Iraqi Scud missiles reach Israel

Conventional missile strike; Israel remains in alert state

By The Associated Press

TEL AVIV, Israel — Missiles struck Israel early Friday, causing an undetermined number of casualties. Israelis were ordered into shelters and told to don gas masks for protection against Iraqi chemical weapons.

However, an Army official said none of the missiles carried chemical warheads.

"We know for sure of a few that fell, but we can't tell what kind of warhead or whether it was chemical warfare," he said. Under military regulations, he cannot be identified by name.

Israel had said it would retaliate if attacked, but it was not immediately known whether a retaliatory strike had been launched. The United States has urged the Jewish state to stay out of the Persian Gulf war, fearing its entry would split the alliance against Iraq.

Some American television networks had reported that Israel radio said Israel was retaliating, and that the attack included nerve gas. An Associated Press reporter monitoring the radio said there was no such announcement. CNN said Pentagon officials in Washington reported that the missiles carried conventional weapons.

An American official in Washington, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Israel has the right to defend itself. His comment appeared to signal that the United States would understand if Israel struck back.

The official also repeated U.S. assurances given Israel in the past few weeks that "an unprovoked attack on Israel also calls for an appropriate American response."

"I hope there would not be an Israeli reaction. If there is, it complicates the matter, but we should not exaggerate the complication," said Kuwait's ambassador to the United Nations, Mohammad A. Abulhasan.

Pete Williams, the spokesman for U.S. Defense Secretary Dick Cheney, said, "There have been Scud launches into Israel. It's what we've been worried about all along."

Cable News Network said Pentagon officials in Washington reported that the missiles carried conventional weapons.

However, ABC News, quoting what it called reliable sources high in the Israeli command, said there may have been as many as 20 nerve gas victims taken to a Tel Aviv hospital.

There was no mention of nerve gas on Israeli Radio.

A military source in Washington said 10 missiles were launched and eight landed, but no details were given on where they landed. All were launched from western Iraq, said the source, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Israeli officials in Washington said three missiles exploded in Tel Aviv. A hospital in Tel Aviv said there were casualties, but did not elaborate.

Iraq had threatened to attack Israel if it were subjected to attack.

American television networks reported missile strikes in Tel Aviv, Jerusalem and Haifa.

Air raid sirens were heard in both Tel Aviv and Jerusalem at about 2 a.m.

Brig. Gen. Nachman Shai, the Israeli army spokesman, said there were at least seven casualties, all lightly injured. Police reports said at least 30 people were taken to hospitals but their conditions were not known.

Police reports said at least 30 people were taken to Tel Hashomer Hospital in Tel Aviv, but none of the casualties were from chemical weapons.

Francisco Rodriguez/The University Daily

Israel Radio broadcast instructions to take precautions against gas, "due to a rocket attack on Israel."

About 45 minutes after the first explosion, Israel radio said people could remove their masks. A short time later, the announcer told people in Tel Aviv and Haifa to put them back on.

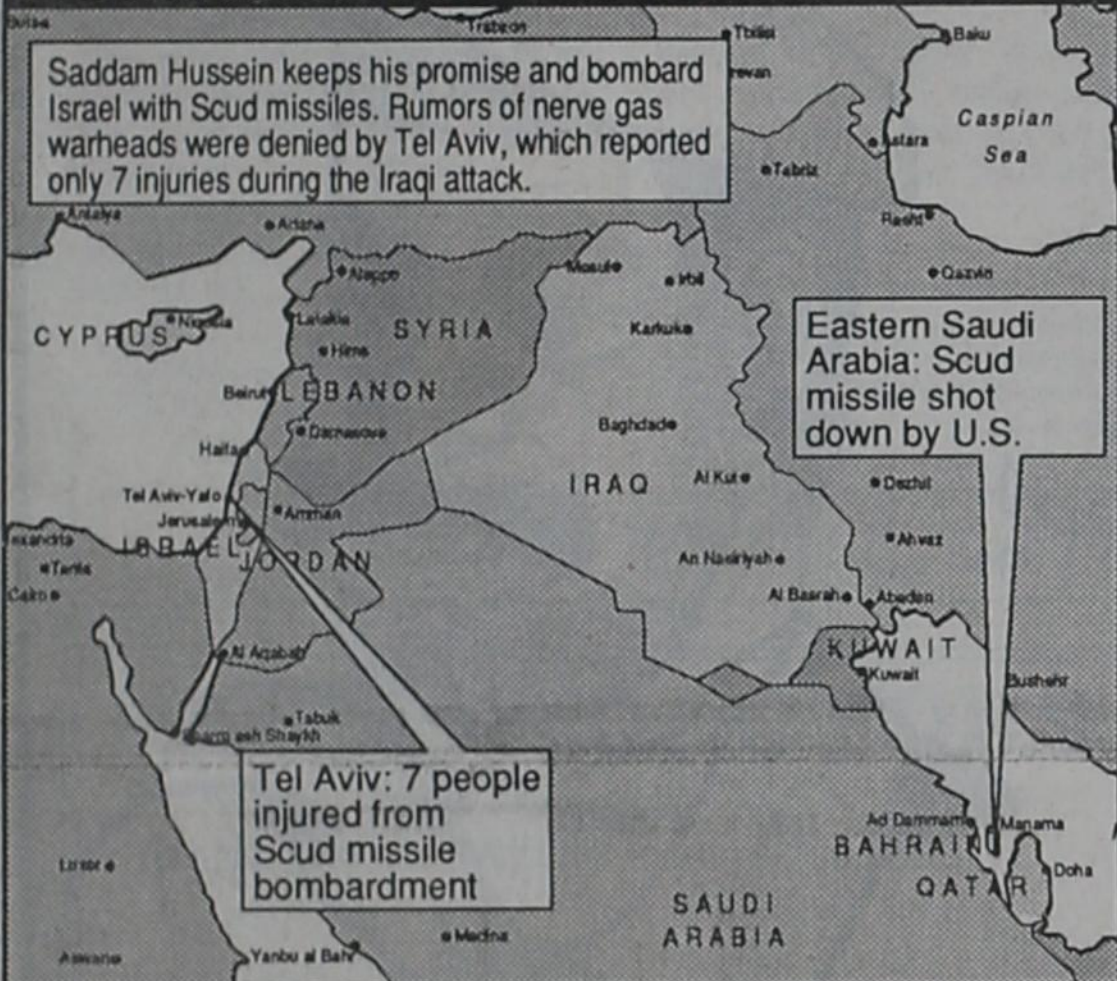

At one point, a distant rumble of planes could be heard over

Jerusalem, but it was difficult to tell where the planes were flying to or from.

Israel had been under virtual curfew all Thursday in the aftermath of the U.S. attack on Iraq. Residents were instructed to remain at home and keep their gas masks with them at all times.

An Israeli official said preliminary reports showed two missiles landed in the northern seaport of Haifa and three in unpopulated areas of the country.

Scud missiles hit Israel

Saddam Hussein keeps his promise and bombard Israel with Scud missiles. Rumors of nerve gas warheads were denied by Tel Aviv, which reported only 7 injuries during the Iraqi attack.

Bush promises not to stop until Iraqi troops surrender Kuwait

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Bush resolutely warned Saddam Hussein on Thursday that allied forces will keep pounding Iraq until he surrenders Kuwait. The administration slammed the door on diplomacy and warned Baghdad that attacks will intensify if it uses chemical or biological weapons.

