

Will Last Two Weeks

Fine Arts Festival Begins

The Fine Arts Kaleidoscope is now in full swing with two weeks of events scheduled.

The speech department's production of the Biblical drama, "Noah," is the main feature of the festival. The production, directed by Ronald Schulz, opened Monday. Other performances are scheduled for 8:15 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday and at 3 p.m. Sunday.

Presented In Midland

Prior to its campus opening, "Noah" was presented at the Southwest Theatre Conference in Midland. G. W. Bailey takes the title role in the drama by Andre Obey. Tickets are available at the University Theater box office at 50 cents for students with IDs. All performances will be at the University Theater.

Another major attraction of the Fine Arts Kaleidoscope is "Voyages in Poetry and Folk Songs," which will be presented at 8 p.m. Friday in the Union Ballroom. A group composed of John Langstaff, actor and singer; Robin Roberts Howard, actress and folksinger; and Happy Traum, guitar and banjo player, will present poetry combined with folk music.

Presents Variety

The performance includes poems ranging from Donne and anonymous ninth century Irish poets, through Whitman and Yeats, to the contemporary poets. The folksongs extend from traditional ballads to a 20th century prison work-song. There is no admission charge for "Voyages."

Sunday the Tech Opera Theater and Tech Dance Theater will present "In Time and Space" at 3 p.m. in the old Speech Building theater.

Three movies are scheduled this week and two next week as a part of the festival. Today a film titled "The Dance" will be shown at 7:30 p.m. in the Union Coronado Room. An introduction will be given by Suzanne Aker, physical education instructor.

"Tagore" is scheduled for Wednesday and "The Acropolis of Athens" for Thursday. Both will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Union Coronado Room.

The movies for next week are "Shakespeare—Soul of an Age" on Nov. 9 and "Picasso" on Nov. 10.

Recital Scheduled

Also scheduled this week is a music recital at 4 p.m. Wednesday in the Union Piano Lounge.

On Nov. 8, Dr. Judson Maynard will present an organ recital at 8:15 p.m. at the First Methodist Church.

Another music recital is scheduled at 4 p.m. Nov. 10 in the Union Piano Lounge.

The final event of the festival will be at 8 p.m. Nov. 12, when the music department will present a program of renaissance and baroque music in the library foyer.

MECHANICAL ENGINEERING RECEIVES GRANT—A. D. Evans of the Gulf Oil Corp. presents a $1,000 check to M. L. Pennington, Tech's vice president for business affairs. The unrestricted grant will go to the Mechanical Engineering Department.

Senate Will Discuss Grad Representation

The question of graduate representation may be settled at tonight's Student Senate meeting.

Chris Hickey, chairman of the Graduate Representation Committee, plans to submit the group's proposed method for graduate representation and the floor will be open for discussion. If the proposal is accepted, it will go into effect following the next fill-in senatorial election.

Wayne Packard of the By-laws Revision Committee will read the proposed revision concerning cheerleader elections and a vote will be taken.

The proposed revision reads, "All cheerleaders must have made a 2.0 average during the semester of their election in order to serve in their elected position during the following semester. The scholastic average cannot be raised by those grades received in summer school."

An Intramural Committee set up following the last Senate meeting will report the feasibility of setting up a faculty-student intramural committee similar to the Athletic and Publications Committees. Vice President Scott Allen appointed Jerry Pittman, chairman, Max Blakney and Chuck Burton to the committee.

Two new committees will be appointed at tonight's meeting. A Foreign Students Committee will be established to study the problems foreign students face at Tech and how Tech can be of better service to its foreign students.

A Poster Committee will be established to determine how posters can be used more effectively, possibly by having old posters taken down more often and new ones put up.

Allen will open the floor for discussion on whether Tech should have class favorites this year and if so, how many should be selected.

The Senate will meet at 8 p.m. in the Union Mesa Room.

Student Killed In Car Wreck

Frank A. Sieverman, a 19-year-old Tech freshman, was killed when his car overturned early Sunday about half a mile southwest of Lubbock on U.S. Highway 62.

Sieverman was attending Tech on a voice scholarship and was a 1965 graduate of Amarillo High School. He was a resident of Sneed Hall.

Highway patrolman Calvin Harrell said Sieverman apparently failed to turn at the highway intersection with Spur 327 and the car ran off the highway and overturned three times.

Harrell said the victim, traveling alone, was headed toward Lubbock. The body was taken to Rix Funeral Home in Lubbock and later transported to Schooler-Gordon Funeral Home in Amarillo.

