Reagan hints at leniency for controllers

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, lamenting that he has become "estranged from labor," asked AFL-CIO leaders for a fresh start Wednesday and promised, for his part, that he will review the mass firings of air traffic controllers.

While the president was not specific on the issue, he did not rule out the possibility that the 11,500 controllers who were fired after an illegal strike Aug. 3 might be allowed back in the airport towers.

Deputy press secretary Larry Speakes quoted Reagan as telling the AFL-CIO leadership in an hour-long meeting that "I never anticipated I would be estranged from labor with all the years I put in as a union member."

"This would be a good point for us to consider starting over. We need consultations to get this country moving again," Reagan was quoted as saying.

A day earlier, Reagan told leaders of the Teamsters union he was considering whether to lift a three-year ban on any federal employment for the fired controllers. On Wednesday, according to the AFL-CIO contingent, he went a step further and said he "will review" the entire issue, including, presumably, whether to reinstate the controllers.

Speakes sought at a midday briefing, however, to minimize the possibility the controllers will be returned to their old jobs.

"That has not been discussed. We haven't reached that point," he said. "There are no plans now to put them (the controllers) back in the towers."

Speakes agreed that Reagan did not rule that out, though the question "did not come up specifically."

But in a formal statement later, AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland said the union leaders "urged returning these workers to their jobs so as to restore normal air traffic service as soon as possible, spare the public further inconvenience and permit the thousands of other furloughed air industry employees to return to work."

Reagan, a one-time president of the Screen Actors Guild, told the AFL-CIO leaders he is asking Vice President George Bush and Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan to meet regularly with a "broad cross-section" of labor leaders and to keep him informed of their needs and views, Speakes said.

Kirkland and other AFL-CIO leaders had declined any substantive comment following the meeting. But in the formal statement, Kirkland said AFL-CIO leaders reiterated to Reagan their concern about the economy in general and rising unemployment in particular.

"We acknowledged that labor's approach to national social and economic issues is at deep variance with that of the administration," Kirkland said.

"but urged the president to adopt a strong anti-recession program . . ."

"We welcome the president's assurances that labor will have timely opportunities to express its views on issues of mutual concern as the administration's position on these issues is being formulated," Kirkland said.

PATCO members here await word on rehiring

Local air traffic controllers are awaiting the Reagan administration's decision on whether the fired Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization (PATCO) members will be rehired to federal employment.

After an illegal strike Aug. 3, 11,500 controllers were fired and barred from federal employment.

"Everything is very speculative," Charles Josey, assistant to the PATCO regional vice president, told The University Daily Wednesday.

Josey said Reagan's decision to review the mass firings of air traffic controllers is timed with his meetings this week with leaders of the AFL-CIO and Teamsters unions.

Reagan told members of the Teamsters union Tuesday he is considering lifting a three-year ban on any federal employment for the fired controllers, Josey said.

Local PATCO president Mike Bern said, "If the president is recognizing some problem with the firings of the traffic controllers and opening up possibilities and discussing or alleviating the problems, then that's a good sign."

"It's a very involved situation that got us into this mess in the first place," Bern said. "We haven't been offered any opportunities yet."

Senate resolution

Teller machines on campus?

By SUSAN CORBETT

UD Reporter

Tech Student Senators tonight will consider a resolution urging the Board of Regents and the Office of Student Affairs to investigate the installation of automated teller machines (ATMs) on campus.

The senate's last scheduled meeting of the semester will begin at 8 p.m. in the Senate Room of the University Center.

See related story, p. 6

Sens. Debbie Schoemaker and Jim Fowler said in the resolution the major banks of Lubbock should have ATMs in a central, convenient location on campus. A suggested location is the northeast corner of the University Center.

Another resolution the senate will consider deals with a program implemented by other schools in which written tests are given in lieu of fines for minor traffic violations.

The proposed test would cover safety techniques and basic driving requirements. Booklets would be available for students to study when they receive traffic tickets, Student Association Internal Vice President Charlie Hill said.

"This would cover minor violations like parking on yellow lines because someone else has parked illegally. The test would help educate people about safety rules. About the only thing it would hurt is the revenue Traffic and Parking collects," Hill said.

Another resolution calls for two rows of parking spaces to be marked reserved for Rec Center patrons without commuter stickers.

After noon, a two-hour limit would apply to the reserved spaces. Rec Center parking would not affect the sale of commuter stickers because the parking would be available after the prime time for classes, Schoemaker said in the resolution.

The Senate Rules Committee will release a revised senate election code for review. The bill will be officially considered during the January and February meetings, Hill said.

One resolution to be introduced would limit football cheerleading activities to a select set of cheers without the use of a loudspeaker. The resolution's author, Jim Fowler, said many students are unfavorably influenced by the unnecessary and dispensable cheerleaders.

"Fan's attitudes are evidenced by either ignoring the cheerleaders at football games or mutilating their loudspeaker system," Fowler said in the resolution.

A bill to be introduced would establish a fall reception for SA members to informally meet with administrators and city officials. If passed, the reception would be scheduled for Dec. 10. The function would also serve as an occasion to honor Glenn Barnett, former Tech vice president for Planning.

Education would be candidate's priority

By GAIL FIELDS

UD Reporter

Public higher education is just one area on which Texas Sen. Peyton McKnight (D-Tyler) and Governor Bill Clements differ, McKnight said Wednesday.

"Public higher education will be at the top of my priorities. The area (is one) I think the governor is not looking at," McKnight said.

McKnight, who announced his candidacy for the governorship in October, spoke at a press conference in Lubbock.

"The governor has made a lot of empty promises, and he's trying to cover them by saying again he's going to return a billion dollars to the taxpayers. But he's not telling you he's taking it from Texas Tech and many other schools throughout the state . . .," McKnight said.

McKnight said he has been working to reduce the 10-cent ad valorem tax to 3 cents. He mentioned the Midwestern State University lawsuit recently filed against the state's imposition of the tax.

"We tried to reduce it (the tax) to 3 cents. We would put a $2 billion-dollar cap on it, and it would take care of the schools outside those other (UT and A&M) systems," McKnight said.

In the past six months, the University of Texas and Texas A&M University boards of regents have made moves to limit enrollment at the Austin and College Station campuses, McKnight said. Limiting enrollments at UT-Austin and A&M would increase enrollment growth at the other schools in the state.

McKnight said he did not vote for the proposed 100 percent medical school tuition increase that failed to pass the last session of the Texas Senate. He said college tuition may increase in the future, but not to the extent of the increases proposed in the last session.

Energy is another area on which McKnight said he differs with Clements.

"I've been spokesman in the legislature on industry problems since I've been there and I don't know of any contributions Gov. Clements has made," McKnight said.

McKnight said he did not support Clements' water trust fund plan for several reasons. McKnight said he tried to divide the plan into three different amendments because he thought the effective part of the plan was the proposed state guaranteed bonding authority that would give localities the ability to sell their bonds at a better rate.

