Mission....Feeding The Needy

"To feed the hungry" is the mission of 85-year-old Rev. D.C. Neal. He and some fellow believers are making that dream come true with a community garden here in Santa Anna and another in Brownwood. The vegetables from the gardens are given to those in need in both communities. In fact, anyone wishing to share the "fruits of the group's labor" are welcome! Donations are welcome if anyone feels they had rather not accept the food for nothing. Sligers, in Brownwood, furnished the seed for the gardens. According to Rev. Neal, surplus vegetables are being sold to Sligers and the money received from the sales are put back into the program. Some of the funds raised are used to pay for workers who help with the gardens, since there haven't been enough volunteers to do all the jobs necessary. Rev. Neal says the group has used young workers as much as possible, providing summer work for several youngsters.

Neal pastors the New Hope Community Church whose members are actively involved in the project of feeding the hungry. The Santa Anna garden is situated not far from the church on the Rockwood Highway on land owned by Pearl Wilson, who also spends a lot of time watering and gathering the vegetables.

At the time of this visit last Friday, the Rev. Neal and Mrs. Wilson, with the help of assistant pastor, Henry Smith, and teen, J.D. Wolejevach, of Belton, a former resident here visiting his mother, had gathered vegetables to be distributed to those in need and were attending to watering chores when they stopped from their work long enough to pose for a picture.

The garden includes a wide variety of summer vegetables and Mrs. Wilson says this is only a beginning. A fall garden is also planned.

The group owns two tractors, two discs, a cultivator, planter and tiller and welcomes any other piece of equipment anyone would like to donate toward the cause.

Rev. Neal and Mrs. Wilson related that longterm plans include raising cattle, hogs and rabbits, so they can provide the needy with a full menu. The group has already been given some hogs and have talked of arranging for financing the purchase of some cattle. Rev. Neal said he would be most happy to hear from anyone wishing to donate cattle, hogs or rabbits to the "feed the hungry" project.

This might be a way for others to get involved. And, of course, any volunteer assistance is always welcome, whether it be funds or labor.

Local Voters Follow Suit

Republican challenger Kay Bailey Hutchison soundly defeated Bob Krueger by more than a 2 to 1 margin in the special election last Saturday for the U.S. Senate seat to which Krueger had been appointed by Governor Ann Richards. A Democrat, Krueger was appointed to the post after Loyd Benson resigned to accept the job of Treasury Secretary in the Clinton administration.

In winning the election, Mrs. Hutchison becomes the first woman to serve as a senator from the state of Texas. Her victory also marks the first time in this century that two Republicans will represent Texas in the U.S. Senate.

According to local vote totals, Santa Anna and the rest of Coleman County followed the statewide trend with Santa Anna giving Hutchison 113 votes to 67 for Krueger. Countywide, Hutchison garnered 837 votes to Krueger's 366.

Governor Signs Young Farmer Loan Guarantee Program Bill

AUSTIN—Governor Richards signed into law last week a bill that would establish the Young Farmer Loan Guarantee Program (YFGP). The bill, sponsored by Sen. Bill Sims (D-San Angelo) and Rep. Pete Patterson (D-Brookston), would establish guaranteed loans for eligible applicants not to exceed $50,000 or 90 percent of the total loan amount.

"I applaud the efforts of Sims and Patterson in sponsoring this bill," Governor Richards stated. "HB 1287 is a vital piece of legislation for the future of the agriculture industry in Texas," the Governor continued. "It will provide young farmers with the funds they need to build a prosperous future for themselves and add to the economic base of Texas."

Sen. Sims added, "The program gives young men and women a chance for a career in agriculture that they might not have had otherwise." Echoing Sims comments, Rep. Patterson stated, "This legislation gives young people the opportunity to buy enough land to have a base in agriculture."

The program will be created in the State Treasury with funds currently collected and deposited in the Young Farmer Endowment Account in the General Revenue Fund. Funding for loans for the YFGP would come from a special $5.00 agricultural motor vehicle fee established in 1991 and from available federal, local or private sources. The legislation the Governor signed would, however, provide for the refunding of the $5.00 fee by filing of an application with the Comptroller's Office.

