AND THIS IS PAY DAY

The day of days is almost here for thousands of college seniors over the country who have looked forward since childhood to the time when they would receive their college diplomas. For these numerous thousands it is pay day!

And what a gloomy pay day it is for the greater majority of these youthful graduates who have been so often characterized as seeking to set the world on fire. An exceedingly small percentage of 1932 graduates will find positions in their chosen field; in fact, a very small percentage will find employment off-hand of any sort.

Perhaps the modern youth has long ago come to the conclusion that he can't make a fortune or even hold a high executive position for the first few years after graduation. But the youth who has spent the past 15 years in public schools and college does expect to find an opportunity to try to make for himself a place in the world when he graduates.

It is therefore not surprising that college graduates of 1932 are facing disappointment, many of them wondering if the time and money spent in college is worth the price. It is no wonder that members of the '32 class are disturbed perhaps wondering if they will have to fall back again on the financial support of their parents as in high school days.

A few Tech seniors are finding positions in the field they wish to work in; others are finding temporary work. The majority, however, are facing the world without a job, standing in awe at the few opportunities for college graduates, and trying to figure out what advantage he has over the man in the streets.

And this is pay day. For some it is a good pay day financially; for others there is no pay. But for those graduates who have built life-long friendships, while in college, have learned how to live, how to meet people and have learned to realize opportunities eventually come to those who are ready for them, it is good pay day—a pay day of hope and promise of the future.

THE BIGGEST IN THE NATION

Tech's 1932 coaching school will undoubtedly be the largest school of its kind in the nation this summer. Perhaps the ablest coaching staff ever assembled will be here in July to instruct the several hundred gathered here.

Coaches Cawthon, Smith and Morgan are giving to the college the best advertisement that can be given by sponsoring the '32 school.

It will be such events as Tech's annual coaching sessions that will help to make Texas Tech the truly great institution of the Southwest.

WE RECOMMEND

For those students who are undecided as to what to do this summer, we recommend the Tech summer school.

Summer positions are scarce and offer little pay. A summer spent in Texas Tech where the climate is ideal for the hot months is the best investment The Toreador can think of for undecided students.

FAILING FRESHMEN

The late Dr. Paul W. Horn held the opinion that an institution which let a large per cent of its freshmen class fail was no better than a doctor who let the greater per cent of his patients die. The truthfulness of his opinion can be more clearly seen as a present first class turns toward its sophomore year.

While some colleges and universities deem that a great per cent of every first year class should fail in order to keep down the number of college graduates, Texas Technological college has never held to that idea. Instead, few first year students drop out because of failure and sophomore year usually finds a great majority of them back in college.

It has long been agreed that a student's first year is his most important. Usually his foundation for his career is laid during those three terms. The more colleges realize this and place special emphasis upon starting freshmen off right, the more college education will mean to the world.

SHOULD CUTS BE COUNTED?

This spring finds a large number of seniors who will have to make up extra hours to care for their violation of the rule which calls for an extra hour for every 12 cuts each term. The question is, how much should cuts count?

There are several members of the faculty who say that when a junior or senior thinks he can profit by studying an hour instead of going to class he should be excused from class. In other words, let a student judge for himself what his lectures are worth.

In most English universities there is no roll call. Officials assume that a student is there to get an education and that he can judge for himself the necessity of attending lectures.

It may be doubtful whether this would work in the lock-step system of American colleges where mass education has become a large-scale project including alike students with a bent for scholarship and those who have scant intellectual interests.

The Toreador, nevertheless, is prone to agree with those few professors in Tech who believe juniors and seniors should be given a greater latitude of judgment in the matter of class attendance. For sometimes an hour in the library is worth ten lecture periods.

Embarrassing Moments

AND IT SO HAPPENS THAT MR. BERNIE BURNS IS HOLDING HIS VENTRILOQUIST FRIEND'S DUMMY FOR THE MOMENT.

