accomplish very little? Yes. Do nothing? No.

Unfortunately it is true that the Senate achieves few significant accomplishments, but Editor Snowden fails to point out the reason why it fails to achieve accomplishments. The reason is simple — the Senate has no real power of its own.

All changes must be approved and carried out by the administration, and the Senate's only power is one of constant suggestion, sometimes bordering on harassment. Consequently, if changes are not forthcoming, it is not due primarily to a lack of administrative action.

For example, the Senate has constantly pushed the administration to increase the number of parking spaces, to increase the number of student seats in Jones Stadium, to improve dormitory conditions and others. It has been the administration, and not the Senate, that has kept the students from getting these needed improvements.

The Senate is not a do-nothing organization. For example, there are quite a few Senators who spend a minimum of four hours per day, five days per week working on nothing but improvements for the student body. These are not do-nothing senators.

Editor Snowden seems to have neglected the areas in which the Senate has been extremely effective. These include the new rule allowing seniors and students over 21 to live off-campus. Mr. Snowden does not realize that without student government the administration probably would not have seen the need to enact this rule.

Students have a bus system to transport themselves from parking lots a mile from their classes that they would not have had if the Student Senate had not taken the initiative to push for its creation. However, notice that both of these improvements came from the administration, only after constant pushing from the Senate.

Many Senators spend a great deal of effort trying to improve the many problems at Tech, and in return we receive no salary, less study time, and just recently, blasts from The University Daily. But we expect this every year, and in fact, we were beginning to get a little worried that Editor

Seeks help for prisoners

The first article in November '69 Reader's Digest was entitled "What You Can Do for American Prisoners in Vietnam."

This article, condensed from Air Force and Space Digest, is written by Louis R. Stockstill who, in researching the article talked to dozens of government officials, representatives of the Red Cross, members of the armed forces and next of kin of prisoners.

He asked them what would be the most effective attack that could be launched. They agreed that dramatic results could come from a vigorous letter campaign directed to (1) representatives of foreign nations and the press of those nations; (2) your Congressmen; (3) Xuan Thuy, chief North Vietnam negotiator in Paris.

The author says nothing less than a world wide cry of outrage is likely to bring a halt to the grossly inhuman treatment our men are receiving in the enemy prison camps.

Sun eclipse program at planetarium

"The Sun in Eclipse" is the February topic for the Planetarium lecture - demonstrations in the "Theatre of the Skies" at the Museum on the campus of Tech, each Sunday at 3 p.m.

An eclipse effects animals and plants: fowl may go to roost and many flowers close their blossoms, as they would normally do at sundown.

The minimum number of solar eclipse in any calendar year is two. The maximum is five. Solar eclipses occur in series, following a pattern. The greatest possible duration of a solar eclipse at any one point on the earth's surface is seven minutes and 30 seconds.

On March 7 of this year a solar eclipse will be visible in Florida for three minutes.

Admission to the Planetarium program is 50 cents for adults, 25 cents for children, and free to members of the West Texas Museum Association.

Cast announced for the Bacchae

Director Ronald Schultz has announced the cast for the Feb. 27 University Theater production of an avant-garde Euripides drama. "The Bacchae," complete with an electronic score, will feature the following Tech students in leading roles: Mike Bearden as Dionysus; Pat Rogers as Pantheus; Reagan Upshaw as Cadmus; Richard Maggi as Tiresias; Rick Houston as the first messenger; Johnny Clark and Gary Thompson as attendants to Pantheus and Trudie Marchbanks plays Agave. The leader of the chorus is Kathy Klein, and chorus members include the following: Zandra Akins; Gail Broussard; Jane Ann Cummings; Debra Currie; Deborah Dalton; Linda Givens; Beckie Horst; Marjorie Leroy; Dianne Lewallen; Cindi MacFarland; Dee Rollo; Katy Updike; Vaunie von Storch and Ginger Tongate. A second messenger and five Theban Maenads have yet to be cast, according to Schultz. Costumes will be designed by Larry Randolph; the set will be designed by Dr. Clifford Ashby, who will also serve as technical director; Janet Kerr will do the choreography. Mary Helen McCarty is composing the electronic music for the play. Assistant director is Lana Church.

Mercury-toxic pork poisons three children

EL PASO (AP)—Two youngsters from Alamogordo, N.M., were in a coma today and their sister "isn't in a coma but she doesn't say anything, just looks at you," in an El Paso hospital where they are being treated for mercury poisoning. The three children of the Ernest Huckelby family are reported victims of poisoned pork from a home-slaughtered hog that had been fed seed grain chemically treated with a mercury compound. Ernestine, 8, who went to the hospital Dec. 27 and Amos, 10, admitted about 10 days ago, were in a coma, the hospital reported. An older sister, Dorothy, 18, who had been reported in a coma earlier, "doesn't say anything, just looks at you," a spokesman said.

Peru releases American boat

(AP)—Peruvian patrol vessels seized an American tuna boat Wednesday 25 miles off the coast but later released it, Rep. Thomas M. Pelly (R-Wash.) reported. Pelly said the boat Hornet, based in San Diego, apparently was released without fine after it had been taken into the port of Tulara. Peru claims jurisdiction over waters 200 miles from its coast and has frequently seized American ships venturing within the area.

