

Judges Select 29 Beauties

WAITING HER TURN

... is one of the 200-plus entrants in Friday afternoon's La Ventana beauty pageant preliminaries. From this group the panel of five judges choose the 29 semi-finalists who will seek the title of "Miss Mademoiselle" at the La Ventana Extravaganza Friday night.

Twenty-nine lovelies will step into the spotlights of Municipal Auditorium Friday, and one will emerge as Tech's top beauty of the year—Miss Mademoiselle.

The semi-finalists were chosen in preliminary judging Friday afternoon from a field of over 200 girls. Originally, 25 semi-finalists were to be chosen, but a tie in the number of points among several entrants pushed the number to 29.

Judging in the preliminaries was done on a point basis. Five judges scored the girls on a rating of one to ten. The 29 beauties were chosen after four rounds of eliminations. The contestants were not known by name or sponsoring organization. Each contestant was given a number and the judges rated the girls using the number—no names were revealed until the semi-finalists were announced.

Chosen for participation in the La Ventana Extravaganza were Patti Ayers, Diane Baker, Judy Boney, Sandy Broxton, Nadyne Faulkenberry, Sheila Fletcher, Dottie Gates, Gay Gillespie, Susan Graham and Janette Hefflin.

Other semi-finalists include Krista Heimburg, Lady Jane Henry, Julia Ann Herrell, Holly Hunt, Carole Kay Jobe, Kay Karrh, Donna King, Jan Mayo, Betty Mosher and Linda Ann Nolan.

Completing the list of beauties chosen in the preliminaries are Frances Rader, Judy Richerson, Judy Roberts, Brenda Rogers, Kay Sanders, Ann Schmitz, Nan Taylor, Latrice Teague and Tana Tolleson.

This year's beauty pageant will begin at 7:30 p.m. Friday in the Municipal Auditorium. The semi-finalists will be presented in an "Around The World" theme. Variety acts will be woven into the show.

Miss Playmate will also be named at the pageant Friday. Entries are still being accepted and may be turned in to Journalism 101 before 5 p.m. Wednesday. To enter a Playmate contestant, all-male organizations must submit an 8 by 10 glossy print with pertinent information on the back.

All ten finalists in the Miss Mademoiselle pageant and the winner in the Miss Playmate contest will win an all-expense-paid trip for three days during spring vacation to the Sierra Blanca Corp. ski resort near Ruidoso, N. M.

Tuesday the semi-finalists will appear on channel 11 (KCBDD) at 12:15 p.m.

Judges for the preliminary contest were Joe Kelly, sports editor of the Avalanche-Journal; Bob Nash, assistant manager of radio station KFYO; Merrell Green, assistant Tech football coach; Ken May, regional editor of the A-J; and Jerry Henderson, editor of Lubbock Life magazine.

Three judges, different from the preliminary panel, will judge the finals Friday. The judges' names will not be revealed until the night of the pageant.

Tickets for Friday's show will go on sale in the Tech Union Monday morning. Admission to the Extravaganza is $1 per person or $1.50 a couple.

Entrants in the Extravaganza preliminaries included Judy Reinhart, Mary Ann Gleason, Linda Ryno, Marie Chapman, Janis Newsum, Lynn McElroy, Patsy Ginn, Mary Jo Garrett, Nancy Carlock, Suzanne McCarty and Jane Ann Batson.

Other Contestants were Jeannie Madsen, Michele Hunter, Dana Lawton, Nancy Miller, Diana Ferguson, Frances Sayles, Sandra Baker, Marilyn Garrard, Janice Bigham, Susan King, Jan Barton, Ginny Lea, Evelyn Wells, Nelda McQuien, Susan Wood, Susan Jungle, Nell Anne Walter and Diane Canel.

Annette Cochran, Janet Pritchett, Ginger Graham, Sarah Pickett, Carolyn Horschler, Linda Lacy, Ramona DeWolfe, Pam Wheeler, Juda Bodiford, Susan Manning, Sarah Williamson, Anita Edmiston, Billie Moser and Marcia Merriman.

Other beauty entrants were Sue Proffitt, Barbara Teal, Shelley White, Annette Sweat, Martha Andrews, Sandra Hammit, Joan Wood, Carol McCormack, Jeanine Jones, Peggy Berendzen, Sharon Jones, Ann Wheeler, Shari Addison, Ann Vanderwoude, Mary Johnson, Nancy Vincend.