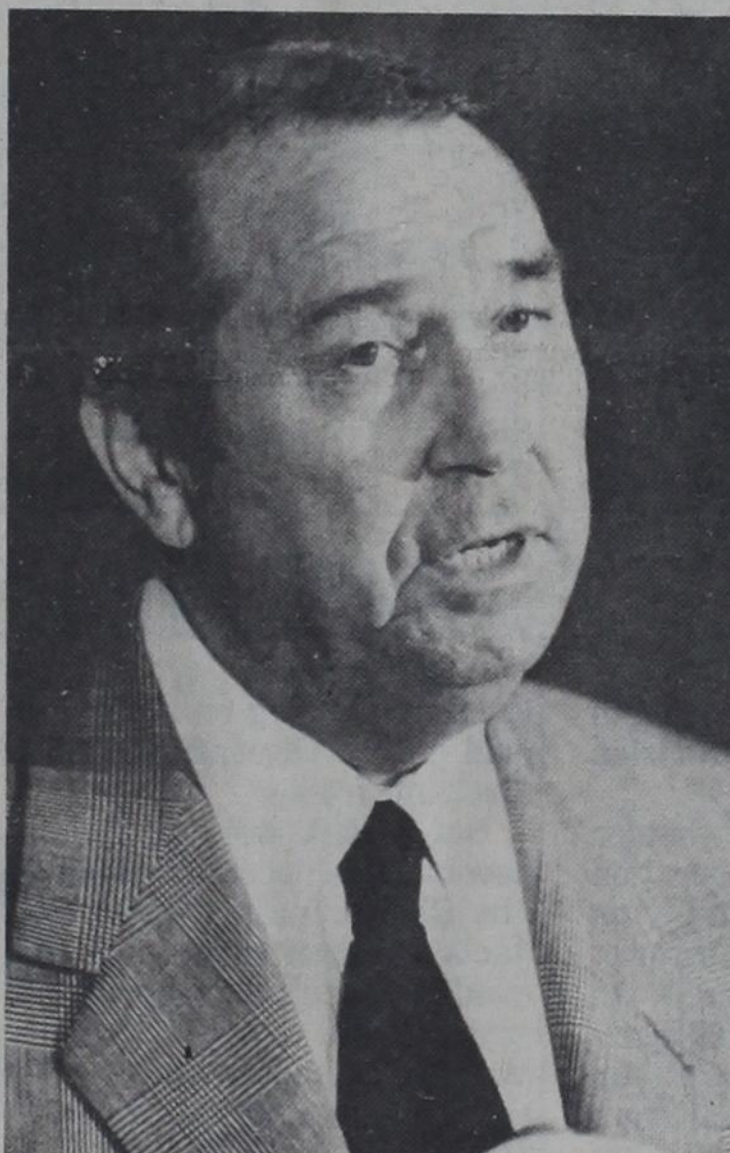

"The big drawback to that plan was that we were throwing money into a plan when there was no existing plan," McKnight said. "I believe that plan, when it was formulated, was done in haste and without the planning and thought that should go into a statewide water plan."

He said he believes the plan may be more advantageous to some East Texas cities than to West Texas.

"That plan didn't even speak to the overall problem of importation of water to the great agricultural breadbasket of the High Plains and Panhandle," McKnight said.

McKnight said one of his strong points in the race for governor is his ability to identify problems and act on them. McKnight said he would have handled the prison construction problem differently than Clements.

He said he was disappointed in Clements' decision to veto the Starr County prison site about three years ago.

Reporting a rape is traumatic, but worthwhile

(Editors Note: This is the third of a four-part series on the work of the Lubbock Rape Crisis Center.)

By BILL MILLER

UD Staff

When a rape victim decides to prosecute, she is usually in for one of the most drawn-out, traumatic experiences of her life. But Lubbock Rape Crisis Center officials believe a conviction is worth it.

The LRCC encourages reporting of any sexual violation. If prosecution is sought by a victim, the LRCC caseworker is trained to handle questions that may occur, LRCC Director Becky Cannon said.

Caseworkers will be made available to help the victim through any legal proceedings, including a court trial.

The legal aspect of rape follows the medical exam. At some point in the exam, the victim will be approached by a uniformed policeman, an LRCC manual states.

The officer may ask questions regarding the circumstances of the assault and the description of the rapist(s), the manual said.

Initial contact by police will be brief, and the officer usually will not take a detailed statement from the victim, since the physical and emotional status of the victim could be unstable, Lubbock police detective James Ashmore said.

If the victim indicates that she will not prosecute, a caseworker will ask the victim to talk to the Detective Division for information about the rapist.

The information she has may help another victim who is willing to prosecute, the LRCC manual states.

When a rape case is reported — even if the victim does not want to prosecute — the chances are great the rapist has raped someone else who wants to prosecute, Lubbock Police Information Officer-Bill Morgan said.

If she refuses to talk to police, a caseworker will ask for the victim's permission to give any information the caseworker has obtained to police, the training manual states.

Third in a series

The victim can give information either directly or indirectly to the police without a formal record made of her statement.

A victim may want to give a detailed statement to police. Law enforcement officials must determine from her statement if penetration occurred and what sexual offense actually has been committed, the manual states.

Depending on the case circumstances, a victim may be asked to look at mug shots, take a polygraph test or view a lineup.

A simple statement that the victim was raped is not sufficient for police. Officers must ask questions that may appear to be personal since all events connected with the rape help police build a potential case.

Former Tech student convicted of rape

By PETE McNABB

UD Reporter

The man accused of raping four Lubbock women within the last four months, including two Tech students this semester and a 14-year-old girl, was convicted of one of the aggravated rapes Wednesday afternoon in Corpus Christi.

A nine-man, three-woman Corpus Christi jury took only 46 minutes to find Ronald Pylant, a 22-year-old former Tech student, guilty of the Sept. 16 aggravated rape of a Tech woman.

The trial was moved from Lubbock to Corpus Christi on a change of venue.

Pylant was accused of taking snapshot pictures with a Polaroid-type camera during the attack on the Tech student and watching them develop in front of the woman.

The jury today is scheduled to assess punishment for Pylant or elect to allow presiding Judge Thomas Clinton of Lubbock to sentence the convicted rapist.

Aggravated rape is a first-degree felony, punishable by five- to 99-years imprisonment and a fine not to exceed $10,000.

The punishment phase of the trial began shortly after the jury returned the guilty verdict at 2:55 p.m.

Prosecuting attorney Jim Darnell of Lubbock called witnesses Becky Cannon, director of the Lubbock Rape Crisis Center, and Roland Ralston, a Lubbock police officer, to testify as character witnesses.

The trial began Tuesday in a spare courtroom in the Nueces County Courthouse in Corpus Christi. It was transferred to the Gulf Coast city, 650 miles from Lubbock, on a request by Pylant's attorney Floyd Holder because of the large amount of pretrial publicity the case had received in Lubbock.

The aggravated rape Pylant was convicted of Wednesday involved an incident at a Lubbock supermarket where the Tech woman came from shopping to find a flat tire on her car.

The woman testified she accepted Pylant's offer to help change the flat and then drove with him to a service station where an attendant repaired the tire.

After leaving the service station, the woman testified she drove Pylant to a Loop 289 access road where Pylant told her his car was nearby. At that point, Pylant turned on her, grabbed her and held a knife to her throat, the woman said.

Later that night, the man had her drive to a remote location in West Lubbock where he raped her in some tall grass. She said he repeatedly told her he would kill her if she made any noise.

The woman said her assailant stopped several times during the rape to take flash photographs. He watched them develop, then resumed his attack, she testified.

Senior Week an opportunity for graduates to aid Tech

Inez Russell

Confusion seems to grow as semesters finally wind to an end. But for many Tech students, the ending of one semester is simply the beginning for life after graduation.

For December graduates, the pressure of finals is intertwined with the frenzy of the holiday season. Amidst this rush, much of the ceremony that goes with graduation is apt to be overlooked.