Nigerian general blasts reporters

LAGOS (AP)—Maj. Gen. Yakubu Gowon defended his government's efforts to restore conditions to normal in defeated Biafra yesterday and angrily denounced reports that his Nigerian army troops were indifferent to suffering there. "We don't expect miracles," the Nigerian chief of state told a news conference. "Is anyone willing to say there is not misbehavior in their own armies? Just because a soldier looks away, and is not bending over someone, he is indifferent." Then he told the 200 newsmen before him: "As far as I am concerned, you can send whatever you like, you are guaranteed."

"Condemn us from A to Z. Please yourself. But please report honestly. 'But haven't we always had a bad press here?'" Looking then to an American reporter, he said: "You are from America — haven't things been happening in Vietnam?" An Associated Press dispatch Thursday from Port Harcourt, which once was Biafran, said the victorious Nigerian army is disintegrating inside the fallen territory and some of its weapons are falling into hands of hungry mobs raiding warehouses for food. The dispatch said an officer of international observer team had reported this in Port Harcourt.

The officer said troops of Nigeria's 3rd Marine Commando Division had raped white Red Cross nurses near Orlu but he said the Nigerian government is trying to replace the division with the 1st Division which he described as "a bit cooler." Western correspondents who went into the former secessionist state this week for the first time reported that thousands of people are still hungry and that government supplies are slow. Gowon said, however, the government relief program was "progressing satisfactorily." He announced the government had earmarked another $28 million for relief bringing its total to $45 million.

Nigerian war aftermath Starvation, feasting seen

PORT HARCOURT, Nigeria (AP) — While hundreds of thousands wait for food shipments in fallen Biafra, guests at a state wedding eat suckling pig and drink champagne. Deserters from the victorious Nigerian army sell their weapons and wander aimlessly looking for spoils. That is what the international observer team and relief workers say they see. Discarded weapons also are reported falling into the hands of hungry mobs raiding food warehouses.

"misbehaving soldiers have been dealt with severely" but refused to comment on reports from other officers that three had been shot for rape. About 60 white priests and a half-dozen nuns from the Ibo lands are under house arrest in Port Harcourt, undergoing screening sessions of from four to six hours by federal interrogators. Another 42 are still inside what was Biafra, their movements restricted pretty much to the grounds of their mission stations.

All of those interviewed by reporters touring the former rebel area say their automobiles, supply trucks and even their bicycles were confiscated by soldiers waving guns. The archbishop of Lagos, John Aggey, a Togolese, flew to Port Harcourt to intercede on behalf of the detained clergy. Oil workers trying to get Nigeria's refineries working again after the Biafrans made off with essential parts claim they have a daily battle to keep looting troops from seizing their vehicles and supplies at gunpoint.

Viet Cong strike Vietnamese post

SAIGON (AP)—Striking from a forest stronghold, enemy forces assaulted a South Vietnamese marine brigade command post Thursday in the biggest attack in the Mekong Delta in two months. Fifteen South Vietnamese marines were killed and 41 were wounded in the two-hour mortar and ground attack, but North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops suffered 72 dead, according to field reports. The battle occurred on the northeastern edge of the U Minh Forest, long an enemy haven, 122 miles southwest of Saigon. Allied commanders had been expecting a major attack in the delta because of the presence of at least a division of North Vietnamese regulars, who began infiltrating in units into the delta for the first time last June.

came from nearby Binh Thuy airfield and are used mostly to defend Navy boats which ply waterways of the delta. —U.S. battlefield deaths fell to 84 last week, 14 fewer than the previous week. The assault was carried out by an estimated 400 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops who softened up the camp with a 100-round mortar barrage and then launched a ground assault, firing machine guns and bazooka-type rockets at the command. About 600 South Vietnamese marines fought off the attackers, helped by artillery and U.S. Navy attack planes. The Navy planes

Lawyer says his client can't testify

EDINBURG (AP)—Percy Foreman, a lawyer specializing in criminal cases, said today he will not let one of his clients testify in the Pete Thomas Scamardo murder trial. Scamardo, a Hearne businessman, is scheduled for trial beginning Monday on a charge of being an accomplice in the slaying of his one-time business partner. The state alleges two Houston men actually did the killing for pay. The victim was Sam Delegia Jr. Foreman represents Charles Harrelson, a Houston man charged with the actual slaying. Jerry O. Watkins, also of Houston, is the other.

Foreman says his client can't testify because he is a minor and is being held in a juvenile institution. Foreman says he is not sure if the state will accept his client's testimony. Foreman says he is not sure if the state will accept his client's testimony.

University Seminars in Theology and Culture

University Seminars are opportunities to explore life's meaning and purpose from the perspective of the Christian faith. About a dozen students gather weekly to understand and enjoy each other and the world in which they live.

- I. Theological Thinking
A seminar designed to develop a mature and workable understanding of the Christian faith for the twentieth century. What does it mean to believe in God? What is the Christian style of life? Readings and conversations are centered on the problems and possibilities of faith in a secular age.
- II. Theology through Literature: The Theological Novel
Reading and discussion of short novels by Albert Camus, Graham Greene, Saul Bellow, Hermann Hesse and Bernard Malamud toward an understanding and appreciation of their theological significance. This seminar will meet every other week: a total of six sessions.
- III. Encounter Groups
An experiment in individual and group relations using the insights of sensitivity training and contemporary psychology. Emphasis will be on involvement in the group process toward a mature understanding of and relationship with others.

