THE AMERICAN WAY

THAT MEDICARE LOBBY

By Raymond C. Baker

(Editors Note: Guest columnist Raymond C. Baker is a former newspaperman who writes widely on economic and industrial subjects.)

Medicare, a coined word meaning care for the aged through social security, is supported by one of the most active and articulate lobbies known, to Washington lawmakers.

And despite their recent defeat in the Senate, the "planners" behind the Medicare will be back again next year — and every year, until it passes.

Moreover, this gigantic pressure group is supported by the Administration! It is called the National Committee of Senior Citizens for Health Care Through Social Security.

Dr. Blue Cartenson resigned as a member of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to run the Senior Citizens' staff. His principal job is to see that every pressure possible is brought to bear on Senators and Representatives to vote to have government invade the medical profession.

The plan would cost just double what its sponsors claim for the first year — $2.2 billion, not $1.1 billion. Eventually, the cost will be $5.4 billion a year, not $2.6 billion, as HEW estimates.

Those who have made careful studies of various medical care programs know what this measure actually will do for the aged (and at what cost) and what it will do to the nation's social security program. Perhaps a look at what it contains may cause a little more sober thinking and thus save the less fanatic drumbeaters from future financial embarrassment. For instance:

The measure does not cover all medical expenses for those over 65 under social security or the Railroad Retirement Act, as many have been led to believe. It does not cover the bills of physician and surgeon. The patient must pay for the first nine days of hospitalization, at $10 per day (how many senior citizens have $90 to spare?). The patient is limited to 150 days of care per year, only 90 of which are for hospitalization. The patient must pay personally for extra care. To get out-patient diagnostic services, the patient would pay the first $20.

Actually only about 25 percent of total medical expenses would be paid for those patients 65 or over.

Now, for a look at the other side of the coin. At present, employees earning $4,800 are taxed at the rate of $150 per year; these taxes will rise to $174 next year; $198 in 1966 and $222 in 1968, for a total of 48%. The employer, of course, pays the same amounts.

Under the King Anderson bill, instead of $4,800, employees' wages up to $5,200 would be taxed. By 1968, those earning this amount would pay $254, an increase of 70%, not 48%.

This Medicare promotion is typical of many other such promotions of the past thirty years. First the planners "determine the need," cry that a crisis has occurred, stimulate a tremendous promotional campaign, and underestimate the cost to the people. In the process, an American institution that has achieved world leadership (in this case our medical profession) is ruthlessly pulverized.

Our government has failed as a provider of insurance, has failed in the electricity business, has proven itself to be a bad lender, and a poor risk as a borrower. Its debt is equal to the debts of every other country in the world combined. And now it wants, in the words of a national cartoonist, "to go into the business of giving away free medical care."

The King Anderson bill — or anything remotely resembling it — should be dumped by Congress as a matter of preservation of our wonderful medical system.

You too can lobby by telling your Senators and Representatives that Medicare is not for us — we value our good health too much!

New Postage Stamp To Honor Sam Rayburn

Design of the Sam Rayburn stamp was unveiled by the Post Office Department today in a ceremony by Mr. Sam's old friend, Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Speaker of the House John W. McCormack was also present to honor the memory of his predecessor in the chair.

Postmaster General J. Edward Day showed the model of the distinctive 4c commemorative postage stamp that is tribute to the Texan who served as speaker of the U. S. House of Representatives 17 years — twice longer than any other man in history. He was "Mr. Sam" to some 3,000 congressmen he saw come and go over the years.

The stamp will first be placed on sale September 16 in Mr. Sam's home town, Bonham, Texas, on the 22nd anniversary of his election to the speakership. He had served continuously in Congress since 1913 until his death, at 79, Nov. 16, 1961.

On the day of Mr. Rayburn's death, the Citizens' Stamp Advisory Committee was meeting and immediately approved issuance of a Rayburn Stamp. Postmaster General Day made the announcement in a New York speech the following evening.

In the multi-color, vertical stamp, Sam Rayburn stands impressively before the Capitol dome. Graded tones of brown and blue give the stamp a three-dimensional effect.

World War I Vets May Now Convert Insurance Policies

World War I veterans 65 or older holding USGLI term insurance policies may now convert to a lower-cost form of insurance as the result of a bill signed into law by President Kennedy.

P. J. Mims, manager of the Veterans Administration Regional office in Waco, said the new plan of insurance, called "Special Endowment at Age 96," primarily provides death protection only.

The premium, which remains level throughout the life of the policy, is lower than the premium for the term policy which is being exchanged.

The VA official warned that not all holders of USGLI term policies should make the change. Those disabled should keep their original term policies which provide a monthly income in the event of total permanent disability while at the same time waiving the insurance premium.