Library Notes Check It Out

Alice Anna Spillman

The summer reading club for boys and girls will start Thursday, June 17. Children four years and up are invited. Meetings will be at the new library from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. It's very important to be on time. This summer there will be no opening group. Boys and girls will go into the three groups and stay there—except to check out books. Stories will be read, songs sung, games played and stories told. Each member should keep a written record of books read and the time used. Those too young to read by themselves may have someone read to them. Many new books are on the shelves and all have been arranged by the Dewey Decimal System an age level. If you have questions, call the library. Watch for posters. Listen to the radio for more information.

Mr. Charles (Chuck) Weeth of Abilene has given us so many beautiful books. These are new, unused. Last week he sent many more. It was over the weekend and the messenger couldn't locate the regular crew. She found a very reliable family. Brother and Mrs. Waide Messer passed the boxes along. Mrs. Messer said it would have been nice to keep them for the Baptist Church Library. It's good the messenger found a friend who couldn't be tempted. Our thanks to all. Probably the messenger was Mrs. Lonnie Edwards of Texas Sun Shield. She has helped before.

Sherry and Meghan Blake brought a table top book stand. Mrs. Robert See of Coleman brought books for the Texas section. She really should write a book about her own family. She has journals and letters—some dating back to the 1700's. Dr. Elizabeth Kelly Arnold has sent 13 more boxes. The family of Mrs. Ethel Jones Williams gave two bookcases, over 200 western paperbacks and many inspirational books. Mitch Guthrie, Glen Donham and M. L. Guthrie, Sr. moved these for the library. The shelves are filling fast. Your generosity is overwhelming. Thank you. If you like westerns, mystery, inspirational, world history and especially personal recollections of World War II, check the library!

Oh! new books came from the loan library at Abilene. There are Abilene and Coleman newspapers and new magazines and a very comfortable cool place to read!

Thoughts From Our Pastors

(EDITOR'S NOTE: In the absence of a contribution from a local pastor this week, the following is a true story written by Jack Kyle Daniels of Methodist Home, Waco.)

How would you describe the perfect vacation? For me, a great vacation means a chance to get away from it all and an unlimited supply of rest and relaxation.

But for fourteen boys at Methodist Home, vacation means heart-pounding, spine-tingling thrills. You see, last summer they took "getting away from it all" seriously and spent an entire week camping in the wilderness.

The boys' trek into the wilderness began with a training course on camping, and basic survival skills—a requirement according to Mr. Pettit, the trail guide. A waste of time, thought the boys.

"I've been takin' care of myself since I was eight, in a neighborhood a lot tougher than some little nature park. What do I need to train for?" protested Rodney, a tough, towering 16-year-old and natural leader among the group.

"Trust me," answered Mr. Pettit. Two grueling weeks later, the boys set off for Enchanted Rock—a pristine wonderland northwest of Austin. Born and raised in the city, the boys were awestruck by the beauty of the huge domes of pink granite surrounded by elm, mesquite, and live oak trees.

The boys spent their days boulder hopping and scrambling up ancient hills, climbing and swinging from trees, and wade fishing in Moss Creek Lake. Without even thinking, they were sharpening their newly learned skills.

Except for Rodney. He was terrified. His usual cool, tough attitude fell apart in fear of snakes, pitch black caves, a million indefinable sounds, and worst of all . . . heights.

At night around the campfire, the topic of conversation was anticipation of their final day when everything they had learned would be put to the test—the night climb up Enchanted Rock. Rodney called it "Nightmare Rock."

"Why do I have to risk my neck climbing a stupid rock?" "No one's going to force you to make the climb," Mr. Pettit encouraged. "It's your decision. But facing up to your fears here in the wilderness and beating them will help you find the courage to make other decisions in life. Trust me."

