Santa Anna's Pride Of The Month

Santa Anna's Pride of the Month honors go to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. T.L. McCloud on Bowie Street. The McClouds moved to the home several months ago and took a yard that had not been cared for in some time and made it a showplace of colorful flowers intermingled with a few vegetables. Not only has they shown pride in their work in the surroundings of their home, the neighbors are also proud of their efforts.

The "Pride of the Month" is chosen each month by a committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

They defeated the Panthers 14-5 in the playoff game. Chris Guerrero was the winning pitcher in the championship game. The team boasts the only girl in the

by U. S. Senator Loyd Bentsen
The United States flag represents freedom, justice and hope for people all over the world.

That's why I...along with millions of other Americans... was shocked and disappointed by the recent Supreme Court decision on desecration of the flag.

The decision sprang from a 1984 incident in Dallas, when a protestor burned the American flag and was joined by others in chanting, "America, the red, white, and blue, we spit on you".

As offensive as these words are to me and to other Americans, they are protected by the First Amendment as free speech. Nobody interfered with those protestors' right to speak freely, and no one prevented them from speaking.

But in Texas, desecrating the flag is a crime. And the protestor responsible was duly arrested. He was not punished for his words. He was punished for his actions.

When this case came before the Supreme Court, however, the justices felt that arresting this protestor for burning the flag violated his First Amendment right of speech.

This is the same court that has often noted that constitutional guarantees are constrained when they come into conflict with other guarantees. The right to bear arms is not the right to shoot someone. The right to assemble does not mean uninvited guests can congregate in your living room. And the right to free speech does not mean you can slander your neighbor or yell "fire" in a crowded theater.

Why can't the same principle be applied in this case? The protestors were not hindered from speaking. They were arrested for burning the flag.

As Justice John Paul Stevens...writing the dissent to the Supreme Court decision...said, "the case has nothing to do with disagreeable ideas...it involves disagreeable conduct." I agree. In fact, it is plausible that these protestors burned the flag to attract attention that their words could not do alone. And while the Constitution assures free speech, it does not guarantee an audience.

The day after the Supreme Court made its ruling, I was joined by several of my colleagues in the Senate in sponsoring a constitutional amendment to protect our flag from desecration. Several days later the President also endorsed a constitutional amendment to overturn the Supreme Court's flag burning decision.

intentionally desecrating the American flag is an abomination. Our beliefs and history are embodied in those stars and stripes. Blood has been shed in its defense. Hopes and dreams have flourished under its protection.

Even those who disagree with what our flag stands for enjoy its protection. I strongly support the First Amendment which guarantees the right to speak out.

But the Supreme Court majority was wrong in extending freedom of speech to burning of the flag. I'll be working to turn that around.

Dear Editor

I am not a wild-eyed radical or a religious fanatic, but have a concern to express.

Our local booster club and athletic organization have been using the theme "Black Magic" for several years. In our community we know there is no inference to the occult or with satanism, but I am concerned that some people may be offended by the motto.

The frequency with which we hear of the practice of satanism and the occult and the frightening results have made me wish the truly clever motto could be changed to give a more wholesome appeal. Any motto or saying can be over-used and outdated anyway. Perhaps a change would be a positive step for the new school year.

There are other themes that could be used...Bold Gold, Mountaineer Gold Rush, etc.

Perhaps no one else is bothered by the negative aspect of the motto, but I would be pleased to see it discontinued at the present time.

Expert Offers Tips On Shooting Feline Photos

Charming photos of fluffy, little kitties are certainly adorable, but for those cat owners wanting to snap memorable portraits of their own furry feline, time and patience are the most important considerations. According to John Tirrota, photographer for the 1989 Edward Lowe's Cat Lover's Calendar, you need to allow yourself plenty of time as cats get bored and lose interest just as humans do. If your cat won't cooperate, stop and try again later.

Here are more expert tips to help you capture that "purr-fect" picture:

- Keep it simple. Find a spot where the cat will be comfortable. Try a favorite chair or a window where your cat usually sits.

- Have your camera set up before bringing your cat into the area. You are more likely to hold your cat's attention if you aren't busy with the camera equipment.

- Make certain the area to be photographed is well lit. A strong, evenly distributed source of light is important.

- Use high speed film that allows you to set the F-stop between F16 and F22 on 35mm cameras. This is to ensure that your cat will appear sharp and in focus from head to tail.

Thoughts From Our Pastors

By Charlie Klinke
Seventh Day Adventist Church

Recently I spoke to a group of Junior boys and girls. I related how I had come from a broken home, how I had suffered intense anger, loss of self-esteem, and hate as a result of the rejection. Suddenly, I had the attention of all those rowdy young people. I explained how I had a hard time learning to trust anyone, including God, because I couldn't even trust my own parents. They didn't care enough about me to get their act together. I asked the group how many of them came from broken homes. This was a church group at a camp meeting. Over 50% of those young people raised their hands.

My friend, all human relations are based on two premises. Number one is RESPECT. Number two is TRUST. Whenever a couple has a "bedtime relationship" before marriage, trust and especially respect are severely damaged. Later, after the "Honeymoon" is over, there are dirty diapers, dirty dishes, dirty floors, and bills to pay. It then becomes apparent that the glue that keeps a relationship together is not sex...it is TRUST and RESPECT.

When Hollywood says "Get hot, get bothered, this is the ways to live", think about it. The price you pay may well be your children, your happiness, your spouse, or your fortune.