One custom that could go by the wayside in all the hurry is Senior Week — a time set aside by the Ex-Students Association each semester for graduating seniors to get acquainted with the Association.

Senior week begins Monday and will run through Dec. 11. As part of the week, seniors are encouraged to drop by the Ex-Students Association to receive their free set of Texas Tech glasses and to fill out a questionnaire for the Association's records.

So what?

What makes this plea for your time in a busy portion of the year so important? Why should a senior bother to take time out to look around the Ex-Students Association?

The answer to that is simple. A university, for the most part, is as strong as its alumni association.

Dorm life

To the Editor:

The enclosed essay is a Freshman English writing assignment. Getting it published is how I get a grade. If I fail to get it published I will make an F. My professor is requesting that I get a short note back from the editor expressing whether or not the essay will be published, and if so, in what edition. Either way your notification would be greatly appreciated.

Dorm Life - Fun or Frustrating?

Dorm life can be fun but mostly it is frustrating. A roommate can be a great friend, but she can also be the dark cloud behind the silver lining. Here is a typical day as I well know it.

As I am rudely awakened by a long resounding buzz, Rachael gets up quietly to turn off the alarm. She slips quickly into the shower. I roll over, put my head under the pillow, and am lulled back to sleep by the constant sound of water running. The sweet bliss of sleep does not last long, for Rachael gets out of the shower, turns on the light, and starts up the motorcycle-sounding hair dryer.

She finishes getting ready, grabs her belongings, and as I roll over, she catches my eye and innocently says, "Oh sorry; hope I didn't wake you." I mumble a few words, assuring her, "It's okay."

I go back to sleep until I absolutely must get up.

After a full day of classes I come home ready to get into a hot shower. The only problem is that Robert, Rachael's boyfriend, has come over. So I sit and chat for a few minutes; and upon realizing that Robert isn't leaving anytime soon, I decide to go eat dinner.

After dinner and a couple of hours at a friend's room, I decide it's safe to go home. Actually I have no choice because I have a long night of studying ahead. When I get there Robert is gone and "Rockin Rachael" has her favorite Journey album playing at a rock level.

I ask her, "Would you please turn it down. I have a big test to study for." Rachael cooperatively turns it down; now it's only moderately loud.

At about 9:30 Rachael gets ready for bed since she gets up earlier than I do, and by 10 she turns her lights off and says, "It won't bother me if you keep those bright lights on. Go ahead and study in here."

With a helpless feeling I get together my books and tell her, "I can just as easily go in the bathroom and study." And so ends another day in the dorm.

Intelligence work of ex-CIA agents should be stopped

Flora Lewis

PARIS — A well-cast gunman, dark, handsome, neatly bearded and wearing a black leather jacket, emptied his Biretta at the U.S. Charge d'Affaires, Christian Chapman, as he was going to work here recently.

Fortunately, it wasn't a faultless script. The man aimed poorly. Chapman took cover quickly and escaped unharmed. The man walked away. Police found six empty cartridges, two bullet holes in the embassy car, and no trace of the would-be assassin.

The presumption was that he was sent by Colonel Khadafy of Libya because of reports that the Libyan leader ordered reprisals on U.S. diplomats in France and Italy for the shooting down of two of his planes over the Gulf of Sidra during the summer.

Chapman, now well-guarded, was remarkably cool about the incident and said firmly that the only way to deal with such things was to go on about America's affairs and "show we can't be intimidated." But, he added, he still felt as though he'd been in a bad movie.

That's the worst of it. Reality is blurring into melodrama and there is a tendency to react as though everything is a scenario good for a passing thrill.

A new politics-apocalypse novel called "Barrells" has come out here. The two Frenchmen who wrote it stick so closely to headlines that the U.S. secretary of state is called Gen. Baigh, the secretary of defense is Heinenberg, and the vice president is George Rusch.

Similar minor changes identify Soviet, Chinese and Saudi leaders, and the book is so freshly baked that it includes the assassination of President Sadat — not terribly imaginative.

People are reading it in the way they used to read Nostradamus, "to find out what's going to happen to us," as a French friend put it. (Hint: it turns out to be bad but not the end of the world.) The passive acceptance of conspiracy and tuggery has leapt the bounds of fiction.

My point is aimed specifically at the bemused or helpless reaction to revelations about ex-CIA agents who provided Khadafy with fiendish devices and special training ostensibly developed to protect America from enemies.

Edwin P. Wilson and Frank E. Terpil, the two men named, are hiding out in Arab lands.

Nothing seems to be pressing in their case except the provision of news copy.

It remains unclear whether they had active cooperation from CIA employees in giving their business of terrorist manufacture CIA cover — an ironic reversal of secret agency. But they were able to buy the tools for "dirty tricks" from CIA suppliers and to hire ex-Green Berets. Scarcely anybody seems upset because the laws don't forbid that.

The laws forbid naming CIA agents or writing books about agency operations without clearance, and now the Congress is working on a law that will permit CIA infiltration on the home front.

But it isn't working on any law to punish people trained by the CIA for putting their contacts and their expertise at the paid service of people who order the assassination of American diplomats.

Press inquiries into this extraordinary case indicate that the reluctance of the intelligence community to urge action stems from the buddy system. Old agents don't rat on each other.

That's scarcely different from honor among thieves, a stirring fiction, but here the subject is the real intelligence activities of the U.S. and the real lives of America's public servants.

Meanwhile, Exxon has announced that it is pulling out of its oil operation in Libya, and Mobil is "reviewing" its deal there. But the reason is not patriotic indignation, nor even fear for the safety of employees.

It is simply business as usual, bad business now because Libya's extra-high oil prices are causing losses to the companies in the current soft market.

There is no shortage of American denunciations of Khadafy for his preference for violence and bribery in the conduct of foreign affairs, nor even of dark rumors to frighten him with plots against Libya. But there has been a remarkable shortage of disgust at the ease with which Americans have moved on to private enterprise with Anti-American clients.

Only a few years ago, Congress and the public reacted strongly to corrupt practices of U.S. companies abroad that pleaded they were only doing what others did to get ahead.

Terpil, interviewed in Beirut recently, had a succinct answer to the question of how a man goes from working for his country to becoming "a renegade spook for hire."

"A buck is a buck is a buck," he said, and once a person is a spy, "That's his only, that's primarily his livelihood, that's what he knows."

The far more important question is: how has a country come to tolerate teaching its citizens to kill and deceive on the public payroll and then go into the same business for themselves when the price is right?