Porkers 'See Red' Tonight As Students Display Spirit

Texas Tech will observe its fourth annual All Red Day today, sponsored by the Saddle Tramps and the Student Council. All students, faculty and townspeople are urged to wear some article of red clothing all day today and especially to the game tonight with Arkansas.

According to Joe Stephens, Saddle Tramp president, "All Red Day is held to show the Red Raiders we appreciate their efforts all year long and that we support them in their basketball endeavors."

"Red Day was started four years ago to generate more spirit on campus," W. C. Cole, manager of the Tech Bookstore, said.

At the game everyone supporting the Red Raiders will be given a red tissue when he enters the Coliseum. Saddle Tramp members will hand out the red banners and are also responsible for the "Slaughter the Hogs" lapel pins that have been circulated around the campus.

Approximately 6,000 fans are expected to see the crucial Southwest Conference battle, which may determine whether or not Tech retains its conference title.

At halftime, Texas Tech's 1954 basketball team, Border Conference champions with a 20-5 record, will be introduced. Also, a trampoline act will entertain during the half-time break.

Several high school athletes visiting Tech's campus will also be on hand to see the Tech-Arkansas game.

'ALL FOR THE RAIDERS...'

... will unite in a grand display of splashing red tonight at the Coliseum to show the Razorbacks that the Raiders have multitudes of followers.

KTXT Schedules Montoya, Sockman

Response to the rebroadcasting of the Montoya Concert on KTXT-FM has resulted in a rescheduling of the program to 8:30 p.m. Sunday.

KTXT-FM will also rebroadcast the first of the Willson Lectures by Dr. Ralph Sockman at 4:30 p.m. Sunday.

Allen Will Talk At Poetry Hour

James G. Allen, dean of student life, will be the special guest at Thursday's Poetry Hour at 4 p.m. in the Anniversary Room of the Tech Union.

Selections from 17th Century poets will be read and discussed by Dean Allen. These selections will show unusual developments very indicative of happenings of the time.

Dean Allen intends to draw attention to the fact that poetry of an age is symptomatic of that age.

In order to prove that 17th Century poetry is just as distinct as Elizabethan poetry, Dean Allen will read works of well known poets as well as those of little known men.

Alpha Phi Plans Initiation, Banquet

Twenty-three pledges will be initiated at 12:30 p.m. today in the Alpha Phi lodge house, 2120 13th Street, climaxing week-long pre-initiation activities.

A banquet at Lester's Hickory Inn will begin at 7:30 p.m. The speakers will be members of the newly initiated group, active chapter members and alumnae guests. Also, the group's "best pledge" will be named.

On Sunday morning the new initiates will attend services at Lubbock's First Methodist Church.

THE MANY LOVES OF THORWALD DOCKSTADER

When Thorwald Dockstader—sophomore, epicure, and sportsman—first took up smoking, he did not simply choose the first brand of cigarettes that came to hand. He did what any sophomore, epicure, and sportsman would do: he sampled several brands until he found the very best—a mild, rich, flavorful smoke—an endless source of comfort and satisfaction—a smoke that never palled, never failed to please—a smoke that age could not wither nor custom stale—a filter cigarette with an unfiltered taste—Marlboro, of course!

Similarly, when Thorwald took up girls, he did not simply select the first one who came along. He sampled. First he dated an English literature major named Elizabeth Barrett Schwartz, a wisp of a girl with large, luminous eyes and a soul that shimmered with a pale, unearthly beauty. Trippingly, trippingly, she walked with Thorwald upon the beach and sat with him behind a windward dune and listened to a conch shell and sighed sweetly and took out a little gold pencil and a little morocco notebook and wrote a little poem:

*I will lie upon the shore,
I will be a drummer,
I will feel the sea once more,
Pounding on my femur.*

Thorwald's second date was with a physical education major named Peaches Glendower, a broth of a girl with a ready smile and a size 18 neck. She took Thorwald down to the cinder track where they did 100 laps to open the pores. Then they played four games of squash, six sets of tennis, 36 holes of golf, nine innings of one o'cat, six chukkers of lacrosse, and a mile and a quarter of leapfrog. Then they went ten rounds with eight ounce gloves and had heaping bowls of wiley and exchanged a firm handshake and went home to their respective whirlpool baths.

