This Week IN WASHINGTON BY RADFORD MOBLEY

The post office department itself is one of its own biggest clients. The department uses about 300 tons of stationery and 160,000,000 envelopes a year, not to mention 5,000,000 sheets of carbon paper and 55,000 quarts of ink.

It may surprise you but it need not worry you, to find that there is no official "yardstick" in this country; when the storekeeper measures your yard of cloth, however, he does it with a yardstick based on the bureau of standards meter-bar. It is exactly 39.37 inches long and is kept in a vault at the bureau, where manufacturers and officials measure off the 36 inches for their yardsticks from it.

"Farm relief" of a practical sort is going to be provided produce growers on their next crop. As a result of passage of the product licensing act last year, every one of the commission men whom growers have accused for many years of mulcting them, is going to be licensed under federal supervision. For the first time, therefore, government assurance is being given the vegetable and fruit grower that he will get a fair price and a square deal when he ships to a distant market.

Members of the federal farm board would make a good nucleus for anybody's football team. Of the eight men on the board, five weigh over 200 pounds and are about six feet tall, while all of the others except former Gov. McKelvie weigh over 185 pounds. McKelvie weighs in at only around 150, but is lean and hard enough, physically, to fit the gridiron role.

When Navy Day was celebrated not long ago many officers of the Navy here appeared in civilian clothes while every Army officer in Washington was out in full dress regalia. It was the first time such a contrast had been offered. Furthermore, Walter Bruce Howe and William Galvin, Navy League members who made most of the arrangements for celebration of Navy day, are both officers in the Army reserve corps.

Ford Shows Faith in Future by World Wide Construction Program

Top—The Ford plant at Edgewater, N. J., opposite New York City. Center—The new plant at Long Beach, Cal. Bottom—A model of the plant being built at Dagenham, England.

THE Ford Motor Company's faith in the future of business, and especially in the future of the automobile, is evidenced by the fact that it is spending more than $50,000,000 for new plants and improvements in the United States and in foreign branches and associated companies.

The company has nine new plants under way throughout the world, while plans are being formulated for several others not yet announced. Wherever possible the new plants are being erected on sites accessible to both rail and water transportation so that, with each form of transportation supplementing the other, substantial savings will be effected.

Five of the new plants are in the United States, as follows:

Long Beach, California—This plant, recently completed to serve Southern California, has a capacity of 400 cars a day. Operating at capacity it employs 2,600 men.

Edgewater, New Jersey—The Edgewater plant, one of the company's largest assembly branches, has just been completed to serve New York City and surrounding territory. It has a capacity of 600 cars a day and employs 6,000 men.

Richmond, California—Work was started recently on a plant at Richmond, to be completed next year. It will have a capacity of 400 cars a day and will employ 2,400 men. It will supply cars to the San Francisco area.

Buffalo, New York—This plant will have a capacity of 400 cars a day and will employ 2,500 men.

Seattle, Washington—A site has been acquired and plans for a plant are being drawn.

A new manufacturing plant being erected at Dagenham, England, eighteen miles from London, to supplant the present works at Manchester, will be completed next year. It will be the largest automobile factory in the world outside the United States. Its capacity will be 200,000 cars a year.

An assembly and manufacturing plant is being built at Cologne, an assembly plant at Antwerp, and a service plant at Stockholm. Two branches—one at Perth, Australia, and one at Port Elizabeth, South Africa—were completed.

In addition the Ford Motor Company is spending several million dollars to increase the power capacity of the Rouge plant at Dearborn, Mich., and several million more in miscellaneous improvements.