"We are going to prevail," Bush said.

"The pause for peace is over," the State Department said. "The talk is over."

The Pentagon said just one American, an F-18 pilot, was killed in the first phase of fighting. The Pentagon warned there might be a long, bloody struggle to actually pry hundreds of thousands of Iraqi troops out of occupied Kuwait.

Military officials prepared for a ground battle and suggested that allied ground forces would be moved into position near the border between Saudi Arabia and Kuwait.

"We're not going to stop" pounding until Iraq leaves Kuwait, Bush said.

Unconditional surrender? he was asked.

"He (Saddam) can call it anything he wants," the president replied.

U.N. Ambassador Thomas Pickering warned Iraq against using chemical or biological weapons.

"Use of such tactics and weapons will occasion a dramatic escalation of hostilities and objectives," Pickering told Security Council members.

Iraq's potent military was strangely silent; its only known strike a shelling of a Saudi oil tank farm near the border with Kuwait. Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said Iraq may be intentionally lying low and cautioning against premature declarations of victory.

The massive air strikes by the allied force left many Iraqi airport runways cratered and unusable, according to an administration official who spoke on condition of anonymity.

However, the source said, early suggestions that the attacks destroyed much of Saddam's air force may have been grossly overstated. Nevertheless, the official said that damage to radar, runways, and communication centers should make it difficult for Saddam to fight in the air.

After a night and day of blistering, nearly cost-free air attacks against Iraq, Bush said, "We are pleased with the way things have gone so far. We've determined to finish what we've set out to do."

"I'm rather pleased that we appear to have achieved tactical surprise," Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, told a Pentagon news conference. "We should not, however, rule out the possibility of Iraqi action either in the air or on the ground, and I can assure you that we are on the lookout for it."

He said "You shouldn't be surprised" by reports that ground troops were moving closer to the border.

Parking expansion plans await approval

By LAURA O'QUINN
The University Daily

Parking plans for the Wall/Gates-Hulen/Clements residence halls parking lots call for an increase in the number of parking spaces for students living in these complexes.

Texas Tech Traffic and Parking Coordinator Gail Wolfe said this complex is the most congested one on campus, with about 300 students on a waiting list for residence hall parking permits.

Art Glick, Tech's landscape architect, along with his assistants, constructed a schematic design and a general description of the parking lot expansion. The tentative plan will extend the south lots toward 19th Street and move the lots closer to the residence halls, providing more parking in the center of the lots.

The increase will provide more residence hall parking spaces, eliminating the need to park in the overflow lot located across from the Student Recreation Center.

Glick said he wants the expansion not only to be beneficial for parking but also aesthetically pleasing to the eye.

"We want Tech to look like a college campus, not like downtown Lubbock," he said.

Lt. Eddie Huckabee of the Tech Police Department said that last semester Tech sold parking permits on a first-come, first-served basis to students with proper identification living in the residence halls. After all the spaces were filled, remaining students were sold commuter permits for the overflow lot.

Wolfe said some commuter students believe the residence halls have too much space reserved for overflow parking. Commuter students say there is not enough parking reserved for their use, she said.

Wolfe said the commuter parking spaces exist but not where the students want them. She said commuter lots C-1, C-4 and C-5 are always full because these are the most convenient places for students to park.

"If students would make use of the other commuter lots, such as the C-2 lot located in front of Jones Stadium and the C-6 lot located at Indiana and 18th Street, they would find there is parking," she said. "The other lots may not be as convenient for the students, but there are buses that run around the lots so students won't have to walk as far."

Huckabee reported that last semester 2,227 cars were towed. Many of these tows came from students who parked in reserved parking, handicapped spaces and fire lanes.

Freddie Chavez, an employee of the Lubbock Civic Center, said students parking in the C-1 parking lot, located in front of the Lubbock Coliseum, should not park in the row of reserved parking. He said the coliseum will tow cars parked in these spaces.

The Board of Regents will meet this Friday and Saturday in Odessa to approve the plans for the parking expansion. Glick said there should be no problem getting their approval.

Senate approves election code amendment

By CHARRIE SOUTH
The University Daily

The Student Senate approved Thursday a resolution amending the election code regarding the requirements for holding an office. Officers must now have a grade point average of 2.25 for the semester preceding election, as well as a cumulative grade point average of 2.25.

Student Senators must have a cumulative grade point average of 2.0 to be eligible for election, and must be enrolled in 12 semester hours. A senator must continue to fulfill these requirements each semester of the term.

Senators-at-large and senators representing both the graduate and law schools must be enrolled in at least six semester hours and must maintain a 2.0 grade point average.

Executive officers are required to be enrolled in at least six semester hours. The president must have completed at least 90 semester hours by the end of the semester in which the election is held.

Special efforts begin to increase blood donations for Operation Desert Storm

By LAURA O'QUINN
The University Daily

The Gulf war has sparked an effort from a local blood service to aid in providing blood for allied forces casualties.

United Blood Services officials announced Thursday that its facility will collect 27 pints of blood and other blood products each week for Operation Desert Storm.

In response to a number of calls the center received Wednesday from people wanting to donate blood for war casualties, the center's officials said blood donations are appreciated but not absolutely vital at this point.

Lisa Pearson, director of community relations at the center, said the announcement is not an emergency appeal to donate blood in support of Operation Desert Storm. The purpose of the plan is to augment the military blood program while community blood centers continue to meet the needs of area patients. "People should not panic right now," Pearson said. "If people begin to flood the center with donations at this point, we will not be able to make use of all the blood because of its short shelf-life."

Pearson said the Armed Services Blood Program currently is meeting the military blood needs effectively. By blood donation centers committing to donate specific amounts each week, the program will continue to keep an ample blood supply.

The nationwide network of United Blood Services officials has pledged to send 530 pints of blood per week to McGuire Air Force Base in New Jersey.

The center currently is not meeting the local blood needs but Pearson said she expects the Gulf war will boost donations. Pearson asked residents to make appointments for donations rather than just showing up at the center. Donations will be sent to the air base by Friday.

Donors cannot send their blood to one specific soldier in the Middle East but will be given a chance to express their support for soldiers by placing their name on a sign in front of the center, she said.

A person can donate blood every two months. The most convenient way for Texas Tech students to make blood donations is to sign up for Tech-sponsored on-campus blood drives. Pearson said there are a number of blood drives at Tech in February. For more information about when and where these drives will be, call 797-6804.

People interested in giving blood at the center can make appointments by calling 1-800-333-6920. The center is open Monday through Thursday from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m., Fridays from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Countdown ends; history in making

Charlie Lamberth
Guest Columnist

8:30 p.m. The president has spoken.

History is being made, like the speech that has been made for two weeks. For months of clocks counting down have brought a climax to this night like a desert mountain. Happening in front of my eyes, I have never experienced anything like this.

The televisions can be heard through every wall. No one is playing ball in the hall now. It's as intense as a hurricane destroying my city.

As the playoffs have started and the wildcards are folded, the countdown has ended and the missiles have launched. As obviously as the night pushes down the setting sun, the powers that be have moved another chess piece.

I have one to tell my children like my father told me and his father he. Step by step the memory will not be forgotten. Songs will be sung of the memory to come. I will take an extra long hot shower tomorrow morning just in case. Now I watch as the words are carefully placed in the air.