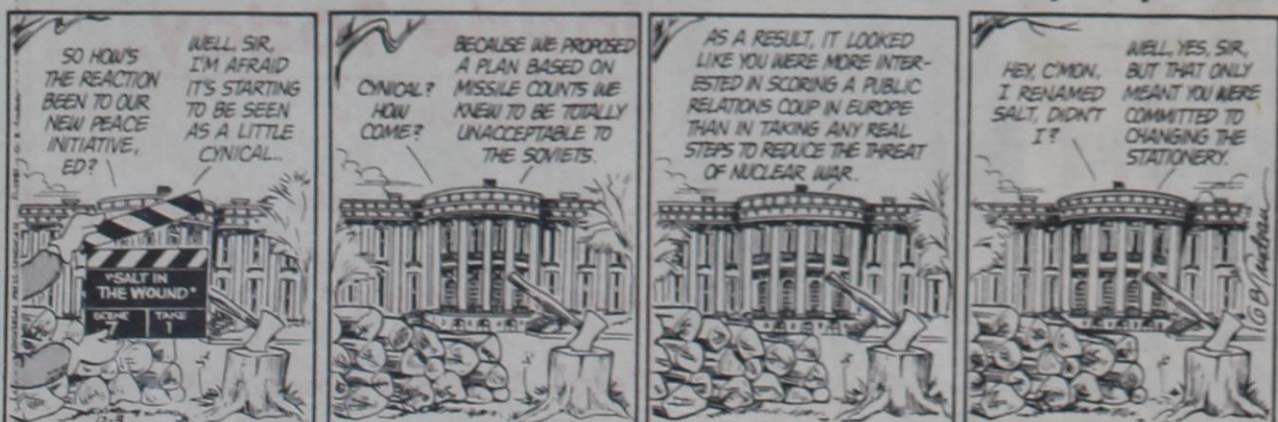

Or have we become so mesmerized by the cynicism of fictional skulduggery that we take for granted such things will happen and there's nothing to be done but switch the channel and the story?

Broadway entrance closed

The main campus entrance at the corner of Broadway and University Avenue will be closed indefinitely, university officials said Wednesday.

Continuing work on the University Avenue widening project is the reason for the entrance's closing. No one could say for sure how long the entrance will remain closed, but most persons associated with the project said it would be closed for nearly two weeks.

Redistricting court order upheld

AUSTIN (AP) — A federal appeals court Wednesday refused to block a lower court order forcing Gov. Bill Clements to answer questions about his role in congressional redistricting.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans turned down Clements' request to block the order of a three-judge panel here, which ruled Clements must give the deposition by Friday.

Clements could be held in contempt of court if he disobeys the order, according to Assistant Attorney General Rick Gray.

CIA chief found fit for office

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Intelligence Committee handed William J. Casey a tepid endorsement Wednesday to stay on as CIA director, but declared he had displayed "an insufficient appreciation" of his obligation to be open and truthful with Congress.

In a statement notable for its negative phrasing, the committee said its four-month investigation into the intelligence chief's past business dealings found "no basis ... for concluding that Mr. Casey is unfit" to stay in office.

At the same time, the panel criticized Casey for being "at minimum inattentive to detail" and said his financial disclosures to Congress "were deficient in several respects."

Solidarity orders nationwide alert

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Solidarity ordered a nationwide alert and called its leaders into emergency session Wednesday after Polish commandos stormed a firefighters' school, routed protesting cadets and arrested nine unionists.

Solidarity chief Lech Walesa ordered local chapters to await word from national leaders before declaring a strike, and cautioned them to be on the guard for other police actions.

Committee on Aging approves resolution opposing SS cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pressured by hundreds of chanting dissidents outside, a key committee at the White House Conference on Aging approved a resolution Wednesday opposing any current or future cuts in Social Security.

The compromise position came after nearly three hours of closed door negotiations between 81-year-old Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., the dissident's fiery spokesman, and conference leaders.

Pepper, striding through the crowd of demonstrators, had demanded to address the committee drafting the conference position on Social Security.

After a brief standoff, he was ushered into a back room, where the compromise resolution was hammered out.

The Committee on Economic Well-Being, which the dissidents charged was stacked with Reagan supporters, voted nearly unanimously to oppose cuts in current Social Security benefits and agreed to "strongly recommend that Congress make every possible and fiscally responsible effort ... to maintain no less than the real protection that is currently provided to all participants."

unionists seized at the school.

No casualties resulted in the 90-minute raid begun when the commandos jumped onto the roof of the five-story building from a huge helicopter, and burst through street-level doors at 10 a.m.

"It was non-violent and we offered no resistance to give them an excuse," said one of the 320 cadets ousted after a week-long occupation. "They didn't beat us, they just pushed a bit."

Witnesses said about 500 commandos, backed by 4,000 to 5,000 police and army troops, were on hand during the operation.

The cadets, who had sought civilian status so they could be covered by a new law on academic reforms, were told to go home. But many defied the order, and flocked to Solidarity union offices.

The raid was conducted in full view of the residents of the northern Zoliborz district, suggesting that the authorities wanted their new "get tough" policy to be apparent to all.

As rumors spread through the city, several thousand people converged on the scene. When police took the cadets away, the crowd whistled and jeered derisively and shouted epithets at police.

Solidarity worker guards, wearing red-and-white arm-bands and carrying bullhorns worked furiously to calm the crowd and hours after the raid assured the people that no cadets remained in the building, or had been beaten.

At one point, the crowd forced a bus taking the cadets away to turn around and yell, "You are heroes, you have the whole country with you."

The raid, the biggest show of force since Solidarity was formed 16 months ago, appeared to represent a new firmness on the part of the authorities. The Communist Party has demanded an end to strikes, and called on Parliament to grant the government "extraordinary" powers.

The occupation of the firefighters' school was doubly sensitive, since the school is under the jurisdiction of the Interior Ministry which controls the police.

Boy with aging disease meets Disneyland idol

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Shy, 8-year-old Fransie Geringer, a little old man who, like Pinocchio longs to be a normal boy, met his fairy-tale idol at Disneyland Wednesday after a trip halfway around the world.

It was a wish-upon-a-star dream come true for the wizened, bald child from Orkney, South Africa, who suffers from a rare aging disease called progeria.

While Fransie smiled and giggled at Pinocchio's gestures — but said nothing — a newfound friend from Texas, a victim of the same disease, tweaked Mickey Mouse's ears and nose.

Fransie once thought he was alone in suffering from progeria, which ages its victims 10 times faster than normal, stunts growth and often results in death by the teen years.

An AP News Feature

The naughty wooden marionette, Pinocchio, has had special significance for Fransie since a Pinocchio doll was put in his crib in infancy. The 19th century storybook character won a struggle to become a normal boy.

"It's not nice to be the only one," Fransie, whose arthritic walk resembles the jerky movements of a marionette, once told his mother.

Then, Sunday, Fransie met 9-year-old Mickey Hays of Hallville, Texas, and together the little old boys went to Disneyland to meet their favorite characters.

Mickey headed straight for Mickey Mouse, the character he most admires because "that's my name."

"You're not a real mouse. You're a dressed-up girl," the cocky little Texan told his new friend. "I knew that all the time."

Fransie, a timid child, giggled throughout the private hour-long meeting as Pinocchio, a traditionally silent character, communicated by gestures.

Pinocchio gave Fransie a Pinocchio watch and signed his autograph book with "Fransie, be a good boy like me. Love, Pinocchio."

Fransie journeyed to the United States with his family after an Associated Press article in August told of his struggle against progeria and his dream of meeting Pinocchio. Hundreds of North Americans sent donations ranging from $1 to $400 to Fransie's family or contributed to various funds established in his behalf.

Texans, meanwhile, raised money to send Mickey to Disneyland at the same time. The boys have been almost inseparable since they met.

After the private meeting with their heroes, the boys were taken by Pinocchio, Mickey Mouse and other Disney characters to a group of 50 to 75 reporters who had been jostling for position for half an hour.

A Disneyland spokesman asked the reporters to keep the coverage low-key because "physiologically, they are 80 years old and a lot of shouting could put a strain on them or even be dangerous."

Fransie, smiling more and more at repeated hugs from the costumed humans, kept well within their reach. Mickey, however, several times approached a rope separating the boys from reporters.