He did not simply select the first one who came along...

Thorwald's final date was with a golden-haired, creamy-browed, green-eyed, red-lipped, full-calved girl named Totsi Sigafos. Totsi was not majoring in anything. As she often said, "Gee whillikers, what's college for anyhow—to fill your head full of icky old facts, or to discover the shining essence that is YOU?"

Totsi started the evening with Thorwald at a luxurious restaurant where she consumed her own weight in Cornish rock hen. From there they went to a deluxe movie palace where Totsi had popcorn with butter. Then she had a bag of chocolate covered raisins—also with butter. Then they went to a costly ballroom and did the Twist till dawn, tipping the band every eight bars. Then they went to a Chinese restaurant where Totsi, unable to translate the menu, solved her problem by ordering one of everything. Then Thorwald took her to the women's dorm, boosted her in the window, and went downtown to wait for the employment office to open.

While waiting, Thorwald thought over all of his girls and came to a sensible decision. "I think," he said to himself, "that I will stick with Marlboros. I am not rich enough for girls."

© 1962 Max Shulman

Marlboro, however, is rich enough for anybody. It takes mighty good makin' to give you unfiltered taste in a filter cigarette. That's the flavor you get in the famous Marlboro recipe from Richmond, Virginia. You get a lot to like.

A Definite Threat

The Wild Textbook "Do-Gooders"

A controversy is now raging in Austin which could ultimately affect every Texchan, as well as Texan, who is connected or concerned with education.

The Toreador and other papers throughout the state have carried articles on the "history book hassle" now before the House Textbook Investigating Committee. Charges have flown back and forth as a series of witnesses paraded before the Committee, labeling text authors "atheists," "subversives," etc.

Of course, no one would go so far as to say no atheist or subversive has ever written a textbook. Perhaps some have. (Perhaps these "witnesses" consider sheer boredom a form of subversion. If so, there are probably a great many students who would like to go down and "testify" before the Committee against some authors!)

However, to use some isolated case — if they have substantiated their charges in even one case — to propagate the religious or political philosophy of a vocal minority, is a threat to all of us. It is a threat that should be met with angry indignation.

For example, one woman from Houston made the interesting statement that "progressive education was born in this country when the American educator John Dewey was invited to Russia to observe the Communist system."

"Look at the inroads UNESCO has made in our schools. Doesn't it look as if we've succumbed to the one worlders? We've got to get back to Christian moral principles."

Five will get you ten that, had she been around 1,962 years ago, she would have testified, and rightly so, that "Jesus Christ was a one-worlder;" and "we must return to Hebrew moral principles!"

Another woman listed among her objections to the selection of textbooks the fact that "while prayer in the name of one true God is being effectively eliminated from our national life," (by clergymen who do not identify themselves, she said) "a militant atheism is being insinuated into the curriculum of the public schools."

Has anyone noticed that the people who scream "separation of church and state" when a man of Roman Catholic faith runs for President, Congressman, mayor or even dog catcher, are the same people who would try to inflict their own brand of religion on every community, in every book, in every school, or to any passing stranger.

The First Amendment to the Constitution, made applicable to States by the Fourteenth Amendment, not only prohibits laws respecting the establishment of a religion, but also makes unconstitutional laws prohibiting the free exercise of religion. We must assume, and the courts have held, this equally applies to freedom to enjoy the lack of religion, if a man so chooses. Surely a historian, who happens to be an atheist, who happens to write a textbook, could be just as good a historian as a hard-shell Protestant who writes a textbook.

This editorial is not in advocacy of atheism. It is in advocacy of FREEDOM! When the extreme right, the John Birchers, or any religious group begins a campaign to have a voice in the selection of our textbooks, we are all in danger. Our colleges, our public schools, and we as citizens are all involved. WE are involved as students, as well as future parents.

And there are only two alternatives to these attempts in education, government or any other phase of public life, which require our analysis, and then, most importantly, our action.

We can either sit up and take notice, or else we can sit back and take our medicine.

An Improvement

Female Enrollment Moves Upward

Texas Tech has lost one of its oldest and best-known drawing cards. The old saying, "Come to Tech, girls, for there's three males to every female," is no longer true.