THERE'S WORK TO BE DONE

While it is true that Tech has made exceedingly rapid progress in its seven years of history, there's yet much work to be done. The Toreador would like to see the following things accomplished on the campus:

- (1) More interest in college athletics. Every student should buy an athletic ticket and see every game in Tech in '33.
- (2) Social clubs get down to real work and do something constructive on the campus. There are numerous things to be done on the campus besides giving dances and "tea sippings."
- (3) A printing press so that The Toreador could be issued semi-weekly and eventually, daily.
- (4) A better spirit among the various classes.
- (5) Interest in the annual artist course numbers to such an extent that practically every student would attend the programs.
- (6) An auditorium and regular convocations, even if the latter has to be made compulsory.
- (7) A striving for higher scholastic standing in the college.
- (8) An even better support of the Matador band, which The Toreador believes to be one of the most beneficial organizations on the campus.
- (9) Final exam period shortened so a student going to college four years will not waste three months of this time trying to prove to his prof what he knows about the course.
- (10) Better working conditions among those making their way through college, and especially shorter hours for students working in boarding houses.
- (11) Board and room to stay as low if not lower than it has been this year.
- (12) Seniors graduate each spring before all underclassmen have gone home.
- (13) More liberty allowed The Toreador in its editorial columns.
- (14) Finally, a better Tech spirit which in turn will make Tech an even more ideal college than it now is.

—TT—

IT WAS "HOWDY"—NOW IT'S "GOOD-BYE"

Thirty-four issues back, The Toreador had as its leading editorial one entitled "Howdy." In this editorial we pledged our support to Tech's student body and to try to represent the student body, regardless of faculty opinion.

Today Volume VII of The Toreador gives way to next year's paper. And as the end comes we have no apologies to make. True, we have made mistakes, perhaps bad ones, but we assure you they were of judgment and not of the heart.

Perhaps many students, and we know a great majority of the faculty members, have disagreed with us in our editorials. These who have, however, we respect all the same. We have only worked for those things which we thought were better for Texas Tech. Our personal interests have been laid aside for we have had "no enemies to punish or friends to reward."

Today it's "Good-bye." The 1931-32 staff has done its best. Proudly, yet with a sigh of regret, we turn the reign over to next year's staff, feeling that it will give to the student body a representative Toreador.

The year has been full of happenings, some pleasant, others sad. We have attempted to put out a representative paper. We've done our best. Good-bye.

TIME AND TIDE

BY WILL BRISBARTON

EXIT

A SPECTACLE that always brings tears to my unresentful eyes is that of a senior class, capped and gowned, diploma in hand, marching in ceremonial pagantry out of the door and to the four winds of the world. In one impressive moment a vast audience stands in solemn respect and watches a class, banded together with bonds forged in four years of hectic association, literally disintegrate. Never again will that class be reassembled as they are on this final occasion. Friends-that-are-go, march out, many to become strangers again. Friends-that-might-have-been move on without having discovered each other. Some are conscious of achievement and march with steady tread to confidently expected further achievement. Some have worshipped at the shrine of gods—popularity, good times, prestige, ostentation, empty glory—and make their exit with hesitant step, dissatisfied to leave.

How different they are from the class of boys and girls that come to college four years ago. Besilemment has been replaced by sophisticated poise, innocence has been supplanted by bitter disillusionment with some, by an understanding wisdom with others. A bright-eyed little Sunday school girl has become a stereotyped college four years ago. A timid country girl has become a striking, well poised, intelligent leader. The idealistic young man has become an indolent cynic. The business-minded, butter-and-egg boy has got the information on how to make his fortune that he craves after. The husky low-brow has done his hazing and hell-raising and moves on—the same low-brow husky. The pious mother's boy has become a good fellow, having decided that respect for personality and decency do not greatly matter after all. The husky low-brow has done his hazing and hell-raising and moves on—the same low-brow husky. The pious mother's boy has become a good fellow, having decided that respect for personality and decency do not greatly matter after all.

I have seen many students who come to college out of good homes and found the tests of character too great. They had not been taught to recognize the situation that could make compromise of principles appear so desirable. College is a laboratory of life. Much living is concentrated into a short space of time. There is much experimentation, much "ing of wings." The orderly thinker finds his way about through the maze of ideas that crowd in upon him, but the majority of students are not "orderly" and easily lose their way. Many students' interests are mainly in superficialities—dancing, dates, rating, and such other things as form the froth but not the drink of college—and they dabble around and get an insecure grip on a conglomerate of ideas that confuse but do not educate. Knowledge, badly hashed up, is swallowed by them but does not nourish. Sadly enough, these students never realize what genuine living they are missing. The time that crowd in upon him, but the majority of students are not "orderly" and easily lose their way.