It will not be necessary for World War I term policy-holders to write or telephone the VA regarding the new plan of insurance, Mims said. VA will notify all eligible policyholders and will send them full information concerning conversion of present policies.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Jones of Truscott came Sunday and are visiting her brother, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Vanderford. They all attended the Vanderford reunion on Sunday.

Shields Negro Woman 100 Years Old On Tuesday

AN OLD SANTA ANNA NEWS

Mrs. C. D. Bruce let us borrow an old Santa Anna News this week. The old newspaper is dated August 9, 1918 and contained the account of the death of her father, John R. Banister, while he was serving as Sheriff of Coleman County.

Also in the paper is the account of Mrs. Banister being appointed as the first woman Sheriff in Texas and many other interesting items of the day.

Mr. Banister had served two terms as Sheriff and was in the run-off for another term at the time of his death. He was stricken with paralysis about 11:00 p. m. on a Thursday night and passed away about dawn Friday. He was buried in the Santa Anna Cemetery on Saturday.

Mrs. Banister was appointed to fill his expired term at a special session of the Commissioner's Court on Monday.

Many other old-timers of this area are mentioned in the paper. Included is an account of the marriage of Miss Nell Ramsauer to Marby J. Norrell. Being an edition soon after the first Democratic Primary, it also carried a lot of political advertising and accounts of political happenings of the day.

Visits In Georgetown

Your editor and family visited Mrs. Gregg's cousin, District Judge and Mrs. D. B. Wood at Georgetown Sunday afternoon. Judge Wood has filled the District Judge's position there for the past 11 years. He also has been appointed by Gov. Daniel to serve over a 32-district area.

We found that part of the state to be very dry. They have had no rain for more than 35 days and the heat has been very bad during that time. The pastures there, are just about as dead-looking as they can get, but appear to have a fairly good cover.

The usually dry south part of our county has had more rain recently than that part of the state. However, the south part of Coleman County is very much in need of some heavy rains, that will put water in their tanks.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Chamberlain of Edinburg are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hays and attending to business.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Browning and children left Saturday night for Oregon, where they plan to visit her parents.

Two Wrecks Do Heavy Damage To Four Vehicles

Two wrecks in the Santa Anna City Limits within the past week caused heavy damage to four vehicles. Only one person was injured and it was not considered serious.

The first accident happened about 2:35 p. m. Wednesday of last week when W. R. Kelly Jr. and Gary N. Hosch collided in the intersection at Avenue A and North 4th Street.

Mr. Kelly was going south from his home above Avenue A and Gary Hosch was going west on Avenue A. The Kelly 1957 Chrysler was damaged considerably and the Hosch 1960 Chevrolet suffered heavy damage. No one was injured.

The accident was investigated by the Highway Patrol and Sheriff's Department. No charges have been filed as yet.

Monday evening about 6:40 p. m. a truck and pick up collided in front of Eddie's Cafe in the east part of town. Billy Don Cupps, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Cupps, was driving a 1960 Ford pick up east on Highway 67-84. He apparently attempted to turn in at Eddie's Cafe just as Mattison A. Terrell, 22, of Grosvonor, driving a 1950 Chevrolet truck belonging to the Royal Crown Cola Bottling Co., Brownwood, started to pass him. The vehicles collided on the highway, turning the soft drink truck one complete turn and doing heavy damage to the truck. A large number of soft drink bottles were broken on the highway and in the ditch on the north side of the roadway.

Terrell was taken to the Santa Anna Hospital for treatment, but was released after x-rays showed no serious injuries. He suffered a bad bruise on his left leg. John W. Dockery was in the pick up with Cupps. Neither of them suffered any injuries. The pick up was damaged slightly.

The accident was investigated by Deputy Sheriff M. R. Simmons. Charges of driving without an operators license were filed against Cupps.

It's Time For... EYE CARE

Dr. Newton K. Wesley

So often the question arises: "What is the difference between professional eye specialists—such as an optometrist and an ophthalmologist?" First, the optometrist is a specialist in vision as the dentist is a specialist in teeth. By law, he is permitted to examine the eyes and to prescribe. He also does orthoptics, which is visual training, and also fits contact lenses. He can recognize diseases of the eye and refer such cases to the ophthalmologist. The ophthalmologist is a physician. He specializes in medical care of the eye. He treats eye diseases and also does surgery. He, too, can prescribe glasses or contact lenses. Then, there is also the oculist. He is a physician who specializes in the care of the eyes, nose and throat, although he also is known as an ophthalmologist. The optician is one who fabricates contact lenses or glasses according to the prescription of the optometrist or ophthalmologist.