Houston 7-Eleven clerk may really be a robber

HOUSTON (AP) — The man behind the cash register at the 7-Eleven store who rings up sales and says, "Thanks and hurry back" might be an armed robber posing as a clerk while his comrades are robbing the safe in a back room, police say.

Detectives said Wednesday they are investigating about 20 gang holdups of convenience stores in Houston since Oct. 5 in which one of the bandits wears the clerk's smock and waits on unsuspecting customers.

"They force the clerks into a restroom or a storeroom at gunpoint," said Tom H. Bennett, a crime analysis officer. He said so far, no one has been hurt in the robberies.

"Most of them have been happening in the early morning hours when the store would not have that many customers anyway," said Bennett.

Reporting a rape ...

The grand jury determines if there is enough evidence to bring the suspect to trial.

The victim must testify before the grand jury. The defendant and his attorney are not present during her testimony.

The grand jury is a closed, secret meeting. All testimony the jurors hear is to be kept secret by law to protect the rape victim from possible revenge by the suspected rapist.

Three-fourths of the jurors must vote to indict a defendant. The defendant is then bound over for trial in a district court.

If a "no bill" occurs, the defendant is not bound for trial and charges may be dismissed.

During the trial, the victim must be willing to testify in one of the five district courts in Lubbock.

The district attorney's office represents the State of Texas and is responsible for prosecution, Jim Darnell, assistant district attorney, said. The rape victim is the primary witness for the state, Darnell said.

During the trial, a defense attorney will try to find any flaws or errors in the rape victim's testimony. In many instances, the defense attorney plays "devil's advocate" in a rape trial, said Lubbock attorney Thomas Cannon, Becky Cannon's husband.

"He will try to misrepresent the victim's good community status," Thomas Cannon said. "If allowed, he will try to place reasonable doubt in a juror's mind to discredit the victim's testimony. He will try anything allowed by law to get a 'not guilty' verdict for his client, but that is his job as a defense attorney."

"As a defense attorney, I will try to discredit all the victim's testimony. I will give my best effort for my client," Cannon said.

Cross-examination will be intense and the victim must be ready to answer any questions, he said.

Lubbock Police reports indicate 61.2 percent of all reported rape cases were cleared last year.

The Texas Penal Code defines rape as a second-degree felony punishable by not less than two years or more than 20 years imprisonment or a fine not to exceed $10,000.

Careers: Placement center helps students enter real world

By JULIE SHIVERS
UD Staff

Planning career goals, seminars and interviews are services offered by the Texas Tech Career Planning and Placement Service Center.

And though there are more than 20,000 students at Tech, only a small percentage take advantage of the service.

All alumni, undergraduate and graduate students are eligible to use the service, but many do not know the office exists.

"Students with the most opportunities make use of the office. Many do not use it because of a lack of information concerning the services," Ed Freeman, career counselor at the service, said.

The office provides a number of valuable services, including career counseling, on-campus interviewing, seminars and workshops, job vacancy lists, referrals, mailing of credentials and a library.

Students who need assistance in deciding career objectives, employment possibilities and developing effective job hunting skills can receive help from Freeman.

"I mostly counsel professional students," he said. "They have gone to school for 16 years and all of a sudden that career is ending. They come up against an anxiety wall and discover it is a whole new ball game out there."

If there is a problem, Freeman said, he and the student work on self assessment, resumes and academic or profession concerns.

On-campus interviews are available to students and alumni who have registered at the office.

Representatives from business, industry, government agencies and educational institutions routinely conduct interviews for recruitment. Schedules are revised and distributed every two weeks.

Freeman said seminars and workshops are conducted to help correct problems a student may have and offer guidance.

The seminars may be on an individual basis or involve a large group. Sessions may be conducted by professors, one of the staff professionals or by interested organizations and groups, he said.

Job vacancy lists are updated every two weeks. Lists are separated into education, business (includes liberal arts and home economics), science and engineering.

Employers who have open positions on request may receive referrals of candidates.

This is done in connection with a "credential" file, Freeman said. A file can be established by any senior or graduate student within a year of graduation.

The file includes a summary of personal employment and educational data, coursework information and letters of recommendation.

Postage pinch affecting cards

By DARIA DOSS
UD Reporter

Some Lubbock Christmas card retailers are feeling the pinch of two postage increases this year, and one national mail order card company is hurting too.

Postage went up last March from 15 cents to 18 cents, and it went up to 20 cents in November.

Kay Callaway, owner of Town and Country Gift Shop, said box Christmas card sales have dropped significantly from the same time last year.

"We'll be lucky if our total Christmas card sales are a third of what sales were last year," Callaway said.

She said the store has sold about a fourth of its orders. Orders were tripled this year.

Callaway said she didn't anticipate postage increases at the time she placed her orders.

"The big sales should have been in November, but they weren't," she said.

Counter Christmas card sales also are down. Customers are saying they are buying cards only for relatives this year, she said.

On the national mail order card level, Miles Kimball's sales are down about 20 percent. However, the president of the company said decreases in sales are cyclical and that sales probably will go up next year after people get used to paying 20 cents for mailing.

The president said he doesn't see abandonment of Christmas card sending in the future because "Christmas cards are a way for people to keep in touch."

"Christmas cards are an attractive means of communication," he said.

Jan Lynch, manager of The Christmas Shoppe, said she is not even carrying Christmas cards this year. "We had about a 50-percent slack-off last year from the year before, so I decided not to order cards this year," she said.

"If we sold box and counter cards this year, we wouldn't make much of a profit because of the increase in postage," Lynch said.

However, not all Christmas card sales are down.

Joe Perry, West Texas district manager for Coach House Cards and Gifts, said overall card sales are up 5 percent for the South Plains Mall store.

Perry said the next week to 10 days will be the busiest time of the season.

Reagan heart attack rumor — he's fine

NEW YORK (AP) — Rumors swept Wall Street that President Reagan had suffered a heart attack Wednesday, but White House officials quickly denied the reports.

The rumors caused no noticeable affect on trading.

White House spokesmen said they had been swamped with calls about the rumor.

"There's just nothing to it," said deputy press secretary Peter Roussel. "I just saw the man 20 seconds ago."

Consumer group remains unused SA service

By SUSAN CORBETT
UD Reporter

The Tech Student Association, regarded by other SAs as the state leader for student services, has at least one service that has remained unused since last spring.

Last spring the SA Consumer Commission arbitrated a business discrepancy between a student and a flower shop. Since then, no student has requested the representation of Shane McWhorter, executive director of SA external affairs, as a means of solving consumer affairs problems with Lubbock businesses.

"It's sad. We have a service to offer but no one has taken advantage of it," McWhorter said.

"We are the liaison between students and businesses. With 22,000 students on campus, during the Christmas season, there have got to be problems we could take care of," McWhorter said.

McWhorter said Lubbock merchants thrive on Tech students' business and therefore must be receptive to SA attempts to improve consumer relations.

One reason the service has remained dormant is poor advertising of the Consumer Commission, McWhorter said.

"We're going to revamp the advertising part of it. For instance, nowhere on the pamphlet does it say Tech.

"It mentions the SA down at the bottom. It does nothing to really reach out and grab you," McWhorter said.

The current pamphlet is a small, green sheet that gives a brief explanation of the commission. Four other Tech students are making plans for the pamphlet's new design, which will be available next semester, McWhorter said.

Even though the commission is not used, it experienced a change this semester. A working relationship with the faculty, not upheld in about five years, was renewed this year.

