YOUNG COLLEGE GRAD DROWNS IN LAKE BROWNWOOD

Allen Lee Moody, 29, employee of the Radford Grocery company, Brownwood, a graduate of Daniel Baker College, and former football star of the college and Comanche High School, was drowned in Brownwood's new lake about midnight Saturday night of last week.

Continued efforts were made for the recovery of his body, which floated to the surface 54 hours later and was rescued.

According to information from the Brownwood Daily Bulletin, young Moody was with a party of friends enjoying a picnic on the lake when the tragedy occurred. Others in the party were Robert Parks and Jack Broad and Misses Marie Miller, Alice Harriman and Virginia McKinney.

The party had leased a small sail boat according to other members of the party and were out enjoying a moonlight ride on the lake. Moody was in the water, holding to the side or end of the small boat and decided to turn loose the boat and swim ashore. He did this but was unable to keep up with the boat which was sailing faster than he realized. After he had fallen some ten yards or more behind the boat he hailed other members of the party and when they realized that Moody was in difficulty, Parks quickly jerked off his clothes and dived into the water to help his friend and companion.

Parks, with much difficulty, swam to Moody who was almost exhausted when Parks reached him. Moody made some fight on Parks, as is usual with a man who is near drowning, but Parks told him that wouldn't do and Moody immediately ceased resistance. Parks took hold of his friend's arm and towed him toward the boat for some twenty yards or more.

Jack Broad, who was left in the boat with the three girls, turned the boat about as quickly as possible but the changing of sail and getting it headed in to the wind required several minutes. When Broad hauled the boat up within a few yards perhaps ten or fifteen, of where Parks was struggling along with Moody, Parks, completely exhausted, released Moody and struggled to the boat, barely making it. Moody was paddling along slowly and apparently not in great distress when Parks released him and swam to the boat in an effort to save himself. As soon as Broad had pulled Parks into the boat, he jumped into the water to rescue Moody, but before Broad could reach him, Moody went down, and all efforts to rescue him that night failed.

The party, after searching for several moments without avail, went ashore and summoned help. The search continued day and night until Tuesday morning. The body was found floating out in shallow water near the edge of the lake about 6:15 Tuesday morning after being in the water for a period of about 54 hours.

The body was prepared by Mitcham Funeral Home of Brownwood and carried to Comanche for burial Tuesday afternoon. Moody's parents live at Comanche.

Mrs. John Nelson Buried Saturday

Mrs. John Nelson, citizen of this community for nearly 50 years, passed to her reward last Thursday following a brief illness of only a few days. The following data was read at the funeral Saturday morning at the Baptist church, conducted by the pastor, Rev. Wingo and Rev. J. R. McCorkle of Coleman. Rev. McCorkle paid a high tribute to the deceased, as he had known her for almost half a century. She was a member of the Baptist church since shortly after her marriage.

Mrs. John Nelson, nee Caroline Bass was born August 11, 1865 in the state of Alabama. She was married to Mr. Nelson about fifty years ago and came to Texas settling in the Eureka community on the Brown and Coleman county line, where they made their home until after the death of Mr. Nelson about 13 years ago. She then moved to Santa Anna. Five children were born to them, all dying in infancy. Mrs. Nelson never knew the pleasure of being a mother during the childhood and growing age of her own children, but was a mother to others. She raised one foster daughter, now Mrs. Lawrence Love of Brownwood and other orphan children found a home with Mrs. Nelson at will. Two nieces, Misses Rose and Carrie Nelson of Forrest, New Mexico were here for the funeral, and are visiting here this week with friends. Mr. William Head and married daughter of Oplin, in Callahan county, distant relatives and lifetime friends, were also here for the funeral. Among other friends from out of the county were Claude Westbrooke and family of Bell county.

The remains were carried to the Eureka cemetery and laid to rest beside her deceased husband, following the funeral. A large number of friends attended the funeral and floral offerings were profuse. Hosch Bros. undertakers and funeral directors were in charge.

Outlaws Captured After Terrorizing Citizens And Defying Officers Several Days

One Killed, Other surrenders

Starkweather (Doc) Trammel, defier of the law, was killed late last Friday evening at the Hord Creek bridge, one and one-half miles northwest of Coleman, in a fight with officers and his brother, Luke Trammel surrendered.

Doc Trammel, said to be about 19 years old, over six feet tall, was shot thru the head and died about two hours later in the Overall Hospital at Coleman.