Finally the final evening arrived. The night was pitch black. Together, the group left camp and headed up Enchanted Rock with only one lantern. But Rodney stayed by the fire. "I'm not going up that dumb mountain at night," yelled Rodney.

"Come on, you can do it," the boys urged. With his teeth clenched and cold sweat rolling down his back, Rodney inched his way up the mountain.

After what seemed like an eternity, even Rodney made it. The view from the top of Enchanted Rock was breathtaking. The boys huddled together, exhausted and exhilarated. But there was much more to see . . . Mr. Pettit instructed the boys to lay down on the cold granite with their eyes toward the sky. Then he blew out the lantern.

"Wow!" "Cool!" "This is incredible!" Suddenly boys who had grown up under the blaze of city lights discovered the power of the Creator, complete with shooting stars. The vast expanse of the skies made them feel small but special . . . that same God had made each one of them.

Green Thumb Program Aids Local Library

Santa Anna Library is one of a number of small town libraries in the state who receive assistance from the Green Thumb, Inc.

Local librarian Ovella Williams is trained and certified through the Green Thumb program. She received her librarian certificate March 31, 1993 after training course in Abilene.

In April, Mrs. Williams, Alice Anna Spillman and Betty Key received special training librarians and library board members.

Library hours are Monday and Tuesday 8-12:30 and 1-4:30; Wednesday 8-11:30 and 12-4:30; and Thursday and Friday 9:30-11:30 and 1:30-4:30.

In 1970, Green Thumb, Inc. began providing part-time employment and training opportunities for economically disadvantaged Texans age 55 and older. Green Thumb operates a Senior Community Service Employment Program under a grant agreement with the Employment and Training

Administration of the United States Department of Labor with Federal funds appropriated under Title V of the Older Americans Act.

Sponsored by National Farmers Union, Green Thumb currently operates in 132 Texas counties and two counties in New Mexico. Approximately 1,000 senior trainees earn wages while contributing to the maintenance and growth of local areas by providing manpower assistance to community-based organizations. These temporary training assignments average twenty hours per week and are developed upon an individual basis to accommodate the talents, interests, and ambitions of each senior.

Participants are assigned to local non-profit agencies such as senior service centers, municipalities, libraries, schools, environmental projects and public works. The program remains flexible in order to respond to changing community needs and continually seeks new projects.

The Odus Stokes Observe 50th

Mr & Mrs. Odus Stokes 50 years ago

Winnie, the daughter of the late William and Pearl Holder, was raised in Santa Anna and attended Santa Anna schools. Family and friends are invited to the celebration.

Exercise Reverses Physical Decline

By: Carol Katzer, CEA-H.E.

Some physical decline is inevitable with aging, but as much as 50 percent of physical limitations can be blamed on inactivity. Even low levels of activity such as walking can lead to improvement in health and general well being. And even severely impaired elders can regain strength and independence.

In one nursing home (in Connecticut), 20 disabled residents walked daily for four months. Several people became more sociable as their walking improved and they were able to attend meals and activities. One incontinent resident resumed independent trips to the bathroom and eventually regained continence.

For safe and enjoyable exercise with older persons:

- *Exercise in pairs and groups
- *Exercise at the same time daily
- *Stop exercise if severe pain, dizziness or other unpleasant physical symptoms occur
- *Wear comfortable clothing and good athletic shoes

*Drink extra water before and after activity to avoid dehydration

Before starting on an exercise program, older people need a complete physical examination from their doctor which includes:

- *A complete medical history
- *Evaluation of medication levels to determine if adjustments are indicated for increased activity levels
- *Blood testing for glucose and cholesterol levels

*An exercise tolerance or stress test to determine current level of fitness

For maximum benefits of any physical exercise program, older people should exercise in such a way that reaches 65-75 percent of their maximum heart rate (number of beats per minute). This is determined by subtracting the persons' age from 220. Three to five 20 to 40 minutes exercise sessions a week are ideal for increasing cardiovascular fitness.

Capitol Comments by BOB TURNER State Representative - District 73

The 73rd session of the Texas Legislature was a very productive one for my staff and I. I actually authored or sponsored 25 House and Senate bills and co-authored or co-sponsored another 16 House bills with other members.