Chairman of higher education Dayton Roberts is the commission's faculty advisor.

"We're thinking about getting the faculty actively involved to add continuity to the group. Everyday something related to consumer affairs turns up in conversation," Roberts said.

Consumers are apathetic about raising the smallest issues when the least amount of attention could bring about reform, he said.

port, and I noticed very high prices on their merchandise. I made an inquiry that led to the firing of the assistant manager caught with his hand in the till," Roberts said.

Since then, Roberts termed his consumer affairs ideology with the acronym CAWT for Consumer Action-West Texas.

Roberts said the SA has never been as active in consumer affairs since 1977, when the blue laws raised so much controversy. The other major area of student interest in past years was rental and deposit problems with apartment managers, Roberts said.

A representative of the Better Business Bureau invited the commission to an arbitration seminar. McWhorter said the seminar was not helpful.

Relations between the commission and the BBB were strained earlier in the year. A man who said he was from the BBB spoke out of turn at a Student Senate meeting, bringing allegations of negligence against the commission. The man said he called the SA office and was told that no one knew who managed the commission. The man told senators he wanted to help the commission prosper.

McWhorter said he knew nothing of the incident.

California woman, 35, charged with killing 1 infant, abusing 20

MARTINEZ, Calif. (AP) — Parents say Eleanor Nathan welcomed their children into her day care home with a hug and a kiss. But police say that once they were inside she punched, kicked and choked them, and she now is charged with killing one infant and abusing 20 others.

Bail was set at $250,000 for Nathan, 35, who did not enter a plea at her arraignment Tuesday in Mt. Diablo Municipal Court. She was charged with one count of murder and 18 felony and two misdemeanor counts of willful cruelty toward children.

"You just wouldn't dream such a lovely person could be responsible for what was going on," said Betty Schaaf, whose 2-year-old son was hospitalized in August for symptoms of strangulation.

"They'd always be greeted at the door by a sweet word, a smile, a hug and a kiss.

But one girl told her mother, 'She (Nathan) seems nice, but when she closes the door she becomes a witch,'" said Schaaf.

Nathan was arrested Monday after a two-month police and sheriff's department investigation.

Authorities closed the day care center on Sept. 24. It had operated for four years illegally without a license, said Assistant District Attorney Joe Campbell.

Court documents showed Nathan lost a license to operate a day care center in South San Francisco in the early 1970s. A year-old boy died of "abdominal injuries" while under her care in 1973 but no charges were filed against her, said Campbell.

The affidavits claim that between 1979 and September of this year, 39 children ranging in age from 11 months to 7 years either were abused or witnessed abuse at Nathan's stylish home in Clayton, an east San Francisco Bay city where she lived with her husband, Maynard, and a 9-year-old daughter.

In taped interviews with police investigators, children told tales of being punched, kicked, choked, shaken upside down, denied food and water and shut in dark rooms for long periods.

Asked by Sheriff's Sgt. Al Snell if other youngsters "get in trouble if they did anything wrong," one 6-year-old said, "Uh-huh, she chokes us."

The boy said that tots who wet their pants were often beaten or forced to sit on their knees.

If they cried during the punishment, they were hit more, according to court records.

Six of the children were hospitalized as a result of injuries, and 11-month-old Matthew Cromwell, son of a Concord policeman, died March 18 of severe injuries apparently caused by a hard blow to the stomach during a stay at the Nathan home.

Joan Jett and the Blackhearts prepare for take-off with new LP

By BROOKS BROWN
UD Entertainment Writer
Move over Pat Benatar, Stevie Nicks, Debbie Harry and the rest of Blondie, Chrissie Hynde and her Pretenders and make room for Joan Jett and The Blackhearts because they are going to need it.
Jett's newest album I Love Rock-n-Roll, a collection of her own songs along with those of Tommy James, Dave

Clark and others, is loaded with tunes that just makes you want to move non-stop and then play it again.
Jett is a fine female that not only looks as good as the aforementioned stars, but plays guitar and sings just as well, if not better. In fact, Chrissie Hynde may be the only competition that comes close to Joan Jett.
From the opening title track to the closing rock rendition of the traditional Christmas tune "Little Drummer Boy," Jett and her Blackhearts make those other supposed queens of rock 'n' roll look like yelping puppies while Jett comes out the biggest in the litter.

The Blackhearts consist of guitarist Ricky Byrd, bassist Gary Ryan and Lee Crystal on drums. Byrd and Ryan fill in on back-up vocals.
The album opens with the just released title track "I Love Rock-n-Roll." The song sets the pace for the rest of the album with Jett's driving, harsh vocals and simple guitar while the remainder of the band provides the rhythmic beat that just goes. The tune relies heavily on Jett's vocals and is done well. It is on its way to being the first hit.

Jett then picks it up even more with an original "I'm Gonna Run Away." The song deals with a person who plans to leave a relationship. Jett's and Byrd's guitar work improves dramatically while her vocals remain in full force for another fine piece of work.
Jett and the Blackhearts slow it down some for the next original cut "Love Is Pain." Jett begins the tune with a fine guitar solo before the rest of the band joins in. Again Jett uses her voice to supplement her effective lyrics.

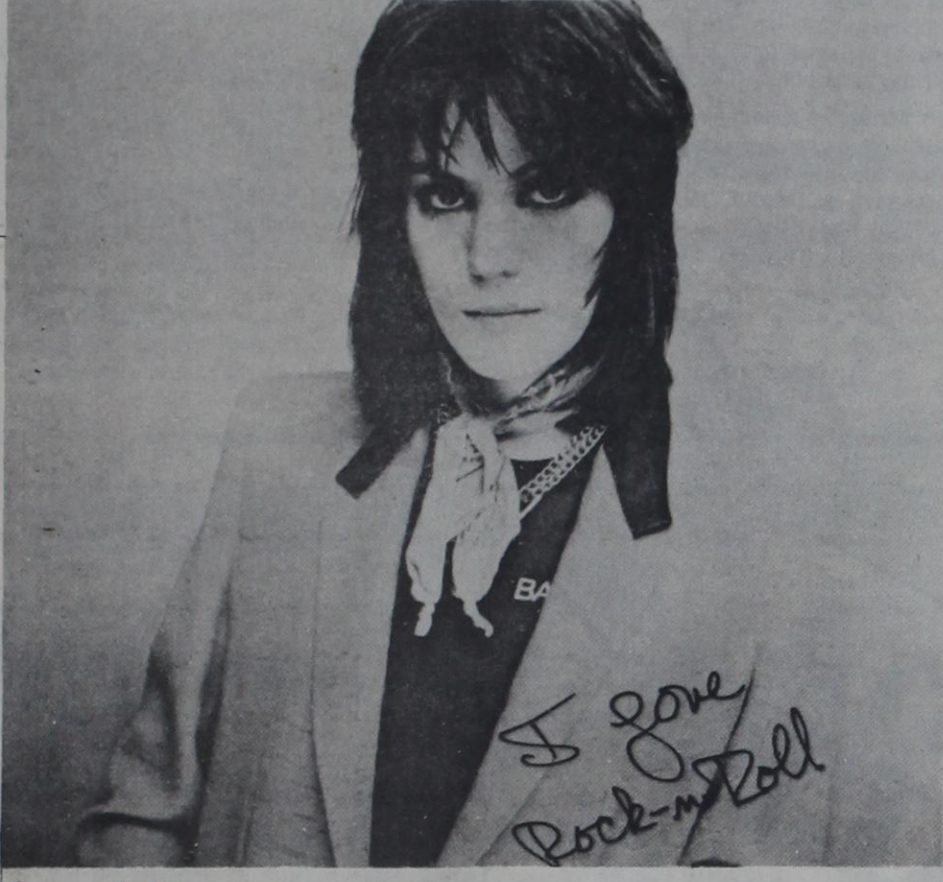

The album also contains some old material that were hits during the '60s. Jett is again very powerful on Arthur Crier's "Nag," Tommy James' "Crimson and Clover" and Dave Clark's "Bits and Pieces."
"Nag" is another fast, high energy song that just jabs at you from the beginning. It's as if a force grabs you and shakes you and makes you dance while you love every minute of it. That force is present throughout the whole album. The song is done in the traditional '60s style with a fast beat and fast lyrics that don't stop.
Side one ends with an almost perfect rendition of "Crimson and Clover." The only thing that is lacking is the technical usage of synthesizers and other electronic gadgetry. Jett also speeds up the instrumentals, which seems to improve the song.