The funeral services will be at 10 a.m. today in St. Andrews Episcopal Church in Amarillo, with Rev. Evans Moreland officiating.

Voters To Determine Fate Of Amendment 1

The future of Texas Tech and 16 other state supported schools hangs in the "ballot" today as voters determine the fate of Amendment No. 1.

The amendment authorizes a five cent increase in the state ad valorem property tax, to be used in constructing academic buildings at Texas colleges and universities.

This would raise the allotment for higher education from the ad valorem tax to 10 cents per $100 valuation.

Passage of the amendment will make $12 to $15 million available to Texas Tech within a year, and make the school eligible for additional federal matching funds.

The amendment also raises the number of schools benefiting from the ad valorem tax from 12 to 17.

Along with Amendment 1, nine other proposed constitutional amendments meet their fate.

Amendment 2 increases the Veterans Land Fund by $200 million for the purpose of purchasing land in Texas to be sold to Texans who became veterans between Sept. 16, 1940 and March 31, 1955.

Amendment 3 enables Texas to continue to co-operate with the U.S. government in providing assistance and medical care for the needy, aged, blind, and children of the needy and permanently disabled.

Amendment 4 provides for four year terms of office for state officials.

Amendment 5 provides for a "Teacher Retirement Fund of Texas."

Amendment 6 authorizes general obligation bond funds to provide money for loans to students at institutions of higher education.

Amendment 7 provides tax exemptions to certain hospitals giving free hospital and medical care to indigent citizens of Texas.

Amendment 8 provides for the automatic retirement of district and appellate judges for old age; for their removal from office for misconduct; and for their forced retirement for disability. It also establishes a Judicial Qualifications Commission to administer some of its provisions.

Amendment 9 permits the Legislature to set an annual salary for the Lt. Governor and the Speaker of the House of Representatives, and increase to $20 per day the per diem allowance paid to all Senators and Representatives.

Amendment 10 increases terms of members of the Texas House of Representatives from two to four years. Members would be divided into two classes so that one half would be elected every two years.

SWEEPSTAKES WINNER—"Pathway to Greatness" was the theme of the float capturing sweepstakes honors in Saturday's Homecoming Parade. The maroon and white float was entered by Sigma Alpha Epsilon social fraternity and featured two white-gowned students climbing the "bridge of learning."

Dr. Gilbreth To Be Honored By Industrial Engineers

Dr. Lillian M. Gilbreth, internationally acclaimed author, lecturer and industrial engineer, will be honored at a banquet tonight by the Great Plains and Tech chapters of the American Institute of Industrial Engineers. She will also be a guest of the industrial engineering department at a coffee and at undergraduate and graduate seminars.

Her tremendous drive and personal strength can be illustrated by the way she has carried out the work of her late husband, Frank B. Gilbreth. Five days after his death in 1924 she sailed for England to present a paper that her husband was to have given.

Since that time she has become widely known in her own right and the recipient of many awards, including the International Committee of Scientific Management Gold Medal—the highest award industrial management can offer. In addition, she possesses three earned and 19 honorary degrees.

A pioneer in scientific management and one of the world's most widely traveled women, she has said, "I like to save my time and spend my energy."

Dr. Gilbreth, sometimes called "the patron saint of industrial engineering," was given a red carpet welcome last night by the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce when she arrived for her visit.

Recent Tech Student Dies

Recent Tech student Don Tillery died Saturday night in San Diego, Calif. of bronchial pneumonia.

Tillery was 24 years old and a senior textile management major, but was not enrolled this fall. He worked in Tech's textile department until being called up by the Marine Reserves. He left Lubbock Oct. 21.

Tillery moved to Lubbock from Levelland in 1957 and was a 1959 graduate of Monterey High School.

Funeral arrangements at the Franklin Bartley Funeral Home are pending until notice from the Marine Corps.

Late Campaigning May Boost Voter Turnout

By GARTH JONES
Associated Press Writer

Last-minute campaigns for and against the 10 proposed state constitution changes brought boosted estimates of voter turnout in Tuesday's voting.

Robert J. Johnson, head of the Texas Election Bureau, said the final efforts, particularly on a plan to give Texas governors and statewide officials four-year terms, might push the total vote as high as 400,000. Earlier he predicted it would be about 300,000.