I am very pleased with the percentage of our bills that passed during this session, over 40% of those filed, passed. There is really no norm, or rule of thumb by which success is measured, but I know that this percentage is well above the average.

There is a lot of variation in the degree of participation of the different members of the House. For instance, in the House during this session, at least 10 members did not file a single piece of legislation. Another 20 members only filed one bill, and those were of a local nature. On the other extreme, one Austin representative filed approximately 70 bills. My experience is that to really work a piece of legislation, which includes my lobbying for its passage with members of the Senate and House, as well as defending it against those who oppose it, requires a tremendous amount of time and effort. John Hofmann, who is my legislative aide and I have discovered that a very few House members actually attend Senate Committee meetings and work their own legislation through the Senate process. Thus, it is understandable that many of the members do well to get 10-20% of their filed legislation actually enacted into law.

I will list a few of my bills which completed the entire process. In some instances, certain pieces of my legislation were successful because I added them on to someone else's legislation as an amendment. An example of this was our House Bill 645, which called for a review of mandates on health insurance and their cost effectiveness and impact on premiums, etc. I was having trouble getting this out of the Insurance Committee, so I simply added it as an amendment to Representative Mike Martin's and Governor Richard's Health Availability Bill. This insures that my concern is met and complied with. Another of these instances was my House Bill 61, which would have included the District Attorney of the 35th District in the Professional Prosecutors Act. I was able to get this rolled into Senate Bill 315, along with the several other D.A. districts, and it became law.

If a legislator does not have an egotistical need to have their name on a bill and is willing to include their legislation as an addition to a bill that has a chance of passage, it is amazing what can be accomplished. Some members had rather let the issue die than not get credit for the passage of their bill. I do not feel that way, a good result is very satisfying, no matter who gets the credit.

The following are House bills I authored and Senate bills I sponsored, with a short description of what the bill does:

HB 644--authorizes an increase from 24,000 lbs. to 30,000 lbs. for certain farm trailers, which raises them to the weight limit for commercial trailers of the same size and kind.

SB 172--statutorily defines pipeline easements for common-carrier pipeline companies where the grant or condemnation was vague or undefined. The pipeline company has to prove a necessity for more area to go beyond the 50 foot easement this bill sets. This will help those land owners who had undefined easements to clear up the title of their property for loans, etc. This bill was opposed (big time) by some of the large oil companies.

SJR 13--this resolution will provide for a voter referendum in November, to gain approval of placing Texas State Technical College (TSTC) in the regular funding system provided by the "Higher Education Assistance Funding", or HEAF Plan. This would provide that TSTC be included with other state schools in the funding plan for higher education. I, along with Representative David Counts, Representative Bob Hunter and Senator Bill Sims worked long and hard to insure that this resolution was adopted. I did lots of working on several funding plans to insure that TSTC is adequately funded, including working with the Appropriations Conference Committee to prevent a shortfall for TSTC Brownwood. This was accomplished.

HB 1491--relating to the creation of the Llano Uplift Underground Water Conservation District.

HB 1652--which provides for one member of the Texas Animal Health Commission to be an exotic wildlife producer.

HB 2241--relating to health care careers promotion for students in rural and underserved areas in coordination with the Center for Rural Health Initiatives.

HB 2492--relating to elections for the Board of Directors of the Real-Edwards Conservation and Reclamation District.

HB 2493--relating to the enforcement of seed inspection and labeling requirements in the state.

HB 334--pertaining to devices used to protect nursery stock and exempting them from local taxation, as we currently do for other agricultural equipment.

I also co-authored, or co-sponsored the following bills that have an impact on residents in the 73rd district.

HB 195--with Representative Telford, which provides that existing highway district engineer offices will be retained in the current configuration and insures that a district office will continue in Brownwood, along with several other cities in rural Texas.

HB 51--with Representative McCall and others, which was later turned into a Senate bill, which creates a stalking offense in the State of Texas.