After all this good music that I had been listening to I had anticipated a letdown somewhere on the album. None was found on side one and none was found on side two either. Jett and the Blackhearts just get tougher on the flipside.
Side two is just as hard driven as the first. The group extends into "new wave" with "Be Straight." However the remaining songs, "Victim of Circumstance," "Bits and Pieces" and "You're Too Possesive" don't go unnoticed. They are filled with the same dancing energy that exists throughout side one.
The LP closes with a tastefully well-done version of the Christmas tune "Little Drummer Boy." The same melody and rhythm is present. New additions of an electric guitar mixed with Jett's emotional vocals combine for one of the finest songs on the LP.

The album is not "punk" and neither is the group. They don't rely on technological advancements, but on the foundations of which rock began. They provide good, decent music that lasts. Until you play it again. And again. It is unstoppable.
Jett and the Blackhearts have been hitting the nightclub circuit, but with I Love Rock-n-Roll, it won't last long before they become a major attraction. Move over Stevie Nicks, Debbie Harry, Pat Benatar and Chrissie Hynde and be on the look out for Joan Jett because the real rock queen has arrived.

Festival farce

The cast of "The Twin Menaechmi" will be critiqued at 10:30 p.m. today in the Lubbock Room of the UC. The play was Tech's entry into the American College Theatre Festival.

Activities, opportunities in theatre festival

By KATHY WATSON
UD Entertainment Writer

Tech students will have a great opportunity to see eight theater productions and participate in several workshops as the American College Theatre Festival continues here through Sunday.

The Department of Theatre Arts and the University Theatre is playing host to eight area colleges involved in the competition.

The entries will be judged by all of the directors involved and Jerry Crawford, the guest critic for the festival.

Crawford is an award-winning playwright whose work has been produced off-Broadway, in regional theatres and at the Edinburgh Festival in Scotland.

He has written several texts on acting and directing and is currently a theatre arts and playwriting professor in residence at the University of Nevada.

Crawford has been with the festival program since its beginning and is the chairman-elect of ACTF's National Playwright Committee.

Crawford will critique each production the day following its presentation. The winning entry will travel to Fort Worth for regional competition.

Lubbock Christian College presented "Separate Ceremonies," a play about family members adjusting to the death of their father. "Separate Ceremonies" will be critiqued today at 9 a.m. in the Lubbock Room of the UC.

Tech's entry, "The Twin Menaechmi," which was performed last night, will be critiqued at 10:30 a.m. today in the Lubbock Room.

The University of Texas in El Paso will present "A Theatrical Piece - In Three Acts - As Yet Untitled" today in the University Theatre at 1:30 p.m.

This Renaissance farce by Jon Berry centers on mistakes, misgivings and misconceptions. The play will be critiqued at 9 a.m. Friday in the Lubbock Room.

South Plains College will present its entry, "Black Rose," at 8:15 today in the University Theatre. The play will be critiqued at 10:30 a.m. Friday in the Lubbock Room.

"Yerma," a drama about a woman's barrenness and her quest for fulfillment, will be presented by Odessa College at 1:30 p.m. Friday in the University Theatre. This tragedy by Garcia Lorca will be critiqued at 9 a.m. Saturday in the Lubbock Room.

Amarillo College offers "Runaways" as its competition piece. "Runaways" deals with the runaways and street kids in our country.

This musical drama by Elizabeth Swados ran on Broadway and is recommended for mature audiences. The production will be critiqued Saturday in the Lubbock Room at 10:30 a.m.

Wayland Baptist University's entry, "Hashema-Im (The Witnesses Who Must Be Heard)," will be performed at 1:30 p.m. Saturday in the University Theatre.

In this play, the 12 apostles speak to a modern audience about their relationships with Christ and their perceptions of the Resurrection. "Hashema-Im" will be critiqued 9 a.m. Sunday in the University Green Room.

The final production comes from Angelo State University. Its entry, "Good Show!," deals with the endless problems involved in producing college shows.

The light-hearted play will be critiqued at 10:30 a.m. Sunday in the University Green Room.

Each play can be seen for a $2.50 admission charge. Several workshops are open to the public.

A series of workshops on criticism will be conducted by Richard Weaver, chairman for the Department of Theater Arts.

For more information, contact the University Theatre at 742-3601.

McMahon heads All-America list

NEW YORK (AP) — Jim McMahon of Brigham Young, major college football's all-time passing king, and Marcus Allen of Southern California, the first single-season 2,000-yard runner, were named Tuesday to The Associated Press All-America team for 1981.

They were joined by three repeaters from the 1980 squad — wide receiver Anthony Carter of Michigan, defensive tackle Kenneth Sims of Texas, and running back Herschel Walker of Georgia, the only sophomore on the first team.

McMahon, who will wind up his career against Washington State in the Holiday Bowl, not only set a career record of 9,535 regular season passing yards but led the nation this season in passing and total offense.

State picks

NEW YORK (AP) — Here is a list of Texans on the Associated Press All-America college football team for 1981:

First Team
Offensive Tackle — Terry Tausch, Texas, 6-4, 266, Senior, New Braunfels, Texas.
Defensive End — Billy Ray Smith, Arkansas, 6-3, 227, Junior, Plano, Texas.
Defensive Tackle — Kenneth Sims, Texas, 6-5, 270, Senior, Groesbeck, Texas.

Second Team
Offense
Tackle — Maceo Fifer, Houston.
Running Back — Eric Dickerson, SMU.
Placekicker — Eddie Garcia, SMU.

Third Team
Offense
Wide Receiver — Stanley Washington, TCU.
Center — Mike Baab, Texas.
Defense
Back — Russell Carter, SMU.
Honorable Mention
Offense
Tight Ends — Ford, Houston.
Wide Receivers — Harris, Lamar; Harvey, North Texas State; McNeil, Baylor.
Tackles — McElroy, West Texas State.
Guards — Hartnett, SMU; Jones, Quarterbacks — McIlhenny, SMU.
Running Backs — James, SMU.
Defense
Ends — Benson, Baylor.
Tackles — Armstrong, SMU; Monroe, Houston.
Middle Guards — Keller, West Texas State.
Linebackers — Ferguson, SMU; Moten, SMU; Scholtz, Texas; Turner, Houston.
Backs — LaCroix, Houston; McElroy, Baylor; Mobley, SMU.
Punters — Buford, Texas Tech.