"We will do what the President of the United States instructs us to do..."

"The best report I have heard was the one by CNN... We have reports on that that cannot be confirmed."

The reporters are in the shelter now. That which we have held our breath for has occurred.

Bush gains credibility by declaring Iraqi war

By LESLIE GELB
N.Y. Times News Service

In April 1954, President Eisenhower told the French he would launch air strikes against Vietnamese Communist troops surrounding French forces at Dienbienphu only if two key conditions were met: that U.S. intervention had to be part of a strong international coalition, and that Congress had to support the action.

Ike may have made the conditions tough in the correct expectation that they would not be met. But he understood that a president does not jump into a black hole without extensive international backing and a unified nation.

In other words, Ike was following an essential rule of politics and good sense when a decision concerns lives and enormous costs — and saying that it depends.

It is not clear that President Bush understands this. He is content merely to recite the reasons for using force against a tyrant like Saddam Hussein: his record of brutal aggression, his use of chemical weapons and pursuit of nuclear weapons and his fist thrust against the oil thorax of the world's economy. And he is right on the fundamental issue: if war is not justifiable here, then where?

But to grant that a war against Iraq is just does not justify actually going to war. Even just wars must be measured by their costs and consequences. It depends.

In the first instance, it depends on the alternatives. The only realistic one is economic sanctions. But its advocates cannot convincingly show that Iraq will crack before the alliance crumbles; and its opponents cannot make the opposite case persuasively. We're all guessing — George Mitchell, George Bush, you, me.

To me, the argument unfortunately turns on one critical factor: the 1992 presidential election. Sanctions advocates concede that the squeeze will take at least one year to approach full effect.

But waiting one year really means delaying two years, since Saddam Hussein will use the explosive mix of international crisis and presidential politics to handcuff George Bush militarily the way Hanoi stymied Lyndon Johnson in 1968 and Ayatollah Khomeini neutered Jimmy Carter in 1980.

By 1992 Bush will no longer be able to credibly threaten employing force. And with the threat to Saddam Hussein's regime removed, some of our allies will have to snuggle up to their entrenched neighbor as before.

Yet even with these defects, sanctions cannot be dismissed without looking at the costs and risks of war.

To begin with, as Ike knew in 1954, war should depend on a far larger commitment by our allies of troops and money. The present distribution of risks and pain is outrageously unfair.

Bush cannot allow the Saudis to make a windfall oil profit of about $4 billion monthly while we defend them, their unlikely denials of this notwithstanding. Nor should we have forgiven the $7 billion Egyptian debt in return for some 25,000 troops. Japan, Germany and France ought to be ashamed of their efforts; and they are not ashamed.

What's more, the Saudis, French and Egyptians have to participate in all military operations, including especially the bombing of Iraq. A reckoning will come for scorching that country, and America and Britain cannot be left alone to absorb hatred.

The Pentagon insists on massive land, sea and air attacks. But it is far from clear why offensive action cannot be limited to air attacks, and ground action restricted to defense.

Given the open desert terrain, air power should be able to sever resupply of Iraqi troops in Kuwait and starve them out. And to temper Arab hostility after the bloodshed, Washington must not target Iraqi civilians.

In addition, Bush, like Ike, received

TODAY'S QUESTION

Do you support President Bush's decision of the U.S.-led attack on Iraq? Why or why not?

Reporter: Charles Pollet

Ross Crabtree, Senior Political Science Vernon

I question the motives of the attack, but since the attack has begun, I'm in full support. If Hussein is not taken care of now, he is a growing menace and one day he may have nuclear capabilities.

Joe Ramos, Freshman Animal Science Lubbock

Yeah, I support it. I guess (Hussein) was trying to be like a tyrant. He was trying to test the U.S. to see if they would attack or not.

Tony Fikes, Sophomore Mechanical Engineering Lubbock

I sure do. It's just like when Hitler was gaining support. The world turned their back on him, and he became a powerful force. If we hadn't attacked, Hussein would have become the same as Hitler.

Tracy Knox, Junior Education Austin

I personally do. For one thing, I wrote letters to a soldier over there, and he told me of all the atrocities going on in Kuwait, of all the murder and the rape.

Daniel Santos, Sophomore Physical Education O'Donnell

I certainly do. I think what (Bush) did was needed. Everyone is debating the motives, but it's not just about oil. It's about our ability to dictate policy. It's about the execution of powers given by the U.N.

Thanks Techsans

To The Editor:
I would like to thank the two Texas Tech students, whose names I do not know, who came to my aid after I had an accident on my way home for the Christmas holidays. These two gentlemen were kind enough to stop, render assistance and remain with me until help arrived.

It's good to know people are still willing to help others, even when it may be an inconvenience. I am very grateful to you guys! Thanks again.

Oil prices affect financial institutions

By JULIE COLLINS
The University Daily

The savings and loan crisis and its cleanup will be going on well into the 21st century, said a Texas Tech law professor.

John Krahrmer traced many factors involved in the savings and loan crisis in Texas to the fluctuating prices of Texas oil.

An increase in the oil prices in the late 1970s stimulated Texas money and Texas real estate, Krahrmer said. Land was expensive, but the money to purchase land was not hard to find.

Financial institutions loaned Texans money on the basis the money would continue to flow with no end in sight.

The oil prices dropped dramatically in the early 1980s. Texans could no longer pay back their loans and, subsequently, defaulted and lost their property.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Company (FDIC) stepped in and took over the many financial institutions in Texas faced with bankruptcy, Krahrmer said.

The government has two options in restoring or desolving a financial institution in need, he said.

If the FDIC believes a financial institution can be salvaged, investors will be found and the bank will be sold. The financial institution will return to operations under a new name and new owner, Krahrmer said.

If the FDIC feels a financial institution is unworthy of salvaging, the Resolution Trust Company (RTC) steps in. The RTC will evaluate the worth of the institution's assets, liquidate the assets and sell them, thus closing down the institution.

Since 1983 approximately 500 Texas financial institutions have closed. Krahrmer said Texans should not be leary of the various financial institutions throughout the state.

Most of the people affected by the S&L crisis in Texas got their money back, Krahrmer said.

"Texans have got to put their money someplace. Would Texans rather put it under a pillow or in a bank, where it would collect insurance?" Krahrmer said.

The cleanup of the S&L crisis is so great, the FDIC and the RTC soon will ask Congress for more funds to finance the cleanup.

Tech law student Micheal Cuda said that if Congress does not give the money needed for the FDIC and the RTC programs, the nation could be faced with economic and political disaster.

"It would be suicide not to give these two institutions the money," Cuda said.

Mature learners can attend courses

By CHARLES POLLETT
The University Daily

Texas Tech now offers college-level educational opportunities for mature learners through "Lifespan of Learning." The program, which offers diverse college courses, is aimed at persons 50 years old and older.

Tech's Division of Continuing Education sponsors the program.

The membership fee is $100 per person or $150 per married couple. Once the fee is paid, members may attend any or all classes at no additional cost.

The program is composed of ten short-course seminars, which will be taught by Tech professors throughout the spring semester. No credit for the seminars will be given, and no examinations will be given.

David Cummins, chair of the executive committee for "Lifespan of Learning," said that similar programs have succeeded on other college campuses. Officials at Tech's Division of Continuing Education asked him to help coordinate the program.