The two brothers had led a reign of terror for several days in the western part of Coleman county, Runnels county and other adjoining sections, kidnaping, commandeering automobiles, cash, clothing, and the last day, seized two horses which they rode about 40 miles, trying to dodge officers who were close on their trail.

Sheriff Frank Mills and several deputies, together with officers from adjoining counties had been in pursuit of the desperadoes for several days, and had been in shooting range of them several times, but were outitted by the young desecrators who took to the brush and made their escape for the time being, but the officers never ceased their efforts until he two were captured.

The Trammel boys had lived in the western part of the county, and knew the roads, trails, creeks and general topography of the county, which gave them some advantage in eluding the officers. According to reports, as many as six automobiles were commandeered during the last week of their terror, several people were robbed of their money, some kidnapped and carried several miles from their places of business before being released, and many other depredations in strict violation of the law were committed.

The two Trammel brothers and four other prisoners escaped from the Lynn county jail in Tahoka on the night of June 9th. One of the prisoners was recaptured and carried back to the Tahoka jail, the others were still at large until the capture of the two Trammel brothers last Friday night.

The remains of the younger boy that lost his life in the battle with officers were buried in the Coleman cemetery Sunday afternoon. Luke is being held in the county jail and several charges will be filed against him.

Ralph Stubblefield, mail carrier, sighted the Trammel brothers late Friday evening, as they abandoned their horse near the Hord Creek bridge, and reported the incident at once to the sheriff, who got busy and hurried to the scene. Sheriff Mills was accompanied by Mr. Stubblefield, Deputy Sheriff George Roby and Leon Shields, who was said to have been pressed into service by the sheriff. The desperadoes were sighted from a point some distance from the bridge, and the firing began. When the younger Trammel fell a victim of a bullet from a high powered rifle, the other Trammel yelled his surrender and was placed under arrest.

The mother of the Trammel boys lives in Coleman, the father having died several years ago.

An associated press dispatch from Stanton, Texas, Martin Co., reported a fine rain one day last week, stating that it broke a drought extending from last August. The news item further stated that cotton seed planted this spring was expected to germinate and come up. We would not call a one and one-half inch rain the breaking of a drought of eleven months duration for it will require a series of several such rains to bring relief to such thirsty soil.

Matter Plane Wrecked In Crash

Aviator, Not Seriously Injured, Stranded for Days Without Food in Barren Lands of Siberia

MOSCOW, July 11. (Tuesday) (AP)—A dramatic story of how Jimmie Mattern, American aviator, was lost for 16 days in the wilds of Northern Russia before being rescued, was related early today in a special dispatch to the newspaper Izvestia from its correspondent at Khabarovsk.

The dispatch gave the first comprehensive details of the mishap to Mattern, who took off June 14 from Khabarovsk in an attempt to fly to Nome, Alaska, on another stage of his solo round-the-world flight. The Texan aviator last week sent a telegram here, saying he was safe at Anadyr, Siberia.