"Trust in the Lord with all your heart and lean on your own understanding; in all your ways acknowledge Him, and He shall direct your paths." (Proverbs 3:5-6)

Library Notes

Check It Out

by Alice Anna Spillman

In the last couple of weeks I have read papers from 3 different cities. These along with several magazines have contained articles concerning the importance of an education. Basic to education is the ability to read.

An article that I read in the Dallas paper gave these suggestions to help children read:

Let children choose their own books (take them to the library).

Set an example by reading when children are around. (Cut the TV off for a while each day and read.)

Leave books and magazines around the house.

Read aloud to children. (Older children can also read to younger ones.)

Allow children to stay up later at night ONLY if they read in bed.

Mrs. Frances Strauss of Houston who is Ethel William's sister, has donated a number of books to the Santa Anna Library. We appreciate her interest in our library.

Several area residents have had an opportunity to deal with insurance companies because of the storms that have blown through the area. The following is how a ham operator supposedly answered an inquiry concerning his insurance claim.

"I'm writing in response to your request for additional information for Block number 3 of the Accident Reporting Form. I put "poor planning" as the cause for my accident. You said in your letter I should explain more fully, and I trust the following details will be sufficient.

"I am an amateur radio operator and on the day of the accident, I was working alone on the top section of my new 80-foot tower.

"When I had completed my work I discovered that I had, over the course of several trips up the tower, brought up about 300 pounds of tools and hardware. Rather than carry the now un-needed tools and materials down by hand, I decided to lower the items down in a small barrel by using a pulley, which fortunately was attached to the gin pole at the top of the tower.

"Securing the rope at ground level, I went to the top of the tower and loaded the tools and materials in the barrel. I went back to the ground and untied the rope holding it tightly to insure a slow descent of the 300 pounds of tools.

"You will note in Block Number 11 of the Accident Reporting Form that I weigh 155 pounds.

"Due to my surprise at being jerked off the ground so suddenly, I lost my presence of mind and forgot to let go of the rope. Needless to say, I proceeded at a rather rapid rate of speed up the side of the tower. In the vicinity of the 40-foot level, I met the barrel coming down: this explains my fractured skull and broken collarbone.

"Slowed only slightly, I continued my rapid ascent, not stopping until the fingers of my right hand were two knuckles deep into the pulley.

"Fortunately, by this time, I had regained my presence of mind and was able to hold on to the rope in spite of the pain.

"At approximately the same time, however, the barrel of tools hit the ground and the bottom fell out of the barrel. Devoid of the weight of the tools, the barrel now weighed approximately 20 pounds. I refer you again to my weight in Block Number 11.

"As you might imagine, I began a rather rapid descent down the side of the tower. In the vicinity of the 40-foot level, I met the barrel coming up: this accounts for the two fractured ankles and lacerations on my legs and lower body.

"The encounter with the barrel slowed me enough to lessen my injuries when I fell onto the pile of tools, and fortunately only three vertebrae were cracked.

"I'm sorry to report, however, that as I lay there on the tools, in pain, unable to stand, and watching the empty barrel 80 feet above me, I again lost my presence of mind.

"I let go of the rope!"

U.S. Census Bureau Begins Recruiting Temporary Workers For Next Spring

The U.S. Census Bureau has a number of temporary jobs open in some counties in Texas to help compile a master list for use during the 1990 National Census.

Temporary census workers usually will work two to eight weeks and will be paid $5.50 an hour plus auto mileage where appropriate. Applicants for the jobs must be 18 years old or over, a U.S. Citizen, and take a written test.

For job information you may contact the Texas Employment Commission in Brownwood. A test time has been set for Wednesday, July 19 at the Brownwood office of T.E.C. Times are 9:00 a.m. and 1:00 p.m. You may also contact the Lubbock Census Office at 1202 Jarvis or telephone (806) 742-8605.

The work involves driving or walking to prepare a list of addresses of each dwelling unit in designated areas of the county. The collected addresses will be combined to build a nationwide automated address file which will be the key to a complete census.

"This address listing operation is the foundation for a successful 1990 census," said the Census Bureau regional director, John E. Bell. "The resulting automated address file will be the central mechanism to keep track of over 100 million census questionnaires nationwide."

The address file will be used to produce census questionnaire address labels, keep track of returned forms, pinpoint those households where personal follow-up visits must be made to complete the forms, and provide local governments with pre-census and post census housing unit counts for their review. Each housing unit in the nation will receive a questionnaire during March 1990. Census day is April 1, 1990.

Snakes Studied At Library Creature Feature Program

The Santa Anna Library Summer Reading Program this last

Thursday was a special program on snakes given by Steve Vail, Game

Warden for the Texas Department of Parks and Wildlife. Jenna Hensely brought several rattlesnake rattlers to show to the other children. Zackary Lawhon and Bo Morgan brought unusual insects they had collected. They had become interested in the insects at the previous library program which features "Tiny Creatures" and wanted to share their collections with the other children.

Children in the lower elementary group heard an original story written and told by Mrs. Jean McClellan. They also made paper snakes.

Children in the pre-school group tried crawling like snakes and caterpillars, jumping like grasshoppers and frogs. They decided they were glad they were people!

They also heard a story and learned several finger plays.

The older elementary drew creatures, using their initials and also played a game in which they solved the mystery of the case of kidnapped cookies.

The next program will be held at the Telephone Cooperative meeting room at 9:30, Thursday, July 20. All children in the community are welcome and encouraged to share in the fun of learning.

Cory Brown and James Balderas, members of Santa Anna Boy Scout Troop #230 have returned from a week at Camp Tonkawa at Buffalo Gap. They accompanied boys from Coleman Troop #231. Tex Wright joined the boys there for a few days.