"They told us the program has worked well on other campuses where the people who operate it belong to it," he said. "That's what we mean by member-driven."

Scheduled seminars include: comparative mythology, the Lubbock Lake Landmark, global economy, art appreciation, disaster research, electrical engineering, contemporary women authors, film adaptation of literature, symphony seminars and western film.

Prospective seminars will change with the desires of members, Cummins said.

"We're going to try to find out from the people who attend if they want more of the seminar or if they like the seminar but would like to approach the subject from a different aspect," he said.

The Elderhostel Institute Network receives $5 of the $100 membership fee. EIN is an organization which operates seminars around the United States at various campuses and other locations for people 50 years old and older.

Members will receive brochures and information about specific seminars offered by EIN, he said.

People interested in more information concerning "Lifespan of Learning" should contact the Volunteer Center of Lubbock at 747-0551.

Military campaign causes stock market to soar

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The stock market swept ahead to its second-largest point gain ever Thursday, rallying around early signs of success in the military campaign against Iraq.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials jumped 114.60 points to 2,623.51, according to preliminary calculations.

That marked the average's biggest point gain since it climbed a record 186.84 on Oct. 21, 1987, rebounding from the crash that occurred two days earlier.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by a wide margin in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed stocks, with 1,517 up, 255 down and 254 unchanged.

Volume on the floor of the Big Board came to 318.89 million shares, the eighth largest total on record at the exchange, against 134.56 million Wednesday.

Stock markets around the world rose sharply through the night as investors watched the progress of air strikes in Operation Desert Storm. President Bush said Thursday that the mission was "going forward with great success."

News accounts of what had been happening in the attack sent bond prices soaring and interest rates tumbling in the credit markets. At the same time, oil prices plunged.

Baltic residents fear crackdown despite promises

By The Associated Press

VILNIUS, U.S.S.R. — The Kremlin promised Thursday not to attack the Lithuanian parliament, but wary Baltic residents said they feared a further crackdown while the world watches the Persian Gulf war.

In Paris, the European Community threatened to cut off all Soviet aid, including emergency food supplies, if Moscow continues repressing the Baltic republics.

Both Lithuania's Baltic neighbors, Latvia and Estonia, were reported calm Thursday. The official Tass news agency said the Soviet military and Estonian officials had reached agreement on the contentious issue of conscripting Estonian youths into military service.

Maj. Gen. Yuri Nauman, a representative of the Soviet Defense Ministry, told a news conference Thursday in Vilnius that soldiers would not try to seize the Lithuanian parliament building, headquarters of the government that declared independence in March.

A military attack on the republic's broadcasting center early Sunday left 14 people dead. Since the attack, Lithuanians have built concrete barricades around parliament and dug an anti-tank trench behind it.

"I think the Supreme Soviet of Lithuania has put up such fences and trenches that we simply have no desire to appear there," Nauman said. "Such an action will not be taken. It's simply not needed by the military."

Lithuanian President Vytautas Landsbergis also met with an envoy sent by President Mikhail Gorbachev, Georgy Tarazevich, for about 2½ hours.

"It seems that Mr. Tarazevich understands the situation in Lithuania, and he promises his assistance in trying to communicate with the military," Landsbergis said in comments distributed by the legislature's Bureau of Information.

"My mission is to bring assistance to you and your legitimate Lithuanian government and parliament in how to restore normal life and find ways of constructive cooperation with the union," Tarazevich said in comments to the Lithuanian parliament.

Student, faculty leaders discuss ways to support Tech students in Iraqi war

By CHARRIE SOUTH
The University Daily

Ross Crabtree, Student Association president at Texas Tech, and Tim Mitchell, Residence Hall Association president, conducted an impromptu meeting of various student leaders and Tech faculty Thursday to hear suggestions about possible courses of action that could be taken to support the troops in Operation Desert Storm.

"This meeting was not called to make a political statement, but to hear ideas as to how we can emphasize the people side of what is going on in the Middle East," Crabtree said. "This meeting is to find a way that we, as a campus community, can support not only the Tech servicemen, but all the troops."

Some ideas brought up at the meeting included:

- Lighting a torch that will burn constantly until the return of U.S. troops from the Middle East.
- Tying yellow ribbons around campus trees and possibly wrapping the statue of Will Rogers in yellow crepe paper.
- Placing the first names of Tech men and women serving in the Middle East on a plaque in the University Center.
- Posting a letter drop-off box in the University Center for mail headed for U.S. troops in the Middle East.
- Placing the same number of flags as there are Tech students serving in the Middle East around Memorial Circle.
- Holding a ceremony at Memorial Circle to show support of troops in the Middle East.