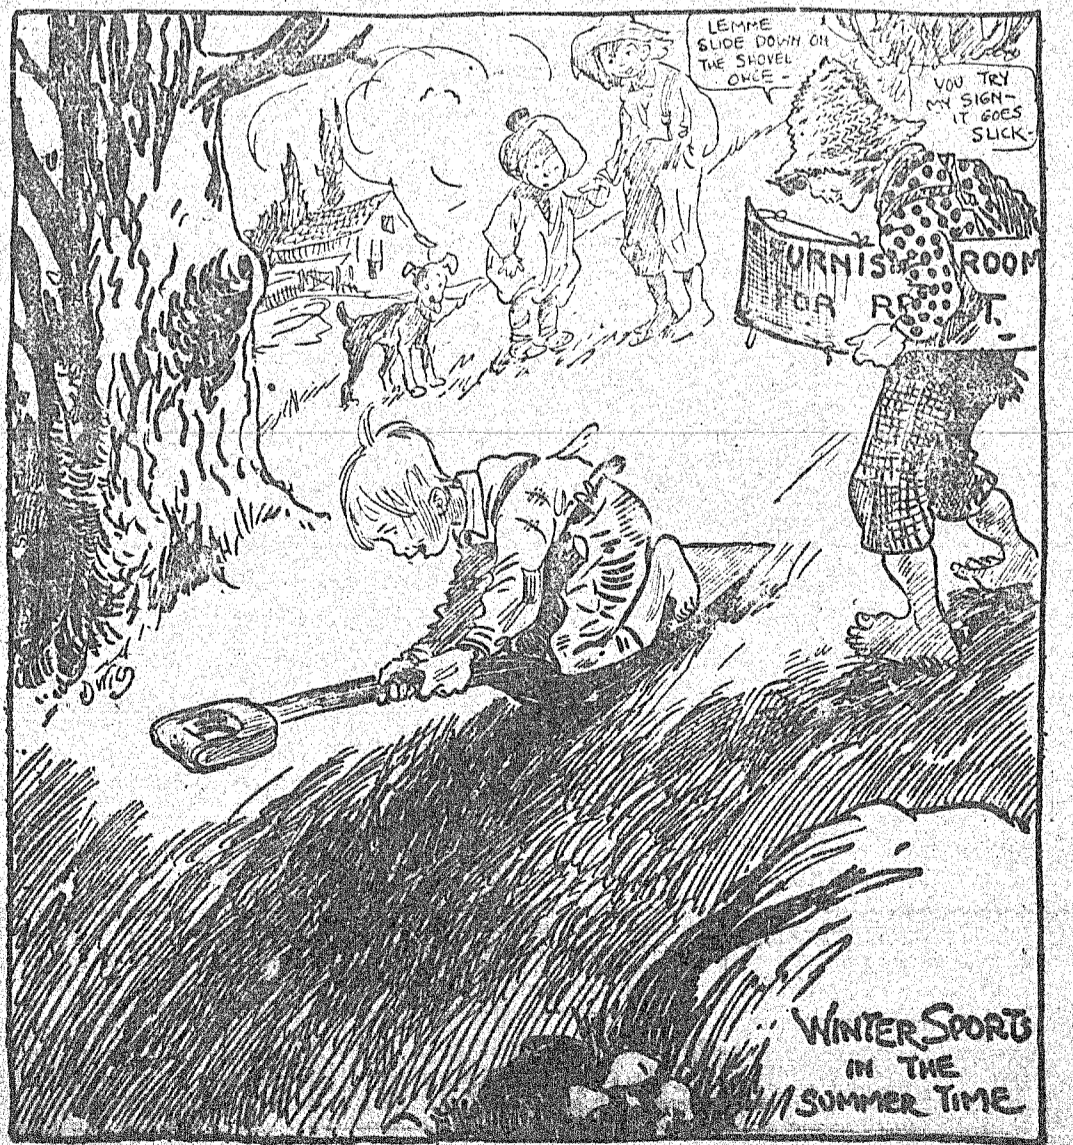

Fourteen hours after leaving Khabarovsk, the Izvestia dispatch said, Mattern noticed that his motor was beginning to falter and he decided it would be better to land.

Engine fails Finding no suitable place in the wild, desolate country, he pressed on, apparently hoping the trouble would right itself, only to meet with a virtual complete failure of the engine. This necessitated his coming down in an extremely unfavorable hilly spot about thirty miles from the left bank of the Anadyr river, on which the village of Anadyr is situated.

In landing his plane was virtually destroyed. The propeller was bent, the right wing smashed and the fuselage and the motor damaged. Mattern himself suffered cuts and bruises although not of a serious nature. The place of landing was one of the remotest sections, having but few inhabitants. Apparently hoping to find some aid, the aviator set out to walk to the river equipped with only a small supply of chocolate and biscuits.

Eight-Day Hike In his laborious trek, Mattern required eight days to reach the river bank, his scanty food supply having given out after three days of wandering. What he did

Santa Anna News

FRIDAY, JULY 14, 1933

J. J. OREGG, Editor & Publisher
Entered as second-class matter at the postoffice, Santa Anna, Tex.

Last Sunday the editor was very agreeably surprised to have our good friend Rev. Walter Scott for a dinner guest. The Rev. Scott, now living in Brownwood, but serving the church at Gusting, northeast of Comanche his seventeenth year as pastor, speaks well for the preacher, especially it being his home, where he was reared, taught school and conducted a mercantile business prior to entering the ministry. Rev. Scott baptized over one hundred people, mostly adults, many of them his old boyhood friends, the first year he pastored the church at Gusting, and has held his good influence over them since. He was among the first men the writer formed an acquaintance with when he landed in Texas in December, 1905. Gusting was our first Texas home. At that time Rev. Scott was not a preacher, neither was the writer. Several years later we heard him preach his first sermon and he had him at that time for a successful minister. Even tho we had not met in years it was pleasant to renew his acquaintance and have him for a guest in our home.