Both Cory and James earned their swimming and first aid merit badges and their cooking skill awards. They each increased their rank to 1st Class. Due to a new ruling, it was necessary for them to appear before an adult review board. In the past, Scouts seeking 1st Class rank appeared before a review board made up of other Boy Scouts.

A Search For Country Characters

Country magazine has launched a search for "America's No. 1 Country Character", and has contacted the Santa Anna News to request our staff's assistance in this national search.

Our staff is turning this assignment over to you, our readers. We're asking your help in nominating someone from this area for the title.

The national winner will receive a 30-day unlimited ticket on Greyhound or Amtrak, allowing him or her to travel anywhere in the U.S. for a full month to see rural America up close!

And the person who nominated that winner will receive the same, allowing unlimited free travel by train or bus throughout the U.S. for 30 days! Or, the winner or nominator can accept $1,000 in cash instead.

A quick read-through of Country's description of the kind of "character" its searching for in this search leads our staff to believe we may have a few viable candidates right here in our community.

"Every rural community has at least one 'real character' who can be counted on to brighten a dull day," says Roy Reiman, publisher of Country.

"He or she is the one who always comes up with a colorful remark, finds humor in what could be a depressing situation, is perhaps a practical joker, or is someone who simply marches to a different drummer to the delight of others in the area."

Sound like someone you know? Then nominate that colorful person...it may give him or her national exposure by being featured in Country magazine, which has attracted over 1 million subscribers in just two years. And both you and the winner could be traveling around the country by train or bus for a full month later this year!

To nominate one of the locals,

Country simply requests some details on why you feel this person is "America's No. 1 Country Character", and asks you to enclose a photo of your candidate if at all possible.

You're to enclose a self-addressed, post-paid return envelope so the editors can get back to you quickly for details or to return your material later. Send all this to Santa Anna News, Box 399, Santa Anna, Tex. The News may choose to use the entries as local features and all will be forwarded to Country magazine.

All entries and photos, become property of Country magazine which will feature many of the runners-up in future issues before announcing the national winner at the end of the year.

Memories From My Scrapbook

by Gladys Hunter

The following is an excerpt from my scrapbook from a number of years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Shuford have been "under the weather" this winter, but were really surprised when a group of neighbors, led by Mr. and Mrs. Jack McSwane, took the plows and tractors and broke land for them.

The men plowing were Jack and Aubrey McSwane, Lawrence Brunsenhan Jr., Leffel Estes, James Sluder, John Kemp and James Townsend.

The ladies serving dinner were Mrs. Jack McSwane, Mrs. Aubrey McSwane, Mrs. James Sluder, Mrs. Kate McIlvain, Mrs. Blake Williams, and Miss Linnie Box.

It is fellowship like this, we are thinking about when we say, we wouldn't "trade our hometown".

The Shufords say thanks a million.

Tips To The Elderly On Beating The Summer Heat

With the hottest months of the year now upon us, heat illnesses are major health concerns - especially for the elderly. About 4,000 deaths related to heat stroke occur in the United States each year, with the majority of the deaths occurring in the elderly population.

DANGEROUS WEATHER CONDITIONS

The most dangerous weather conditions for heat illnesses are extreme heat, high humidity and no wind.

"An elderly person, however, can suffer from heat illnesses at temperatures as low as 80 degrees," says Dr. Katherine M. Jew, of the Division of General Internal Medicine at the Scott & White Santa Fe Internal Medicine Clinic. Dr. Jew is board certified in Internal Medicine and Geriatrics.

The three forms of heat illness, in order from the least to the most severe, are heat cramps, heat exhaustion and heat stroke.

HEAT CRAMPS

"Abdominal heat cramps, the least dangerous form of heat illness, are usually experienced by young, healthy people who have over-exerted themselves physically, but these cramps can occur in older people as well," explains Dr. Jew.

The remedy for heat cramps is simply fluid replacement.

HEAT EXHAUSTION

Symptoms of heat exhaustion include dizziness, headache, nausea and a low grade temperature. "When these symptoms occur and heat exhaustion is a possibility, the person needs to report to an emergency room for treatment, which consists of replacing fluids", advises Dr. Jew.

HEAT STROKE

The most serious form of heat illness, heat stroke, can result in death if left untreated.

SIGNS OF HEAT STROKE

Heat stroke victims experience numerous symptoms including the following:

- Severe confusion
- Dizziness
- Headache

- Elevated temperature
- Nausea and vomiting
- Low or high blood pressure

In the advanced stages of heat stroke, a person may even have seizures or go into a comatose state.

HEAT STROKE AND THE ELDERLY

"Heat stroke is more common and more life-threatening for the elderly," says Dr. Jew.

Why are the Elderly More Susceptible and Affected by Heat Stroke?

The elderly are more susceptible to heat stroke for several reasons.

Because of the changes that occur in the sweat glands with aging, elderly people do not sweat properly, which means that their bodies do not cool themselves down as well when they become overheated.

ABRUPT HEAT

Elderly people are generally not as acclimated as other people either. "They may stay inside for long periods of time; so when they do go out in the sun, the abrupt heat puts too much stress on their bodies", explains Dr. Jew.

NO AIR CONDITIONERS

Many elderly citizens do not have air conditioners, which is certainly another risk factor.

MEDICATIONS AND SUBSTANCES

"Medications and substances which an older person may be taking, such as diuretics, alcohol, sedatives and antidepressants, can also affect his ability to sweat and his perception of how hot his environment really is", explains Dr. Jew.