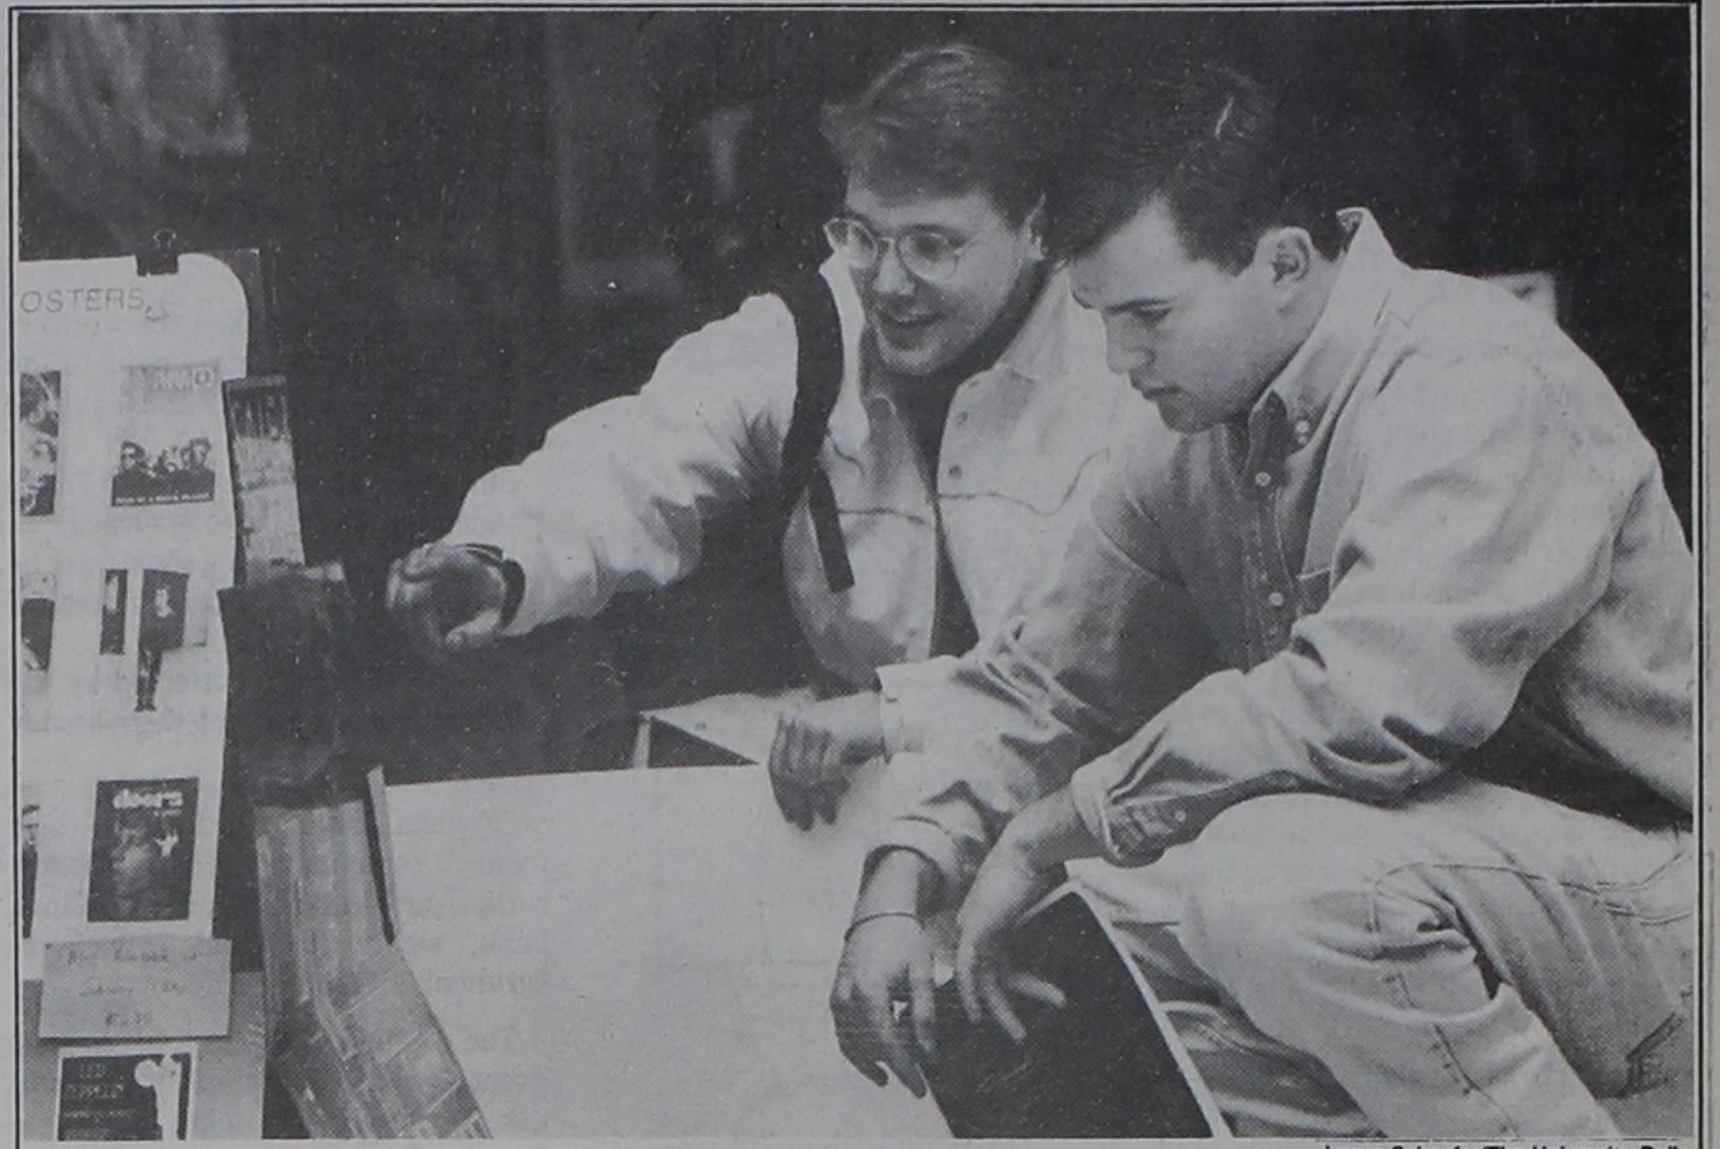

• Wearing yellow ribbons tied to safety pins until the troops return.

"Whatever we do, we need to do it very quickly," Mitchell said. "Word needs to get out to Tech students over there that we are thinking about them and that we want them back."

Crabtree said the logistics of a plan to support Tech students serving in the Middle East, as well as to support all U.S. troops in Operation Desert Storm, will be worked out sometime next week.

Lewis' employee receives grand jury subpoena, must submit records from speaker's companies

By The Associated Press

AUSTIN — An employee of indicted House Speaker Gib Lewis' company was ordered Thursday to appear before a Travis County grand jury and bring Lewis' business records with her.

The grand jury issued a subpoena for Loretta Stevenson of Fort Worth, and told her to bring income records from Lewis Label Products Inc. and Fort Worth Business Forms Inc., dating from 1986 through 1990.

One of Lewis' attorneys, Allen Hill of Austin, said he did not know why prosecutors would want to examine the records.

"It sounds to me like they are having a hard time finding something," Hill said. "They will probably need a pickup if not a dump truck to haul all the records."

Mike Lynch, chief of the Public Integrity Unit of the Travis County district attorney's office, declined to comment on the reason for the subpoena. "It's an ongoing grand jury matter at this point," he said.

Lewis has been indicted by the grand jury on two counts of alleged ethics violations.

He has said he is innocent of the charges of failing to report a gift from a San Antonio law firm and of failing to disclose his interest in a business for which the law firm allegedly paid some property taxes. The firm is Heard, Goggan, Blair and Williams.

Stevenson is a bookkeeper for Lewis, Hill said. She was ordered to appear before the grand jury on Jan. 22.

Lewis is president, director and a stockholder of Lewis Labels, according to the speaker's personal financial statement filed with the secretary of state's office. He lists Fort Worth Business Forms as a pension plan and source of income, according to the financial statement.

Earlier this month, the grand jury received Lewis' federal income tax returns and loan records.

Prosecutors have said they are looking into possible felony allegations against Lewis, and the relationship between other lobbyists and lawmakers.

Speaker names members of House committees

By The Associated Press

AUSTIN — Speaker Gib Lewis named the first black woman to be speaker pro tem and put a reform-minded lawmaker in charge of the Insurance Committee in announcing House assignments Thursday.

State Rep. Wilhelmina Delco, D-Austin, is "a very able legislator" who will do a good job as his floor leader, Lewis said. Delco emphasized the importance of smooth communication between House members and Lewis.

The new Insurance Committee chairman, Rep. Eddie Cavazos, immediately declared, "It's time for reform."

"I'm not against the industry itself, but I think it needs to have a good overhaul," said Cavazos, D-Corpus Christi. "We want to make sure they make a profit, but not on the backs of consumers."

Gov. Ann Richards is pushing insurance reform this legislative session.

Lewis, D-Fort Worth, gave eight of the 36 House committee chairmanships to Republicans, ignoring Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock's Senate example.

Bullock, also a Democrat, on Wednesday demoted the lone Republican Senate committee chairman, O.H. "Ike" Harris of Dallas.

"I try to utilize the talent that I have in the House regardless of what party they may be affiliated with," Lewis said. Just elected to his record fifth term as speaker by the House, he traditionally has included Republicans when handing out chairmanships.

The Republican chairmen are Reps. Robert Eckels of Houston, County Affairs; Jim Tallas of Sugar Land, Financial Institutions; Edmund Kuempel of Seguin, House Administration; Tom Craddick of Midland, Public Health; Bill Carter of Fort Worth, Public Safety; Nolan "Buzz" Robnett of Lubbock, Retirement and Aging; Ashley Smith of Houston, Science and Technology; and George Pierce of San Antonio, Urban Affairs.