MRS. A. L. ODER, Columnist

AMERICA'S GREATEST WOMAN

It is natural that we should be interested in great people, but sometimes we are confused as to what constitutes true greatness. A National magazine is trying to ascertain the names of women who, because of great achievements or service rendered, are worthy of special recognition. A medal is given annually to the one deemed worthy by the judges appointed. Sometime ago, I was asked to make a talk on "America's Greatest Woman." She was not found in Hollywood nor in the Lawmaking Centers of any state or nation. Not in the fields of science or manufacture, not in the style centers of Paris or New York, for she is not a wearer of "purple and fine linen." This woman lives on a rather barren farm and labors, and a wide stream of blessing and influence flows from her home each day. She has learned to brighten her corner. Tho' deprived of most of life's luxuries, and many of its so called necessities are denied her, no murmur of complaint escapes her. She is a veritable Pollyanna. The farm records from year to year, a corn shortage, and a wheat failure, but if anything is grown, she is thankful. Her husband is an invalid and for many years her chief income has been from her writings. She manages the most of the home expenses by the fruits of her pen, and seems to have on hand a little money for every good cause. Occasionally she can give a pair of shoes to a bare foot child or garments to the poor. Her motto seems to be, "Others." Her home is a neighborhood center. All around the people come to her for advice, and consultation. She has the only telephone in her community, and has no really educated neighbors, but is sure she is where the Lord wants her to be. She gladly does without things she cannot well afford. Much of her writing, which is read all over America, is done by the light of a kerosene lamp, and by this light she reads the classics and current literature. She takes a delight in keeping her lamp shining and well filled. She has never had a water faucet in her house, but is thankful for a good well in the yard, since so many are denied that blessing.

ing. She uses coal for heating and cooking, which makes more work, but is a good housekeeper and cook. Her parlor has no means of heating, so has to be closed most of the year, but she rejoices that it can be used about three months in the summer. A few years ago she gave up a Sunday School class in a nearby town, where she had taught for eighteen years, and started a Sunday School near her home. There were seven children present the first Sunday, but there has been an increase of numbers and interest ever since. This little work has grown into a church through her efforts, a building having recently been erected. She felt compensated for the drought destroyed wheat crop, as she noted the great spiritual blessings that had come to her community. In a near town at a rummage sale, she bought a nice dress. When clean and pressed she wore it to gatherings, where women were arrayed in costly garments, but always felt honored to have her present. This good woman has known financial independence but has kept sweet, although this was swept from her.

People passing near her home from one side of the continent to the other, stop to meet her, and many times a meal is served to them, as she believes in the old time hospitality. She says she has never worn a negligee. Whatever comes to her, she believes is a part of the divine plan, and that faith is hers, that can say with Job "Thou shalt slay me yet will I serve Thee." Some day her course will have been run, and those hands that have done so much for others, will lie folded across a pulseless breast, and she will enter into that rest that has never been prepared for her.

There she will meet the Prophets and Sages, And feel at home with the great of all ages.

If this is not America's greatest woman she certainly is typical of such.

BETTY ROGERS

The name of Will Rogers, is a household word, but not many are acquainted with his wife, whom he affectionately calls "Betty". In reading a lengthy magazine write up of the family recently, I was brought to the conclusion that she is really the power behind the throne. Usually there is a great woman who figures prominently somewhere in the life of every great man. No article or joke of Will's ever gets before the public without her o. k. She has to endure the annoyances common to most of the wives of great men, and some not to great. He is nervous forgetful and thinks little of the latest fashions in dress. She has to see that he is on time for his trains, busses etc. He forgets to purchase his clothing when needed, consequently she looks after that.

She says that he would wear a shirt a year if she didn't get it off of him. They live on their ranch in California just twenty minutes drive from Hollywood, where he does most of his work. The interviewer found it difficult to get any information from Betty, regarding herself. "You are writing about Will," she said, "He is the only member of the family in whom any one could be interested." Will says proudly, "People often come to our house to see me, and when they go away, they remember Betty only." Thus each recognizes the greatness of the other.

MRS. A. U. WEAVER

Through the generosity and thoughtfulness of this good woman, Roxie Lane, who has been sick for some time, was cared for in the Sealy Hospital, for more than a week recently. As we said in this column before, if those having no children, would help some underprivileged child, it would make of this world a much more delightful place in which to live.