Only 220,000 voters, out of the state's 1.97 million eligible, turned out for a Sept. 7 election on one proposed constitution change. The proposal, to increase the Senate from 31 to 39 members, failed by 50,500 votes.

A check by The Associated Press over the state showed that officials in metropolitan areas expect a larger vote Tuesday than in September—but only slightly larger in many areas.

Political observers have predicted that a light vote would result in defeat of some, and maybe all, the 10 proposals. They contend the 136,461 who voted "no" in September likely will be back at the polls Tuesday in the same frame of mind.

However, recent past history indicates little likelihood of all 10 amendments going down in defeat at the same time. In 1962, a total of 10 amendments were approved and four failed. In 1963, one was approved and three failed.

"It would be a public disgrace for the light vote in the last election to be repeated on Nov. 2," Gov. John Connally said in support of the four-year term for state officials and several other amendments. He officially granted the more than 46,000 state employes a half holiday beginning at noon Tuesday to be sure they have a chance to vote.

LTC Murder - Comedy Delightful Presentation

By MARGARET EASTMAN
Fine Arts Editor

"A Shot in the Dark," currently playing at the Lubbock Theatre Centre, is a provocative murder-comedy about a French maid whose bed is "as well known a landmark as the Eiffel Tower."

The maid, excellently played by Tech graduate Juanice Myers, is found naked, gun in hand, with the body of her lover. She is arrested and an hilarious inquest follows.

The production literally left the audience aching from laughter. Mrs. Myers turned in an incomparable performance that brought fits of laughter and applause throughout the show. And one rarely hears applause in the middle of an act!

The maid is employed by a distinguished middle-aged banker, Bearevers, imaginatively portrayed by Mike Connell (Muleshoe junior.) Connell who is 20, successfully overcame his youth and turned in a convincing performance. He gave a Bearevers whose charm and continental wit enticed and delighted the domestic audience and their desire for European savoir-faire.

The inquest was conducted by Paul Sevigne and his clerk Mores-tan. Fred McFarland's Sevigne was well done, and, as was intended, complimented Mrs. Myers' performance. It takes a truly fine actor to play the "straight man" in a comedy and McFarland is this.

David Shepherd as Mores-tan was believable, but lacked the wry humor the role requires.

Jean Edwards as Sevigne's wife was memorable in her brief appearances as the jealous spouse.

Dr. Paschal Strong, Tech psychology professor, realistically played Sevigne's "pressing" superior. Tech student Jorge Barreto had a walk-on role as the guard. Barreto also served as production assistant.

Again, laurels go to LTC director, Burt French.

A hold-over performance of "Shot in the Dark" is scheduled at 8:15 p.m. Friday. Admission for students is $1.15. Reservations may be made at SH4-3681.

'Barefoot' Comes Today

Bari Stars In Comedy

"Barefoot in the Park," the comedy that is currently the long-running attraction on Broadway, will show at 8 p.m. today at Lubbock Municipal Auditorium.

Heading the cast of the company being brought here by Saint Subber, producer of the hit in New York, will be Lynn Bari, Miss Bari has been in more than 50 movies. "Barefoot in the Park" tells of the adventures of a newly-married couple trying to settle down in a tidy Manhattan apartment with few conveniences.

Miss Bari plays the timid mother of the bride, and Joan McCall and Joe Crothers have the roles of that young bride and her harassed groom.

The play has been running to packed house in New York since October, 1963, and will continue through the 1965-66 season.

Its author, Neil Simon, is composer of "Come Blow Your Horn" and "The Odd Couple." He also wrote the libretto for the musical "Little Me."

The New York Herald Tribune described the play as "an easy, breezy, amiably idiotic and immensely funny game of wildcat badminton."

Reservations for "Barefoot in the Park" may be made at the municipal auditorium box office. Admission for students is $2.

Catholics Experience Vast Growth

EDITOR'S NOTE—The following article is the last in a series concerning religious organizations and activities offered for Tech students.

By BRONSON HAVARD
Contributing Writer

The Catholic student community at Tech has in the last five years experienced nearly phenomenal growth and today bustles with activity at the new Catholic Student Center.

Just five years ago there were less than 400 Catholic students attending Tech; today the head count comes to more than 1,100 men and women.

Catholic student activities are usually held at the "Center" located at 2305 Broadway. The building and grounds were purchased by the Diocese of Amarillo, the Catholic Church's governmental unit for the Panhandle and South Plains area, for the recreation, education and spiritual needs of the Catholic students here. The Center was dedicated by the bishop of the diocese two years ago.