HB 63--which has to do with uniform testing of equipment used in the practice of mammography. Texas was one of the few states that has no uniformity required in approval of the procedures, or equipment used for this purpose.

This gives you a good idea of the type and scope of legislation that I have carried and worked on during the legislative session. Actually, I only list those bills that ultimately

Catholic Church Honors 1993 Graduates With Mass

On Sunday, May 30, 1993, a Mass for 1993 graduates, a covered dish luncheon and reception were held in Sacred Heart Catholic Church and Parish Hall in Coleman.

Graduates from the parish are as follows: from Coleman High School - Robye Daves, Adel DeLeon, Daniel Diaz, Ricky Espita, Corina Flores, Lydia Fritsch, Ryan Halfmann, Michael Martinez, Chris Nunez, B.J. Salas and Isabel Trevino; from Santa Anna High School - Monica Balderas, Lori Castillo, Ruth Castillo, Billy Joe Diaz, Maria Frausto, Vicente Frausto, Marixa Longoria, Sandra Padilla, Marko Suarez and Laura Vasquez; from Panther Creek High School - Carmela Gujosa; from Texas A&M - Andy Knox; from Angelo State University - Rosie Rosales; and from Executive Secretarial School - Amanda Nunez.

became law, but needless to say, there were some that did not pass in both Houses. One of my biggest disappointments of the session centered around my House Bill 2494, which would have provided protection for agricultural and aquacultural producers. The bill would have required anyone making false remarks about the health or safety of these products for human consumption to have scientific proof, or be responsible for reimbursement and damages to the producer for monetary loss suffered because of the false allegations made to the media. The alar situation in Washington State a few years ago and the cantaloupe situation in Pecos, Texas, are proof of the need for legislation of this type. This bill made it through the House and through Senator Bill Sim's committee in the Senate, but was killed on the Senate floor by environmental and consumer extremist.

The legislative process, from a bill's inception through its drafting and introduction, through the committee and House and Senate floor processes, to the bill's enactment into state law is a very slow and trying process. Needless to say, there is someone who opposes almost every idea and every piece of legislation. The importance of spending time with other House and Senate members to make them understand your legislation and the importance of it takes untold hours and takes great patience.

I would welcome the opportunity to visit your school, or civic organization, and present a program along with a short video that I have prepared on the topic of how a bill becomes a law. I think it would prove very interesting and informational.

I have thoroughly enjoyed representing the citizens of the 73rd district in this legislative session, and look forward to a continuation of working for you in state government. Those pieces of legislation on which we failed to gain final approval just give me cause to want to pursue them again during a subsequent session.

My Austin and Coleman offices are both open from 8:30 to 5:00 and my staff is always ready to be of assistance to you. Call us if you need us.

Texas To The British Isles

By David & Margaret Karthaus

Editor's Note: David and Margaret Karthaus are sharing the account of another of their worldly travels in search of family roots. The couple resides in Fort Worth but also have a home in Santa Anna and are active in local affairs. Margaret is a native of our community.

On Wednesday, September 5, 1992, we caught the 5 o'clock flight to London's Gatwick Airport. This is a non-stop flight that leaves every day about 5 and arrives in London about 7 in the morning. The flight was uneventful and passed very quickly as it seemed we were barely finished with dinner before it was time for breakfast. We cleared customs in no time and found our way to the Dan-Air ticket counter. We made the final arrangements for a flight to Aberdeen and found a country bed and breakfast a few miles from Gatwick airport where we would spend our last night before returning home. The last night, we feel we must stay near the airport so we can check in around 7 a.m. The price of the hotels at the airports are astronomical. In addition to the low price of the bed and breakfast (B&B) they also offered shuttle service to the airport at no extra charge.

While at the airport, we purchased a British Heritage pass, a 15 day pass that would enable us to visit over 800 Historical sites in England, Scotland, Northern Ireland, and Wales. A visit to 7 or 8 of these places would more than pay the cost. As we would probably stop at between 1-3 a day, we were surely going to save some money.