MENTAL OR PHYSICAL DISABILITIES

Mental illness can also affect the person's perception of temperature.

Because of either mental or physical disabilities, the older person may not be able to care for himself properly or protect himself from the heat.

OTHER ILLNESSES

Many older people have other illnesses, such as heart disease, lung disease and diabetes, which also put them at a higher risk for heat stroke. The combination of heat stroke with these other illnesses can be fatal.

WHAT CAN THE ELDERLY DO TO PREVENT HEAT STROKE?

Older people can take the following steps to protect themselves from heat illnesses:

-Acclimate yourself over a one- to two-week period by slowly and gradually exposing yourself to the sun instead of taking in a lot of sun and heat all at once.

-Maintain adequate fluid intake.

-Avoid heat in the middle of the day (between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.); plan outdoor activities and exercise in the early morning or late evening.

-Use air conditioners or fans.

-Wear light weight, light-colored and loose-fitting clothing.

-Be aware of medicines or illnesses that you are taking or have which put you at higher risk for heat illnesses.

-Increase your rest periods during the heat of the day.

WHAT CAN OTHER PEOPLE DO TO HELP THE ELDERLY PREVENT HEAT STROKE?

Friends, family and neighbors of elderly citizens should also be aware of the heat illness symptoms listed above so that they can easily spot problems in the older people who might be unaware of the symptoms or unable to care for themselves.

They should also be aware of the elderly people's lifestyles. Do they have air conditioning or fans? If not, friends, family and neighbors can help them get those services.

WHAT TO DO WHEN HEAT STROKE OCCURS

If an elderly person is experiencing heat stroke symptoms, the following steps should be taken by friends, family or neighbors:

-Remove his clothing

-Sprinkle him with water and turn on fans to cool him down.

-Take him or call an ambulance to take him to an emergency room immediately.

NOTE OF CAUTION

When overheated, elderly people should not try to replace their salt. Although this is a common practice for other age groups, it could be hazardous for older people who can experience complications.

Skin Cancer is America's most common form of cancer. Fortunately, it's also among the easiest to detect; the most common warning sign is a change in the size, shape or color of a mole.

For a limited time only, the American Cancer Society and the Texas Dermatological Society are sponsoring a free skin cancer screening. If you have a warning sign, work outdoors, or are active in outdoor activities, we urge you to take advantage of this free screening.

With early detection, skin cancer treatment has a very high rate of success. And that includes the treatment of melanoma, the deadliest form

Willie Joins "Don't Mess With Texas" Campaign

AUSTIN, TX., June 29, 1989: Singing "Mamas, tell all your babies don't mess with Texas", Willie Nelson is the latest Texas entertainer to jump on the state's maverick antilitter bandwagon.

Joining the ranks of Stevie Ray Vaughan, The Fabulous Thunderbirds, Jerry Jeff Walker and Joe Ely, the Willie Nelson spot continues a tradition of using well-known Texas entertainers and sports figures to help win the state's tough battle with trash. The new television and radio public awareness campaign will debut at the Keep Texas Beautiful conference in Houston on June 29.

The effort coincides with an increased national emphasis on the many formidable environmental issues. The "Don't Mess with Texas" campaign is taking a leadership role in mobilizing individual citizens to take responsibility for the environment by actively participating in antilitter programs.

According to Don Clark, director of the highway department's Travel and Information Division, the success of the overall campaign is the result of cooperative efforts of hundreds of thousands of Texans, including over 50,000 Adopt-A-Highway volunteers and thousands more from community clean-up organizations in every city.

Be Cautious Of Buying Low Cholesterol Eggs

COLLEGE STATION---You've read all the claims on various food product labels--low salt, low fat, low calories, low cholesterol. Yet another product is surfacing--low cholesterol eggs--and buyers need to be cautious.

"Consumers should not be misled by a simple statement such as 'lower in cholesterol' that may appear on egg cartons," said Dr. David B. Mellor, a poultry marketing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Any statement of this type requires a firm to declare a full nutritional label which must be approved by the Food and Drug Administration," Mellor said. "That label should disclose the cholesterol level."

With all the concern about dietary cholesterol and fat these days, how do eggs shape up?

The specialist said that recent analysis indicate large eggs contain about 210 milligrams (mg) of cholesterol. Tests dating back to 1976 show large eggs to have 274 mg of cholesterol.

At the same time, tests show large eggs containing 5.2 grams of fat, down from the 5.8 grams reported in 1976.

Why the reductions?
"There are a number of possible explanations for the reduced level of cholesterol and fat in eggs today," Mellor said. "Changes in feed, management and breeding practices as well as more sophisticated analytical methods for measuring dietary cholesterol may all account for the lower levels."

Mellor said that FDA will likely release regulation next year regarding cholesterol labeling claims. Even if eggs have lower cholesterol, they cannot be labeled "low cholesterol" or "reduced cholesterol" without meeting FDA definitions," he said.

The specialist said that expected definitions include "low cholesterol--less than 20 mg per serving, and "reduced cholesterol--75 percent reduction from the original."

"Because of the increased attention to healthy diets and the fact that people with high serum cholesterol levels need to control their dietary cholesterol and fat intake, the market for low cholesterol and low fat foods continue to expand," Mellor said. "However, consumers need to be cautious of product labeling and various claims that may or may not be true."

A Shoestring Catch

One of the most exciting things to watch in baseball is an outfielder running at full speed, then leaping to make a catch just before a dying fly ball hits the grass. Why is it that later in the game the same player might pull up and play a fly ball on the first bounce?