Wesley

There are many reputable manufacturers of frames and contact lenses, but only the eye specialist is qualified to examine your eyes. The National Eye Research Foundation is supported by both groups of eye specialists. It is a not-for-profit organization, dedicated to better vision and eye care. The Foundation recommends that your eyes be examined on a regular basis—at least once every six months. In this way, much serious trouble may be avoided.

FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS

By C. D. Smith

Ex-Teenager Says 'Hooray' For Old-Fashioned Folks

THE WEEK'S LETTER: "I am no longer a teenager, but after reading your article about someone adjusting to old fashioned parents, I say good for the old fashioned ones. I was not allowed to date until I was a junior in high school and then my folks wanted to meet my dates several days before the date and often this was accomplished by inviting the boy to dinner and an evening at my home. Then the 'O.K.' was passed on dates. In no way did I ever regret this procedure set up by my parents. I think if more high schoolers had to worry about school work instead of school popularity, we would have better students."

OUR REPLY: Better students we would have, indeed—but also we would have better boys and girls.

Not long ago, a teenage girl informed this column that she had no intention of "being a bookworm." We believe she meant that she had no intention of sticking her nose in books and keeping it there while the rest of the world went by. This, of course, is as bad as not studying at all. There should be a balance between work and play—and this is a rule that applies all through life. It is as true for the teenager's parents as for the teenager.

The week's letter shows that some teenagers are wise enough to appreciate their parents while they are still under the same roof. So often it happens that many years go by before some individual realizes the effect that early training and parental supervision played in their efforts to achieve success.

Did the thoughtful readers of this column ever stop to think about the type of world we would have a few years from now if human beings adopted the custom of certain wild animals—and "kicked" their offspring "out of the nest" as soon as they were able to stand alone?

If you have a teenage problem you want to discuss, or an observation to make, address your letter to FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS, NATIONAL WEEKLY NEWSPAPER SERVICE, FRANKFORT, KY.

About Your Health

Austin — Various educated guesses as to the number of "undiscovered" diabetics in the United States place the figure somewhere between one and two million. Undoubtedly a fair proportion of them are Texans.

Diabetes is a general systemic disease in which the body loses its ability to burn and store sugar normally. All starches in foods are converted in the stomach and intestines into sugar. As sugar they are absorbed into the blood and pass through the liver and into general circulation to all parts of the body.

Normally the gland called the pancreas produces a secretion called insulin which is also poured into the blood. In the presence of insulin, the sugar of the blood is burned, especially by muscular activity. Any excess of sugar in the presence of a normal amount of insulin is temporarily stored, mostly in the liver, and released as needed into the blood.

This is the normal pattern. But if a person suffering with diabetes the pancreas fails to produce sufficient insulin. And when starches are eaten and absorbed as sugar, the body is unable to control the sugar normally by storing it in the liver or to burn it efficiently in muscular exercise. Result: the sugar content of the blood increases to abnormal levels.

Because the diabetic is unable to burn the sugar efficiently for energy, he becomes weak and tired. His body needs nourishment and he therefore develops great hunger. But because he cannot utilize the starches, he uses up his own tissues and continues to lose weight.

When the blood sugar gets too high, the kidneys, in an effort to lower it, removes some of the sugar by excreting it in urine. This, in turn, makes the body dry and creates a thirst.

Proof of the hereditary nature of diabetes is the fact that surveys of diabetic children show that 60 percent of their families have other members with diabetes.

Overeating and lack of muscular exercise are conditions which tend to promote obesity which in turn creates a tendency toward diabetes. It has been shown that 20 fat persons develop the disease for every thin one that does. The obvious moral is do not overeat, do not remain overweight, and get plenty of muscular exercise.

You can judge your own tendency toward diabetes in the light of what has been said: Are you overweight? Do you overeat? Is there diabetes in your family? Also do you have any of the symptoms: great hunger, loss of strength, loss of weight, persistent thirst, or excessive urination? If so, you're a likely candidate for a urinalysis or blood sugar test by your family physician.

Who Says

You Don't Make Enough Money To Have A CHECKING ACCOUNT?

Ever heard someone say, "I don't make enough money to have a Checking Account."

We don't feel that way about it. As a matter of fact, we are inclined to feel that people with modest incomes have more need of a Checking Account than anyone else.

In the first place, they need the guaranteed protection of a Checking Account. And all accounts up to $10,000 are 100% guaranteed with your Santa Anna National Bank.

Equally important is the convenient record it affords you. No question about where your money went, and for what.

And if you're one of those people that dread that monthly tour of bill paying, a check in an envelope does the job for you.

Size of your Checking Account makes no difference to us. Our main interest is that your money gets the protection and service it deserves... and we can give. We invite you to open your account now.

HAUNTED BY THOUGHTS of home, there's a lot of restlessness showing up in the House of Representatives these days. Perhaps a month ahead of the Senate in advancing the legislative program, House members are beginning to fuss and fret about delaying tactics in the Senate.