The flight from London Gatwick to Aberdeen, Scotland stopped once in Manchester. The only significant thing about our trip was that we had to wait inside the plane at the Gatwick terminal until the air traffic (north bound) cleared out. All airports have traffic controllers.

The wind was quite strong and the air brisk as we got off the plane in Aberdeen—a big change from Fort Worth as it had been in the middle 90's when we left. This was the first time we had been outside. The skies were grey and overcast with a hint of showers in the air. We picked up our rental car, a red Ford Escort, and left the Airport. Outside of the reservation near Gatwick, this was the only other reservation we had made.

From the airport we headed west to Iverness. We stopped on the way and saw Lute Hall, which was a huge old manor home. It was beautiful and we got to use our new pass for the first time. From there we drove toward the Spey River area. The Spey is a world renowned fishing river made famous by Sir Isaac Walton in the "Complete Angler". With a little advance checking, David should have known that September was the best month to fish for Salmon in the Spey. Since most of our friends are golfers, many of them never heard of the river much less knew about the fishing season. We spent that night at a bed and breakfast (B&B) at Grantown on the Spey. It was an easy walk from our room to the banks of the Spey. The next morning, we found out that our host taught fishing and was conducting a class the next week. The cost of Salmon fishing ranged from a few hundred dollars a day to over $2,000 a day. The river is owned by the property owners and from the prices we saw, they had a monopoly. We wondered what a $2,000 fish would taste like. Our host-instructor said that for much, much less we could spend a week and take his course and catch fish. We just might do that someday soon. We went to bed fairly early that night since two days had gone by with just a few catnaps crossing the Atlantic.

Before we go on, let me tell you about the Bed and Breakfast concept. Quite a few years ago in Europe, this idea started and is now in the United States, too, although not on as large a scale as in Europe. Many people decided when their children were gone and out of the house, to utilize their extra bedrooms and make some money. And since there were not too many restaurants around where people could get a good breakfast, they would serve breakfast, too. This was also a way that some people who had fallen on hard times could keep their big manor houses. The people will hang out a fairly big sign with B&B on it. They are fairly easy to see, and for the most part, during the course of the day, you will see a hundred or more of the signs. Most of the people who run the B&B's treat you as an honored guest, inviting you for tea when you agree to stay. Before you agree, however, you must see the room. They are always very proud of their accommodations and want you to see before you agree to stay. The hosts will tell you (or ask you) what time the breakfast is served and you are expected to be at the table at that time. If they are treating you as an honored guest, the least you can do is act like a polite guest. Very few of the private homes have more than four bedrooms that are rented out in this way and some only two. Of course, the larger ones that were manor houses have ten or more. Breakfast is a feast. It usually starts as you go in with a sideboard with juice and cold cereal and sometimes yogurt, and you can help yourself while you are waiting for the main course. This is usually egg (sometimes you have a choice as how they are fixed) sausages, bacon, fresh broiled tomatoes, broiled mushrooms, and a piece of fried bread. On the side there will be bread or toast, marmalade or jams, and a pot of tea or coffee. We will guarantee that you will not go away from the table hungry. We find that these places are cheaper, friendlier, and easier to find than a hotel or motel. There just isn't any hotels except in the large cities, and as you should know, we stay away from the large cities. In the small towns and villages, you can find out more about their culture, and really get a feel for the people. So back to our story.

Whenever two people meet there are really six people present. There is each man as he sees himself, each man as the other person sees him, and each man as he really is.

When the Lights Go Out, We Won't Leave You in the Dark

Power outages sometimes happen during this time of year due to problems caused by thunderstorms, lightning, high winds or tornados. When the lights go out, WTU will do whatever it takes to get your power restored as quickly as possible.