With each succeeding fall more and more coeds have flocked to Tech, thus decreasing the ratio of men to women. The present enrollment stands at 3,126 women and 6,543 men. This means that for every coed there are about two men.

And the fact remains that there are more married men attending class at Tech than married women making the ratio even smaller than it would appear.

But the turnover in feminine population produces more significant changes than the mere fact that dates for gals aren't so easy to come by as they once were.

The larger female enrollment mirrors a changed Texas Technological College. Tech once had the reputation of being a school of primary value to the masculine set, especially in engineering and agriculture.

An expanding university is now reflected. A university which has won for itself a reputation for providing a broad curriculum for women as well as men.

In fact, the eyes of Texas and the whole nation see the many women coming to Tech as symbolic of our university status and high-ranking departments in almost every field.

The increase in the enrollment of women has brought about many new problems. But the advantages certainly outweigh the difficulties.

On the debit side of the enlarged enrollment figures is the problem of housing. Campus dormitories can now house 2,032 women. Doak Hall, first built for women and later changed to a men's dorm, was again made into a women's dorm in 1958. That same year Weeks Hall opened its doors to meet the growing needs for housing women. Last fall West Hall was also changed to a women's residence hall. Yet, many freshmen found themselves having to live off-campus in order to attend Tech.

To solve this problem, another dormitory for women is being planned which will be bigger than the $1,730,520 Weeks Hall.

With the influx of more coeds, there is the added need of more faculty members and more facilities, especially in such fields as home economics and education.

A growing social need has been brought about as witnessed by the unprecedented registration for fall formal rushing. As a result, more sororities will have to be brought on campus.

But with more college girls at Tech, its horizons have become greatly broadened. Bringing things that only the feminine touch can, has made Tech a better place.

For instance, the college has a smoothly run women's governing body plus official hostesses, women's service organizations, social clubs and sororities and scholarship organizations.

A more cultural atmosphere reigns at Tech due in part to feminine participation and interest in realms such as art, entertainment and music.

Yes, Tech has lost one of its oldest drawing cards, but it has been replaced with those of infinitely more value.

From Politics To Pool

j. petty

In Monday's Student Council vacancy elections, 628 Techs—less than seven percent of the student body—cared enough to vote.

Of the four positions being filled, only one race was completed.

The runoff elections Wednesday drew 473 voters—less than five percent of the student body—who cared enough to vote.

Why is it that in this incubator of intellectual embryos where the real battle between representative democracy and atheistic communism is being fought, there is such apathy among the students concerning the basic right of individual expression?

The answer is obvious—the campus elections at Tech are void of any issues or ideas; instead, candidates depend upon their popularity of personality with a group to win an election, leaving the overwhelming majority of students who do not know the candidate without a reason for voting. Why vote for a name whose only platform reads: "A Vote For Jones Is A Vote For Good Government"?

Truly, it can be said that Tech's student government is controlled by the "popular minority."

The solution to the problem is evident, and it needs to be implemented before the spring elections to avoid another mass absence from the polls by the voters:

Political parties need to be organized on campus—parties that would sponsor candidates on their merits and platforms rather than their pretty face or ability to fill a sweater.

Under the guidance of these political parties, students would be able to better understand why a candidate was seeking office. More students would become interested in student government. More voters would go to the polls. Elected candidates would feel more obligated to participate in the workings of the government. Office holders would wear a cloak of responsibility given them by a thinking "popular majority."

Opponents of the political parties say that the system would not work because two factions would automatically arise—the Greeks and the Independents. They say that the only issues that would be fought would be the social against the non-social.

Nothing could be further from the truth.

College students are mature people in most instances. Day after day of classes and class discussions fertilize their minds for realistic mental controversy, and no better field could be used than that of the political.

The Student Council needs to investigate the possibilities offered by political parties on campus. Not only better voting records would come from their conception—improved student government would result.

Next week will be an exciting one for the 29 girls who are the semi-finalists in the Miss Mademoiselle contest.

Tuesday at 12:15 p.m. they will appear on TV over channel 11 to let the Lubbock people see the top notch kind of beauty we have on campus.

Friday, the big day, will begin with a luncheon in the Union at noon. The Extravaganza will begin at 7:30 that evening and culminate with the naming of the top beauty at Tech and nine runners up.

Also during the evening, Miss Playmate will be named who will be featured in the foldout section of Playboy magazine in the La Vantana.