Seminars begin the week of February 1 and conclude the week of April 19; encounter groups begin the week of February 8. Registration fee is $5.00.

University Seminars are offered by the United Campus Ministries. For information, or to register, contact one of the following: Ecumenical Ministries Building, 2412 - 13th, PO3-4391; Lutheran Student Center, 2615 - 19th, SH7-1553; or Methodist Student Center, 2420 - 15th, PO2-8749.

Leaders doubt statements hurt

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate's two top leaders said Thursday they doubt that white supremacist campaign statements made 22 years ago by Supreme Court nominee G. Harold Carswell will affect his chances for Senate confirmation.

Carswell said during an unsuccessful campaign for the Georgia legislature in 1948 that he would always be governed by "the firm, vigorous belief in principles of white supremacy."

Carswell, now a judge of the U.S. 5th Court of Appeals, said Wednesday when asked about the old speech, "Specifically and categorically I denounce and reject the words themselves and the thoughts they represent."

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana asked about the speech, said: "Oh, no one is perfect. I don't think we ought to jump to a hasty judgment."

Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania said: "Every person ought to be forgiven his youthful indiscretions if he is man enough to disown them, as he did."

Carswell was 28 and just out of law school when he made the speech to an American Legion group at Gordon, Ga.

Mansfield and Scott both said they doubt the speech will affect Senate confirmation of Carswell to the court seat left vacant by the resignation last year of Abe Fortas. President Nixon nominated Carswell Monday.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., assistant majority leader, said he was distressed by the speech and added: "As a member of the Judiciary Committee, I am sure he will be asked about it and have an opportunity to express himself."

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., who led a successful fight against confirmation of Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. to the court vacancy, said he plans to examine Carswell's civil rights record but added: "There must be other evidence more significant than that speech."

The Department of Justice carefully checked Carswell's background before his nomination. Haynsworth was rejected after questions arose about his personal finances and judicial ethics.

The 1,600-word speech by Carswell was found in a copy of The Bulletin of Irwinton, Ga., a now-defunct weekly which Carswell edited from 1946 to 1948 while he attended the Walter F. George School of Law at Mercer College in Macon, Ga.

The newspaper files were taken from the Wilkinson County Court House to Carswell's home in Tallahassee, Fla., Wednesday night where the judge said he examined them for about 30 minutes.

"I just wanted to see them," Carswell told a reporter Thursday.

In the speech, Carswell said: "I am a southerner by ancestry, birth, training, inclination, belief, and practice. And I believe that segregation of the races is proper and the only practical and correct way of life in our state. I have always so believed and I shall always so act."

Civil rights had split the 1948 Democrats helped form the States Rights Democrats of the presidential election campaign.

Carswell said in his speech: "This civil rights program is a political football, obvious on its face as an attempt to corral the bloc voting of Harlem."

"As part and parcel of this same rotten vote-getting scheme, the FEPC, so-called Fair Employment Practice Committee, is a sham. Every businessman should realize the seriousness of such a piece of preposterous legislation. It would mean that here in Gordon if we are hiring two telephone operators, both white, and some Negro girl applies for a job, we may get in court with the federal government because we have supposedly discriminated."

Jet leaves late for first flight

LONDON (AP)—The first commercial flight of the Boeing 747 jumbo jet left London last night for the return trip to New York more than seven hours late with perhaps the longest list of passenger cancellations ever compiled for one plane.

The mammoth Pan American World Airways jetliner carried 150 paying customers, including film star Raquel Welch.

But 128 others, many of them fed up with the long wait, canceled out and caught other flights.

The Jumbo 747 holds 362 passengers. The flight was delayed six

Senate debate held on Laos now released

WASHINGTON (AP) — Excerpts from a secret Senate debate about Laos were published today, but heavy censorship kept from the record the extent of U.S. involvement in aerial combat there, and the number of American casualties.

"This is escalating into a major operation," Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., said at one point during the Dec. 15 executive session, but government censors took over at that point, and kept a detailed account from the published record.

The executive session was held for debate on an appropriations bill amendment to bar the use of defense funds for the introduction of U.S. ground combat troops into either Laos or Thailand.

After the two-hour secret session, the amendment was approved by a 72-17 roll call vote.

A report by Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., on the extent of U.S. involvement was heavily censored. Figures on the number of U.S. military personnel in Laos, on the rate of American air missions over northern Laos, and on U.S. casualties in those operations all were deleted from the public transcript.

Bakr is a Baath Socialist. He took power in a coup in 1968, one of several since Republicans brought down Iraq's pro-West monarchy and killed King Faisal in 1958.

The United States, Iran, West Germany and Israel all have been accused by Iraq of participating in the latest plot.

The Iranian ambassador and four members of his embassy have been ordered out of the country. So too have the staff of Iranian consulates in Baghdad, Basra and Karbala. Their offices have been closed. Iran countered by expelling Iraqi diplomats from Tehran.

An Iraqi government spokesman charged three Israeli officers, a West German and an American were in charge of smuggling 3,000 submachine guns from across the Iranian border for the plotters. All worked for the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, he claimed.

hours in New York while passengers changed to a second 747 because an engine on the first overheated and it was held up an hour in London by loading problems.

Despite this, crew members and most passengers appeared delighted by the way the ship handled once it got off the ground.