Only recently the Administration-sponsored communications satellites bill, which cleared the House almost unanimously, bogged down in the Senate when Senator Wayne Morse and a small minority of liberals objected to the bill being taken up in the Senate. A one-week filibuster was broken only by an agreement to send the bill to a committee for one week, following which there may be another talkathon by the liberals.

Morse, surrounded by a small group of like-minded liberals, got his dander up when Senator Mansfield, majority leader, objected to some of his tactics. Morse, in a huff, disowned Mansfield as his future leader. Republicans facetiously hinted that turn-coat Morse, who deserted the Republicans and joined the Democrats a few years ago, might be about to do another turn-about, and they speculated as to what they would do with the prodigal if he did return to his first-love.

ELDERLY IN THE SESSION The Senators killed the better part of three weeks debating a bill, prohibiting literacy tests applied to voters in various states. This abortive effort very properly went down the drain, but not until some Senators had made a record which they could point to in appeals to gullible, racial-minded, minority group voters this fall. And that one also marked another defeat for Attorney General Bobby Kennedy, who has spent a good part of his time in office dreaming up new schemes to use in trying to prove to Negro voters that he is their Fair Haired Boy in the political sense. And so it goes.

Elders' Workshop To Be Held At ACC August 20-22

Abilene Some 250 elders of the Church of Christ are expected to attend Abilene Christian College's 2nd annual Elders' Workshop, August 20-22.

All activities of the workshop will be held in the College Church of Christ building, across the street from the ACC campus.

Most of those appearing on the program are elders of years experience. The program will offer discussion groups and speeches on various aspects of elder responsibility and problems.

Dr. J. D. Thomas, workshop director, said that speakers and panelists will be present from Abilene, Corpus Christi, Dallas, Odessa, Fort Worth, Houston, San Angelo, San Antonio, Sweetwater and Oklahoma City.

Frank Sinatra manages to make one forget his "rat-pack" reputation when he opens those fantastic vocal chords. . . . He's still one of the greatest and little doubt about it. . . . The boy gets better with age, like wine and steak. . . . At any rate, Frankie's latest Capitol album, "Point of No Return" is one of his best and one of the most nostalgic and memorable albums ever recorded by Capitol. . . . He is backed by his old-time friend and arranger, Axel Stordahl, with whom he made his biggest hits.

The album, according to Capitol, represents the "bittersweet memory of tender moments to which there is just no return". . . . Frankie gives the songs of yesteryear a poignant twist that will soothe the lonely and subdue the gay. . . . He includes in his repertoire, "September Song," "I'll Remember April," "I'll See You Again," "Somewhere Along the Way," "These Foolish Things," "I'll Be Seeing You," "Memories of You" and "It's a Blue World."

Who's To Blame When Kids Do As They Please?

THE WEEK'S LETTER: "I am a girl of thirteen. After reading your article "Thirteen-Year-Old Wants To Date" I want to say I think you are absolutely right. But the kids at school, even those my age, go steady and have "petting" parties. Shouldn't their parents object? Who is really to blame—the kids or their parents?"

OUR REPLY: Thank you for the kind words. It is refreshing and a pleasant change when a teenager agrees with this corner. Because we find it difficult to tell teenagers the things they want to hear (i.e., you're big enough to do anything you want to, for instance) compliments are few. But they do come once in a while and we appreciate them.

We would like to pass along a compliment and say "Hooray for the thirteen-year-old who thinks for herself—and doesn't feel it necessary to follow the leader and do as others do."

Should parents object when children in their early teens go steady and have "petting" parties? Parents should and parents do—as a general rule. However, there are some parents who dismiss their responsibility with the simple assertion that "My kids don't do anything like that." There are other parents who do not know what their children are doing. (This type of parent is usually so wrapped up in social activities they seldom give a thought to their children.)

And, let's face it, there are some parents who just don't care.

Parents who allow their children to "run wild" one day have to account for the manner in which they failed to properly discharge their responsibilities. More often than not, the "payday" comes when these parents discover their children are in some kind of serious trouble—and begin to act like parents when it's too late to really matter.

If you have a teenage problem you want to discuss, or an observation to make, address your letter to FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS, NATIONAL WEEKLY NEWSPAPER SERVICE, FRANKFORD, KY.

New Cotton Spinning Machine Developed

College Station — A radically new experimental cotton spinning machine, developed by U. S. Department of Agriculture engineers, may be an important step toward eventual automation in cotton spinning mills.

Although much additional research will be needed to perfect its operation, the prototype apparatus has demonstrated advantages that could lead to considerable savings of time and labor required in spinning cotton yarn.