The Center has meeting rooms, study rooms, a library, a TV room, the chaplain's office, a dance and recreation room and chapel.

A wide variety of activities to make the student feel "at home" and a part of the Catholic student community is the goal of the Catholic student leaders and their chaplain, Father Patrick O'Dwyer.

Father O'Dwyer is an Irish priest who began working with the Catholic students a year ago. As Chaplain of the Center he is probably one of the busiest priests in Lubbock and perhaps it would be more accurate to count him among the busiest men in the city.

He not only takes care of the spiritual needs of the students but teaches numerous classes for them, handles the business of the Center, works as a sponsor for the Newman Club and serves St. Elizabeth's parish in numerous ways.

One of the things the Catholic students are proudest of is the Student Mass. Twice each Sunday at 10 a.m. and 5:15 p.m. Father O'Dwyer celebrates Mass for students in St. William's Chapel in the Student Center. Students work with Father O'Dwyer and provide leadership in all phases of the activities at the Center.

Jim Zimmerman, president of the Newman Club for Catholic students, is one of the Catholic student leaders who plays an active role in Newman Club programs which range from socials, such as dances and the recent hayride, to stimulating speakers to athletic events.

This year the Newman Calendar is full. The plan for activities this semester calls for a minimum of one social a month as well as one business meeting and one speaker a month. The Newman Club holds its meetings at 7 p.m. on Sunday.

One of the highlights of the semester will be the annual Spaghetti Supper. The Newmanites get together and prepare the supper for Tech students and top it off with a social. Having fun is the ingredient that makes the supper a success every year.

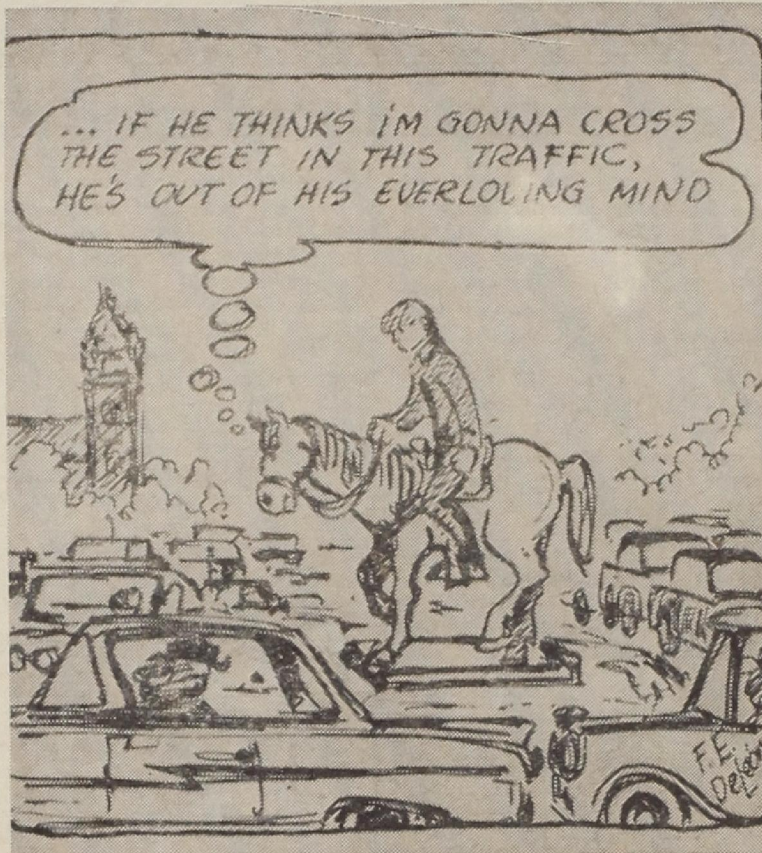

The Newman Club provides the main organizational activity within the Catholic Student Center but there are also other types of group activities going on. Discussion groups meet often as well as the athletic teams.

This year enough Catholic men have gone out for intramural football to make nearly three teams.

The coed students are in the intramural program with a volleyball team this semester.

Traditionally the Newman Club has also participated in the Annual Little 500 Bike Race in the spring. A number of trophies at the Center give clear proof of past champion teams.

One of the recent developments in the Catholic Student Community

The Fraternity View...

CRITICS WHO COMPLAIN about the disappearance of old-fashioned social organization in the huge but impersonal higher educational institutions are failing to recognize the virtues of the American college fraternities and sororities in supplying this very need on a vast scale.