Capt. Robert M. Weeks, Pan Am's chief Atlantic pilot who skipped the flight from New York, told newsmen: "This airplane is the finest piece of aeronautical engineering ever constructed."

"The flight on this airplane was as close to being a routine flight out of Kennedy airport, New York, as you can imagine."

Emmet Judge, a marketing consultant from Detroit who has flown more than 750,000 miles, said: "Once you have flown on this plane it will spoil you for everything else. You are hardly aware you are in a plane, there is so little movement."

Airport authorities expressed satisfaction with the time it took to unload passengers and luggage and check everyone through customs and immigration.

The first passenger cleared the airport 21 minutes after the doors of the plane opened. The last left the airport 25 minutes after that.

Vicker's case hearing ends behind doors

TEXARKANA, Ark. (AP) — Nicholas Patton, defense lawyer in the Karen Vickers kidnap hearing, waited yesterday for his clients to go before the grand jury, saying he preferred that to going directly to trial.

The preliminary hearing ended Wednesday behind closed doors.

U.S. Commissioner Ned Stewart ordered press and public from the courtroom when Miss Vickers, 15, said she was fondled by one of the five men charged in her Jan. 8 abduction. She testified, however, that she had not been raped. The rest of the proceedings went on in private.

Charged in the abduction are Lawrence Bryant, 21, who Miss Vickers identified as her molester; Joe W. Feggett, 28; and Booker T. Burkhalter, 24, all of Dallas; Hugh "Mulzac" Smith, 26, of Texarkana; and Johnnie Tasby, 21, of Lafayette County, Ark. All appeared at the hearing.

Bond was reduced for Smith from $25,000 to $20,000. The other bonds remained at $25,000. All are in Miller County Ark., jail in lieu of bond.

The first time their case can come up is Feb. 2, when the next federal grand jury convenes in Little Rock.

Miss Vickers, daughter of a Texarkana, Ark., grocer, was kidnapped at gunpoint by three armed men who forced their way into her parents' home when her mother answered the front door.

Miss Vickers was held captive more than 26 hours before she was freed at a Texarkana, Tex., motel.

Sadler fights photographer

AUSTIN (AP) — The Austin American Statesman said yesterday that Land Commissioner Jerry Sadler shoved a news photographer's camera back into his face after newsmen found Land Office employees working on a booklet telling Sadler's side of the sunken treasure controversy.

Sadler refused to discuss the use of state employees in putting out the booklet, the newspaper said, then screamed at photographer David Scott, "I didn't tell you to take no pictures."

Sadler allegedly followed the backtracking Scott several steps still holding the camera in one hand while choking Scott with the other. Scott was unhurt except for a red spot on his nose.

Newsman Glen Castlebury said Sadler then walked back into his office on the third floor of the General Land Office building, still yelling at Castlebury and Houston Post Reporter Fred Bonavita.

The 36-page booklet, "Treasure Tempest in Texas," tells how Sadler recovered treasure brought up from sunken Spanish Galleons off Padre Island in 1967 by an Indiana firm. The galleons foundered in a hurricane in 1953.

Sadler was censured by the Texas House of Representatives for "misleading" a House committee on the treasure, and the issue is expected to figure prominently in Sadler's campaign for re-election. Running against Sadler for the Democratic nomination is Rep. Bob Armstrong, Austin.

Haydn's music at Tech Union

The program will include compositions by Johann Pezel, Gottfried Riecke, Paul Hindemith and Eugene Bozza. Sponsored by the Friends of the Tech Library, the concert will be open to the public at no charge.

Placement Service

The Placement Service announced yesterday that briefing sessions are planned for 1970 seniors and graduate students who wish to participate in spring interviews.

Over 350 organizations will send representatives to the campus this spring. This includes some 50 educational institutions from all over the United States.

To be able to interview, a student must have established a file in the placement office.

The special briefing sessions will discuss what students may expect during and after the interview and will provide students an opportunity to ask questions.

The briefing sessions will be in room 252 of the Electrical Engineering Building on Jan. 28, at 10-11 a.m. and at 5:30-6:30 p.m. and on Jan. 29, at 10:30-11:30 a.m. and at 4:30-5:30 p.m. Copies of the 1970 "College Placement Annual" are now available at the Placement Service office.

Nixon speaks; Johnson goes on fishing trip

ACAPULCO, Mexico (AP) — Former President Lyndon Johnson went fishing Thursday while President Nixon made his first State of the Union message.

Johnson, who arrived Wednesday on vacation, left the home of former Mexican President Miguel Aleman at about 8 a.m.

Johnson and his party left from a dock at Aleman's house in two seagoing launches for a day's excursion on the Pacific.

It was not known if the boats had shortwave radios which would have enabled Johnson to listen to Voice of America or armed forces broadcasts of Nixon's speech.

Johnson and a party of 11 took in a bit of Acapulco's night life Wednesday. They ate in a hotel at 10 p.m. and saw the "Papanita Flyers" who perform a ritual by swinging on ropes from a tall pole.

Eleven executed in Iraq

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Eighteen military men and civilians went before firing squads or to the gallows in Iraq.

Eleven were accused of plotting against the leftist government and seven others were convicted as spies of the United States. One of the latter was identified as a Jew.

This brought to 40 the number of persons executed since the government of President Ahmed Hassan el Bakr announced Wednesday the crushing of an attempt to restore power to followers of Iraq's old monarchy. The executions were announced by Radio Baghdad.