Rep. Jim Rudd, D-Brownfield, remains chairman of the budget-writing Appropriations Committee. Rep. James Hury, D-Galveston, retained his chairmanship of the Ways and Means Committee, which handles tax measures.

They are experienced in budget battles at a time when the state faces a $4.2 billion shortfall in money needed to meet its obligations.

Rep. Hugo Berlanga, D-Corpus Christi, remains chairman of the Calendars Committee, which schedules bills for House floor debate.

One freshman lawmaker's appointments got particular scrutiny: Rep. Ted Kamel, R-Tyler, was the only legislator to vote against Lewis for speaker.

Juilliard graduate shares musical insight with classes

By LYDIA GUAJARDO
The University Daily

Juilliard School of Music in New York is a world-reknown college for the musically elite. Students admitted to this school are made of dedication, desire and a genuine appreciation for music. Steven Glaser, associate professor of music at Texas Tech, knows the type of dedication needed to study at this unique college.

"To be a performer you have to be extremely dedicated and disciplined," Glaser said.

Glaser, a graduate of Juilliard, is an accomplished pianist who, at the age of six, began playing the piano by ear. He would listen to his older sister practice for hours, and when she was finished, he would repeat what she had played.

Glaser began taking lessons only after his mother taught him the first three levels of beginning piano.

By age eight, Glaser was recommended by his teachers for admittance to Juilliard School of Music. Once accepted, Glaser received a scholarship to attend the Saturday classes of a preparatory school for elementary-aged children.

"I really enjoyed going to pre-college," Glaser said. "I was there to learn music, and it was the greatest."

Glaser and his sister would attend theory and composition classes every Saturday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

With the exception of approximately two years of his life, Glaser knew he wanted to spend his life performing or teaching. It was during his last two years of high school that Glaser wondered if music was really what he wanted as the focus of his life. In his mind it seemed that the more music he performed, the less he achieved the sound he wanted.

"I was not getting along with my teachers, and nothing was sounding good to me," Glaser said. "Finally I got through that period."

Glaser said that while he was preparing for his college auditions he began to feel motivation again and felt charged up for his final stretch of school.

During his schooling at Juilliard, Glaser decided to change directions. Glaser attended the University of Michigan to receive a bachelor's degree in music and obtain a wider range of education. Later in his studies, he returned to Juilliard to complete his schooling and earn a master's degree.

Glaser traveled throughout Western Europe and Israel on concert tours where he made both solo and group appearances. In 1984, Glaser won the New York International Chopin Competition. In 1986 he won first prize in the Liederkrantz Foundation Competition.

Glaser, who has been a member of the Tech music faculty for two years, says there were many aspects that drew him to Tech.

"The job here at Tech had many things going for it, and I decided to take the risk," Glaser said.

In addition to these qualities, Tech offered a doctorate program which would enable him to work on his doctorate while teaching. A final reason Glaser gave for coming to Tech was the opportunity to form a quartet named Quadriga.

Quadriga is a performing quartet composed of a violin, viola, cello and a piano. The group will make many appearances throughout the year in cities around the state.

"I want to become more well-known, and I will have a terrific type of students," Glaser said. "I'd like to be actively doing what I am doing now well into my '70s and '80s."

Rhythm and blues featured at Belly's original club; busboy stirs excitement

By KIRK-BAIRD PARKS
The University Daily

Belly on up to the bar and grab a blue light special. It sounds like a cheesy western line, but in reality Lubbockites can do this very thing.

At Belly's, located at 5001 S. Ave. Q, Elvis the Bus Boy and the infamous "Blue Light Special" drink co-exist in an intimate surrounding designed for band, audience interaction.

Belly's is open from 5 p.m. until 2 a.m. Tuesday through Friday, 6 p.m. through 2 a.m. Saturday and 7 p.m. through 2 a.m. Sunday. There is a cover charge of $3 for Friday and Saturday nights. Belly's admits ages 21 and over only.

Larry Simmons, general manager, said Belly's cozy setting makes the club different from anything else in Lubbock.

"We wanted an atmosphere like you were sitting in Belly's living room watching the band. It's like going to a private party."

Simmons said the small setting of the club might be cumbersome to some, and there have been several suggestions to make the bathrooms larger. However, he believes that the expansion might do more harm to the club than good.

"We would lose some of our intimacy (if the club expanded). The size has a lot to do with the fun in here," Simmons said. "If one person is having fun then everyone is having fun."

The small size also allows more interaction between the band and the audience. In fact, between sets the band members usually mingle with their various fans.

Live music is one of the more important features of Belly's. Showcasing the house band, P.J. Belly and the Lone Star Blues Band, of which Elvis is a member, the club dishes out rhythm and blues with sprinkles of rock 'n' roll.

Belly's band plays Wednesday through Sunday with opening act Donny Alison, lead singer of The Nelsons, performing a solo acoustic set. In addition, the Robyn Griffin Band plays Tuesday night.

Another staple of Belly's regulars is the "Blue Light Special," named for the legendary K-Mart savings bonanza.

The drink, which consists of several different types of alcohol, comes with a blue neon-like stick which glows. Not only does the stick serve as a mixing utensil, but it also doubles as what some find to be really attractive jewelry.

But for everything the club is known for, Simmons said there is one thing that most patrons are not aware of.

"We have a full restaurant that stays open until midnight, but most of our food business comes during the day," Simmons said. "We serve everything from hamburgers to steaks."

Spurs' Robinson willing to serve in Gulf

By The Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO — San Antonio Spurs center David Robinson, a Navy reservist, has said he would willingly serve in the Persian Gulf conflict, but officials say he is not expected to be called.

Robinson, a Naval Academy graduate who served two years active duty and still has three years' reserve commitment, had little to say about the war before the Spurs' game with the Dallas Mavericks at

SAN ANTONIO SPURS

Robinson

HemisFair Arena. He simply shrugged.

"If I have to serve, I'll serve and I'll go eagerly," the NBA All-Star said Tuesday about his military status. "I don't consider myself any different than anybody else, so if I go, I'll go eagerly."

Cmdr. Dottie Schmidt of the Naval Reserve Force in New Orleans said he probably will not be called up. Robinson is an Individual Mobilization Augmentee and does not participate in monthly reserve drills. His active duty is restricted to two weeks of annual training.

"He's currently not assigned to a unit, so his chances of being called up are slim," said Schmidt.

Gulf crisis hits home with sports fans

By The Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO — San Antonio Spurs fans sat solemn-faced before the team's basketball game against the Dallas Mavericks and watched news reports of the Persian Gulf war on big-screen television in HemisFair Arena.

"I hate to see us go to war, but sometimes it's necessary," said Abe Luna, at the game with his wife and brother.

Arthur Luna, the brother, said the crisis had touched his family.

"I have a nephew down there. My sister is really close to me. She's been crying a lot," he said.

The players huddled around a television set in their lockerroom before the game.

"You have to do what you have to do. To play on a day like this seems kind of ...," Spurs forward Sean Elliott said, then stopped.

The Spurs won the game 100-94.

Meanwhile, in Houston, the outbreak of war was announced at the Rice University-Texas Tech basketball game.