To have passion for tracing out "a sketch of thought," for pushing back the horizons of knowledge, for reveling in the beauty of literature and art, for piercing the dark recesses of the universe with a philosophic ray is to have a passion for richly experiencing life. This is the good life. This is the life of scholarship, and it is achieved through the gate of character.

Strong are the currents that sweep around the boatman. If muscles are deft, and strong, the currents are cleverly turned to advantage. The graduate who has studied the trends about him, who has schooled body and mind to master them, will leave the turbulent waters of college to glide into deeper and broader channels, perhaps to become master of a larger vessel, perhaps ultimately to sail where the canopy of the sky rests upon the sea. But not without the guide of character can one chart the course of his life, not without courage and convictions can one find the haven of happiness.

SOCRATES, who held that the highest virtue is to think and talk on virtue, that life is not worth living which is unexamined, that not life, but a good life, is to be chiefly valued, said, almost as he lifted the handle to his lips, "no harm can come to a good man."

Socrates, wisest of men, spoke from his deepest wisdom here. Men can afford to fail, to suffer death for the ignominy of deserting their cause or an idea, but they cannot principles for any gain of fear. So long as we stand valiantly by our guns the evil that comes to us is not evil, but our glory.

This, ladies and gentlemen, is my private and unolicited "commencement address." I wish I believed that this, or any other commencement address, ever accomplished the good that its author so much desired it to accomplish.

WITH gratifying certainty word has gotten around that all along Will Brisbarton has let somebody else write this column for him. Most of you with whom I have ever conversed have been able to pounce upon the writer as the perpetrator of these harangues. You have been generous enough to overlook many glaring defects and annoying mistakes to compliment such virtues as you felt to exist. These expressions have lent considerable encouragement and inspiration and I cannot write this to Time and Tide without giving a sincere expression of gratitude to these kind friends. The Toreador has a select constituency and I can think of nothing I would like better than to daily converse in such a column as this with such an intelligent and appreciative audience.

May each of you find success in your chosen field, preserve your health, and find happiness in your own way. This is my wish.

THE LINGERING GLANCE

(Editor's Note—The following article was written by the late President Paul W. Horn and by special permission is being printed in the final edition of The Toreador for 1931-32.)

It is rather a handsome living room in which I sit for a while in the evening and read and sometimes study. At least it seems so to me.

When time for retiring comes I switch off all the lights except one and then glance back at the room for a moment.

There are the chairs and the rug and the high mantel with the picture of the ship over it. There are the brass candlesticks containing the never lighted tapers. There is the tall, shaded reading lamp standing by the big chair. There are also a few books and magazines.

There is the dark sheen of the grand piano and the reflection of the white piece of marble above it. There is also the radio cabinet.

Sometimes there is a smoldering glow of the coals in the grate.

For richly experiencing life. This is the good life. This is the life of scholarship, and it is achieved through the gate of character.

Strong are the currents that sweep around the boatman. If muscles are deft, and strong, the currents are cleverly turned to advantage. Mysterious Mike Moses Around

Today's mail failed to bring MIKE any offer for jobs and he's decided to go back to the ranch and farm and punch cattle or hoe cotton. A kolidge education is shore the thing, thinks MIKE.

RALPH PENNEY is so conceited that recently on his own birthday he sent his mother a card of congratulations.

E. G. PHARR and LIZZIE PUTMAN is shore getting up a case ... MIKE sees them together pretty often nowadays.

JOE MITCHELL and R. M. HARP are two of a kind ... DICK CARTER can't do much necking now.

DEAD EYE DARR is shore got a way with the ladies, and he's about to fall in love.

MIKE heard that several kolidge Inn girls eat dinner at Cheri Cas the other day. While there they learned some new ways to deal bread and reach farther across the table.

HORACE DEAN expects to graduate some day, so he says. He ain't been here long yet though.

TURNER RUMMAN is a good fish ... So is FISH BIGHAM.

MIKE has warned several of these winning candidates that they had better enjoy their popularity now, for even if they were elected, remember that AL SMITH is lots popular today than HERB HOOVER.

MIKE thinks the LAS CHAPS ought to have a tea sipping every day instead of every other day.

MIKE thinks the seniors around here ought to be more dignified.

JOE LYLES is shore counting a heap here lately ... RUTH ALEXANDER would like to make a school teacher ... LOIS FREEMAN would like to get her master degree next year ... FRANK SILVER MADDOX shore had a time on his PHI PSI trip, especially the first day ... FISH WOOTEN needs having ... THE TARDOR is thinking of changing offices with DEAN GORDON ... MIKE is leavin' you now, hoping that when you graduate we will have turned the corner toward prosperity—but I believe we're going around a round-house. Good Luck—MIKE.