This charge was made by Fred H. Turner, dean of students at the University of Illinois. Dean Turner sees a strong trend among many elements for a return to the fundamental philosophies upon which the fraternity organizations were founded.

"Curiously enough, fraternities have one characteristic which is under such severe attack by those who seem to despise them so," writes Dean Turner. "Those persons who are attacking today's higher education, and taking a few pot shots at fraternities in passing, deplore the impersonality of their borrowed term 'multiversities.'"

"Even one of the most severe critics of fraternities in recent years has conceded that, while they do not always accomplish the objective, fraternities do or can provide the ideal type of student organization where the individual student may relate himself in an intimate fashion with a small group dedicated to high ideals and assuring the student a close relationship with others who are congenial, like-minded, and interested in the welfare and progress of the individual himself."

Dean Turner sees attacks on the American fraternity system as a continuing process, but only as one of many attacks on higher education in general. But, he feels, the attacks are beginning to go too far and there are those who are asking if it isn't time for a return to personal integrity and a devotion to law instead of rebellion, defiance, and ignoring of laws.

He points out that fraternities which pattern their operations during the next few years on their time-tested principles and maintain their existence academically, financially, and in line with the honest objectives of their institutions will find themselves doing the precise things demanded by people in general.

Dean Turner is critical of the harshness suffered by fraternities through half-truths, sly remarks, instigators of dissension among fraternity organizations, and creators of distrust and suspicion of motives of members.

He feels, however, fraternities can combat these techniques through an observance of their own principles of friendship, integrity, loyalty, respect of others, and the very fundamental desire to choose one's own intimate friends.

Flight From Lubbock...

By Cecil Green

The day that Lubbock gets trans-continental jet service will be a day for dancing in the streets.

Now, about the only way a traveler can get from Lubbock to any other large, distant city by jet is leave Texas by the front door (Dallas-Fort Worth) or by one of the side doors (El Paso or Houston).

This fact was brought out by a recent journalism trip to San Francisco. The Tech delegates had to catch a flight to Midland, board a jet there and go to El Paso, where we could finally get a more direct flight to the West Coast.

The same was also true coming back into the state. However, this time we got as far as Albuquerque by plane before boarding a turbo-prop to Lubbock.

The city fathers have long been trying to get such jet facilities here, but as yet their schedule for accomplishment lies a few years in the future.

However, there is modern facility in Lubbock that does have occasional jet flights, although they are unfortunately not of the commercial variety.

Here, we are speaking of Reese AFB and another trip taken by a Tech delegation to Tinker AFB, Okla., last week. The trip, kindly provided by the Aerospace Department (AFROTC), involved about 30 Tech Air Force cadets and a dozen representatives of various departments around the campus.

But even at Reese, the big C-141 Starlifter transport we traveled on was a novelty. It was as large as the most modern airliner, although the surroundings were a bit austere.

However, there was no doubt that the big plane was well qualified to accomplish its mission—to be the future backbone of the Military Air Transportation Service (MATS).

The C-141 has a tremendous cargo capacity and can carry as many as 154 combat troops in jet-smooth comfort.

But last week, the mission of the Starlifter was to carry the Tech delegation to Tinker, an impressive base just outside of Oklahoma City. And for the C-141, this was but a short hop, covering approximately 36 minutes of air time each way.

This is quite a change from a 5-6 hour car ride or an hour-and-a-half ride by conventional aircraft.

Tinker AFB itself is a training base for MATS pilots, primarily using the new C-141, but also utilizing the old reliable C-124.

The Tech delegation was allowed to tour many of the interior workings of the base, including an assembly line repair shop more than a mile long, the operations center of the base, the maintenance shops and the flight simulators, among other things.

A "ride" in the simulators is more like being in a real airplane in flight than the actual flight itself. The simulator consists of an elaborate cockpit with a special panel of instruments at the back where the instructor sits.

At the intricate and tricky panel, the instructor can create any imaginable situation a pilot might encounter. And whatever situation he creates, the pilot and his crew are expected to overcome it.

It is all very frighteningly realistic, especially when motor noise and vibration are added to the scene, as well as the actual movements controlled by delicate hydraulic lifts responding to the cockpit instruments.

All in all, the trip to Tinker was very entertaining and most educational.

And what made it even more enjoyable was having Tech graduates as pilots and escort officers.