The crowd participated in a moment of silence before the national anthem was played.

In San Antonio, some fans listened to car radios in the parking lot before the game.

Kevin Flanigan, at the game with his family, said he heard the war news on his car radio and immediately noticed rush hour traffic speeding up.

"It was awesome — just the tempo of the traffic," he said. "When it all broke, everybody sped up. They wanted to get home and get in front of their TV and see what's going on. It usually takes me 45 minutes to get home. It took me 30."

"It had to be done. It was one of those things — do it now or do it later," said Air Force Staff Sgt. Kenneth Johnson, who is stationed in Europe and was in San Antonio on military business. "We're going to kick some ass."

"I'll probably be recalled (to Europe) tomorrow," he said.

Robert Glass, a former Air Force member was attending the game with Johnson.

Both men said it would be difficult to watch the game without thinking about the war.

Before the game, the NBA issued a statement saying Wednesday night's games would not be cancelled, but that the league would seek guidance on Thursday from the White House and State Department.

Earlier Wednesday, Southwest Conference commissioner Fred Jacoby said college games would go on despite a war, though plans could be reconsidered.

Tech ready for meeting with 10-5 Lady Cougars

By ANDREW HARRIS
The University Daily

The friendly confines of Hofheinz Pavillion have not been too friendly to the Texas Tech women's basketball team in recent years when it travels to battle Houston.

For the last four years in a row, the Red Raiders have left Hofheinz with an 'L' in the loss column.

In fact, the two teams have split regular season games in each of the last four years, with the home team prevailing in each one.

But the Raiders will look to turn the tide as they take their 4-1 (12-3 overall) Southwest Conference record back to Houston for the second time in four days and face the Lady Cougars at 5 p.m. Saturday in Hofheinz Pavillion.

Tech topped Rice Wednesday 77-63 in Houston behind junior post Jennifer Buck's 27 points.

Buck scored 17 of those 27 in the second half as the Raiders bounced back from their heart-breaking 64-62 loss to Arkansas for their ninth win in 10 games.

Sophomore guard Krista Kirkland tied a school-record in the victory with 12 assists. Kirkland also finished with 17 points, including four three-pointers.

But Tech will have their hands full with high-scoring Houston, which has scored in triple digits four times this season.

The Lady Cougars are averaging 87.1 points per contest, tops in the SWC.

Partly responsible for Houston's high-scoring output is its ability to spread the scoring throughout the team.

Four of the five Lady Cougar starters are averaging double-figures on the season.

Leading the way for Houston so far in 1991 has been senior Arlene Brown, who is averaging 13.7 points per outing.

The 5-foot-7 guard from Alvin leads the Lady Cougars in scoring, assists, steals, three-point field goals and minutes played.

Brown also ranks second on Houston's all-time assist list with 370 and is only 53 points short of the 1,000 mark for her career.

Another plus for the 10-5 (2-2 in SWC) Lady Cougars has been the play of their young bench, which currently leads the conference in bench scoring.

Houston's reserves consist of three freshmen, two sophomores and one junior, who all-in-all have accounted for 461 points in 15 games, an average of 30 points per contest.

But the Raiders just may be able to counter with a little bench help of their own.

Junior-transfer forward Tami Wilson, freshman guard Stephanie Scott and senior guards Alexis Ware and Rachelle Mulanax have all come off of the bench and provided consistent and much-needed scoring for Tech.

Scott, however, has been starting in place of injured guard Tammy Walker.

The Raiders have also benefited from the play of junior post Teresas McMillian.

The 6-foot-0 post from Mesquite has been quite dominant for Tech, averaging a team-high 13.5 points per game.

Stevens declines Cowboys' offer

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys continued their search for a new offensive coordinator Thursday after Miami Dolphins quarterbacks coach Gary Stevens unexpectedly turned down their offer.

"It's a good organization. I love those guys," Stevens said of the Cowboys on Wednesday at Fairhope (Ala.) Municipal Stadium at the completion of a Senior Bowl workout.

"I'm with a good organization now," he told The Dallas Morning News. "Personally, for me, it's best to stay where I'm at. I'm doing what I feel is best for me and my family."

Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson declined to comment directly on the decision of Stevens, who had been his top offensive assistant for five seasons at the University of Miami (1984-88).

Johnson said he still plans to hire a new offensive coordinator by month's end.

Stevens met with Johnson and team owner Jerry Jones Wednesday and told them that he had reached his decision Tuesday night.

Stevens said his decision had nothing to do with the parameters of the Cowboys' offer.

He went to work for coach Don Shula when then-Miami athletic director Sam Jankovich did not name him to replace Johnson.

TP&WD ready to duplicate 1990 successes

Mike Pender
Associate Sports Editor

The first year of the new decade brought various changes and some near-disastrous situations to Texas' wildlife habitat.

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department (TP&WD) worked to integrate new programs into their duties and also helped to ensure the longevity of wildlife in our state.

TP&WD played a major role in the cleanup of Galveston Bay after more than 700,000 gallons of oil invaded the Gulf on July 28.

Although only time will tell if the efforts were a major success, reports indicate the wildlife and wetlands did not sustain extensive damage. TP&WD continues to study the ramifications of the spill on the vital plant growth that plays an integral part in the food chain of wildlife in the Galveston Bay and the surrounding areas.

During the clean up, TP&WD personnel closed the bay to the taking of aquatic life and also checked for any signs of damage to the wildlife.

In other areas, TP&WD's Operation Game Thief (OGT) program cracked down on illegal activities. In July of 1990, 64 people were fined a total of $48,900 after they were caught harvesting undersized striped bass from waters out of Lake Texoma.

OGT also led to the arrest of 34 people in September for illegally buying and selling strippers, hybrid strippers and the paddlefish, which is an endangered species.

Some of the fish were linked to restaurants and markets in the Dallas area. A total of more than $100,000 in fines was assessed.

Another program, Operation Share A Lone Star Lunker, boasted its biggest year ever with the addition of 28 bass from 11 waterways around the state.

Most of the fish came from Lake Fork, where 17 of the 28 were caught. Five of the bass weighed more than 15 pounds and seven of the lunkers spawned.

The hatchery system reached some milestones in 1990, including the production of an all-time high number of Florida-strain largemouth fingerlings.

The San Marcos hatchery produced more than 4 million, which breaks the old record of fingerlings produced by more than 1 million fish.

In other fishery happenings, anglers began to worry about conserving the fish resource. TP&WD reported there was a 54 percent increase in the number of fishermen who practiced catch and release.

In adding to the thrust of conservation of the resources, TPD also instituted new hunting laws for particular species of wildlife.

The TP Commission banned the use of hunting deer with dogs and also adopted a 10-inch minimum length limit and a 25 fish per day limit on crappie in all public waters except for Toledo Bend and Caddo Lake.

OUTDOOR NOTES — Texas Floyd Mabry, Sugar Ferris and the late Robert J. Kemp were inducted into the National Freshwater Fishing Hall of Fame.