- Pay your traveling expenses from your home to the new field at San Antonio.

700 men are taken in each year. The course requires a year to complete and includes over 200 hours of solo flying. Those who stay the full year are commissioned as Lieutenants in the Air Corps Reserve.

If you don't like the training you may resign at any time. For example:

Should you stay three months and then resign you will receive $225.00 cash, your round trip expenses from your home to San Antonio, and about 50 hours of solo flying.

The service and associations of the Air Corps gives its members a very real distinction and a very noticeable breadth and poise.

If you haven't applied yet then by all means get our information. We tell you the entrance procedure and certain twists that make your getting in easier and quicker. The information written by men who have been thru the school covers all points from beginning to end that you are interested in knowing. This information cannot be obtained elsewhere; it is complete. Tech Ready For Second Coaching School, July 11-22

Under The Double "T"

BY LYLE HOLMES
Toreador Sports Editor

First of all in this last edition of the Toreador, I think it is nothing but proper that Coaches Cawthon, Smith, and Morgan should be given the heartiest of congratulations for the splendid athletic teams they have produced this year. Our coaches have brought to the school in several different ways. The Matador football team the past season will not soon be forgotten nor will the kicking they handed the strong Cowboy team in Abilene Thanksgiving Day.

Following football season Coach Cawthon immediately got to work and arranged for the very best coaches in America to conduct the coaching school to be held here this summer. Thousands of pamphlets have been sent to the coaches over the country which will mean that almost a thousand coaches will attend the school in July. This includes high school coaches, prep school coaches and university coaches, in fact all of them. This is probably the best advertising Tech and the Matador football team has ever been given.

This spring our coaches went a step further and held the Annual Texas Tech Relays. It was the largest track and field meet held in the entire state for high schools. Athletes came and saw Tech for the first time in their lives and left convinced they would enter school here later. And a last benefit I should say Coach Cawthon has been able to give Tech is just being here. The very presence of Cawthon at any college would give the school the best of recognition in an athletic way, and especially in football.

And while the subject of football and football teams is being discussed the uniforms of the Matadors for the coming season should get their due share of publicity. Jersey like the ones worn the current season will be used. Trousers and socks as red as Hades will make-up the lower part of the garb and a red helmet will be worn. The trousers are made of light weight wool and barely weigh over a pound. Pete Cawthon says the Matadors will burn 'em down in their new uniforms.

Captain Jack Durham was seen just a few days ago handing his reins over to Ross Ayers, co-captain for the coming year. Ayers has been greeted by having a better athlete than Jack Durham. Last year Jack won a trophy for being the hardest working man on the gridiron. During his reign here he has always given his best for the team and has cooperated with the coaches to the best of his ability. Next year you will probably read where he is coaching some championship team, such as Dennis Viment has done this year after leaving Tech. Luck to you Jack!

As a last minute reminder, every student should sign a pledge for an athletic ticket before he leaves, that is if he intends to return in the fall. This does not obligate the student in any way until fall and it will greatly aid the coaches in determining what kind of income will be derived from the sale of the tickets.

Tickets will be sold at depression prices. Five dollars for all athletic activities is very small, especially when such teams as S. M. U., A. & M., Baylor, Notre Dame and Colorado School of Mines appear on the schedule. Just for the football games alone the price would be small, but it includes track and basketball events also.

Lastly, I wish to thank the coaches and athletes for the splendid support they have given me towards obtaining athletic news. It has been a pleasure to act in the capacity of Sports editor this year.

THE END
Miss Mayme Teyford, associate professor of foods, will spend the summer at her home in West Union, W. Va.

JACK DURHAM - CAPTAIN

This year Captain Jack Durham, above, will graduate from Tech. He is president of the senior class, varsity letterman, and a leader of student activities. He made a lasting impression in the Simmons football game this past fall which Tech won 6 to 0. Jack will not be forgotten as one of the twelve "strong men" who carried on for Tech.

Hamilton High school turned Jack loose in the spring of 1927. Edulit Lake Durham long to select Texas Tech as his Alma Mater. The husky young high school graduate packed his belongings and grabbed a ride to Lubbock. Without stopping to find a rooming house, Durham scampered out to the Tech gridiron and announced to Coach Freedland that he was here to make the team.