It isn't that the player has lost his nerve. Playing the bounce was probably a smart play. Depending on the situation, it may have been a smarter play than the shoestring catch. And that's the key to the whole question of how to play a fly ball that may or may not be catchable. It all depends on the situation.

Say you are in the later part of a game and the score is tied. If you dive and miss, the ball could easily get behind you, and the runner will make second base with little trouble and might get all the way to third base. Now a routine fly ball becomes a sacrifice fly that scores the go-ahead run. That kind of mistake is one the manager will have trouble forgiving. It's better to play the bounce and keep the runner at first base.

In the first few innings you will, quite naturally, take more of a chance than in the ninth inning. But there are other factors to consider as well. You certainly wouldn't play the same way in the Astrodome as you would on natural grass. On artificial turf if you drop a shoestring catch, it's more likely to bounce a long distance and result in a triple or an inside-the-park home run.

So it depends on the score of the game, where you are playing and who the base runners are. If the batter is fast, or if there is a good runner already on base, that speed has to be taken into consideration.

If you get to the ninth inning leading by a run, the one thing the manager doesn't want to happen is to have a ball hit over an outfielder's head. The word is "give them the single but don't give them the double." If you are at the stadium, look into the dugout and you'll probably see someone waving a towel. That means play back and keep all balls in front of you.

The infielders also adjust in this situation. Early in the game, the third baseman played "off-the-line," a few steps from the foul line towards the center of the field. In the ninth inning, he will be "guarding the line" because a ball hit down the line is just about an automatic double.

This is all just good, basic baseball. And it's second nature, or should be, with most players. H

Now Is The Time For Stocking Ponds With Fish

Now is a good time to consider fish stocking for hours of recreational fishing and good eating in the months and years ahead, according to Larry Seymore of the Soil Conservation Service.

The good rains of the past month have filled lots of stock ponds in Coleman County to near capacity, says Seymore. For those ponds that had dried up and are now full, and for brand new ponds, stocking can proceed immediately. For ponds that may already have fish populations, restocking should only be done after the existing fish are killed with rotenone.

Most ponds in Coleman County, being less than an acre, are best suited to catfish production, says Seymore.

Catfish ponds can be managed in two ways: 1 - stock 500 to 1,000 fingerlings per acre when fish will be fed daily with commercial catfish feed; or 2 - stock 100 fingerlings per acre plus one to two pounds of fathead minnows for forage when catfish will not be fed or fed only occasionally. Many ponds in Coleman County are between 1/4 and 1/2 acre, so stocking rates should be reduced accordingly. Catfish fingerlings should be stocked only in ponds that do not have an existing bass population. If bass are present in a pond, then at least 8 inch catfish should be stocked to minimize predation.

The fathead minnow is a slow swimming forage fish that catfish readily eat once the catfish reach one pound. Fatheads are very prolific and can be encouraged to produce with the addition of spawning devices. Fatheads can spawn over 10 times within a year. Since fatheads lay egg masses on the underside of floating or underwater objects, minnow production can be increased by floating boards or submerging tin roofing or tires in shallow water.

Whether catfish are fed naturally or with commercial feed, they will grow from fingerling size to frying size - about 14 inches in the first year. Catfish are among the most efficient converters of food to meat in the animal kingdom. They are known to convert 1 1/2 to 2 pounds of feed into one pound of gain. Catfish are easily produced in most ponds and can provide lots of sport and good eating.

Only those ponds over one acre in size are well suited to bass production. Furthermore, bass are more difficult to manage and will produce less per acre than will catfish. A good bass population is totally dependent on a very high producing forage fish population. It requires about 8 pounds of forage fish to produce one pound of gain in bass. This means that a 5 pound bass has consumed 40 pounds of forage or about 600 average sized bluegill. As you can see, a pond must produce large quantities of small forage fish to sustain even a small population of bass. Bluegill sunfish are considered about the best bass forage for ponds in this area. Other sunfish species, hybrid sunfish and crappie should not be put into ponds managed for bass, since they compete with bass for the same food items.

Bass fingerlings should be stocked at 50 per surface acre. Bluegill can most economically be stocked with 30 adult fish per acre. If adults are not available, 500 fingerling bluegill should be stocked. Fathead minnows stocked at one or two pounds per acre will provide food for small bass. Catfish, 6-8 inches, can be stocked with bass and bluegill in these larger ponds if desired.

SAFETY SENSE

"Home Sweet Home, Home Safe Home"

Home for many represents a haven—a refuge where people can feel safe and comfortable, a retreat from the hubbub of the outside world.

But a home that's been broken into can dash that sense of security. Homeowners have invested considerable sums of money in their residences. So, they can't afford to be careless about home security. Personal safety, material possessions and peace of mind are all at stake.

With some research and a little care, homeowners can greatly reduce the risk of becoming one of the shocked victims of a break-in or burglary.

Here are 10 tips from ADT Security Systems, the world's leading supplier of security systems, to help keep your home safe and secure:

- Check your locks and doors. Make sure outside doors are made of solid, 1 3/4-inch metal or hard wood.
- Invest in a window key lock at the hardware store and consider installing grills on basement or street-level windows.
- Don't hide the keys to your locks in a mailbox, planter, or under the doormats. As an alternative solution, you might give a duplicate key to a relative, close friend or neighbor.
- Take a good look at your home from the outside. Burglars will be discouraged from selecting your house as their target if:
 - Your porch, entrance and yard are well-lighted and well-maintained.
 - Your shrubbery is pruned and not obstructing doorways or windows.