Best Farm Cook

Mrs. M. L. Frazer of Redwood Falls, Minn., winner of Thanksgiving Dinner Menu Contest conducted by the Farm Bureau Federation.

Roxie is improving slowly and is anxious to be back in school, where she was making splendid progress. She is looking forward to the time when she can keep Mrs. Weaver company at night again. During her illness she has been showered, most liberally by the children in her grade, and has received special attention from her teacher, Miss Ruby Volentine. For these kindnesses and the thoughtfulness of other neighbors, Roxie and her people are most grateful.

MRS. PHOEBE K. WARNER'S MOTTO

It is said that on the stationery of Mrs. Phoebe K. Warner,

POLITICS

Both major parties are tightening their lines for the Presidential campaign of 1932. The Republicans know they have a fight on their hands to retain control of the Presidency; the Democrats believe that if they can agree upon a candidate acceptable to all sections of the country they can win easily.

That is frequently the situation two years before a Presidential election. It does not always follow that the "out" party wins over the "ins." Having possession of the machinery of Government is a great advantage. At the moment it looks as if it will be more difficult for the Democrats to agree upon a candidate who can rally all Democrats to his support than for the Republicans to mend their political fences.

JONES

"Bobby" Jones has at last answered the question: How can a man play golf all the time and still keep his law - practice going? The answer is that he can't. Bobby is giving up golf, except as a means of recreation. It remains to be seen whether Mr. Jones will do as well in law as he has done in golf. He has proved that he has the important quality of thoroughness. Those who know him say he has a natural taste for law, and high intelligence. He will not have the struggle for existence which so many young lawyers face, for while his amateur standing has kept him from making money out of his game, he is to get a sum, reputed to be a quarter of a million dollars, for making a series of educational films on "How I Play Golf." That ought to keep him going until he has established himself in law.

Probably Mr. Jones is doing only what his class and caste instincts and environment urge upon him. There are still too many people who think that being a lawyer is a more respectable way of making a living than being a golf professional. But it seems to me that we have too many lawyers now and not enough good sportsmen.

BELASCO

David Belasco, a San Francisco Jew who dressed like a Roman Catholic priest, was the father of the modern realistic drama. He thought that people on the stage ought to act and talk the way people do in real life, and that the settings and furniture of the stage ought to make the scenes look like the sort of places they were supposed to represent.

Belasco's work in drama began about the time Mr. Edison invented the incandescent electric light. The electric light probably did as much as any other influence to change the drama from the old ranting pantomime into what it is today. It enabled the audience to see the actors clearly, and made facial expression and careful make-up more important than they had been.

Belasco was the first theatrical producer to realize the possibilities of electric lighting on the stage and to shape his productions with the new lighting in mind. Today everybody ing of this motto until recently, we have been working to this end in this column.

The following from here attended a missionary meeting at the Baptist church in Coleman Monday morning: Rev. Hal Wingo and wife, W. E. Ragsdale and wife, Mesdames E. Watkins, McCreary, Goen Lee Hunter, Walter Kirkpatrick, John B. Smith and Chas. Hale.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Gross and children of the Echo community and Mr. and Mrs. Rousey of Santa Anna, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. White for Thanksgiving dinner.

in the theatre business, including the movie producers, follow the principles which Belasco developed.

PROHIBITION

All the reports from those who profess to know indicate that the President's Commission on Law Enforcement, better known as the Wickersham Commission, will report that the present Prohibition law cannot be enforced, and will recommend some changes.

There will be more serious attempts made at the coming session of Congress to break down the "dry" law than at any time since it was enacted. There is little likelihood of anything being accomplished by the "wets" at this last session of the 71st Congress, but if the Wickersham report proves to be friendly to the modification of the present law, watch for fireworks when the Congress just elected begins its sessions.

FOOTBALL

It took the appeal of charity to bring the Army and Navy football teams together. For several years the annual Army-Navy game has been omitted, because of a quarrel over points of sportsmanship.