The rest of the offensive unit includes tight end Tim Wrightman of UCLA, wide receiver Julius Dawkins of Pitt — he led the nation with 15 touchdown receptions while catching 40 passes for 690 yards — tackles Ed Muransky of Michigan and Terry Tausch of Texas, guards Kurt Becker of Michigan and Sean Farrell of Penn State, center Dave Rimington of Nebraska, and placekicker Gary Anderson of Syracuse.

Besides Sims, the defensive unit consists of ends Bill Ray Smith of Arkansas and Andre Tippitt of Iowa, tackle Jeff Gaylord of Missouri — Big Eight Defensive Player of the Year — middle guard Tim Krumrie of Wisconsin, linebackers Johnny Cooks of Mississippi State, Bob Crable of Notre Dame and Pitt's Sal Sunseri, backs Terry Kinard of Clemson, Mike Richardson of Arizona State and Tommy Wilcox of Alabama, and punter Reggie Roby of Iowa.

Bodybuilders lift off at Tech

By JOHN KELLEY
UD Sports Staff

The Tech Bodybuilding-Powerlifting Club may be the new club on campus, but big plans are already under way to make sure the club stays around a long time.

First of all, the club will participate in the Christmas for the Kids Lift-A-Thon, which is designed to raise money for handicapped children. The Lift-A-Thon will start at 2 p.m. Saturday in the Rec Center.

Pledges of a penny a pound have been requested in order to defray the cost of toys for more than 240 children on the South Plains. The children live at the Children's Home of Lubbock, Buckners Children's Home, Texas Boys Ranch and Girl's Town U.S.A. in Whiteface.

The club and Rec Sports Jan. 29 will sponsor the Intra-mural Weightlifting All-Nighter coupled with the Body Beautiful contest.

The biggest event, though, may be the Mr. South Plains Classic scheduled for April 3-4. Formerly sponsored outside the Tech community, the contest was dropped two years ago, but now is being revived by the new club.

Besides sponsoring events, the club also is interested in bringing together people with a common pleasure.

"Our goal is to try to get people together who like to lift weights and get in shape," club president K.C. Nix said. "We would like to form a brotherhood and sisterhood of people who like to bodybuild."

Nix now estimates the club has about 30 members, but others haven't made a commitment yet. Nix said the membership will increase if the club can swing some kind of deal to get its own little place in the Rec Center.

Whatever the case, the club has some members with impressive titles already.

As a powerlifter, Kent Lyon was the 1980 Lubbock Strong Man as well as the 1980 Texan Teenage champ in the 165-pound class.

David Georgas, another powerlifter, set the teenage record for Texans in the bench press in the 181-pound class when he took the bench press title at the Texas Teenage competition.

Women's Basketball

The Tech women's basketball team will take its 3-1 season record to Las Cruces, N.M., for the L'eggs Sixth Annual National Roadrunner Basketball Invitational Tournament today through Saturday.

The tournament will be played in the Pan American Center at New Mexico State.

Tech is making its first appearance the tourney. Other teams in the tournament are Wichita State, Texas-Arlington, Portland State, Lamar, Oklahoma State, Arizona and New Mexico State.

Wichita State is the defending champion of the tournament. The Shockers defeated Oklahoma St. 76-55 in the finals. The single elimination tournament begins at 3 p.m. today with Arizona meeting Oklahoma State. Tech plays Wichita St. at 7 p.m. The winners of the two games meet at 7 p.m. Friday. The losers meet in the consolation bracket at 3 p.m. Friday.

In other games today, UTA plays Portland St. at 5 p.m. and Lamar meets NMSU at 9 p.m. The finals are scheduled for 9 p.m. Saturday with the consolation finals beginning at 7 p.m.

Tech's leading scorer entering the tourney is Carolyn Thompson who has averaged 25.5 points per game. Thompson was named to the All-Tournament team in last weekend's University of New Mexico Tournament where she had 18 rebounds and 46 points in two games. The 18 rebounds put Thompson in a tie with Cheryl Greer (1976-79) for fourth place in career rebounding in Tech history.

Tech head coach Donna Wick said the Raiders have done well this season.

"We have lost only one game by one point and that was to the toughest team we have played. Wichita State will be the toughest team in this tournament. We are going to try and pick them up full court and run the ball more than we have been," Wick said.

In their last outing before the holidays, the Raiders will take on Texas Dec. 9 in Austin. The team will return to action Jan. 2 with a home game against Lamar at 5 p.m. in the Coliseum.

Women's Swimming

With a 2-3 dual meet record, the Tech women's swimming and diving team today will be in Lincoln, Neb., for the Lady Husker Swimming and Diving Invitational.

The Raiders will compete against host Nebraska, Colorado State, Iowa, Kansas, LSU, Missouri and Wyoming.

The three-day event's format is similar to a championship meet with eight events daily. Daily preliminary heats are scheduled for 11 a.m. and finals for 7 p.m. in Nebraska's Bob Devaney Sports Center.

Double T Dolls

Due to the inclement weather conditions that delayed many students' return to campus after the Thanksgiving holidays, the deadline for picking up and returning Double "T" Dolls applications has been extended to 5 p.m. Friday at the men's athletic department reception desk at the south end of Jones Stadium.

The tryouts will take place Saturday and Sunday. The physical tryouts will be at 8 a.m. Saturday at the Women's Gym. The finalists' interviews will start at 1:30 p.m. Sunday at the Letterman's Lounge located at the north end of Jones Stadium.

If pollution gets any worse, walking on water will be a cinch.

Lowly Oilers take on Browns for cellar

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oilers Coach Ed Biles was saying earlier this week what a difference a year makes. There can be no more poignant example than Thursday night's confrontation between the Cleveland Browns and Oilers.

The Browns and Oilers were battling for the American Football Conference Central Division title and headed for the National Football League playoffs when the Browns beat the Oilers 17-14 in the Astrodome last season.

When the two teams kickoff at 8 p.m. Thursday night in a nationally televised game, the only stakes will be a fight to stay out of the division cellar and bragging rights between former Texas Aggie Robert L. Jackson of the Browns and former Texas Longhorn Earl Campbell.

"Last year after our game with the Oilers, there were 15,000 fans tearing down the airport when we returned," said Nate Wallach, the Browns public relations director. "This year there may be 15."

The Browns, divisional champions last season, and the Oilers, a wild card entry in 1980, will go into the game with 5-8 records and similarly perplexing problems.

Browns quarterback Brian

Sipe was booed as he was replaced in Sunday's 41-21 loss to Cincinnati and Oiler quarterback Ken Stabler got the same treatment as the Oilers headed for a 31-27 loss to Atlanta.

Sipe, plagued by 21 interceptions this season, and Stabler, who never has achieved top form after a brief preseason retirement, will be back in harness.

Cleveland Coach Sam

Rutigliano and Biles plan different approaches while playing out the three-game string to end the season.

"We won't have any experimentation, we're going to do everything possible to win these last three games," Rutigliano said. "This has been difficult for every member of our organization. But victory is a cure-all."

Biles, meanwhile, plans to look at some of his younger players, such as cornerback Bill Kay, wide receiver Mike Holston and quarterback Gifford Nielsen as he begins evaluating his off-season moves.

He agrees winning is the healing ingredient for a sick season.

"Your team motivation and morale picks up when someone makes an exciting play," Biles said. "There's nothing wrong with this football team that a few victories wouldn't cure."

Kickoff is at 8 p.m. CST.