- Your tree limbs are cut back.
- Consider purchasing an alarm system. Whether to help safeguard your valuables or provide you with reassuring peace of mind, there is an array of systems available on the market. They range from simple electrical circuits for door locks and frames to sophisticated sensing devices.
- Look for a system designed to meet quality and reliability standards. Remember to check the manufacturer's references before you sign a contract.
- Know your neighbors. Having a friend next door who might spot an intruder can be an excellent defense against being burglarized.

Tips And Trends From The Aziza Eye Art Studio An Eye-Opening Look at Mascara

For a really rich lash look, imitate the pros and coat the top side as well as the underside, rolling the brush upwards rather than downwards so lashes are lifted up before they dry. Or wait a couple of seconds for the mascara to dry, then apply a light dusting of face or baby powder, with your fingertip, over your lashes. Apply a second coat of mascara and see how thick and gorgeous your lashes can be!

It's a Jungle Out There

We had our lawn analyzed again this year. It is having a nervous breakdown.

Actually, what it has is a split personality. We think it is a lawn. It thinks it is a jungle.

By comparing this year's analysis with last year's, we learned that we got rid of the henbane, whatever that is. However, the lawn acquired chickweed and continues to display spurge, oxalis, wild onion, buckthorn, thistle, clover and some things no one in this part of the country has ever seen before.

Like I said, jungle. The truth is, that despite our best efforts, our lawn looks like New Guinea.

And our street is lined with home after home displaying those beautifully manicured blue-green lawns. Until you get to the corner where our house is located.

It is not that we haven't tried. Last spring my husband, Jim, was the first on our block to finish applying pre-emergent crabgrass killer.

A few weeks later he bravely took his life in his hands and applied broadleaf weed killer.

Next came clover and chickweed killer, followed by post-emergent crabgrass killer.

From the best we can determine, the weeds soaked up all of this deadly stuff, decided it was champagne and proceeded to party. The bluegrass, of course, croaked.

Our yard now looks basically like it did last spring before we started all this, but at least the stripes are going away. The stripes resulted from my husband's method of applying fertilizer.

Unknown to him, you're supposed to crisscross the yard, not simply push the spreader back and forth. By the time he discovered the problem and applied more fertilizer, it was too cold to "take."

So we have had to look at brown and green stripes all winter. So have our neighbors.

Last weekend we took the analysis to a local nursery. The man just shook his head and suggested professional help.

So far I have refused to hire a lawn service, even the one that performed the free analysis, thinking that our savings over the next decade will pay for a few months of our daughter's college tuition.

Besides, as Jim pointed out, there are some advantages to a yard like ours. After all, it was the only one in our subdivision that stayed green all last summer, thanks to our drought-resistant vegetation. And we never even had to water. H

Whon News By Mrs. Tom Rutherford

As mentioned before this date, the Cooper reunion usually held on Saturday before Father's Day in June, was postponed this year until Sunday, July 30. It will be held at the same location, in the Dunn Community Center, half-way between Colorado City and Snyder. This year is the celebration of Mrs. Louise (Cooper) Davis' 80th birthday. She called me to report to everyone through the paper in Coleman County. She would really love to see lots of her friends from this vicinity. If you are where you can go, you are invited to be present. Food will be served at the noon hour. I understand the meat will be catered, and you can take sandwiches, dips, chips or any type of food that is easy to prepare. Will be looking for you later this month.

The past Saturday afternoon a surprise thunder cloud came our way and poured us out some rain here at our place. We had 1 inch and 7 tenths. I have not contacted the Amon Otts. Have not been able to get them tonight and this afternoon. But have been told they received over two inches of moisture.

On July 4th, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Morris was with their son Mr. and Mrs. Jamie Lee Morris and daughters LeJae and Janet at DeLeon. Mr. and Mrs. Elwayne Perkins joined the family for a big barbecue dinner. LeJae returned home with her grandparents.

Mr. and Mrs. Jody Frazer and new baby son, Shane Loyd, was with her father Mr. Loyd Rutherford and son Todd from Tuesday to Sunday, when they returned home to Lubbock where Jody is stationed.

My daughter, Mrs. Bob (Patsy) Smith of Abilene came and was with me Tuesday and Wednesday night. On Thursday Loyd Rutherford and son Todd, Mr. and Mrs. Tonna and Jody Frazer visited with friends and relatives in Coleman and Bangs during the week.

Mr. Floyd Morris and son John David were in Kerrville to the Veteran's Hospital for Mr. Morris' checkup. We are sorry to report Mr. or Mrs. Morris are not feeling well. (But who can), this hot weather.

Mr. and Mrs. Niel Fitzpatrick and children of Odessa were weekend visitors with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Graham Fitzpatrick. On Sunday, Mrs. Fitzpatrick reports friends stopped for short visits all during the day. Mr. and Mrs. Dale and Kelly Mayfield and children of Odessa were visiting for a shot while. Also Mr. and Mrs. Shane and Julie Lehman of Odessa came by briefly. Also Mr. Charles Hosch and Mr. Paul Martin of Santa Anna. They were accompanied by a grandson, Brandon Fitzpatrick. Mr. Amon Otts came by briefly. Brand Fitzpatrick is a grandson of the Fitzpatricks and the Charles Hoschs.

Mr. and Mrs. Jamie Lee Morris of DeLeon were Saturday night guests with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Morris. They returned to their home Sunday morning. The daughter LeJae returned home following being with her grandparents a week.

Loyd Rutherford, Jody Frazer and Ora Rutherford were dinner guests with me Saturday. They came over to do some work but the thunder shower scared them away. Loyd on the Taylor Ranch received 3 tenths of an inch of rain.