That good rain we had booked for this section last Friday turned out to be another disappointment. It turned from the gulf coast country out thru Old Mexico, and passed up the greater part of Texas. Well, we've seen it go several weeks longer without rain than it has this time and no one starts, however, the crazing would be better and life would be more pleasant living in this western country if we could get a line rain. We know we are going to live thru it, for we have put in a great portion of the past 27 years praying for rain, and it has never failed to come in time to save the situation. Life would probably be sweeter and people more pleasant with more moisture, but as it is we get better than we deserve, so what's the use? Wouldn't it be pitiful if we were limited to just what little we deserve in this old world? It wouldn't be worth living, sure enough.

UP TO ROOSEVELT

Congress has given Mr. Roosevelt the authority he requested, has adjourned, and gone home.

The rest is up to the president himself. If his new deal plans prove feasible and the country is brought back to a prosperous basis he will receive the credit. If something goes wrong he will be the one who must shoulder the responsibility.

We are told that the new deal will be put into effect immediately and that at least four millions of men will be put back to work without delay. We hope it is true—certainly that is the principal tonic this sick country needs.

In the meantime, while we are waiting for results, let's make the waiting period one of hope and confidence, realizing that pessimism does not butter our bread.

EDITORIAL OF THE WEEK

Business is starting up again. That is clear and definite. Men are looking ahead and not backwards. And it is our belief that we are going ahead into better times than we have ever known. That has been the history of every past recovery. The deeper the depression, the higher the heights reached after the depression has been passed.

Don't ask us how it is going to be accomplished. We have little patience with people who want precise plans and specifications before they will believe that things can be done. There is an element of faith, which is, after all, the chief moving force in human affairs; and at the moment people are regaining faith in the future of their country at a rate which surprises us.

We hear many different explanations of how the things will be done under the "New Deal." We've never seen a human project worked out as planned. But we, too, have faith. We can't explain a lot of things which we have to take on faith. Don't ask us to explain television or radio, or even talking pictures. We don't have to explain them. There they are. And we believe that we are on the verge of a greater and more glorious civilization than we have ever known. Please don't ask us to explain that, either. Pretty soon, we are sure, everybody will be able to see it.

TO THE GRADUATES

(Goldthwaite Eagle.)

A lot of bunk is turned loose this time every year in the direction of high school graduates who must politely sit and take it. If you had been graduated a few years ago during the heydays of prosperity, you would doubtless have been bragged on until your chest stuck out like a pouter pigeon's and your head would have swelled until that funny little mortar-board cap of yours couldn't stay on. You would have been praised by one and all for your tremendous triumph in completing eleven grades of an alleged education, and the trials and tribulations that had beset you during your high school course would have been pictured so as to make the privations of Peary in the antarctic look like a petty adventure.

But, you would have been told, although you had already proved your right to a seat with the world's immortals, your life would be utterly ruined if you did not continue your education with four years of college or university work. And for the next twelve months you would have wandered around in a daze, up in the air so high that when you finally did come down to earth, it would be with a mighty thud.

This year, however, the sweet young graduates are being told a different story. From one end of this country to the other, to the accompaniment of soft, sad music, they are being told what a terrible mess the nation, nay the whole world, has fallen into. And whereas the graduates used to come out of their commencement exercises with badly swelled heads, they now emerge sniveling with self-pity and bewailing their lack of a chance to make good.

One of these pictures is just as silly as the other, and both have the common fault of centering the graduate's thoughts about himself. Our advice to those graduates who wish to be happy or at least to escape the discontent of frustrated ambitions is to turn your thoughts outward, not inward.

Instead of congratulating you upon staying-in school until you have graduated, your fathers and mothers ought to receive the credit. But for them, most of you would have quit long ago. Instead of telling you how smart you are, let's praise those patient teachers for cramming as much knowledge as they have succeeded in doing into your sometimes hone too receptive heads. Instead of weeping of your shoulders because you may not get to go to college, we will congratulate you on the opportunity that is yours to carve your way to real success.

You boys and girls, graduates of 1933, are stepping from school into a world that is seething with forces of unknown strength. The spring from which you will date your graduation has seen the most profound changes in American government ever made. This country is in the midst of a terrific experiment from which it will emerge strengthened and purged or not at all. Yours is the generation that will be called upon to man and steer the ship of state when the storm that now wracks her timbers has blown itself out. Upon what uncharted seas you will find yourself then, no man now can hazard even a guess. But this much is sure: Real men and women will be needed then, perhaps even more than they are needed today.