When the two teams meet in New York on December 13, it will be frankly for the purpose of helping to raise money for the relief of unemployment. Early estimates of the receipts indicate that they may run to a million dollars, or almost as much as the "gate" at the last Tunney-Dempsey fight.

It is a strange but interesting kink of human nature that people will pay fancy prices to see a football game for charity, who would never think of giving the same amount of money outright. As high as $5,000 was offered for a box at the Yankee Stadium as soon as the Army-Navy engagement was announced.

Paper Read by Dr. T. M. Hays Before the Coleman County Medical Ass'n., Which Met in Santa Anna in 1903

Dr. T. M. Hays, Santa Anna, Texas

Forty years ago Dr. and Mrs. T. M. Hays, came to Santa Anna to make their home. He was a young physician and she a young bride, times have changed a lot since they came. In that day Doctors rode horse back to practice medicine and many many were up all night long. Dr. Hays soon became one of Santa Anna's leading physicians as well as one of the most prominent business men of the town. Like most men who have been successful in life Dr. Hays is very modest and when asked for a writeup told me he would contribute a paper he read before the Coleman County Medical Association, which met in Santa Anna in 1903.

Dr. and Mrs. Hays have seven children, five of whom are married and all are successful business men and women.

Mrs. Hays underwent all the hardships of the pioneer physician's wife. Often alone at night excepting the small children. Then on Sunday she dressed the children and walked with them to church and Sunday School. She says in that day everyone worked and taught their children to work.

The paper given below was published in The Santa Anna News, twenty seven years ago—Mrs. Ollie Pearce-Weaver.

The following article from the pen of our friend, Dr. T. M. Hays, was read by that gentleman before the Coleman County Medical Association. His modesty would, no doubt, forbid the liberty we are taking; for this good reason we are going to use it and apologize afterwards.

THE DOCTOR His Duties and Responsibilities

The Doctor, to my mind stands in one of the most sacred places on this earth and fills a place that requires brain, skill, modesty, honesty, patience, and must or should have all these virtues coupled with a clear head and a true and noble heart. This profession of ours is one of which we may all feel proud. Christ himself was a physician and went about healing the sick, and causing the maimed to walk and the blind to see; then, indeed, our calling is of divine origin. Why, old Moses, I am told, laid down certain laws or rules for the government of the Jewish people. The symptoms of certain diseases were given and according to their presence or absence, so were the people required to undergo a process of purification or quarantine. It was the medical examiner of those days who occupied the position of priest and on whom developed the responsibility of determining these things. He therefore, was a very correct diagnostician; for this purification partook of the nature of a religious rite and he could not make any mistake. Many other characters could I bring up to show you the value of the Doctor at this time.

In the ages of long ago when men yet lived in caves, the figure that stood out in the boldest relief is the "Medicine Man". To him came his tribe, singly and collectively, asking enlightenment and guidance. His "war chief" however fierce and however bold or brave, was only tribal warrior leader, he himself being the real ruler, holding the scepter of life and death over his people. From then until now we have been making rapid strides in medicine and we are growing more useful every day. Of course, it seems now that culture made progress slowly at first; but we are gaining rapidly with the passing centuries. What was true of the "Medicine Man" of the ages ought to be true many times of the enlightened "medicine man" of today.

Twenty years ago tuberculosis was a mystery; now the great medical laboratories and the Doctors Manual Training Schools are undoing these mysteries and soon, I believe this dread malady will be forced to loosen its deadly hold on the human family; and who is doing all this? Fighting against death and against this, one of the greatest enemies of mankind? the Doctor. A thousand years ago the leper and he who was stricken by plague were shunned by man and beast, were outcasts, stoned. One hundred years ago the insane rattled their chains within their dismal cells with vermin for their sole companionship.