I was awfully glad to have my grandchildren, Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Boatright and girls, Dena and Paige, of Brownwood to stop by for a visit one afternoon the last week. The family spent several days vacationing in and around San Antonio, coming to her parents Mr. and Mrs. Hilary Rutherford in Coleman for the Coleman Rodeo. Back to work for Bobby tomorrow (Tuesday). The family lives in Brownwood.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Morris were in Coleman the past Wednesday. While there they visited her brother, Mr. and Mrs. William Perkins.

Mrs. Billy Lovelady visited her sister Elva McDaniel in Brownwood Regional Hospital Thursday afternoon. Mrs. McDaniel was dismissed from the hospital Saturday.

Mr. Douglas Avant of Brady was with his mother, Mrs. Fear Avant in Santa Anna Saturday P.M.

Mr. and Mrs. Graham Fitzpatrick were transacting business in Abilene Wednesday afternoon.

AGRICULTURAL MILESTONES

Bioluminescence, the benign light from a living organism such as the lightning bug, is being developed into medical technology that has many applications, according to scientists with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station. The technologies range from an alternative to radioactive tracers to detection and identification of disease-causing bacteria, as well as their antibiotic sensitivity.

Besides these applications of immediate practical value to society, the lux genes (which direct a living organism to produce light) have immense value in basic research. Dr. Thomas O. Baldwin and his Experiment Station associates at Texas A&M University were the first to successfully clone the lux genes from a bioluminescent organism.

Baldwin used these genes to produce bioluminescent E. coli, a common nonpathogenic (doesn't cause disease) bacterium found within the intestine of healthy humans. He has freely supplied the lux genes to hundreds of laboratories worldwide, and they are getting wide and enthusiastic acceptance from scientists as a valuable research tool.

The primary value of the lux genes and the entire bioluminescence-based technology stems from the light emitted from the system. Unlike radioactive sources or X-rays, which have sufficient energy to cause damage to living tissues, the radiation emitted from the bioluminescent sources is visible light, which is totally harmless.

Techniques for detection of light are exquisitely sensitive and readily automated, making bioluminescence a prime candidate for applications in medicine and the allied health sciences.

Options for Health

by Dr. Scott White

DR. SCOTT WHITE is offered as a public service by Scott and White Memorial Hospital and Clinic in Temple. If you have a question please write to DR. SCOTT WHITE in care of your local newspaper.

Q. When I exercise, my heart rate goes up very high rapidly, but I don't feel as though I'm pushing myself hard enough. Is my heart rate the only indicator as to how hard I should push myself during exercise class?

A. The heart rate is not the only indicator of the appropriate intensity of your exercise. There are a few people who develop heart rates above their target range with low-intensity exercise.

Another method of gauging the intensity of your workout is by "perceived exertion." If you feel you are not breathing heavily or working hard, then increasing the intensity of your workout is okay.

The "conversational pace" method is probably the easiest way to control your exercise program's intensity. With this method, you should be able to have a conversation with a friend while you exercise. If you are so short of breath that you can't carry on a conversation, then you are exercising too hard.

Q. My teenage children will be old enough to swim without my supervision this year. Although they both swim well, I am interested in safety precautions. Can you give me some pointers to teach them?

A. I'm glad you wrote in about this subject. With the summer almost upon us, now is a great time to review basic swimming safety precautions.

• Never swim alone is an important precaution, but easy to ignore. When people come home from work to their backyard pool or jump in the motel's after a hard day of driving, it's hard to remember to not swim alone. These are the times accidents happen.

• Swim only in guarded areas or in areas where the surroundings, including currents and bottom conditions, are known.

• Do not swim after a meal, or in exceptionally cold water, or when you are tired.

• Do not exceed your swimming ability, i.e., don't swim too far from shore.

• Do not drink alcohol or use other "recreational" drugs before swimming.

• Do not dive into shallow water. Memorize the motto, "Know How Deep Before You Leap."

As more visitors come to Texas, we Texans get more opportunities to use one of our most valuable natural resources — Texas Friendliness.

Ranger Park Inn By Annie May Brimer

We are so thankful to live in a free country and do what we enjoy doing. The residents had a wonderful time eating ice cream Tuesday afternoon, that the D.A.V. Auxiliary of Coleman furnished for their 4th of July Party. Their entertainment was listening to western music of Alfred and Dessie Gully, Carl Blutworth and Gean Christian that was taped some time back. We appreciate Peggy Johnson and Billie Guthrie serving the ice cream and Henri Gilbreath for bringing the ice cream for the residents to enjoy.

Nell Myers and Louise McCoughan did a beautiful job mending clothes for the residents Thursday. This is such a wonderful project as so many benefit from it.

We are glad Lois Haines is making her home with us at Ranger Park Inn. Welcome Lois.

Since we have the V.C.R. the residents enjoyed a movie Friday afternoon as they ate pop corn Joe Green popped. This is a real fun time. We watched the Laurel and Hardy comedy tape Wheatley let us use for the entertainment.

Mike and Del Leavell, Maxine Douglas, Jim Leavell conducted service for the residents Saturday afternoon.

The Community Baptist Church of Coleman conducted the Second Sunday service Sunday afternoon. It is wonderful to have them share and visit with us each second Sunday.

There were three tables of 42 players Monday afternoon. Wilmoth Russell, Lora Russell and Lucile Wylie helped to make this a fun time.

We enjoyed having George Pruitt and Alma Bryan make Ranger Park Inn their home for a while, but we know they are glad to be able to return to their own homes. We will miss them but wish the best for them.