Jack broke into the line-up sufficient number of times during the fall of 1929 to win a Double "T." At the close of the 1929 season the former Hamilton ace was elected to captain the 1930 Matador eleven. Last fall Durham led his team during their first season under the Cawthon coaching regime. Although his 1930 eleven failed to appear with regularly in the win column, Captain Jack kept his charges fired to high spirits in every game.

The past season Jack brought his Matadors through with flying colors.

Program Is Ended
Following entertainment in the form of lumbing and comedy wrestling, Manager Dutchey Smith announced the program officially over, but that a series of boxing bouts, would be held to determine championships.

Best Coaches Of Nation To Instruct Here

Second Annual Texas Tech Coaching School Promises To Be Outstanding One In Nation For 1932

BY LYLE HOLMES
Toreador Sports Editor

With the signing of Pop Warner, Tiny Thornhill, and Jack Meagher, Texas Technological college is assured of having the most outstanding array of coaches ever to instruct at a coaching school, for the Second Annual Coaching School to be held here July 11-22.

Hunk Anderson, Marcy Schwartz, Phog Allen, and Clyde Littlefield are the other coaches who have been selected by Coach P. W. Cawthon to instruct at the coaching school here.

Anderson and Schwartz will give instructions about the Notre Dame system of play. Anderson took Rockne's place, making a good showing his first year by winning six times, tying Northwestern, and losing to the Army. Marcy Schwartz was a unanimous selection for quarter-back on every All-American team.

Allen is Leading Coach
Dr. Forrest Allen, Kansas university, is the leading basketball coach in the United States today. While playing with Kansas City Athletic club, Allen was twice chosen All-American guard, since that time he has coached at Baker university, Haskell institute, Missouri State Teachers college, and he is now coaching at Kansas university. During his eleven years with Kansas he has won several championships.

Coach Littlefield is completing his twelfth year as coach of Texas university track teams. He has won six championships in the Southwest conference. His teams have won national championships in the four-mile relays at Drake, the medley relays at Kansas university, and the mile relay and 440 football relay at the Drake relays. Littlefield will give the fundamentals and demonstrations pertaining to track.

Jack Meagher, head coach at Rice institute, will devote his time to blocks, demonstrating all blocks and other details in that phase of football. Meagher played end for Notre Dame and was selected on Walter Camp's All-American team. During the three years he has been at Rice he has beaten Texas university two out of three games.

Warner To Be Here
Pop Warner, originator of the double wing back formation, has been selected to demonstrate his famous system. It is without a doubt as popular, if not the most popular, offense in football today. His system works because it has deceptive spinners, double spinners, reverses, and power all perfected where it can be used so as to be most effective. Warner recently signed a five-year contract to coach at Leland Stanford. He will advance his new double wing back formation with two men doing the spinner in the place of one. Tiny Thornhill and Winterburn will help Pop Warner with his line instructions. Thornhill has been with Warner since the Warner regime on the West coast.

Last year Tech had the largest coaching school in the United States.

Crawford and Montgomery Together In 'Letty Lynton'

Joan Crawford and Robert Montgomery appear as modern American lovers, and fight a dramatic battle to save their own romance, in 'Letty Lynton,' Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's much heralded filmization of the noted novel, Sunday, at the Lindsey Theater.

The story is a tense drama of the modern age, of society and intrigue, with an amazing dramatic climax in which the heroine faces the choice between prison and loss of her reputation. The plot deals with an heiress whose indiscretions crop up, in the form of a jealous and jilted lover, as she is about to find her life happiness.

DO YOU INHALE? A frank discussion at last on a subject that has long been 'taboo' 'LET sleeping dogs lie!' So said the cigarette trade when first we raised the subject of inhaling. But dodging an important issue is not Lucky Strike's policy! Do you inhale? That question is vitally important... for every smoker inhales—knowingly or unknowingly. Every smoker breathes in some part of the smoke he or she draws out of a cigarette! And the delicate membranes of your throat demand that your smoke be pure, clean—free of certain impurities! No wonder Lucky Strike dares to raise this vital question! For Luckies bring you the protection you want... because Luckies' famous purifying process removes certain impurities concealed in every tobacco leaf. Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it! So, whether you inhale knowingly or unknowingly, safeguard those delicate membranes! 'It's toasted' Your Throat Protection—against irritation—against cough