Inventors of the machine, known as the SRRL Ringless Spinning Machine, are G. J. Kyame and H. R. Copeland of USDA's Agriculture Research Service. Their machine spins cotton without the use of bobbins or traveler, which limit the rate of yarn production and the size and shape of yarn packages in current spinning.

The machine has two major faults, say the inventors. It puts more twist in the cotton than is desirable in a satisfactory yarn and the yarn varies in thickness and strength along its entire length and its appearance is inferior.

In conventional spinning, a bobbin is mounted on a spindle that revolves inside a closed ring at speeds up to 12,000 revolutions per minute. As the bobbin turns, twist is imparted to a strand of fibers, converting it into yarn. The yarn in turn, is wound around the bobbin.

In the SRRL Machine, the yarn is wound directly from the spindle into packages of any shape or size needed for later processing steps. This eliminates time and labor now required to change bobbins and rewind the yarn.

The manufacture of cotton yarn consists of an expensive series of disconnected processes. Although several of these have been combined or connected, many textile people agree that the full advantage of automation cannot be realized in spinning mills until present processes are replaced by an entirely new spinning procedure. The SRRL Ringless Spinning Machine, officials believe, is a step in this direction.

Glass Fiber Mat Protects New Seeded Waterway Channels

College Station — Glass fiber mat was the most effective of seven materials recently tested by the U. S. Department of Agriculture for use as temporary protection of newly seeded grass waterways.

Grassed waterways are used to carry flood runoff from terraced and contour-cropped fields as well as from roadways and airports. Temporary protection of newly seeded channels — until the grass is established — prevents damage from runoff producing rains, which can make regrading and reseeding necessary.

The channel-lining materials were rated according to the volume of water they withstood without damage to the waterway or to the material.

The glass fiber mat withstood more than four times as much water discharge as the next best material tested, pine-mesh jute cloth. The mat is a commercial product about 1 inch thick. It is made of fine glass fibers and is similar in appearance to insulation.

Good Housekeeping Around Grain Bins Helps Cut Insects

College Station — The summer grain harvest in Texas is picking up momentum each week and farmers are reminded that grain storage facilities should be put in first class shape before the harvest begins. C. F. Garner, extension entomologist, says grain should be stored only in bins which have been cleaned thoroughly and treated with a residual spray.

He says all old grain, trash, feed sacks and debris that furnish living quarters for insects should be removed from the bin. A sweep-down of the ceiling and walls and a thorough cleaning of the floor are musts. A good cleanup job around the bins will also help keep down insect infestations, he adds.

Grain storage structures should exclude all outside moisture, and they should be easily accessible for inspection and fumigation of grain. Bins in which grain can be aerated are helpful in cooling or drying grain.

Shifts Continue In Farm Real Estate

College Station — The average value per farm in Texas increased from $48,378 to $64,950 between 1959 and 1962, according to C. H. Bates, economist of the Texas Agriculture Extension Service.

In this same period, the average size of farms increased from 631 to 710 acres. This year the land on the average Texas farm is worth $59,302. Buildings are worth an additional $5,648. The average value for land and buildings is about $91 per acre, he said.

The rate of sales of farm land accelerated some during the last year also. The number of farm title transfers in Texas rose from 51.3 per 1,000 farms in 1960-61 to 58.2 in 1961-62.

A study by USDA's Economic Research Service shows the average value per acre of farm real estate reached a new high of $123 per acre in the U. S. in 1962, 5 percent higher than in the previous year. The average farm has 336 acres, and is worth $41,400. About $32,800 of this is accounted for by land, and the balance, $8,600, by farm buildings, Bates said.

Texas-Oklahoma Weekly Cotton Market Review Better

College Station — First major change in the 43-year-old weekly cotton market review of Texas and Oklahoma trading has been announced by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Emphasis has been shifted from the national and regional level to the local markets in line with general trade practices, points out John L. McCollum, manager, southwest area cotton office, USDA's Agriculture Marketing Service, Dallas.

What happens to cotton in the territory covered by each of the nine cotton classing field offices in the two states will be featured weekly with a table of spot prices for each of the designated spot markets — Galveston, Houston, Dallas and Lubbock.

McCullum says the name and format of the report have been updated to meet the needs of farmers as well as the cotton trade. The report will be titled — "Cotton, Texas-Oklahoma Weekly Market Review."

In addition to information on cotton market conditions and prices, the report will cover crop conditions, insect control, wages for chopping and snapping, costs of machine harvesting and ginning plus other spot news and pertinent facts.

The review is released every Friday and the complete report is available by mail without cost. Persons interested in receiving the report should direct their requests to Cotton Division, AMS-USDA, Room 404, 708 Jackson Street, Dallas 2, Texas.