Our fathers saw hospital gangrene work its loathsome will undisturbed. We ourselves have seen diphtheria kill in its own peculiar way while we stood helplessly by. In these days our power and influence were less than now when almost every disease is made to come forth and shine in the light of scientific research; and today as we are more and more masters of disease, we are more and more masters of our patients, and through them nearer and nearer the masters of society at large. Surely if any profession has a right to be proud of its achievements, the great family of physicians stand possessed of that honor.

See what has been done in the lengthening of life from 1890 to 1900, only ten years, yet four years have been added to the average longevity.

The Physician's responsibility is great, so great; why, when I stop to think of this awful responsibility I almost give down under the great weight that seems to rest upon me. No doubt you have all felt this weight on your physical and mental manhood. You are called by men to know what business they are to follow and this is a responsibility of no light moment. You are asked by your patients what climate is best suited to them and you are called on by insurance companies and expected to examine their applicants and upon your decision rests the loss of thousands of dollars. You are called upon to examine the bodies of the dead those of whom maybe you never saw in life and are expected to give some idea of how or of what they died. Upon your decision and upon your statements often rests the lives and freedom of others. You are called upon to say and say at once what this or that contagious disease is, name it quickly and take or have steps taken to stop the spread of some great malady. Upon your correct diagnosis and upon your correct action may rest more than a thousand lives if lost they are forever to this world by this one wrong act of yours. All of these responsibilities weigh heavily upon the shoulders of the physician. He it is that shapes the future of mankind, largely, shapes the financial as well as the physical and mental destiny of families. He it is that knows and understands the family secrets and the family sorrows. He it is, alone outside the family that knows the heart aches, and all of these must be treated with the strictest confidence and he is expected to heal every wound and stop every pain, either of body or of soul. Remember that he must act honorably in all of this and that his ties and his relationship as family physician, requires nothing at his hands conflicting with the laws of our land or with the laws of the Maker.

You have often times, I know I have, after many weary, sleepless nights of toil, care and service had to see all your work thwarted by the grave monster, death then we realize how powerless we mortals are. You have seen the first and only baby, bright-eyed and full of antics, the pride of some true hearted mother, the star of hope to some kind and loving father, stilled in death. You loved its parents, you actually loved the baby, but after all this scene you could only stand with folded hands and heavy heart and say, "It is finished, I can do no more". Yet all the time hearing the shrieks and cries of the heart-broken mother and the groans of the father, either of whom would gladly have died for it, calling again and again to the doctor and to God to save my baby, save my daughter, save my son, or maybe it is a father or a mother but you say, "no, I have done all I can do". Then it is that your sorrow and sympathy are great and you go home tired and sleepy worn out physically and mentally. But you can't sleep. This was a special friend or neighbor. You cannot forget the cruel scene, the face and expression of that mother and that father nor the cold white marble face whose eyes stand half open, half shut, with balls turned backward glared eyes of your patient who has fled to that land from whence no traveler ever returns.

Now it is you realize in its fullest sense your responsibility to man and your responsibility to God. Now I think that it is your duty to stay awhile; stay until this scene is over. I believe that duty should hold you there; of course it is not pleasant, nor would I have you cultivate the dark side of life; but you have been with this case all the way through and your presence will help and console the bereaved more than anyone else. They know that your connection with the case renders you fully more able to sympathize with them in this great trouble. You will be late that night getting to sleep and will go over again and again all of your treatment from the first dose of medicine up to the very last. You remember perhaps that once you were away on business, and that your patient suffered greatly all of the day, and that you could not get there until late that night. You also remember that you knew this patient was very sick but that you did not think it would die; and that you were really surprised when the end came so soon. You say, "I wonder if it could have been cured; I wonder if this or that change had been made sooner or later, would it have been better." After so long and so much worry you finally get to sleep. Time goes on and this scene becomes dim and you have almost forgotten it. Your patients are yielding so nicely to treatment and you are flattering yourself that you are a regular, genuine good Doctor; then it is the same old story is repeated as above. You have all had this experience, I know; if you have not, you will. You have all felt just as I have described and if by chance there is one who has not felt this way

THE BLUE RIBBON OF COOKING

Sam H. Thompson, President of the American Farm Bureau Federation has awarded the title of "Culinary Champion of all Farm Women Cooks in America" to Mrs. M. L. Friese of Redwood Falls, Minnesota. Mrs. Friese won the first prize offered by the Federation for the best Thanksgiving dinner menu, in competition with some 500 other farm women in every part of the United States.