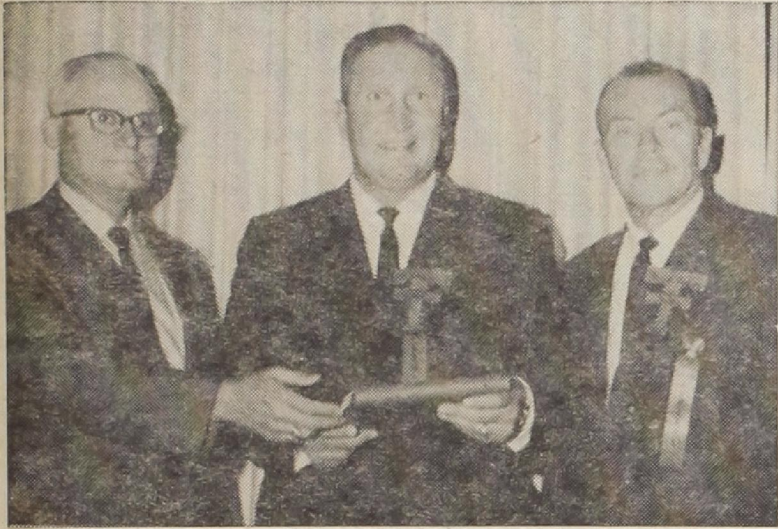

One of the officers, who played on the 1953 Red Raider team that went to the Gator Bowl, said he was looking forward to making a return trip down thataway about New Year's Eve.

Sure hope he's right about that.

SAE Float Takes Honors In 40th Anniversary Parade

More than 43,000 exes, friends and students viewed the grand finale of homecoming events commemorating Tech's 40th anniversary.

The theme of the homecoming parade—a look into Tech's 40-year history—was a contrast between the college's first year, 1925, and 1965.

"Pathway to Greatness," a maroon and white float on which two white-gowned students walked along a "bridge of learning," won sweepstakes honors in the parade competition. The float, entered by Sigma Alpha Epsilon, featured the Texas Tech seal and a large white diploma at one end.

First-place fraternity division winner was Phi Delta Theta, whose float featured four freshman beanies set on terraces. Green and white beanies of yesteryear showed 1925, the year of the colleges' founding, 1932, the year

Tech entered the Border Conference, 1956, the historic entrance into the Southwest Conference, and finally the familiar red and black beanie of today.

Pi Beta Phi won top prize in the sorority division. Their float presented a salute to coeds of 1925 and 1965. A modern coed and a flapper from the Roaring Twenties rode on either side of the float, topped with a huge mum with a revolving Double T in the center.

First in independent division was taken by Wells Hall, which depicted the Red Raider rider and Charcoal Cody of today and the Matador of 1925 in a college scene showing the Administration Building and Library.

In dorm homecoming decorations, Gordon Hall and Clement Hall won first for men's and women's halls respectively.

Catholic Group Grows...

ty has been the founding of Chi Rho, a service fraternity for Catholic men. Work on organizing the fraternity began four years ago by a small group of Catholic men students.

Chi Rho is a rather unique organization and is without any known precedent in Catholic student communities at other colleges.

The fraternity has as its purpose faith, service and brotherhood. In its service projects it works to help Tech, Lubbock or just about anyone needing a helping hand.

A dream of the Catholic students at Tech is one day to have their own official student parish. Many large Catholic student communities at other universities have a student parish that is completely run by the students.

Here at Tech the students are a part of St. Elizabeth's parish located adjacent to the Center on Main Street. However, with the student chapel and the student building, Tech students are developing a semi-student parish.

The Catholic student leaders report they feel Catholic students at Tech are building a more active student community each year.

A Tan Sport Coat And A 6-1 Record

MIKE LUTZ

HERE'S SOME AMMUNITION for all you J T King haters, Gaston Hall Association (whoever they are) included. The Red Raider head coach was OVERCONFIDENT concerning the Rice game. How did we dig up this bit of information?

It was really very simple. We just happened to notice that King was not wearing his tan sport coat during Tech's 27-0 romp over the Owls Saturday afternoon. That can only indicate overconfidence.

So what's the sport coat got to do with it? We learned all about King's attachment to the coat in question two weeks ago on the plane ride to Dallas.

SOMEONE HAD JUST complimented King on his chic appearance and made reference to the sport coat.

"Well, two years ago when we came down here (to Dallas), they gave me this coat," King explained. "We beat SMU that night (by 13-6), so I'm hoping the charm will work again."