HEALTH AND SAFETY TIPS FROM THE AMERICAN MEDICAL ASSN. High Altitudes

Planning a trip to the mountains to get away from the heat for a week or so? So are several million other American families

The News, Santa Anna, Texas, August 10, 1962

If you're headed for some really high mountains, above 7,000 feet, it would be wise to make the change gradually if you wish to avoid "high-altitude sickness."

Try, if you can, to make the ascent over a span of days so that your body can adjust to the oxygen-poor "thin air" at higher elevations, cautions Today's Health, the magazine of the American Medical Association.

Symptoms of high-altitude ache; blueness of the nails, lips, nose and ears; a feeling of warmth and flushing of the face soon after arrival; troubled sleep; dizziness; irritability, and shortness of breath.

There are some precautions that may help prevent distress if you have to make a fast trip from a low level to high elevations. Before the trip, get a good night's rest and avoid alcoholic beverages and heavy smoking. A good breakfast an hour or so before departure is all right, but no food should be taken during the rest of the trip.

Reduce physical activity during the trip. Sit quietly as much as possible. After arrival in the high altitude area, go to bed for a few hours and eat very lightly. Indulge in only light physical activity during the first 24 hours. Walk, don't run, if you have to climb steps to a hotel or lodge.

Patients with certain heart and respiratory conditions may encounter more serious trouble by abrupt change to high altitudes. However, physicians have noted that most patients with cardiac or pulmonary disease who can move around and engage in moderate activity at sea level most often can tolerate altitudes of 7,000 to 8,000 feet without serious effects.

If you have any doubts as to whether you or someone in your family may suffer from a trip to the high mountains, consult your physician in advance.

ward of Coleman and Charles F. Hawn of Athens were among those making complimentary speeches.

Hawn stated that he had known Greer ever since the highway engineer began his career in Athens.

His and Greer's association was unique, said Hawn, since he was the groom and Greer the bride when the two took part in a "womanless wedding" in

Athens about 40 years ago. VETERANS' INSURANCE PLANNED

Land Commissioner Jerry Saddler announced that the Veterans' Land Board had concluded preliminary arrangements to provide group creditors life insurance for some 30,000 veterans who have purchased land under the state's $200,000,000 program.

Great American Reserve Life Insurance Company of Dallas will be the insurer if the Texas Insurance Commission approves the plan.

Sadler said the plan is to guarantee full ownership of land to a veteran's widow or heirs at modest annual premiums.

Land board will send details to veterans included in the program when it is fully authorized.

BIG SCHOOLS "COOL"

Mass air conditioning programs at the University of Texas and Texas A&M College will account for seven per cent of the $28,767,006 of state funds earmarked for construction in the year starting September 1.

Money to air condition old classroom and lab buildings on the Austin and College Station campuses comes out of revenue from University Permanent Fund investments, as does all the $15,588,683 to be used for new buildings, renovation and additions at the two schools next year.

Air conditioning projects at the University include the chemical engineering building, Garrison Hall, Sutton Hall, and T. U. Hall engineering building.

A&M plans to air condition its agriculture building; animal industries building; biological sciences building; chemical building; engineering building; Francis Hall; and physics buildings.

DANIEL NAMES APPOINTEES

Gov. Price Daniel named new board members for three of the state's 19 colleges and universities.

Ennis Favors of Stephenville, a former state representative, was named to the Board of Regents of Texas Woman's University; and Jack Hughes of Abilene to the Board of Regents of Midwestern University. Charles D. Mathews of Dallas will succeed Jim Lindsey of Midland as a director of Texas Technological College.

Gov. Daniel also appointed Rep. J. W. Moore of Ballinger and Claud K. Robinson of Vernon to the interim house committee to study salt water pollution of the soil and surface water of Texas.

STATE LAUNCHES RAMP PROJECT

Texas Highway Commission has approved a $113,000 program to build 25 public boat ramps throughout the state. Money is surplus from boat registration fees collected under the Texas Water Safety Act.

Each boat ramp project also will include a parking area, access road, incinerator landscaping, ect.

Sites were selected on the basis of the water area to be served and the number of registration fees paid in the area.

In 1963 water sports season, ramps will be ready at: Lake Tawakoni, Lake Bridgeport; Possum Kingdom State Park; Oak Creek Reservoir; the San Jacinto River; Clear Lake; Dickinson Bayou and the San Bernard River.

Also Tres Palacios Creek; Turtle Creek; Indianola Roadside Park; Medina Lake, Copano Bay; the Nueces River; Corpus Christi Bay; Garza-Little Elm Reservoir; Pine Island Bayou; the Neches River; Taylors Bayou; Arroyo Colorado; Llano Grande Lake and Lake Leon.