Mrs. Friese, we salute you! We've never met you, but we admire you. We admire anybody who can think up, let alone cook such a dinner as the one for which you won the Farm Bureau prize. We like your dinner. That is to say, we like to read about it. We are sorry we couldn't have been at your house on Thanksgiving Day to eat it. Not that we didn't have a good Thanksgiving Day Dinner at our house, we did. In fact, one of the things we like about your dinner is that it was just such a typically American Thanksgiving dinner as nine-tenths of the country folks of America sat down to last Thursday—and a big percentage of city folks as well.

We are not prepared to admit that there are no cooks in our town who could have given Mrs. Friese a run for her money if they had entered the Farm Bureau contest. In fact, we know several ladies who, in our humble judgement, can make a cook-stove perform more miracles than Edison ever dreamed of. And we feel that Mrs. Friese won this contest because she stuck to tradition and got precisely the same kind of a Thanksgiving dinner that our own folks had.

There was turkey, of course. Can't have a real Thanksgiving dinner without turkey—with parsley dressing and giblet sauce. And cranberry ice and glazed sweet potatoes and mince pie and pumpkin pie, besides all the other er vegetables and "fixings" that go to make up a genuine old-fashioned Thanksgiving dinner. We just aren't going to put them all down here. We'd starve to death waiting to get home to dinner if we didn't stop writing about good things to eat right now.

What we were starting out to say is that with all the new-fangled notions about balanced meals and reducing diets and vitamins and calories and such like, we had been wondering whether the art of cooking was not becoming a lost art, outside of the homes of those ladies we spoke about a little way back. It's left in the land and they know what a good dinner ought to consist of, and Mrs. Friese and the five hundred others who competed for the Farm Bureau are not all of them, by a long way.

FARM BOYS AND GIRLS

There is only one thing about the annual gathering of 4-H Club boys and girls at the National Livestock Exposition that ought to be different. That is the fact that all of the city folks in the United States can't go to Chicago this week and see the kind of young folks the farms of America are bringing up today.

If we had our way about this 4-H club affair, we'd arrange to pull off an exhibit of city youngsters at the same time and place and invite all of the cocktail-drinking city smart-Alecs, cigarette-smoking "society" women and snooty "modern" critics of everything that is sound and wholesome in America to come and compare the two groups.

We know which group would win. Our money would be down on the 4-H boys and girls.

Seriously, we feel that there is nothing whatever to worry about concerning the future of the United States, much less the future of American rural life, so long as the farms of the nation continue to produce young men and women of the types which make up the 4-H clubs. They call this annual show in Chicago a livestock exposition. It is that of course, but it seems to us that by far the most important exhibit there is these healthy, industrious, energetic, enthusiastic, wholesome young people who are sent from every part of the country because they have won outstanding success in farming and home making.

The country districts of the United States can challenge the cities to show their equal. We

Speaks For Crazy Water

Thought Hopeless Yet He Lived to Tell His Story

Three weeks ago today, I came to the Crazy Water Hotel on a stretcher from the city of Lubbock, Texas, with what the doctors called Typhoid Spine, and they told me that there was no medicine that would cure me. I started drinking Crazy Water and taking baths, and on the 12 day after arriving, I took to the wheel chair and on the 17th day I started walking on crutches and can now walk without them, so I feel if Crazy Water will do that for me I cannot say enough for it.

The new million dollar Crazy Hotel at Mineral Wells, Texas, covers an entire block of ground. It is modern, fire-proof and complete in every detail. It is natural to think it would be expensive to stop at this magnificent Hotel; yet, you can enjoy its genuine hospitality, pleasing service and receive the benefits of the Crazy Mineral Water Treatment at very reasonable rates. Millions of men and women the world over know that the Kruschen Method of burning up fat and getting weight down to a healthy and shapely basis is a safe and sensible one.