This is a time of storm and stress. It is a time when characters will be made and lost. When strong men will grow stronger and weak men weaker. It is a time for you to take careful stock of yourself, to decide what you can do best and make up your mind to do it. And you can do it, if only you want to hard enough.

Not a man has made an enduring mark in American history who has not done so in spite of appalling obstacles. Whether it was George Washington training himself to be a surveyor before he was as old as you, and surveying the Indian infested wilderness at the age of sixteen, whether it was Abraham Lincoln studying by the light of pine knots and grilling himself in public speaking and the law as he rode the Springfield circuit, or whether it was Theodore Roosevelt overcoming the handicaps of his frail body and nearsighted eyes or our own President Franklin D. Roosevelt who has refused to be discouraged either by his paralysis or hard times, every man of note has fought his way to fame in spite of the difficulties that faced him. If you are to succeed, you, too, must fight for it.

Your greatest asset you cannot now appreciate, that is your youth. Your opportunities lie ahead of you. Some of you will seize them, and some of you will blindly pass them by.

We shall not set you up on a pedestal as a marvel of intelligence or industry. Nor shall we relegate you indifferently to the rear. Instead we offer you our hands and say, "Welcome, graduates of 1933. Welcome to life!"

Nobody has ever been able to stop an Edison, or a Ford or a Marconi. There are hundreds of young Edisons just waiting their chance to startle the world. Some of them will turn everything of today upside down, as their predecessors did.

We are going to have a new economic order, beyond doubt; but if it results in giving everybody a chance to buy the things he wants, isn't it going to be better than a system which does not provide customers enough for what we produce?

We really believe that the young people of this day are justified in looking ahead to a time when any human being who really wants anything can have it. And that's "some'n," as Andy says.—The Times Record, Alledo, Illinois.

BOGUS REFORMERS

No one will deny that now and then a real reformer arises who is able to point out some social abuse that needs attention, and endeavors through legitimate methods and with sincerity of purpose to accomplish the reform sought.

On the other hand, it is evident to every thoughtful observer that a large percentage of would-be reformers are merely chronic meddlers and notriety seekers, who have no honest desire to be of service to society, but are only disturbers and mischief-makers.

Brand Whitlock, former American ambassador to Belgium, takes the measure of these bogus reformers in a recent magazine article, in which he declares: "Most reforms are undertaken not to reform or improve anybody or to make anybody happier, but to gratify a love of interference. Incidentally they may gratify a love of notriety also, or provide someone with a job as secretary. But at bottom they are inspired almost wholly by the love of in-

FOR GENERAL PURPOSES

The recent action of the legislature in refusing to submit to the voters of Texas a proposed amendment to the state constitution which would permit corporations to be formed "for general purposes" calls to mind an old trick employed by organizers of financial institutions in the early history of this country.

The most famous was the formation of the Bank of the Manhattan Company, an institution whose history goes back almost to the foundation of the government. The establishment of his institution, which now occupies an imposing 71-story home on Manhattan Island, was the result of a shrewd trick of a lawyer, who was none other than Aaron Burr.

At the time the bank was projected the group behind it were "in bad" politically and hence unable to obtain a bank charter. They organized a water company instead, but in drawing the charter Burr added a clause permitting the company to engage also "in other necessary business."

The other business was constructed to include banking and it has been carried on ever since.

The structure in Wall street adjoins the lot formerly occupied by Federal Hall, the first national capitol, where Washington took the oath of office as president. That tract is now the site of the sub-treasury.

If Aaron Burr and his associates could look upon the scene today they would marvel at the development which has resulted from their clever scheme for obtaining a bank charter. Exch.

More power to you.

Advances in Oil Refining Result in Higher Mileage

Cars picked at random from the streets, lined up on Indianapolis Speedway before starting four-day test of new high-mileage motor oil.

BECAUSE the average motorist is becoming more and more concerned with motor oil performance, the refining industry has recently been turning its attention to improved refining methods designed to meet the public's demand for better lubrication from the medium-priced lubricants.

For years the main problem confronting the industry was reduction of carbon deposits, and like matters, but today the important problem is how to provide better lubrication.

Oil consumption was carefully checked by contest officials of the A.A.A., and it was found that the new high-mileage oil was 28.5 per cent cheaper to use, the figure being an average based on the oil's performance in all the cars used in the test.