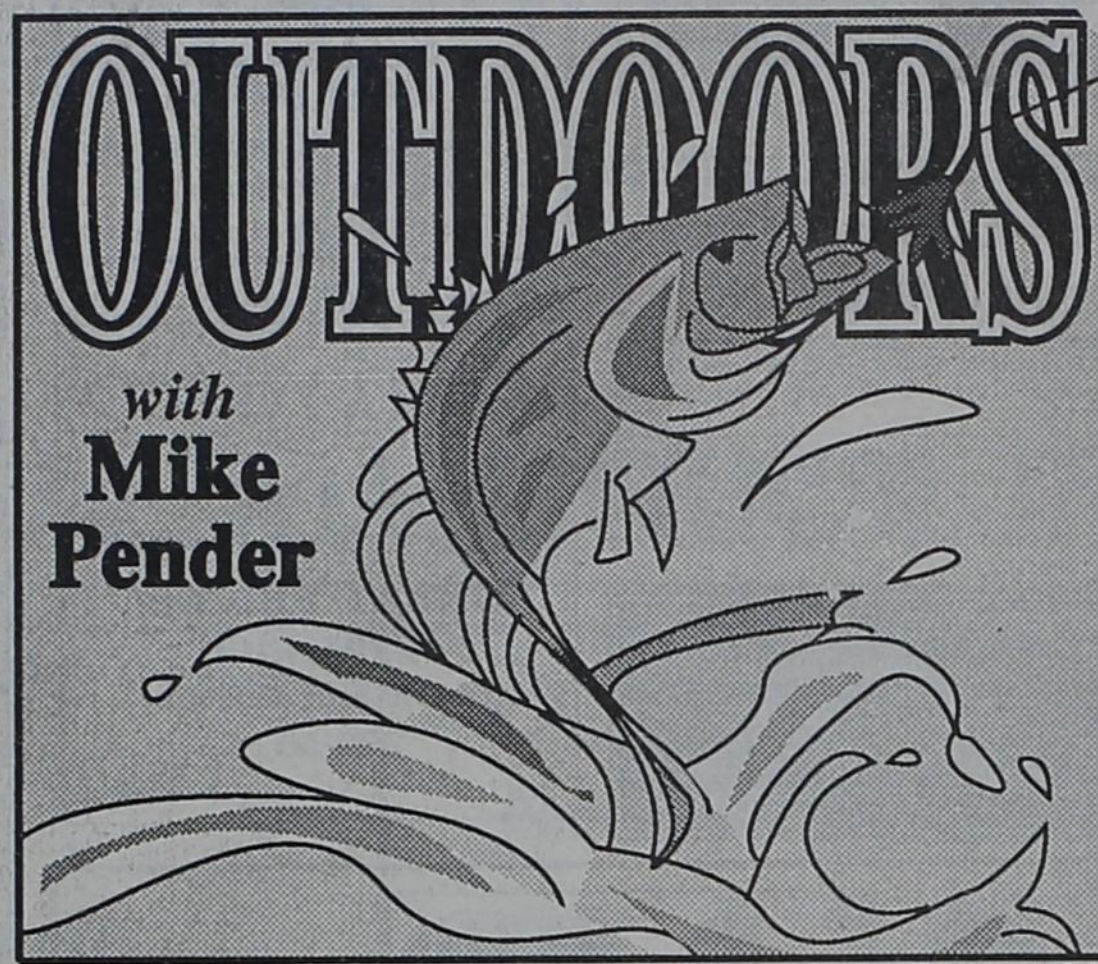

Mabry, a long-time Bomber Lure spokesman, is a North Texas Fishing professional and Ferris is the founder of the Bass'n Gal tournament circuit.

Kemp was the former fisheries director for TP&WD and is credited for introducing the Florida-strain bass to the waters of Texas.

The Lubbock Fishery Improvement Program has organized the Third Annual Fishing Seminar for black bass. John Hope, Field Editor for Honey Hole Magazine, Dreabon Joiner, tournament fisherman and Joe T. Rogers, Executive Director for Texas Black Bass Unlimited, are scheduled to speak.

Subjects to be discussed include tracking Texas trophy bass, the funnel point theory, trophy bass habits (feeding and holding) and instruction on how to identify and establish a fishing pattern.

The FREE seminar is scheduled for 7 p.m., Saturday Jan. 26, in room 107 at the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center. The seminar is open to the public.

Struggling Raiders gear up for SWC foe Houston

By LEN HAYWARD
The University Daily

After suffering a road loss to the 6-8 Rice Owls, the Texas Tech men's basketball team will try to get back on the right track when it takes on Houston at 2 p.m. Saturday in Holtheinz Pavilion in Houston.

The game will be televised locally by KJTV-34.

The Cougars come into the game at 2-1 in SWC play and an overall record of 10-4 depending on the outcome of last night's game against Texas in Austin. Houston is coming off of a 25-8 record last year and a second place finish in the SWC behind Arkansas with a record of 13-3 in league play.

The Cougars' Craig Upchurch, Derrick Daniels and Byron Smith are the three returning starters from last season's Houston squad.

Upchurch, a 6-foot-8 forward from St. Louis, Mo., averaged 13.1 points per game and seven rebounds last year. Upchurch's injured back, however, has kept him out most of this season.

Smith, a 6-3 Senior guard, is fifth among the SWC leaders in scoring, averaging 17.7 points per game and is fourth in three-point shooting percentage at 41.9 percent.

One problem that Tech must face is the strong rebounding of the Cougars, who are second to Texas in SWC rebounding pulling down 42.2 boards per outing as a team. Alvaro Teheran, a 7-1 senior from Cartagena, Colombia, leads Houston with 9.5 rebounds per game.

Daniels, a 6-2 junior point guard, leads the attack for the Cougars. Daniels averages 6.8 assists per game to lead the SWC. Against Rice, Daniels scored a career-high 33 points and also averages 13.7 points per game.

The Raiders' record, after the loss to Rice, fell to 2-3 in SWC play and 5-12 overall. The loss also brings Tech's conference road winning-streak to a halt at two.

The Raiders' scoring woes continue as Tech shot a paltry 39.6 percent from the field in Wednesday night's loss to the Owls. Senior Derek Butts was the only Raider player to score in double figures with 19 points.

Tech forward Will Flemons and center Steve Miles, the mainstays of the Raiders' inside game, were virtually shut out against Rice. Flemons grabbed five rebounds but only scored eight points, while Miles pulled down two rebounds and added six points.

Junior guard Stacy Bailey, who saw 20 minutes of action against the Owls after sitting out the Arkansas game, came off the bench to score nine points, all from behind the three-point stripe.

Walker to forego senior season

Texas Tech cornerback Sammy Walker said Wednesday he will give up his final year of college eligibility and declare himself eligible for the upcoming National Football League draft in June.

The 5-foot-11, 190-pound junior from McKinney said he decided sometime last week that he would forego the 1991 football season and try his luck in the NFL.

"The financial problems I've been having and struggling with football and academics at the same time, I just added it all together and came up with my decision," Walker said Thursday in a telephone interview.

Walker also cited his speed and physical size as reasons for entering the NFL's spring draft.

Walker, who was hampered by a foot injury for the last part of the 1990 season sustained in the Red Raiders' 49-44 victory over Arkansas, ranked second in the Southwest Conference in 1989 in broken up passes with 12.

In 1990, Walker finished the year with 11 pass break-ups and 60 tackles to place him eighth on the team in tackles.

He also had two interceptions for the year, one of which he returned 38 yards for a touchdown in Tech's 62-7 drubbing of Southern Methodist Nov. 17 in Lubbock.

Walker was a Dallas Morning News first-team all-SWC selection at linebacker.