If your lights do go out, we need your help!
Here's what you can do:

- First, check with your neighbors to see how widespread the outage is.
- If you're the only house in your area with the light outs or if you don't have any close neighbors, check your breaker or fuse box to see if the trouble is there.
- If the trouble isn't on your side of the meter (such as a tripped circuit breaker or a blown fuse), call your area WTU office. Keep trying if the lines are busy. It's important that we hear from you — and we appreciate your patience.
- As soon as we learn of an outage, we call out as many crews as needed and work as long as necessary to make sure your power is restored.

Rockwood Homecoming Report

Red, white and blue balloons and flags were waving high in the wind to welcome the residents and former friends to the annual Rockwood Homecoming.

American flags marked graves of veterans in their honor, as a memorial was held in recognition of their service to our country. Lawrence Brusenhan of Rockwood was the guest speaker for the service.

A large crowd gathered at the community center for a catered barbeque lunch. As people enjoyed their lunch, door prizes were being given out to all who registered.

Sadie Bryan welcomed all attending and Judy Bryan brought the meeting to order. New officers elected were Patsy Hambright, president and Betty Duus, secretary-treasurer.

It was decided to change the date of the homecoming to the 3rd Sunday in September for next year.

A special thank you was given to Ewing Lovelady, Jr. who donated a speaker system to the community center in his father's memory. Agnes Lovelady was recognized as the oldest person attending. Drew Allen of Huntsville, great-grandson of Jack and Skeeta Cooper was the youngest person present.

A special drawing was held for the hand-made quilt made by the Rockwood Quilting Club. Serena Bryan Hendrix of Dallas was the winner. Donated gifts were awarded to Claudia Rutherford, a large print Bible; Curtis Bryan, a men's haircut; Catherine Valdez, a woman's haircut; Darla Wise, silver coin, and Jr. and Nell Brusenhan, dinner for two.

Thanks were given to people who made donations including Sharon's Beauty Shop, Christian Book Store, Coleman County State Bank, Noret's Coldwater Cattle Co., and to Henderson Funeral Home for the use of their tent.

Everyone enjoyed the day of renewing old friendship, sharing memories and making new acquaintances.

Meusebach, An Extradinary Texas Citizen

The following appeared in the "Texana Living History" Newsletter, May 1993 under the column "Extraordinary Texans" by Linda Pelon. Ms. Pelon is the author of the articles about Comanche Chief Santa Anna which has been appeared in the NEWS.

John O. Meusebach, a German aristocrat, came to Texas in April of 1845 as commissioner of the Society for the Protection of German Immigrants in Texas. He was thirty-three years old. Upon his arrival in Galveston he was shocked to find only debt and the overwhelming needs of the Germans who continued to arrive in Texas, a total of 4,304 by the end of 1846.

Meusebach soon discovered that the land purchased for German settlement in the Fisher-Miller Grant was in the heart of Comanche (Penatuhkah) territory. The courageous actions taken by Meusebach resulted in the founding of Fredericksburg and one of the most unusual stories in frontier history. He decided to find the Comanches and attempt to make a treaty with them. He made contact with a sub-chief of the band, Ketemoczky, and arranged for a treaty talk with the head chiefs at the next full moon. Upon his arrival he found the "Indians gathered in great numbers and with every manifestation of their power...as he advanced to meet them he completely disarmed them by firing his gun into the air." The treaty he negotiated with the Comanche Chief Santa Anna resulted in a peace which lasted until the band left the area following the death of Santa Anna and half of his band in a Cholera epidemic. The Comanches admired Meusebach's courage and called the six foot two, red-bearded German "El Sol Colorado." There are many inspiring stories associated with this rare instance in which the Comanche War Trail was transformed into the White Path of Peace.

Meusebach was a geologist educated at Halle in Germany. Another

German geologist, Ferdinand Roemer, visited him in Texas and recorded some of the most accurate and vivid descriptions of mid-nineteenth century Texas.

Meusebach was elected to the Texas senate in 1848. In 1852 he married Agnes, Countess Coreth, who lived in New Braunfels. They had eleven children. He gave up his title as a baron so that they could stand "with free people in a free land." He did not give up his family motto: "Tenax Propositi"—tenacious of purpose. However, he added to his family crest the words, "Texas forever."