Wake Up Your Liver Bile—Without Calomel

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the stomach. Gas builds up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul and often breaks out in blisters. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned. It takes those good old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel 'n' jump out of bed in the morning rarin' to go. They contain wonderful, harmless, vegetable extracts, among which is santonin, making the bile flow freely. But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. It's a guarantee. 25-cent packages. © 1931, Carter, Inc.

Presby'rian Church

Next Sunday is Communion Sunday. It would be pleasing and uplifting and abundantly blessed of the Lord if all the members of the church could be present for this sacred service. All Christians may join in this holy service, the Lord's Supper Come and be deeply reminded by the broken bread of Him whose body was broken for you, and whose blood was shed for the remission of our sins.

If there are any who wish to unite with the church, will you kindly let the pastor know before the service Sunday morning.

We are endeavoring to make this service fitting in its tokens by the songs and by the sermon. May our hearts be attuned to receive the Spirit of Him who said, "Do this in remembrance of me." M. L. WOMACK, Minister.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER FOR RECENT BRIDE

Miss Dorothy Baxter, assisted by her mother, Mrs. W. E. Baxter entertained at her home Tuesday morning with a miscellaneous shower for her cousin, Mrs. Lester C. Boone of Ft. Worth, whose wedding on June 3 was announced last week. Mrs. Boone will be remembered as Miss Frances Louise Adams of this place.

Upon entering, the guests were asked to register at the top of a page in the Bride's Book. After all were assembled in the room, which was beautifully decorated with cut flowers, a skit of the Bride's life since she entered High School was presented, with Miss Bess Inez Shield taking the part of the bride, and Miss Margaret Wylie the part of Mr. Boone. Miss Irene McCrea read the story of the bride's accomplishments, and Mrs. J. M. Binton played the piano. The Freshman and Sophomore years were represented by Miss Shie'd dressed as a pep girl carrying a pennant. Music used was the "Washington and Lee Swing." The Junior and Senior years were presented as a newspaper reporter and editor of the Mountaineer. The accompanying music was a graduation march. The Freshman year at State University was represented by Miss Shield wearing a Slime Cap when she entered Mr. Boone's class room. The courtship and marriage followed, while Mrs. Binton played "Humoresque." She played "Lonesome" while the separation was portrayed. As the strains of "Together" began Boone claimed his bride, and took her away.

Following the skit, the pages from the Bride's Book were passed out, and letters written to the absent honoree.

"Home" and "Love Me" were rendered by Misses Mary Alice Mitchell and Mildred and Rheba Boardman, with Miss Mitchell at the piano. Miss Baxter entertained with a reading after which the gifts were opened by the bride's mother, Mrs. Frances Adams, and passed among the guests before being packed to be sent to the home in Ft. Worth.

The dining table was laid with a lace scarf, and the tiered bride's cake with the miniature bride and groom under the arch, was in the center. Baskets of pink and white cut flowers added to the loveliness of the table. Refreshments consisting of tuna sandwiches, a lime drink, and small cakes iced in pink with Boone written on them in green were served.

Guests who reported a most delightful occasion were Misses Leone Shield, Bernice Gaines, Lena Bert Robertson, Wilma Green, Nancy Jim Golson, Barbara Baker, and Mrs. L. L. Shield for food the remainder of the time was not brought out by the correspondent but it was felt here that he probably put a rifle in him in Khabarovsk to good use, avoiding starvation by shooting small game.

Mattern Plane Wreck

The new deal is still new—at least it hasn't reached us yet.

Reaching the river he saw two small boats going downstream but the occupants of neither observed his frantic signals from the shore and passed him by the dispatch said.

On the ninth day he moved a short distance downstream to a bend in the river where it was narrower but the days passed without sign of another boat.

To protect himself from cold and wind, he improvised a small hut of scrub growth in which he remained six more days, the Khabarovsk correspondent reported.

Fishermen Rescue

On the night of June 29, two more boats passed down the river. They were manned by native fishermen who this time saw his signals and took him to their camp about eleven miles from Anadyr and there they gave him food and he slept. Shortly afterward he was taken to the coast a short distance away, where natives brought a Soviet frontier guard to his assistance.

The guard, which had been on the lookout for the missing aviator for some days in response to instructions from Moscow, took Mattern immediately to Anadyr village where everything was done to make him comfortable.

After Mattern had slept and eaten sufficiently, the dispatch related, he requested the frontier guard to go to his plane and remove the engine and all the instruments, he having decided to abandon the ship because it was impossible to make repairs to enable it to take off again.

The guard's expedition was reported to have returned later with the motor and instruments.