WATER WORRIES

Joe Carter of Sherman, H. A. Beckwith of Eagle Pass and Otha Dent of Littlefield, have been worried about the future source of water for small communities.

"The big metropolitan areas can see after themselves," said Judge Dent, "while many smaller cities find themselves with a decreasing source of ground water. We've come to the point where we wonder if we should shift from focus on larger communities to smaller communities."

Commissioners talked about a guidance plan with the State Water Development Board and the State Soil Conservation Board. They agreed that many crossroads communities don't know what their water situation is, and some that know they're running low don't know where to turn for a new supply.

Reluctance to spend $2,000 to $5,000 for a hydrology (water resources) study prevents many smaller communities from taking steps to insure water supplies for their people.

SHORT SNORTS

Attorney Cooper K. Ragan of Houston is the new chairman of the Texas Civil War Centennial Commission. He took the chair from Walter Long of Austin, who will stay on the commission, as will newly-appointed Frank LaRue of Athens.

MORE THAN 90 per cent of the 4,000 drugs and pharmaceuticals used in the U.S. were developed within the past 12 years.

THE FARMERS WANT OUT

Despite its bad showing in various polls, as well as frequent rejection in its own referendums, the Department of Agriculture goes on its merry way trying to find political solutions to our farm "problems," many of which have been of its own making. Scandals continue to pile up as a result of the ridiculous, bureaucratic superstructure already imposed upon agriculture, but the Administration is always sure that the next Congress will do something for the farmer and pass its farm bill, thus saving the farmer for sure. The truth is that the American farmer doesn't want to be protected, coddled, babied or bullied. He wants to manage his own affairs, which he understands better than anyone else.

Nobody, apparently, believes the farmer when he says just that. The latest Farm Journal poll, only a little more decisive than a similar finding some years back, reveals again that more than half the farmers want the government out entirely. Only 4 per cent of the more than 50,000 who took part in the voluntary poll favored the measures in the legislation that were pushed so hard by the Administration and narrowly defeated in the House. But the government does not want to get out of agriculture.

It's Fighting To Get In
Although the poultrymen have been in some trouble, with the government talking about marketing orders, they voted 70% in favor of getting the federal government out of their business. Although a vote for controls would have pushed upward the depressed prices on the turkey market, the nations turkey growers have turned down controls in balloting that must have stunned the Washington planners. In short, the farmers prefer freedom over regimentation.

These polls and referendums as well as the recent defeat of the Kennedy farm bill constitute a strong message to the government that complicated tinkering with production and marketing creates more problems than it solves. What our bumbling bureaucracy and promising politicians never seem to grasp is that people know what they want. The nations farmers believe this kind of intervention erodes and finally destroys freedom, and they are quick to express their desire to manage their own business and make their own decisions.

Market Rigging
The planners believe that the government can rig the markets for this or that commodity, so as to control the economy piecemeal and please everybody, even the conflicting interests, fight off recessions, and then get elected again and again. But what the planners do not notice, being blind to such matters, is that freedom takes a licking, the looters and fast-buck boys have a field-day, and the taxpayers have to pick up the check. These planners, you see, don't mind a few doses of state socialism as long as it is not called by that name.

While the Estes case is still sizzling, other shenanigans are coming to light in government pricing programs. The illegal sale of federal rice planting quotas was being investigated in Texas. The General Accounting Office was charging that private cotton brokers, with the help of the Department of Agriculture, sold $400 million worth of government cotton to themselves at below market prices, then resold it and pocketed the profits. Some fantastic lobbying among foreign and domestic sugar producers was being looked into, as a result of Uncle Sam's sweetening subsidies.

Big Opportunities
What do we have? We have the government empowered to enter markets that we usually consider more or less free, for the express purpose of rigging them. The Department of Agriculture, for example, employs more than 100,000 persons, spends $6 billion a year and gets in everybody's business. It is entrusted with stockpiles worth some $3 billion. (One wonders who'll purchase Billie Sol's elevators for a song and then whether taxpayers will have to pay for hauling back the grain that the Department so self-righteously removed from the Estes bins.)

As long as we have big government reaching out to touch every facet of life, that long shall we have the opportunity for favors, payoffs, abuses, and racketeering. The party in power may try to keep as clean as the proverbial hound's tooth, but the system will not allow it. Add all the loss of freedom, actual and potential, and you have a situation inimical to the American way of life. The people do not want this. It is high time Washington recognized it.

Cattlemen To Meet In Wichita Falls

Recent developments in the beef cattle industry will be in the spotlight at the quarterly directors' meeting of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association in Wichita Falls, Sept. 22.

Branding, taxation, and a number of other factors of importance to cattlemen will be discussed, according to Joe Fletcher, TSCRA secretary-general manager.

WHAT MEAN THESE STONES?