The director of the official Iraq News Agency, reached from Damascus by telephone, said 50 other persons are due to go before a special court set up to try accused plotters.

The seven convicted spies had no tie with the plot to overthrow Bakr, a Baghdad broadcast said.

Harlem Stars battle ex-stars tonight

A conglomerate of Tech ex-athletes will pour their talents into one basket today as they square off against the hardwood clowning Harlem Stars at 8 p.m. in Municipal Coliseum.

The Red Raider ranks will be filled with past roundballers, as well as several ex-footballers, including three now playing on professional teams.

Heading the big name parade will be Mac Percival, place kicker for the Chicago Bears;

Former 'Bama star recovers from surgery

'Dixie' rises again—in pounds that is

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Former Alabama football hero Millard "Dixie" Howell, co-author of one of the Rose Bowl's most memorable chapters, glanced at his growing waistline and observed with a grin: "I've got to stop drinking so many of those dad-gummed milkshakes."

Israeli paratroopers in island descent as Egyptian torpedoe boats are sunk

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli paratroopers descended on an Egyptian-held coral island in the Red Sea Thursday, sank two Soviet-built torpedo boats and killed 19 defenders in a mission to knock out radar stations.

The Israelis claim that the Egyptian radar system is now in total disarray and Israeli planes can roam at will over the Suez Canal.

A military spokesman said the raiders invaded the island of Shadwan by helicopter with air and naval support and captured the radar station.

The Israelis said they also captured 41 Egyptians and flew Bake Turner, an end for the New York Jets, and Ed Mooney of the Detroit Lions.

Denton Fox, an All-American defensive back for Tech this past season, rounds out footballers playing on the team. Play offers were also extended to Donny Anderson of the Green Bay Packers, and E. J. Holub of the world champion Kansas City Chiefs, but neither has replied.

Ex-basketballers rounding out the Tech team will include Vernon Paul, Joe Dobbs, Tom Patty, Jimmy Fullerton, Glen Hallum, Gene Arrington and Tommy Patterson.

The Harlem Stars, referred to as the "Showmen of Basketball," are beginning their seventh season of basketball antics. Since that time they have become one of the most popular basketball teams in the world, compiling a record of 1,936 wins against only six losses.

The Stars are owned and managed by Boid Buie, "The One-Armed Wonder," who starred with the Harlem Globetrotters for nine years. He lost an arm while in high school but still participated in athletics through college and played for several professional teams.

Since forming the Stars, Buie has put together one of the finest exhibition basketball teams in history. The team includes such players as Sammie "Sweet Sam" Smith, who is called the Bill Russell of the Harlem Stars. During a game with the British Columbia champions he blocked 18 shots to set a single game record.

Richard "Honey Bear" Dabney, also a team member, has big hands, long arms, longer legs. A press release says his feet are so big "it requires the hide of two steers and a yearling to shoe him."

Curtis "Young Blood" Williams, is the wizard of the team. He is a whirling dervish on the basketball court and fits perfectly into the Stars fast-break style of play.

Rounding out the Stars will be James "Big Daddy" Batiste, a nine-year veteran with the Stars; Henry "Handa" Johnson, "the most versatile and ambidextrous player on the team"; Thomas "Flash Back" Hymas, the "magician," and Don Presley, the team's newest addition.

Looking over the Tech roster, fans will recognize the names of stars during the Raiders more successful basketball seasons. Percival and Patty starred on the team of the early 1960's which won two Southwest Conference Championships. Percival turned to pro football after trying out for the Dallas Cowboy Kicking Karavan.

Arrington and Patterson also played on teams during the late 1950's and early 1960's.

Hallum starred during the mid-sixties and is still remembered for diving into the audience while chasing lost balls. Paul, Dobbs and Fullerton played on the teams of the late 1960's.

The Saddle Tramps are sponsoring the game to raise money for construction of the second phase of the Amon G. Carter fountain at the campus' Broadway entrance.

The Kappa Pickers, a Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority musical group, will provide halftime entertainment. Kappa Kappa Psi, men's band fraternity, will also play during the game.

Tickets, costing $2 for adults, $1 for students and 50 cents for children under 12, are available at all Furr's supermarkets, the Tech and Varsity bookstores and from any Saddle Tramp.

feel his 57 years nor does he look it, disclosed he has returned to work. He is a publicity and sales representative for a trucking firm.

"Now I'm up to 174 which is about 10 pounds over my playing weight."

Dixie, who swears he doesn't

He, his boss Ralph Snyder and their wives spent a few days at a dude ranch recently near Tucson, Ariz. Dixie, who coached at Arizona State from 1938 to 1941, had "a great reunion with a lot of my old players."

"I feel fine but the shots I have to take knock me out as a rule for a day or two," he related.

That 1935 Rose Bowl game is still a wonderful memory, of course. Alabama was unbeaten and Stanford's Vow Boys were a great team.

With quarterback Howell passing and Don Hutson receiving, the two combined to gain 367 yards to Stanford's total output of 288 and 'Bama won 29-13. Dixie was voted Back of the Game.

Howell played one year with the Washington Redskins in pro football. A rookie played ahead of him. The rookie: Sammy Baugh.

His teammates also included Turk Edwards, Erny Pinckert and Cliff Battles. "I was a little guy next to those giants," Dix recalls.