"Not superstitious are you coach?" someone said.

"Nope, I just want to make sure everything turns out the way it's supposed to tomorrow night," King said.

King was seen wearing the coat at least once prior to Saturday's clash with Rice, but for the game he showed up in shirt sleeves, and watched the Raiders steamroll the Owls to snatch their sixth victory for the season.

Well, GHA, that's the best we can do for you King adversaries. We related the incident as a public service since we thought you'd have a tough time finding anything derogatory to say this morning.

TALENT HUNTER JIM PARMER, currently employed by the Washington Redskins, watched with awe as Donny Anderson demolished the Rice Owls Saturday afternoon, then said at halftime, "He's the best back in the country as far as I'm concerned. I don't think there's any question about it."

The former Raider assistant said, "He's a pro-type back. He's so versatile. They can play him just about anywhere." Parmer continued, "I think he could step right into a starting position on many of the pro teams. He's just that good."

"Sure wish we had him," Parmer laughed.

But Parmer wasn't impressed only with the antics of Anderson. He also put in a good word for the entire Raider squad.

"If they keep playing like this, Arkansas had better get up for them," he said.

ANOTHER PRESS BOX OBSERVER Saturday afternoon was Tech basketball coach Gene Gibson, who gleefully jotted down every inch of yardage Anderson picked up. "I'm quite a Donny Anderson fan," he explained.

But Gibson was able to pause long enough to chat about his Raider cagers, who made their first public appearance Friday afternoon in a scrimmage for the benefit of the homecoming crowd.

"We looked as I expected for this time of the year," Gibson said. "There was a lot of standing around in the first half and we were standing straight up for the

Tech Rated Ninth In Nation

Texas Tech's streaking Red Raiders, riding on the brink of their best season since 1953 and fresh team in the nation by a United Press International poll today. The Raiders of Coach J T King are 6-1 for the season, their best record after seven games since 1953 when they wound up 10-1 including a Gator Bowl victory over Auburn, 35-13.

Michigan State finished first in the poll, collecting 25 first place votes and 336 points. Nebraska and Arkansas tied for second place.

The Razorbacks, who have won 19 consecutive games, received five first place votes.

Other teams named in the poll were Notre Dame, fourth; University of Southern California, fifth; UCLA, sixth; Alabama, seventh; Georgia Tech, eighth and Missouri, 10th.

rebounds, but all this improved in the second half."

The Raider varsity defeated a mixture of freshmen, red shirt and former Raider players, 104-61.

WE KNOW OUR NOSTALGIA is showing, but when the final buzzer sounded last Saturday afternoon and as we were walking across the field to visit the Owls' dressing room, we were reminded of a similar afternoon, two years ago when we walked across that same turf with Coach Jess Neely, head coach of the Owls.

Rice had just spoiled Tech's homecoming by flattening the Raiders, 17-3 and Neely was in good spirits as he walked from the field.

"Son," he said, putting a sympathetic hand on my shoulder, "that was a tough one for your team to lose today."

But last Saturday afternoon what a contrast! When the final buzzer sounded, Coaches King and Matt Lair were being carried on the shoulders of the players to the middle of the field. The Tech band was blaring and 43,000 fans were going wild.

Coach Neely took that same walk again, alone this time. Later, in the dressing room, we found him sitting dejectedly on a bench, his head down, and with the same true sympathy we're sure he felt on that day two years ago, we found ourselves putting a hand on his shoulder and saying, "Coach, that was a tough one for your team to lose today."

And it was. Neely was obviously very concerned. "They pulled no surprises on us," the Dean of Southwest Conference Coaches said. "They just played a great game."

Asked what the Raiders did that hurt the Owls most, Neely replied, "They showed up for the game, I guess. It was just THE day for Texas Tech. Everything they did went right. Everything we did went wrong."