WE HAVE recently read of the plan of the Israelite to divert a portion of the water of the Jordan River to irrigate a desert section of their country and of the opposition of surrounding nations. It is not probable that, if the project is carried out, the stones that were placed in the river bed at the historic crossing of the Israelites so long ago will be uncovered and identified.

But the ancient tribesmen did cross the river in a great army as the waters of the Jordan were halted and impounded far to the north. And we are persuaded that the landmarks of history will not disappear from the minds of men for the reason that they live in the mind through faith.

There seems to be a growing interest in our landmarks, the sacred places of history in our great Country. And surely this is all to the good. It will be good to imbue all our people with the American spirit that has made us a great people. And surely, for every individual who looks back over the changing scenes of his own life there must be a sacred spot which he in memory goes with bowed head to thank the heavenly Father for his love and care.

Cotton Harvesting And Ginning Changes Studied

College Station — Shifts in the cotton producing areas of Texas and changes in harvesting methods have greatly affected investments in gins, according to Progress Report 2233 of the Texas Agriculture Experiment Station.

The report shows that the Blacklands and East Texas have shown the greatest decreases and the High Plains the largest increases in cotton production. The areas with great declines in production have had comparable declines in the number of gins and those areas with increased production have had opportunities for expanded investment in gins, the report explains.

Cotton harvesting has almost completely shifted from hand snapping and mechanical harvesting and thus has created a greater need for cleaning devices in the gin to handle this cotton. This additional equipment has increased the investment that a gin owner must make, the report continues.

There are wide differences in the amount of cotton each gin handles and in the areas of falling production they are not handling enough cotton to be economical, the report points out. The gins in the Blacklands and East Texas are not being fully utilized as are the gins in the High Plains.

These preliminary studies show that model gin plants should be developed as a guide for installing and remodeling gins to get the most efficient operation under different conditions and in different areas of the state.

For details on the effects of the changing cotton picture on the gin operations of Texas write the Agricultural Information Office, College Station, and request a copy of Progress Report 2233.

Rep. Ben Barnes Named To House Committee Recently

Speaker James A. Turman recently announced the appointment of Representative Ben Barnes of DeLeon as one of five House members to serve on the interim committee to Study Salt Water Pollution to the Soil and Surface Waters of Texas.

Created by House Simple Resolution No. 126, 57th Legislature, the committee is to determine:

(1) If existing laws are adequate to control salt water pollution from man-made causes, should strengthened enforcement and policing be provided;

(2) If corrective legislation should be devised, and if so, what form this legislation should take and what funds should be provided to insure the placing of responsibility for pollution and the laws relating thereto; and

(3) What new research or implementation of old research should be made in order that the best possible methods of preventing salt pollution might be employed in Texas.

Speaker Truman said, "Representative Barnes has made an outstanding freshman legislator and I am sure he will be an asset to this committee in its efforts to solve this important problem."

Cut Feed Handling Labor With Auger

College Station — Auger conveying systems for feed handling are being used in many ways to cut labor requirements on Texas farms and ranches, reports W. S. Allen, extension agriculture engineer.

Different types of these conveying systems have been put into operation in Texas to handle both roughage and ground concentrate feed for livestock. Some reduce the feeding job to pressing buttons, others are only partly automated and require some labor to handle the feed. Automatic controls for auger type conveyors have made this possible, Allen says.

If more than one ration is used in the same feed processing system, the time needed to empty the auger may be a problem. Augered material will travel 25 feet at 100 revolutions per minute. On long augers this takes several minutes for clean-out, points out the engineer.

The design, layout and installation of an economical, functional system requires careful planning. The following principles of handling bulk feed material should be kept in mind when planning such a system, says Allen.

Move materials as little as possible; let livestock help as much as feasible; handle materials in bulk or in some form suitable for mechanical handling; provide for continuous flow and eliminate unnecessary operations, and mechanize operations that can be done so efficiently. He adds that no single system is likely to fit another situation exactly in detail and layout.

Allen suggests that you examine your feeding operations for ways to improve and economize as well as to increase efficiency. Local county agents, he adds can supply copies of "Farm Feed Processing — Equipment Planning and Design," and other information on feed handling and utilization.

Mrs. John V. Asta, the former Fleta Perry, and four children of Bristol, Pa., are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Perry, this week. Also visiting the Perrys are two grandchildren, Mike and Melissa Perry, children of Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Perry of Dallas.

Abilene Christian College set enrollment records for both six weeks terms of the 1962 Summer Session.

First term enrollment totaled 1,047 compared to the old mark of 935 in 1961. Second term enrollment was 835 compared to 758 last year.

Abilene Christian College expects slightly more than 2,700 for the fall semester which would be the ninth straight year for a record attendance. The 57th session begins September 13.