He also remembers the last game with the Redskins against the New York Giants. There was no roughing the passer in those days.

"We were open game," said Dixie. "On the final play I threw the ball and then ran as hard as I could for the dugout."

Howell is candid about the future. "I just trust in God and my physician, Dr. Irwin Zeavin, whom I can't thank enough."

Dixie and his pretty wife Peggy said they were swamped with letters, telegrams and prayers when news of his operation came out.

"I didn't know I had so many friends," he related. "They came from all over, and there was an autographed football from Bear Bryant and the Alabama football team."

There was the surprise when Snyder and Paul Schwegler, an All-American tackle from Washington, a Hall of Fame electee and now a Hollywood executive, gave a luncheon for Dixie.

"I thought there might be 15 or 20 people," Dix recounted, "but more than 200 were there — and this was the day of UCLA-USC football game!"

Congress introduces antibusing amendment to block Court deadline

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. William C. Cramer, (R-Fla.), has introduced a proposed constitutional amendment that would force federal authorities to carry out the purpose of his antibusing amendment to the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

Cramer said he made the introduction Wednesday "because of the Supreme Court's refusal to abide by the obvious intent of his antibusing amendment and the subversion of this amendment in the Feb. 1 desegregation deadline ruling of the court."

Cramer said that when he introduced his antibusing amendment, he explained that its purpose was to prevent congressional acceptance of any balancing of school attendance by moving students across district lines—or between schools in the same districts — to level off percentages where one race outweighs another.

"Congress clearly intended to protect the rights of students to attend neighborhood schools—to protect the students' rights not to be bused from their neighborhood," Cramer said in a statement.

He said the Office of Education's desegregation guidelines also violated the congressional mandate outlawing busing.

Cramer said he is sending copies of his proposed constitutional amendment to the members of the Florida legislature.

"I am asking them for immediate action and thereby lead the way for the needed 33 other states to act before it is too late to overcome the bureaucratic and judicial tampering with out local school system."

"This tampering has gone far beyond the objective of accomplishing desegregation or the reasonable and prudent mixing of the races," he said.

Deaf education students to study state methods

Tech students majoring in the education of the deaf will have an opportunity to study teaching methods in several Texas schools during a four-day tour beginning Feb. 7.

The purpose of the study-tour, according to Dr. Patrice Costello, associate professor in special education at Tech, will be to observe classroom instruction and various types of campus activities of deaf children.

The itinerary will include a visit to the Texas State School for the Deaf in Austin on Feb. 8, observing classes for deaf children in the Houston Public Schools on Feb. 9, and a visit to Sunshine Cottage, a private school for the deaf in San Antonio on Feb. 10.

Students interested in making the tour should call Dr. Costello at 742-2155 or 742-6261 no later than noon Jan. 26. Transportation will be by privately owned vehicle leaving from the main entrance of the Administration Building at noon Feb. 7.

Tours such as this," Dr. Costello said, "are of great value in acquainting future teachers with the wide variety of methods now being used in instruction of the deaf and also give the student a glimpse of future professional activities."

Soldier added to investigation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army reported yesterday it has added another soldier to the list of those being investigated for possible charges in the alleged massacre at the South Vietnamese village of My Lai.

It brings to 32 the number of soldiers and former soldiers considered to be suspect in the 1968 incident.

The latest suspect is still in the Army, but the Army refused to identify him.

Credit Union hit by thieves in Washington

WASHINGTON (AP)—Three armed men robbed the Commerce Department credit union before it opened yesterday, taking an estimated $100,000 it had to cash paychecks, a department spokesman said.

He said the men tied the three credit union employees — the manager, his daughter and another man — to chairs with ties and a scarf after forcing the manager to hand over the keys to the money vault. No one was injured.

An estimated 5,000 to 7,000 employees work in the block-long Commerce Department building a block southeast of the White House.

A spokesman said the unmasked men, one armed with a sawed-off shotgun and the others with pistols, knocked on the credit union door at 8:10 a.m. and forced their way in when the door was opened. The office opens at 9:30 a.m. on the twice-monthly paydays and 11 a.m. other days.

City police and agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation were called in. The credit union could not be reached by telephone. It normally does not accept telephone calls on paydays, and an operator said "they are temporarily closed today."

Play Frogs tomorrow

Tech seeks second win

The Red Raiders, with their first conference victory under their belts, will be out to make it two in a row tomorrow night when they tangle with TCU in Fort Worth.

On Tuesday night Tech thumped SMU, 90-60, achieving the league's most lop-sided decision since a 1966 Raider quint whipped Texas, 117-86.

Tech has been having trouble winning on the road though and the Horned Frogs are always tough to beat on their home court. In fact of the four away games the Raiders have played this year they have only been able to salvage one of them.

Tech comes into the contest with a 7-5 season mark and a 1-1 conference ledger. TCU is 3-9 for the season and is also 1-1 in loop play.

Both clubs are just off big victories, the Horned Frogs downing Rice Tuesday night for their first league win and Tech defeating the Ponies.

The Froggies are paced by 6-8 senior center Doug Boyd, who is leading the club in both scoring and the rebound department.

Boyd is leading the conference in rebounds averaging 14.3 caroms a contest while he is seventh in the league in scoring with a 17.8 mark. Boyd's high for the year was 33 points in the Rice game.