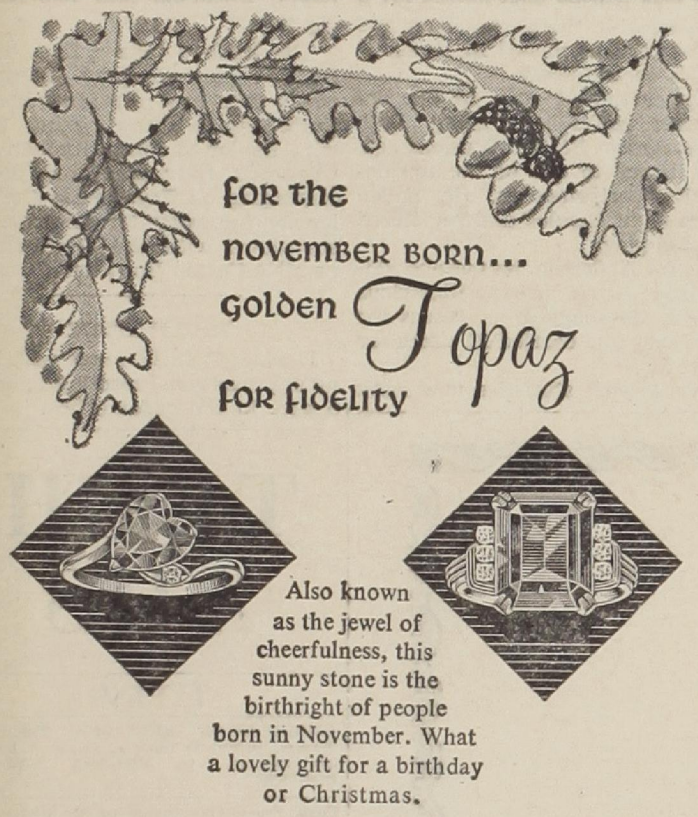

AT THE OPPOSITE end of the dressing room, linebackers Gene Walker and Craig Christopher sat together, slowly peeling out of sweaty uniforms.

"They just beat the fire out of us," Walker said. They blocked us down and ran over us. I guess they just wanted to win a little more than we did, isn't that about the size of it Craig?"

"Yeah that and a combination of several other things," Christopher said.

Walker looked up from tying his shoe lace and asked, "Did Texas get beat?" He had to smile when told SMU had defeated the Longhorns.

But that was the only smile in the Rice dressing room Saturday afternoon.

Wilson, Henkel Top Back, Lineman Of Week

By MIKE LUTZ
Sports Editor

It would almost be justifiable to pick the entire Red Raider squad for this week's Daily Toreador Back and Lineman of the Week, and although quarterback Tom Wilson and defensive guard James Henkel have been placed at the top of the list, there are supporting performances aplenty.

Wilson, who became the third most successful passer in SWC history during the 27-0 rout of Rice Saturday afternoon, nudged out all-America Donny Anderson, who treated the capacity homecoming crowd to one of his most spectacular performances as a Red Raider.

And Henkel was seconded by superlative efforts by defensive safety David Baugh, co-captain and defensive tackle John Porter and defensive end Joe Hurley.

Wilson, a senior from Corsicana, entered Saturday's game with 98 pass completions and the title of fourth leading passer in the nation.

He completed 16 aerials against the Owls, vaulting himself into the upper echelons of SWC passing circles, with a total of 114 bulls-eyes to date.

Only a couple of Baylor aerial experts, Terry Southall and Don Trull stand between Wilson and a No. 1 rating. Trull is the pace setter in most completions for one season with 174 in 1963. Trull hit 125 in 1962 and Southall had 118 in 1964.

Leads Defensive

Henkel led a revitalized Tech defensive unit that rendered the Owls impotent, especially in the second half. The junior Corsicana trenchman accounted for nine tackles and turned in three "big plays" against the Owls. All three of Henkel's "big plays" came on important third down Rice offensives when he threw the Owl quarterback for losses.

It was Henkel's first game at full speed since the Texas game.

Baugh, more than any other Tech defender, helped to throttle the Owls' passing attack by stepping in to intercept two Rice passes.

Hurley Intercepts

It was Hurley who picked off a Rice aerial in the first quarter and returned it untouched 16 yards for Tech's second score.

Porter moved over to the defensive ranks after going both ways against SMU two weeks ago, and turned in one of the top defensive performances. He nailed down eight tackles and registered one big play.

As for Anderson, he merely added digits to his already illustrious record. He snagged six passes for 109 yards and carried 21 times for 82 yards.

His passing statistics now rank second only to Baylor's Lawrence Elkins, who caught 144 passes in his three-year career for the Bears. Anderson now has 90 receptions.

The Raiders take a final break from conference play Saturday when they host the New Mexico State Aggies before locking horns with Baylor in Jones Stadium two weekends from now and before converging on Fayetteville the following Saturday for an expected showdown with the Hogs and a possible Cotton Bowl date.

RIFLE TEAM

Double T Rifle team will hold an organizational meeting today at 6 p.m. in the cadet office.