Concerning the Miss Playmate contest, Male organizations still have time to enter a girl for the title. Entries must come before 5 p.m. Wednesday. Entrants' pictures should be 8 by 10 with the pertinent information on the back. The winner will be chosen from the submitted photographs.

Harry Diehl Withdraws From Governors Race

AP—At least two candidates for Texas Governor won't be asking endorsements of Texas AFL-CIO in Dallas on Saturday.

Harry Diehl, Houston, withdrew Friday from the Republican race "due to other demands on my time and resources."

Will Wilson said he would not ask labor union endorsement because he does not think the rank and file of organized labor know enough about the candidates yet to endorse anyone. He said he would ask that the Texas labor endorsement be withheld until after the first primary.

All gubernatorial candidates have an invitation to appeal Saturday morning before the Texas AFL-CIO Committee On Political Education (COPE) and air their views.

'Self-Styled Experts' Hinder FBI Fight Against Commies

CHICAGO (AP) — J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said yesterday "far too many self-styled experts on communism" are giving out erroneous and distorted information.

In an article in the American Bar Association Journal, he wrote:

"Our fight against communism must be a sane, rational understanding of the facts. Emotional outbursts, extravagant name-calling and gross exaggerations hinder our effort."

Hoover did not identify his targets by name.

The FBI chief said the nation needs enlightenment about communism, but it should be factual and accurate.

"We need more light and less heat," he added.

He wrote that many non-Communists may legitimately take positions on issues which also are held by Communists.

"Their opinions, though temporarily coinciding with the party line, do not make them Communists," he added. "We must be careful with our facts and not brand as Communists any individual whose

Several other candidates for governor, including Gov. Price Daniel, have indicated they will seek the COPE blessing.

Wilson said in a statement Friday that members of organized labor should not make their choices for public officials solely upon the basis of their promises in regard to labor legislation.

"Organized labor is not an island unto itself," Wilson said.

State GOP officials accepted Diehl's withdrawal from the race and returned his $1,000 check given for the filing fee. His name will not appear on the GOP primary ballot.

Daniel spoke to 2,000 youthful delegates of the 13th annual Convention of Texas Future Teachers of America meeting in Austin.

Glenn Resumes Flight Training

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —Still unperturbed despite a 10th postponement, astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. continued training Friday for his round-the-world flight, set now for Tuesday at the earliest.

Glenn was sleeping—and primed for a try Friday—when his flight was canceled again due to bad weather in the Atlantic where his capsule might splash down.

Instead of going on a great adventure, he returned to preflight routine which officials said would include simulating some phases of his flight, and a chance to rest.

Rail Board Backs Don Yarborough

FORT WORTH (AP)—The Texas Joint Railway Legislative Board recommended Democrat Don Yarborough of Houston Thursday for the governor of Texas.

The organization represents all the railroad brotherhood union employees in Texas.

Yarborough was recommended by all but the locomotive engineers union, which voted to back Gov. Price Daniel.

HOW YOU CAN

SURVIVE

A NUCLEAR WAR!

9 out of 10 people can live through a nuclear attack, says scientist Edward Teller. But there'll have to be plenty of warning—and plenty of shelter. In this week's Post, he maps out a 4-point plan for survival. Tells how you should stock the ideal shelter. And which people stand the best chance of survival.

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANIES SALUTE: MARTIN CAWLEY

When Martin Cawley joined Illinois Bell Telephone Company a year and a half ago, he immediately was assigned to a job in the Building Engineer's Group. This work involved preparing plans and specifications for remodeling several floors of an important telephone office building, and following details of the field work until the job was completed. A lot of responsibility, but he handled it well and earned an assignment as Project Engineer. Now he handles still more complex building projects, each contributing to better telephone service for Chicago.

Martin Cawley and other young engineers like him in Bell Telephone Companies throughout the country help bring the finest communications service in the world to the homes and businesses of a growing America.

Raiders Host Razorbacks

By JIM RICHARDSON
Associate Sports Editor
It's reckoning time for the Red

Raiders tonight at 8 p.m. when they take the court against the Arkansas Razorbacks in the Municipal Coliseum.

And they won't be alone. About 10,000 red-clad fans will be on hand to find out if the defending Southwest Conference basketball champs from Texas Tech have found the poise that made last season's squad the team to beat in the title race.