Joining Boyd in the TCU lineup

Wheat, rice makes no difference

FREDERICKSBURG, Va. (AP)—Rosbury Mills, a Fredericksburg feed and fertilizer firm, is losing its bookkeeper, Elsie Rice.

She will be replaced by Rosemary Wheat.

will be forward Ricky Hall, 6-3, 185; guard Jeff Harp, 6-2, 165; forward Norm Wintermeyer, 6-5, 180 and guard Rick Wittenbraker, 6-2, 197.

Hall and Wittenbraker are both averaging in double figures for the Frogs with 12.2 and 11.3 marks respectively. Hall is also the second leading rebounder with 8.6 ricochets per contest.

The Raiders will go with the same lineup that brought them victory Tuesday.

Guard Greg Lowery, 6-2, 175, has been a pleasant surprise for Tech as he has blossomed into one of the leagues finest shooter in the last two games. Lowery hit for 32 points against Rice in the first loop game and came back with 22 against the Mustangs.

Forward Gene Knolle, 6-4, 180, has been the most consistent player as he is the only member of the squad to have hit for double figures in every game.

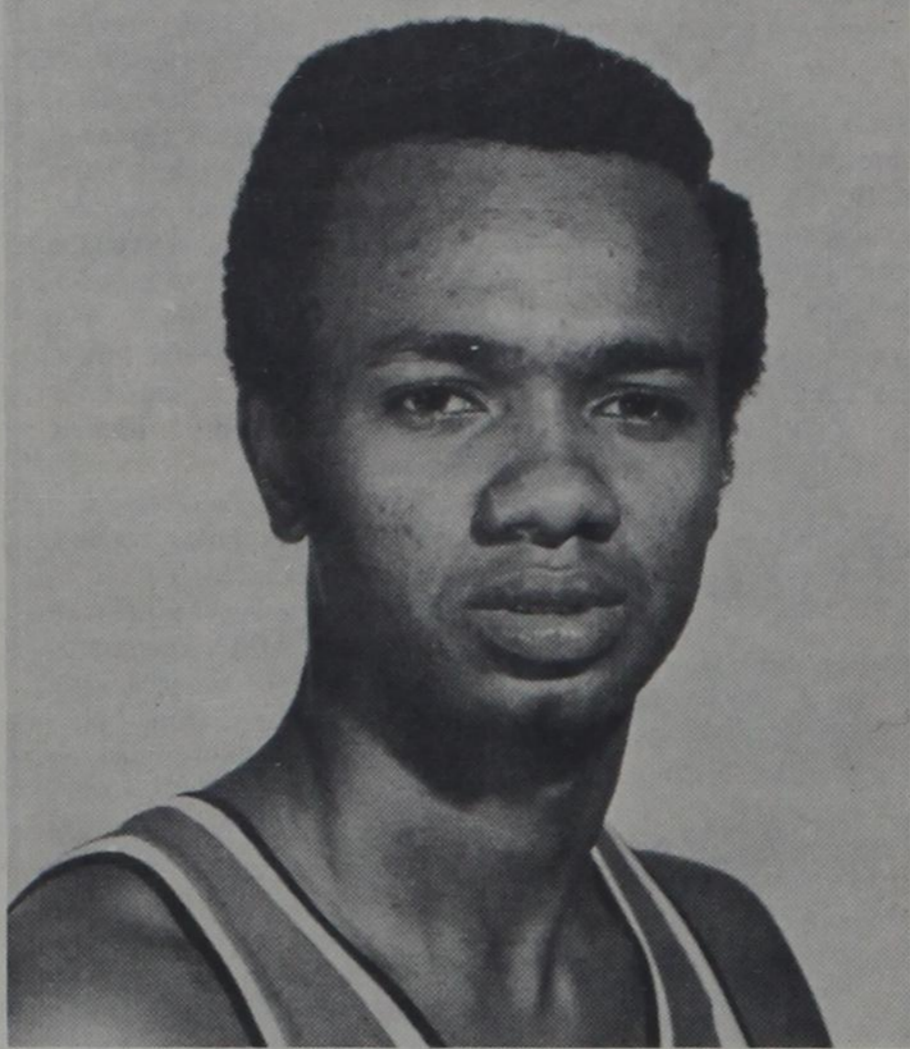

Also starting for the crimson and black will be guard Steve Williams, 6-1, 165, who is called by Head Coach Bob Bass as the quarterback of the club. Rounding out the starting five will be forward Steve Hardin, 6-5, 190 and center Jerry Turner, 6-3.

Knolle also heads the team with an average of 8.2 rebounds a game followed by Turner with 7.7. Turner pulled down 19 against in the last game against SMU.

Tech has hit 56.4 per cent of its shots from the field in two league tests and has replaced Baylor as the hottest shooting team for the season. The season mark is 49.5 compared to the 48.7 that the Bears have fashioned.

The game will mark the 46th meeting between Tech and the Frogs in a rivalry beginning in 1931-32. The Raiders have won 25 and lost 22 in the series and stands 17-7 in SWC play.

The Tech-TCU clash will be the first loop game to be televised this season. The Raiders will make two more TV appearances later in the year. Game time is 8 p.m.

GREG LOWERY—The leading Tech scorer in conference play, is due to see plenty of action for the Raiders Saturday against TCU. Lowery has scored 32 and 22 points in his last two games, respectively.