But there are millions more who are not fat who ought to know that Kruschen Salts keeps the body free from harmful toxins and acids—puts into your internal organs, nerves, glands and fibres the six vitalizing minerals that nature says it should have if you are to be vigorous, energetic and free from petty ailments.

If your weight is normal and you have no fat to lose—eat any thing you want and take one half a teaspoon of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning.

An 85 cent bottle lasts four weeks—and after the first bottle you will realize what a wonderful rejuvenating combination Kruschen is—You will probably feel younger than you have for years and clearer skin, brighter eyes and keener mind.

You can get Kruschen Salts at Turner's Drug Store or any drug store in the world—It's the inexpensive way to have glorious health and to keep it.

Know of no comparable movement in the cities looking forward to the development of the qualities of Hand, Heart, Head and Health which are the four "H's" of the 4-H clubs. City youngsters may average "smarter" in dress and manners, though we question the latter. But the important things of life are not those which appear on the surface. It is character alone that counts, in the long run; and we know of no finer builder of fine character than the 4-H clubs.

BE TRUE

This above all, to thine own self be true, and it must follow, as the night the day, Thou canst not then be false to any man." This is a sermon in itself. If this was practiced, the world would be rid of much fraud and crime.

In school work be true to your own self and by doing such your school mates and teachers will profit by it.

Be strong when temptation comes to you to cheat. Always remember that someone is watching you and following your example.

Let us make it our aim to always live by being true to ourselves and by doing so, treat others fairly.

CANDY PARTY

The Scribblers Club met at the home of Margaret Wylie Monday night, Dec. 1 to make candy.

When everyone had arrived with their sugar, milk or whatever they were supposed to bring we went into the kitchen and got busy. We made several kinds of candy including fudge that didn't get hard, patience, taffy, that stuck to the paper a new kind of fudge, everyone thought it was going to be real good but when we had one piece no one wanted a second and Miss Land taught us how to make a new kind that was real good.

The new members thought they were going to be invited but they weren't but the two "Fish" had to wash the pans, cups and spoons.

We went home about nine o'clock and everyone reported a good time and if anyone wants any candy made just call on the Scribblers for we are professionals at candy making.

holidays of course because they didn't have to get up so early those mornings and go to school. But the teachers enjoyed the holidays because it gave them plenty of time to grade papers and make out report cards; for last week ended our second six weeks term of school.

We are very grateful to the School Board for seeing fit to allow us two days for Thanksgiving.

This week we're all back "on the job" with our school work, but we're also looking forward to the coming Christmas holidays for, "it won't be long now."

Pineapple Salad
More and more we are using canned pineapple for salad. It combines well with many things and is good with French and mayonnaise dressing.

Served with cream cheese ball in the round cavity in the center it is delicious.

With three dates stuffed with cheese.

With a pile of diced orange and grapefruit pulp in the center.

Sprinkled with coarsely ground or chopped pecan nuts or walnuts.

All these combinations with either mayonnaise or French dressing.

Here is another good pineapple salad. Use a cup of the chopped or minced pineapple, not the slices, and half a cup of chopped celery, finely cut and the sweet, tender heart section. Serve on lettuce with mayonnaise dressing.

Another salad is made with endive. One stalk of endive on each plate is filled with alternate chunks of grapefruit pulp and pineapple and the whole is served with French dressing, made very oily.

Frozen Pineapple Custard
Beat the yolks of three eggs with a cup of sugar, stir into a pint of milk, and cook until it thickens, stirring constantly. Cool, add a cup of cream, the beaten whites of the eggs, and a small can of grated pineapple. Freeze.

Pineapple-Water Ice
One-half pound of fresh pineapple the juice of one lemon, half a pint of water, and one pint of clarified syrup. Chop the pineapple as fine as possible; add the lemon juice, sugar and water. Strain, and freeze.