Carriers Of Heartworm Parasite Mosquito Bites Can Be Deadly For Fido

To humans, a dog's bite is worse than it's bark. But to dogs, a mosquito's bite is worse than it's buzz. Mosquitoes are the carriers of the parasite that causes heartworm disease, a deadly canine disease that is a very real threat to the 53 million dogs in the U.S.

Heartworm disease is caused by a parasite known as Dirofilaria immitis. The disease kills by causing damage to the heart and also to the lungs, liver and kidneys. Weakness, fatigue, chronic cough, loss of appetite and weight loss are signs that heartworm disease may be present. Unfortunately, by the time you recognize these signs your dog may have already suffered irreversible damage.

In northern states, spring through fall is generally considered "heartworm season." However, the disease will continue its deadly effect on your dog throughout the year unless it is detected and treated. Dog owners can protect their pets from heartworm disease by taking them to a veterinarian for testing. In southern states where warm weather makes mosquitoes a constant problem, it is advisable to test dogs twice a year.

Heartworm disease was once considered a disease limited to the southern states, but it has spread across the country and can now be found in nearly every state according to the American Heartworm Society. One of the main reasons the disease continues to spread is that many dog owners do not realize how easily their pet can be infected. Because of this lack of awareness, it is estimated that fewer than 20 percent of dogs at risk are on preventive medication.

Any dog exposed to mosquitoes is at risk of being infected. While hunting dogs and those leashed or in kennels outdoors are most susceptible, even dogs kept mainly indoors can become infected when taken for walks or released in the yard. Of course, mosquitoes also have a knack for finding their way into homes.

By having your dog tested routinely, your veterinarian can determine if it has been infected. Even if your dog tests positive, it can be saved if the disease is detected early enough. Once there is evidence of the disease, your dog should be given a thorough examination to identify any problems that might cause complications during treatment.

Dogs with adult heartworms must be treated with a series of injections with an arsenical compound to kill the worms, or the worms can be surgically removed. After the adult worms are removed another drug is administered to kill any microfilariae circulating in the bloodstream.

If the tests show your dog has no evidence of the disease, it should be put on a heartworm preventive.

Monthly and daily preventives are available, but neither can be given to your dog if it already has adult heartworms. Therefore, it is important to have your dog tested so it can be put on a preventive as soon as possible.

He just learned a new word. Heartworm.

To your dog, heartworms represent a dangerous and even deadly disease.

At one time, heartworm disease was confined to the Southeast, so many people in other areas were unaware of its existence. Recently, however, heartworms have been reported in almost every state.

The cure for heartworm disease is difficult, expensive and potentially dangerous.

Fortunately, however, prevention is easy. Just see your veterinarian for a heartworm test. Usually this can be done right on the premises in just a few minutes. Your veterinarian will then prescribe one of the convenient heartworm preventives now available.

You've just learned about heartworm disease the easy way—while there's still time to do something about it. Others have been less fortunate. So, please, call your veterinarian for an appointment today. Your dog's life could depend on it.

During Hot Texas Summers We All Scream For Ice Cream

By Deneen Murrieta
PM Editorial Services

"We dare not trust our wit for making our house pleasant to our friend, so we buy ice cream."

— Ralph Waldo Emerson, 1841

Some prefer tutti-frutti and bubble gum, while others will eat nothing but vanilla. But one thing is for certain: There's an ice cream flavor to satisfy even the pickiest of palates. Ice cream has become so popular that Congress has declared July as National Ice Cream Month.

Over the years, the old standards of vanilla, chocolate and strawberry have made room for more exotic flavors such as mystic mint and chocolate mousse royale. However, the old favorites have remained in the top five flavors for years.

In 1988, the top five flavors in the country were vanilla, chocolate, butter pecan, strawberry and chocolate chip.

Americans consume more than 900 million gallons of ice cream per year. On the average, adults eat 66 percent of the ice cream in each household, according to the International Ice Cream Association.

Ice cream, an all-American favorite, is often served with fruits and nuts.

"There's nothing like the taste of homemade ice cream," says Darolyn Nollsch, an industrial engineer in Oakland, Calif. "It reminds me of summer afternoons."

The following recipe should satisfy even the most finicky of ice cream connoisseurs. The recipe comes to us as one of the best from the American Dairy Association.

Honey Vanilla Ice Cream

Yield: 2 quarts

- 2 eggs
- 3/4 cup honey
- 1 1/2 cups milk
- 1 tablespoon vanilla extract
- 1 1/2 cups whipping cream

Beat eggs until foamy in a large mixing bowl. Gradually add honey; beat at low speed until well-blended. Gradually blend in milk and vanilla. Chill at least 30 minutes. Whip cream until it forms soft peaks; fold into chilled mixture. Churn-freeze, using slightly greater portion of salt to ice than for other ice creams. After freezing, transfer ice cream to a plastic freezer container. Ripen in freezer at least three hours before serving.

You can shut your eyes, but not your ears.

Protect your hearing. Wear ear protection.

Slow down your electric meter!

You can help slow down your meter and lower your cooling bills by following these tips:

- Set your thermostat on 78° or higher and use ceiling or portable fans to help circulate the air.
- Have your air conditioner serviced annually and once a month, check the filter. A dirty filter can keep your air conditioner from working efficiently.
- Keep doors, windows, and drapes firmly closed to keep cool air in and heat out.
- Protect ceiling and walls with adequate insulation. Make sure cracks around windows, doors, pipes and wiring are tightly sealed with caulking and weatherstripping.
- Use heat producing appliances, like ranges, dishwashers, and dryers during the cooler part of the day.