Tech, OSU, clash in dual swim meet

Tech's swimmers return home after a grueling roadtrip to Colorado to host Oklahoma State Saturday in the Tech pool.

The Red Raider swimmers split four meets on the road defeating the University of Colorado, 64-49, and Colorado State College, 64-49. Tech was beaten by Denver, 67-48, and Colorado State University, 80-33.

The Raiders are 5-3 for the year and Coach Jim McNally is pleased with the progress of his swimmers.

"I feel we've done well this season competing against such strong competition. Out of the eight teams we have met, six of them could be classified as strong teams. We are about a month ahead of where we were last year at this time."

Diving has always been a Tech stronghold, but McNally feels this year's divers could be the best in Tech history.

"I have been very pleased with our divers," said McNally. "Our kids are doing things now that we weren't doing last year until late February."

Tech's diving trio of Chris Schacht, Randy Fletcher, and Clay McCurley is undefeated this season. They have beaten each other but no opponent has taken top honors. In only one meet has Tech failed to sweep the first three places.

"At Denver our divers looked better than any diver we have had at Tech," said McNally aware that two-time all-American Jesse Marsh once toiled under his tutelage.

"If they had been in the Southwest Conference Meet, they would have finished 1-2-3. They were hitting every one of their dives. And I know that the scoring was correct because three of the five judges were NCAA judges."

The diving trio will get a harsh test this Saturday against Oklahoma State. John Alward is undefeated in the one-meter board and he will be the conference favorite in the Big Eight Meet later in the year.

"I'll guarantee you that this will be a close, exciting meet," said McNally. "Our times are almost identical. We won last year in their brand new pool and we were the first ones to beat them there."

The Raiders, who chalked up their best record of 9-3 last season, beat OSU 62-51 in Stillwater last year and stand 3-2 in the rivalry.

McNally is pleased with the progress of some of the individual swimmers. "Jim Cole, one of our freshman swimmers, is on his way to becoming one of the best swimmers in the conference," said McNally. "In the 200-yard individual medley he won first place at Colorado, New Mexico, and Colorado State College."

"Rick Fox is also doing a tremendous job for us. Fox is our captain and has not only given us good leadership but has turned in good performances. He has our best times in four events: the 1000, the 500, and 200-yard freestyles, and the 200-yard butterfly."

"Another swimmer performing well is backstroker Hugh McDowell. He is coming along as we expected and we think that he will qualify for the NCAA swimming meet."

"John Glennan, our 6-7 swimmer is doing a good job in the sprints. We thought his height might hamper him on his turns, but apparently his extra length has been helping him. He is doing 22.5 in the 50 and 50.2 in the 100."

Subcommittee hears Namath club testimony

WASHINGTON (AP)—Joe Namath, who in the football season quarterbacked the New York Jets, said yesterday he devotes a major portion of his off-season time to directing a restaurant business.

Namath, board chairman of Broadway Joe's Restaurant System, appeared before a Senate small business subcommittee which has heard charges that some celebrities try to make a fast buck by licensing their names to franchise operations and sit back to collect royalties.

Namath denied that is true in his case. He said the most important thing he has going for him is his name.

Another witness, Sen. Philip A. Hart, (D-Mich.), said franchise agreements too often "indenture" small business men to the parent company, making a sham of their dreams of selfownership.

BERL HUFFMAN is leaving Tech athletics after a long tenure serving in various positions. Huffman joined the Tech coaching ranks in 1935 as freshman football coach and head football coach.

Former coach in new position

As Director of Public Relations for the Tech Ex-Student's Association, former assistant football coach Berl Huffman should feel right at home.

Huffman, an affable coach who spent some twenty-one years coaching at Texas Tech, was regarded as a sort of "father confessor" to the freshman athletes, someone they could come to for advice and help during their first year in college's demanding society.

The veteran coach has a reservoir of jokes as deep as Milton Berle and a homespun philosophy of coaching and boys that comes only from his own vast experiences. When he tells a group about sports, the audience knows that he doesn't have to make up any stories.

Former coach Huffman has grown a little heavier than when he started his coaching career at White Deer in 1928. That assignment followed letters in three sports at Trinity University, where he matriculated from his home in Grapevine.

Huffman coached at Lubbock High from 1931 until 1935, when he joined the Tech coaching staff. His duties were freshman football coach, varsity basketball coach, and track coach. He interrupted his coaching duties for four years of service in the Air Force and then returned to Raiderland. He left Tech in 1947 to coach New Mexico's Lobos, a post he held until 1952.

At this time Huffman divorced himself from coaching for the first time. He served as Albuquerque's Chamber of Commerce manager, directed the State Economic Development Commission, and left that post to direct the Alamogordo Industrial Development Corporation. He threw himself enthusiastically into the work and made thousands of new friends. But when the chance to coach again was offered by Coach J T King, he knew what the answer would be. He responded as eagerly as a drowning man will when offered a straw.

Since returning to Tech in 1961, Huffman has served as freshman football coach, head baseball coach, and since 1965 he has had the title of Special Coaching Assignments.

As for the future of Tech athletics without Berl Huffman, Huffman said this: "Coach Carlen is a fine person, and I believe he will build a good athletic program."

Tech's athletic program will continue to prosper, but the familiar face of Berl Huffman will not soon be forgotten.