FEAR
Fear lays down the bars for the enemy to come on. Pitiful indeed is the man or woman who lives in fear of something which exists only in the imagination. A state of mind like that will, in time, reduce the body to a state of confirmed invalidism.

The scared man invariably bestirs himself to find a means of keeping out of harm's way. He will bite at every fake—every nostrum that is heralded as a preventive or cure of disease. He will dig up his last cent to pay for something that is daily dinned into his ears by radio, or spread before his eyes in the blatant advertisement. He keeps himself in a state of mental unrest which in time will lead to real illness.

If a shrewd commercialist invents a fad these days, and resorts to high power advertising, he reaps a harvest of sickles from the gullible masses; and there are many shrewd commercialists these days. A million lies have been circulated about meats; more about good wholesome bread; as many more about the honest old coffee-berry; a million harmful—positively damaging fads have been set afloat by the promoters of "health foods," to supplant the countryman's honest square meal of hog jowel and greens.

THE DOCTOR

By DR. T. M. Hays

he should have such scenes as these to make him feel the responsibility of his position. They make us feel sad very sad indeed but they cause us to think seriously.

We usher with gentle hand and warmest heart our fellow man into this life and we lead him tenderly, affectionately, regretfully down the valley of the Shadow of Death. The first to greet and the last to take leave, and while walking we warm him of and lead him by the pitfalls of disease and suffering, both physical and mental.

With such duties as these, with such responsibilities as these, we should and must be energetic, we should get a "two-forty" suit on us with all this broad field to work in and to make progress in for the betterment of mankind. We are servants of the people and yet we are leaders and we should spend our time and a reasonable amount of money in striving to make progress and to better fit ourselves for duty and the work we have to do.

I trust you, my fellow physicians, those of you who are older than myself, will not think unkindly of me or think it presumption in me to say so much on this subject for I know full well that there are those who know more of these duties than I do, I know some of you were in this work performing these duties and bearing these responsibilities when I was only a bad boy at my mother's feet; but on this subject I could have not said less and have done my conscience justice.

Let us still climb higher and higher in this noble profession and let us continue to advance and make rapid progress. After we have passed off this stage of action where we will, I hope, meet the great Physician, the greatest that the world has ever known, in the words of Longfellow I would say:

"In the world's broad field of battle

In the bivouac of life

Be not like dumb, driven cattle

Be a hero in the strife

Trust no future, however pleasant

Let the dead past bury its dead

Act, act in the living present

Heard within and God over head.

Bangs Second Team Scores Over Santa Anna 2nd Team

The Baby Dragons from Bangs won an exciting game from the Santa Anna second team to the tune of 7-0 at Bangs last Wednesday, Nov. 26, 1930. This game gave both Bangs and Santa Anna coaches a good chance to see just about what next year's team will be made up of and it looks as if Santa Anna has the best prospects even though they lost. Spivey of Bangs intercepted a pass on his own 15 yard line and circled the Santa Anna squad for a touchdown and a fake pass to him was good for the extra point. Notwithstanding this fact the Santa Anna delegation completely played Bangs off their feet and the off tackle drives of Jesse Goen dealt Bangs much misery.

Both Mr. Look and the supporters were surprised at the tenacity of the Santa Anna forward wall with Degges Traylor and Jesse Lee Sparkman at center; Clovis Fletcher, Robert Curry, Odie Griffith and Noel (Pony) Campbell guards; Cody Eubanks, Woodrow Niell, Yantis Hines and Degges Traylor at tackles, Leon Ward and Emmett Stiles on the ends, and with Fred (Husky) Paulkner, Nowlin (Snillum) Myers, Jesse (Fat) Goen, and Ernest (Red) Harrod in the backfield, the Santa Anna boys looked like a football machine in the making.

The same teams play here on Wednesday December 3 and a good crowd is expected since there will be no admission.