They say that Arkansas is out of that race this year with five league losses already on its record. They say that Tech will probably take a second win over the Razorbacks after the Raider triumph in Fayetteville.

They said Tech would beat SMU and TCU in Lubbock, and they bet accordingly, and they lost.

So after three straight losses in the friendly confines of the Coliseum Gene Gibson's crew will likely be wary of the Razorbacks, regardless of their recent victory in the Ozarks. Harold Hudgens, Del Ray Mounts, Mac Percival, Roger Hennig and Bobby Gindorf will be the first combination to face the Arkansas five tonight, with Sid Wall and Mike Farley due to make an appearance.

A win for the Raiders would keep them in a first place tie with SMU and Texas A&M, should the other two leaders take wins tonight. SMU, conquerer of Tech in Lubbock Tuesday, will host formidable Rice. The Owls defeated SMU in the first meeting between the two in Houston.

Texas A&M plays TCU at College Station. The Aggies nipped the Froggies in Fort Worth and will be expected to do the trick again at home. But the unexpected is expected in the SWC, so don't count on any sure wins.

The Raiders wouldn't mind losses on the part of SMU and A&M tonight. Should that happen, and Tech win, Gibson's crew would once again have a game margin over the pack. But losses by all three leaders would throw the conference race into one big mumble jumble.

That occasion would leave Tech, A&M, SMU and Rice with a first place tie, with Texas one-half game back if it beats Baylor, and Arkansas and TCU would move within the possible zone.

Rundell Says Team Beaten By Officials

AUSTIN (AP)—McCallum High School basketball Coach Frank Rundell protested today that his squad was beaten Thursday night by an official and unruly Bryan fans—but not by the Bryan team.

Rundell said his players were attacked by Bryan fans after the game. And he said that a Waco official, Lonnie Horstman, was "determined that McCallum would not win."

Bryan won the district playoff game 61-59, after McCallum had an 18-point lead in the third quarter.

"We couldn't have won with a 30-point lead with a minute left to play—Lonnie would have figured some way to take it away from us," Rundell told the Austin Statesman.

"We didn't blow any lead—we were just plain robbed. We didn't have a Chinaman's chance."

Rundell said he knew a coach should keep quiet—that he was leaving himself open to cries of "sour grapes."

"But I can't help it—I won't sit still. They just took that game away from us."

Rundell said that all-state candidate Joe Hardwick was "hit on the back of the head and cut right after the game."

"Joe had the ball at the far court when the game ended," the coach said. "Bryan fans rushed onto the court and hit him. He had to fight his way to the dressing room."

Rundell said the home town fans also tried to attack other McCallum players, but most were well on the way to the dressing room when the riot began.

"Joe was out far on the court—so they let him have it," said Rundell. "It was a very sorry spectacle."

Rundell said at times McCallum players were knocked flat on the floor and no foul was called against Bryan.

Rundell said he had to sit and take it. "If I had gone on the court there would have been a real riot."

Tech Rifle Team Competes In Championship Matches

Tech's Army ROTC Rifle Team left Friday morning to compete in the 4th U.S. Army Championship Match at Ft. Hood.

Fourteen teams in the 4th U.S. Army area, representing Arkansas, Louisiana, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas, will compete in the three position rifle match.

Competition in the prone, kneeling and standing positions will begin Saturday morning.

The team captured the Western Conference trophy recently at Ft. Bliss. On Feb. 10 they scored 1377 points out of a possible 1500 to edge out the rifle team of Reese AFB.

M/Sgt. Michael W. Modis coaches the 11-man team and Capt. Robert E. Weber is sponsor.

Channing Club Encourages Liberal Thinking At Tech

An organization on the Tech campus which encourages its members to think more deeply on the subjects of religion, literature and philosophy is the Channing Club, sponsored by the First Unitarian Church of Lubbock.

"Our group strives to promote liberal thinking," John G. Little, president, said.

Little stressed the open membership of the club, which includes high school students, Tech students, faculty and Lubbock residents of any race or color.

At each meeting of the Channing Club there is a guest speaker or an open discussion on controversial subjects. The members decide on their speakers and topics for discussion.

Tomorrow the organization will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the Anniversary Room of the Tech Union. "The Right of Disbelief" will be the topic for the meeting. An open discussion will be moderated by Arthur Chandler, vice president.
